There are a hundred arguments in favor to one against, buying House Furnishings on the easy payment plan. With living expenses high it isn't always convenient to pay cash. # City Plans Presented

General Satisfactory For Abolition of The Crossing at Saville and Water Sts.

The adjourned hearing on the abolition of the grade crossings at Saville and Water streets was held at City Hall this morning before the special commission appointed by the Superior court.

These hearings have been postponed from time to time to permit the city to prepare plans upon which it is hoped all parties at interest will unite.

In speaking of Saville street City Solicitor McAnarney spoke of the Quincy station as an important station. Of the volumes of traffic here and of the importance of Saville street as a thoroughfare. The plans of the railroad he considered were in utter defiance to the rights of the people.

Water street was the main artery from East Milton and West Quincy to Quincy and Boston. Here the railroad plans presented the greatest burden on the city.

He then presented plans prepared by the city. These called for a depression of the tracks at Saville street and Water street, so that both streets would pass over the railroad.

He then introduced Prof. Breed of the Institute of Technology under whose direction the plans were made.

Prof. Breed stated at the opening his experience in this line of work at Newton, on the Boston & Albany and Boston & Maine railroads, and for the Chicago and West Indiana railroad. Also his work for the city of Lynn. He then explained the plans for the abolition of the two crossings in detail.

In brief the plans may be described as follows:

SAVILLE STREET.

Under the proposed plan for the separation of the grade at Saville street it is proposed to begin at a point 750 feet north of Dimmock street and drop at a 5-10 per cent. grade for a distance of about 1300 feet to within 200 feet of Saville street, thence running at a level for 550 feet to a little over 300 feet south of the south side of Saville street, thence down on a 5-10 per cent grade, thence up on a 4-10 per cent grade to the present level at a point 1300 feet south of Granite street.

This depresses the railroad 8 feet at Dimmock street. 15.3 at Saville street and 14.2 at Granite street. The Dimmock sreet bridge will be dropped 4.2 feet and at Saville street the street grade will be raised 4.6 feet, giving a headway of 18 feet for the railroad. At Granite street the grade is raised 20 feet giving a headway of 18 feet.

At Saville street on the easterly side the grade from the railroad is 4 per cent for a distance of 770 feet then 3 per cent for 40 feet, then down 4 per cent for 90 feet to the original grade at a point 70 feet from the westerly side of Hancock street. From the easterly side of the bridge a 6.26 per cent. grade runs up toward the west to the centre line of Upland road.

At Granite street the grade on the easterly side is 3 per cent. and on the westerly side it is a 3 per cent. for a distance of 100 feet then a 5 per cent. grade to the easterly line of Goffe street, then flat for 70 feet. The width of the new Dimmock bridge is 40 feet, of Saville street 45 feet, and of Granite street 45 feet.

Beginning from the south line of Saville street opposite Upland road a street 40 feet wide runs straight to Granite street at a grade of 2 per cent. down from Saville street for 600 feet and then down at 1.2 per cent grade to Granite street.

At the Quincy depot a new station is proposed, the floor of which will be on the same level with the tracks. There will be a carriage approach at Saville street near the corner of Upland road. The station platform is reached from Saville street by a stairway of 40 steps. Also an approach by footbridge from the easterly side of the tracks being an extension of the northerly line of Depot street.

On the easterly side between Saville street and the cemetery the yard is left practically the same as at present. A new station is proposed with floor at present level and at track level, with about 25 steps from one floor to the other. The new station will be located in a north and south direction from the present station. The depot platform is approached from Granite street by an 8 foot wide sidewalk at an 4.2 grade. People arriving in carriages will get to the lower platform by stairs. The siding at Richards is abandoned and that at the Hammond Beef Co. retained. The platform is approached from Saville street by about 40 steps. The cost of construction is estimated at $350,000.

The new street from Upland road to Granite street damages all the property on the westerly side of Irving place, commencing with the Penniman property on the corner of

PROTEST SOLEMNLY

Sacred Character of Memorial Day Violated Says Chaplain Sproul

"The sacred character of Memorial Day" was the subject of the address of Rev. N. J. Sproul, chaplin of Paul Revere Post 88, G. A. R., at Mt. Wollaston cemetery on Memorial Day, and it was a protest against the desecration of the National holiday which was set apart as "Soldier's Day," and was intended to make for better citizenship. Many other speakers on Memorial Day protested along the same lines, and the Daily Ledger takes pleasure in printing the address of Mr. Sproul, who is pastor of the First Presbyterian church of this city, in full:

Members of the G. A. R., affiliated orders, and citizens of Quincy:—

The most interesting, suggestive and withal meaningful of our national festivals, is the day we are now celebrating. Well do you commend in the general order for the day, that it be observed with "reverence and thoughtfulness," for "reverence for the dead is one of the noblest sentiments of the human heart."

It is said that the Roman soldier who tarried at the tombs of his fathers on the Appian Way, before beginning a campaign fought with the greatest bravery. "Who would build temples," one has asked, "were there no tombs in sight?"

And who can doubt but that the time spent each Memorial Day in the sleeping places of our dead, will do more to strengthen the nation, than can the more noisy festivities of Independence Day?

At the Centennial Exposition in Philadelphia was exhibited a picture of an aged fifer, his grey locks streaming in the wind, leading on the historic field of Monmouth, his company to the fray. By his side, as we might expect, was a boy, peering anxiously into the old man's face, and catching therefrom the step and tune of liberty. And wherever willows bend and softly sigh over soldiers' graves, today, let young America learn the stride and strain of equality and liberty.

The children walking by your side, today, have been asking you through enquiring eyes, as they now ask the speaker, what it all means. Why these processions and services? And before you have had time to answer their enquiry, they ask once more: Why the noise and din and strife of battle which took away grandfathers, fathers and friends? Why the mothers' tears and the widow's weeds, and the broken health? Why did those soldiers, whose graves you have today decorated, die? Was it to give the nation a holiday? Was it to afford amusement perennially to a thoughtless, fun-loving populace? Was it to fill the coffers of the gold-greedy and make them rich? Or was it, perchance to create once a year, a great pageant?"

Men of the Grand Army, I do not wonder that you against all such ideas. Nor do I wonder that the children ask such questions. If the boys and girls of our land are to judge from what they see and know of Memorial Day, it is but natural that they should make such enquiries. For I insist that the great mass of the populace have forgotten or entirely missed, the significance of the day. And I stand here today to utter a word of protest in the name of the Grand Army, and as a citizen of no mean city, against the inordinate greed for gold, and lust for pleasure which are combining to degrade the day and make of it a carvinal and a carousal, when it should be kept as high above such things as the purpose which originated it.

It was at a meeting of Union soldiers and sailors assembled in Philadelphia, January 1868, that it was resolved to set apart May 30th of each year, as a day for the decoration of

Sacred Character Of Memorial Day

Union Soldiers' and Sailors ' graves. The resolution was carried into effect, and congress, at its next session, passed an act making Decoration Day a national holiday.

This day was given that loving hearts might live for a short time with and honor their dead. And if at first it was a soldier's day, and meant particularly for the old soldier and sailor, that they might bring the "fairest blossoms, and with tender loving thoughts place them upon the graves of their departed comrades," and see to it "that the flag they loved so dearly wave over each," and that "not a single soldier's grave be forgotten." It has taken on a wider meaning, until today, it gives scope to all within our borders, old and young, rich and poor, native and foreign born, to seek out the resting place of their dead, and not only adorn their narrow beds with earth's fairest flowers, but over the graves of loved ones, with chastened thoughts and throbbing hearts to begin to build more stately mansions for their own souls.

This day was meant to make for and I protest that the greed for gold, on the one hand, and the lust for amusement, on the other, are conspiring to rob it of its sanctity, and to make of that which was intended to be a holy Day, for the large majority, and especially for the young, a secular holiday. And as our Lord scourged from his temple the busy greedy horde who defiled that place that they might make gain, so should this nation rise, before the Day has lost its significance, and, to the end that it may be perpetuated for centuries to come, cleanse it.

The fathers of this Republic, though great and wise and good men, and though intensely patriotic, made a grave mistake and clipped the wings of freedom when they made a compromise with slavery. In spite of the statement of the Declaration of Independence, that "All men are born free and equal, and possess equal and inalienable rights to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness," the colonies which threw off the British yoke numbered several hundred thousand negro slaves, whose condition of slavery was expressly recognized in the Constitution of the United States, as ratified in 1788, provision being made for the rendition of fugitive slaves, a subject, the regulation of which was delegated to the federal government, slavery being otherwise left to be governed by the laws of the States where it existed.

The great Civil War should serve to show us even today, how futile, sinful and disastrous a thing it inevitably is to attempt a compromise with evil.

AGAIN AND AGAIN

When this hydra-headed evil came into view, it was sought to compromise with it by dealing with certain of its ramifications. In 1820, 1833, 1850, 1854 it clamored for supremacy and threatened the dissolution of the Union, and was compromised with. But as God is righteous so must He ever refuse to compromise with evil.

In that memorable election of 1860, Abraham Lincoln was chosen President, and when it became apparent that he was not a "compromise" man, it was likewise discovered that there was half a nation of men who loved their own selfish ways and ends more than their country. For four years God permitted the awful strife to continue, until, having lost a million men and eight thousand million dollars worth of property, this nation had learned that evil can no more be tolerated in the body-politic, than disease in the human body, and there not be suffering and expiation required.

Have we sufficiently well learned our lesson ? These old soldiers whose serried ranks as they pass through our streets touch the eye to tears, and whose surviving members must soon lie down in their last long sleep, stand before the nation today, as God's warning against every form of evil which may seek to incorporate itself in our nation's life, but most of all against that grosser form of materialism, which in the days gone by crushed out the manhood of 4,000,000 of our fellow-mortals for filthy lucre's sake, and which rather than give it up, thought to rend the nation in twain.

The South would not have gone to war had it not been for the misconception it got of us—not wholly a misconception either—that our people had become so much enamored of gold, and so completely occupied in making money that they would not, or if they would, then could not make war.

Today, I fear we again lay ourselves open to the same charge, of being

GROSSLY MATERIALISTIC.

In what we leave undone as well as in what we do we show it. To make dollars the Sabbath is dessecrated, home-life is neglected, and the affairs of town, and city and State are become too commonly matters of barter. These last years if they have brought to light strong and righteous men, have magnified their greatness by placing them on a background of domestic, social and civic unrighteousness, without a parallel in the history of the nation.

The fathers of this Republic would not have believed, seventy-five years before the Civil war, that such a disastrous conflict could have come out of that little cloud in the Constitution not bigger than a man's hand, which was allowed to be incorporated in it, against the spirit and design of the Declaration of Independence. But as the result of pitching toward slavery even so very little came the calamitous Civil war, and as God is God and right is right now as then, shall we again suffer unless we deal honestly and fearlessly with the canker of materialism, which, octopus-like, is gripping the hearts of men and women too, in the home and state, which is sacrificing on the altar of lust and greed the fairest flowers of liberty.

It was Chas. Sumner who said : " If we would perpetuate our republic we must sanctify it as well as fortify it, and make it at once a temple and a citidal." In these days when the spirit of irreverence is so common, it might not be amiss to recall these words. There is need for more reverence for SACRED THINGS.

That eminent Frenchman, Henri de Tocqueville, whose masterpiece, 'Democratie en Amerique' gave him membership in the French Academy, declared to his own people that the secret of America's growth and greatness was the reverence of her people for the Lord's Day. To the mind of this eminent foreigner, the Sabbath was our chief asset and fortification. It was our great Commoner, Daniel Webster who said, "The longer I live, the more highly do I estimate the Christian Sabbath, and the more grateful do I feel toward those who impress its importance upon the community." Dr. Joseph Cook used to say : "There never can be a successful American republic without the Sabbath. Give us a Parisian Sabbath from sea to sea, and in three generations you will need a Parisian army to keep the republic in order.

Let me add, that this nation was planted and fostered by Sabbath observing men. They were men who knew the value of that sacred day, and would not allow the greed for gold nor the lust for pleasure to deter them from keeping it.

General Grant whose memory the nation delights to honor, has given us an example which we would do well to follow. When in Paris he was invited by the government to attend the races on Sunday. Courteously, yet positively he declined, declaring to the French that it was not the custom in his country to have such happenings on the first day of the week.

Coming nearer home still, is that name which will be revered as long as the granite hills of Quincy endure,

JOHN QUINCY ADAMS,

Sixth president of the United States, and a man of the finest parts. When minister from this country to the court of Holland, he joined a society of learned men, who met once a week for mutual improvement. Mr. Adams though one of the youngest members soon became a great favorite. His finely trained mind and ready conversation won him many friends.

On one occasion the society to which he belonged adjourned to meet the next Sunday evening. Mr. Adams was not there. It was decided to meet the next Sunday but again Mr. Adams was absent. On the third Sunday Mr. Adams being still absent, many comments were made, and regrets expressed. It was said the press of business kept him away. Once more however, the meetings were returned to a week-day evening, and Mr. Adams was in his place, brilliant and entertaining as usual. The members hastened to welcome him and tell him how he was missed, saying they were sorry that business had kept him so many times away.

"It was not business" replied Adams, "that kept me away, you met on the Lord's day, and that day I devote to religious uses." He declared that he came from a country where the Sabbath was strictly observed, and, that he was persuaded of the unspeakable advantages arising from the right observance of it.

That was John Quincy Adams, one-time citizen of Quincy, sixth President of the United States, scholar, patriot, and Chrisian statesman, whose honored dust sleeps beneath yonder church.

The same gross materialism which has in large part robbed us of our Sabbath is now laying greedy hands upon Memorial Day, and is taking from it its significance and making it into a day for gain and pleasure. Robbed of it, this nation will have had taken from it something infinitely

MORE PRECIOUS THAN MONEY.

When the late Leland Stanford visited Greece, says the writer of 'In the footsteps of Byron,' he was so much impressed by the ruins of the temple of Theseus, that he thought to buy one of the columns which had supported the fane of Olympian Zeus, as an ornament for his estate at Palo Alto, Cal. Knowing how poor the Greeks were he thought they would be tempted to sell a block of old marble for $40,000. Imagine his surprise to find that no amount of money would tempt the Athenians to part with their precious treasure. Fickle as the winds, inconstant in all else; the patriotism of that people could not be bought with gold. All honor to them of whom this can be said.

The greatest treasures of this nation are to be found, not in her fertile fields, nor in her rich mines, nor in her busy cities nor broad expanse of domain—then greatness were a material thing—but in the men who shape her destinies. And more to be prized than things material, are those influences and forces in the nation that make for righteousness.

Looked at in this light, the resting places of our dead are a greater asset than the busy mart, or the broad expanse of territory from which is taken the bread which feeds our nation, since from the former come those memories which like the ivy cling more closely as they grow older, and stir the hearts with such feeling of devotion and patriotism as give us the highest type of men. This is our today. We need men.

"God give us men, a time like this demands
Great hearts, strong minds, true faith and ready hands;
Men whom the lust of office cannot kill;
Men whom the spoils of office cannot buy;
Men who have opinions and a will;
Men who love honor; men who will not lie;

Men who can stand before a demagogue,
And brave his treacherous flatteries without winking;
Tall men, sunburnt, who live above the fog,
In public duty and in private thinking.
For while the rabble with its thumbworn cries
Its large professions and its little deeds
Mingle in selfish strife, lo! Freedom weeps,
Wrong rules the land, and waiting Justice sleeps!"

Songs For Cannon and Bryan In the Closing Hours

UNCLE JOE THANKS HOUSE

Says That Out of Conflict Comes Safety of Republic--Senators Thank Fairbanks--President Signs Emergency Currency and Other Bills

Washington, June 1.—Just ten minutes, officially, before the hands of the big clock in the chambers of the two houses of congress pointed to the hour of midnight Saturday, the first session of the Sixtieth congress came to a close.

In the house the closing hours were characterized by singing of songs by Republicans in honor of Speaker Cannon and by Democrats in the interest of William J. Bryan. The excitement, which was great at times, finally subsided and the session closed with general good-fellowship among the members.

The senate was extremely quiet during the closing hours, held together only by the necessity of remaining in session for the engrossing and signing of bills.

The last days of the senate will be memorable on account of the filibuster of Messrs. La Follette, Stone and Gore against the emergency currency bill by the remarkable interpretations of the rules which go far to establish cloture in a body noteworthy for the freedom of debate and by the final passage of the currency bill.

President Roosevelt and several of his cabinet were at the Capitol during the evening. Previous to his signature of the currency bill the president had handed it to Secretary Cortelyou, who carefully read its provisions. Two other members of the cabinet were present—Secretaries Root and Garfield.

The president, in conversing with several members, told them that he was very well satisfied with the accomplishments of the congressional session. An hour after his arrival at the Capitol the president had signed all the bills placed before him, including the public buildings, the general deficiency and the government employes' liability bills.

At 11:49 Speaker Cannon rapped for order and delivered a brief farewell address. He said:

"Gentlemen of the house: The time is near for adjournment. I want to thank the members of the house for their uniform courtesy to its presiding officer. We all take pride in the national house of representatives. I have served in many congresses. The personnel of the Sixtieth congress is quite equal to that of any in which I have had the honor to serve. We have difference in our views as to policies and ought to have.

"The function of the minority is only second in importance to that of the majority. Looking at the majority side of the house, I congratulate it for its fidelity to public duty, to the principles of the party which it represents for the common good. Looking at the minority side of the house, I congratulate it for devotion to its policies.

"During the session, at times, there has been much of conflict, and with virile men, American citizens, there will always be much of conflict between earnest men of different views, but out of this conflict comes the safety of the republic.

"I wish you a safe journey home, in that you may return one and all in full health and vitality at the meeting of the second session of the Sixtieth congress.

"In pursuance of the concurrent resolution of the house and senate it only remains for me to declare the first session of the Sixtieth congress closed without day."

The speaker received another demonstration and at 11:52 p. m., two minutes after the time fixed upon, the house adjourned sine die.

Senator Culberson, five minutes preceding the adjournment of the senate, presented the usual resolutions thanking Vice President Fairbanks for the able and impartial manner in which he had presided over its deliberations. Senator Gallinger was in the chair and the resolution was at once agreed to.

Mr. Fairbanks was escorted in and made a brief response, congratulating the members upon both sides of the chamber upon their devotion to the important work which has engaged the attention of the senate during the session, and referring to the singleness of purpose and ability with which they had addressed themselves to the important public business.

The concluding sentence of the vice president: "The chair now declares the senate adjourned without day," delivered precisely at 11:50 o'clock p. m., was greeted with general applause. Goodbyes were quickly said and the floor of the senate was deserted within a very few minutes after the fall of the gavel in the hands of Fairbanks.

Pennsylvania Town Shaken Up

Allentown, Pa., June 1.—All Allentown was thrown into a state of excitement by what is believed to have been an earthquake shock. The shock was severe enough to rock buildings, rattle windows, make crockery clatter, tumble down two or three shaky chimneys and upset small children. The shaking was felt all over the city, but not beyond its limits or in any of the suburbs.

IN THE RACE TO STAY

Fairbanks Name Will Be Presented at Chicago Convention

Indianapolis, June 1.—So many false and misleading statements regarding Vice President Fairbanks' candidacy have been and are being made that Senator Hemenway authorized the following statement:

"The purpose of these reports is obvious and should not be given credence. Vice President Fairbanks' name will be presented to the Chicago convention for the presidential nomination. Any report or intimation between now and the assembling of the convention at Chicago, from whatever source it may be attributed, that any variation will be made from Vice President Fairbanks' present position may be put down as absolutely untrue."

Two Sultans In Morocco

Paris, June 1.—So far as the situation regarding the two Moroccan sultans is concerned, France intends to await developments. The chances of Abd-el-Aziz, the sultan of record, to retain his office, seem almost hopeless, but there may be a shift in fortune. If, however, Mulai Hafid, the so-called sultan of the south, enters Fez and secures the submission of Tangier, thus becoming de facto sultan, France will notify the signatories of the Algeciras act. A delicate diplomatic situation then will be created unless the powers act in concert.

Grover Cleveland Returns Home

Lakewood, N. J., June 1.—Ex-President Grover Cleveland, who has been confined to the Lakewood hotel two months with an attack of rheumatic gout and acute indigestion, left yesterday for his home in Princeton. The trip was made in a large touring car and Mr. Cleveland was accompanied by his wife and Dr. Lockwood, who has been alternating with Dr. Bryant in caring for the patient. Mr. Cleveland left his room and, unaided, descended the stairs for the first time in seven weeks.

Paris Stranglers Kill Two

Paris, June 1.—A double murder was committed here during the early hours of the morning that for absolute brutality would be hard to parallel in the annals of the crimes of Paris. Adolphe Steinheil, a noted painter, and his wife's mother, Mme. Japy, were strangled to death in the artist's home. His wife was gagged and bound to a bed and heard her mother's dying struggles as she fought for life with the murderers.

Family of Four Drowned

Philadelphia, June 1.—An entire family, consisting of William E. Eldleman, aged 38, his wife, Elizabeth, aged 32, and their two children, Anna, aged 17, and William, aged 7, of West Pensauken, N. J., were drowned in Pensauken creek by the capsizing of a rowboat. The family was taking an outing party in celebration of the fact that the father had just cleared off the mortgage on a home he had purchased.

Ocean Mail Bill May Win

Washington, June 1.—That the ocean mail bill, which passed the senate on March 20 without a division and was sustained later by the senate in the postoffice appropriation bill by a vote of 46 to 12, is not killed by the action of the house in failing to accept it by the narrow vote of 145 to 153, is the firm conviction of the friends of the measure. They believe that next December it will win by a decisive majority.

Increasing Working Forces

St. Louis, June 1.—During the last week of May the National Prosperity association carried on a canvass with employers to have June 1 recognized as "employment day" or re-employment day, by the restoration of employes who were laid off because of the recent business depression. It is estimated that 17,500 names have been added to the payrolls in St. Louis and vicinity as a result of the canvass.

Turkey May Re-occupy Samos

Constantinople, June 1.—A Turkish warship with a commissioner aboard, which was dispatched to the Island of Samos on the receipt of the news of the revolt there, has arrived. The garrison has been relieved and the governor, who had been deposed, has been re-established. The porte considers the trouble in the island at an end, but it is believed here that Turkey will reoccupy the island.

Aeronaut Fell Fell Into River

Passaic, N. J., June 1.—Entangled in the folds of a large American flag which he had waved as he made a parachute drop of 2000 feet from a balloon at Hillside Park, Frederick L. Wood, a young aeronaut whose home was in New Haven, fell helpless into the Passaic river and was drowned before aid could reach him.

Skull and Crossbones as Warning

St. Petersburg, June 1.—The duma commission, which has had under consideration the drink question, has reported in favor of replacing the imperial eagle on the labels of vodka bottles by the skull and cross-bones as appropriate warnings against over-indulgence.

Afghans In Persian Territory

Teheran, June 1.—It is reported that 700 well armed Afghans have made an incursion into Persian territory and have occupied Regan, a town about 180 miles southeast of Kerman.

A Question of Home Economics.

By J. LUDLUM LEE.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

"My country, right or wrong, but still my country," murmured Eleanor Wright with great satisfaction as she gazed through the open window at the apple trees laden with gorgeous blossoms. She loved the place and every stick and stone on it. It was hers by right of inheritance, and she would leave it for no man.

True, her old nurse, Roxanna, had forsaken her to become the bride of Abraham, the head gardener on the adjoining estate, and it seemed as if a landmark had been torn up by the very roots. One must learn to part with landmarks, so Eleanor had promised to go to Roxanna's wedding.

She jumped into the little runabout which was waiting for her at the door. No groom attended her, for all the darkies on the place had been given a holiday that they, too, might attend the wedding. She drove down the familiar lane to the cabin in the woods, where hundreds of darkies had congregated. Only one other white person was in sight, a tall, lithe youth astride a roan horse.

Most of the colored men wore white linen suits, immaculately clean, and carried canes of crooked old birch and hickory. The women were arrayed to shame Solomon in all his glory. They drew aside as the two white persons came into their midst. Eleanor drove up at the side of the house and descended with the aid of many black hands. The tall youth stayed on his horse and took up a stand near the front door. Arm in arm the bride and groom came from the house, and under the old apple tree at the side of the cabin the most famous colored preacher in the south made them man and wife. Eleanor shook the groom by the hand and told him to guard well his precious helpmate. She kissed the black face of Roxanna, who had been her constant attendant since babyhood. Then, blinded by tears, she jumped into her little runabout and started for home.

Cheers and hallelujahs rang upon the air. Bright bandannas were flung high, and hickory sticks wavered in circles. After twenty years of persistent courtship Roxanna and Abraham were married! Eleanor turned to look back at the happy throng, and her horse shied.

She was a good little horsewoman and took a firm grip on the reins, but too late! The horse had the bit in his teeth and was running at terrific speed. The light wagon rocked from one side of the road to another, Eleanor swaying with it. Down the road, past pink orchards and green fields, swaying, swaying—and then black nothing.

She opened her eyes to gaze into those of the youth who had attended the wedding.

"I'm Dick Ewing, your next door neighbor," he explained as he made her a bit more comfortable by propping her up. "Abraham is our gardener, you know," he continued, "and I saw you at the wedding. You seem to have forgotten me. How's your head, eh?"

Eleanor had known Dick Ewing when she was a child. The last time they had met he had called "tomboy" at her as she climbed over the fence which divided the Ewing place from the Wright plantation. Then he had been sent to Germany at the behest of a wealthy uncle.

He seemed to divine her thoughts.

"I got back the other day—just in time for the wedding," and he laughed an infectious laugh. "But this line of conversation is not getting you home. I don't know just how to do it. I don't suppose there's a sober darky this side of the Mason and Dixon line—all at the wedding drinking Wright cider. Your wagon is smashed. Oh, I say, couldn't you sit my horse, and I'll walk alongside? We're most there, you know."

He inspired confidence. Eleanor gathered up her torn skirt and with Dick's assistance mounted the horse. On the way home the time was spent in explanations. He had much to tell of student life in Germany. Now a full fledged doctor, he had come home to practice in the south. Her tale was more simple, an uneventful life at home, with Roxanna always guarding her.

"I just don't know how I'll ever get along without her. Do you know, I seldom even put a hairpin in my hair?" said Eleanor, with a helpless, appealing expression that touched Dick's heart as if some tragedy had overtaken her.

"Don't you talk. I expect the famous gardens of the Ewing estate can now go to rack and ruin, for Abraham will be home making love instead of wielding the hoe," said Dick in a masculine attempt at sympathy.

Eleanor was safely deposited on the front porch, with her mother almost hysterical in gratitude to their neighbor.

"I may come again, please?" he said as he extended his hand to Eleanor. "Provided, of course, that I don't have to take a hand at the garden," he added, with some sarcasm.

"Oh, do come over!" cordially assented Eleanor. "I shall probably be all pinned up the back and wearing my hair in a pigtail, because without Roxanna—well, come over and see for yourself."

Dick was very busy the next day owing to the promotion of the second man as overseer during Abraham's honeymoon. The underservants resented his authority, and Dick was at his wits' end to mollify them, assuring them that Abraham would be back in a few days and peace would once more reign. Mrs. Ewing wept and said it served Dick right. He ought not to have allowed the gardener to marry. The second morning things were at a standstill all over the place. None of the darkies would work at all, and Dick jumped on his horse and rode down to the cabin where the bride and groom were "just restin'" as a bridal trip.

"When did you think of coming back, Abraham?" asked Dick as the tall figure of the negro appeared at the door.

"Mistah Dick, I just been arguin' with Roxanna. She say I should go work for her folks, an' when a man's married"— Abraham sighed.

Dick Ewing was a true southerner and would not stoop to ask favors of a negro. He wheeled around and halfway down the lane met Eleanor, sitting her gray horse as if born to the saddle.

"Good morning!" she sang out merrily. "I'm on my way to beg Roxanna to return to her old duties. My hair's in a snarl, my shoes are losing all their buttons and—well, I must have my Roxanna."

Dick smiled, not without malice.

"Do come along and join me. A man always lends dignity to an attack of this sort," continued Eleanor. And Dick turned his horse's head in the same direction.

Roxanna was called to the door, where Abraham had stood a few moments before, and her mistress implored her to return. She offered the same excuse that had greeted Dick.

"Miss 'Nor, Abraham seems like he thinks I ought to work for his folks, an' when you're married"—

Eleanor and Dick wheeled about and rode down the lane at full speed. Conversation seemed to lag until they reached the spacious porch of the Wright home.

"Let's talk the matter over seriously, Eleanor," said Dick. "I may call you Eleanor, mayn't I? And let's us go back to the old time chumminess of childhood."

Eleanor looked at the fence where they had parted in anger—but she acquiesced.

"The other day as I was going to that infernal darky wedding which upset two erstwhile happy homes I stopped under the old apple tree by the turn of the road, and I reached up to gather some blossoms," began Dick.

Eleanor leaned forward as if listening to an interesting story. "They were out of my reach, and when I found that I could not get them I felt as if I had lost something which had never really been mine, yet something which I had always coveted subconsciously."

Eleanor smiled, with a suggestion of a blush.

"So it is with something else, Eleanor," he continued. "You are that something else. All my life I have wanted my little neighbor. As a boy I teased you, but I wanted you. As a man I missed you in Germany. I love you, and I must have you. Perhaps I am reaching up too far. Perhaps you are way above me, as the blossoms were."

He hesitated as if waiting for an answer. Eleanor leaned back in her chair. Her lips twitched. Her eyes danced.

"Dick, tell me truly one thing, and I will answer your question."

He rose and stood beside her in the golden sunlight. The soft breezes blew a few petals on them both.

"Dick Ewing, on your honor, do you want me—just me, Eleanor Wright—or do you want Roxanna and Abraham?"

Two hearty young laughs resounded through the air.

"Honest Injun, dear, I want just you, and I want you, as they say in the song, 'Because You're You,'" emphatically declared Dick as he drew a not unwilling captive within his arms. Eleanor pushed him aside and with mock dignity said:

"Come, dear—yes, dear Dick—let's go back to the old cabin and see if Roxanna and Abraham will come and work for us."

Many Times Married.

There are some very remarkable instances of people who have been married a large number of times, and also of husbands and wives who have lived together to an extraordinary age. St. Jerome mentions a woman who married her twenty-second husband, who, in his turn, had been married to twenty wives. There is an instance recorded in Bordeaux in 1772 of a man who had been married sixteen times. A woman named Elizabeth Nase, who died in Florence in 1768, had been married to seven husbands, her last wedding taking place when she was seventy years of age. Numerous cases exist all over the world of people who have been married four, five or six times. In 1768 a couple was living in Essex who had been married eighty-one years, the husband being 107 years old and his wife only four years younger. These cases are also not isolated ones, and it is somewhat remarkable that in most of such instances when one has died the survivor has died the next day.

His Heaven.

"What does you reckon yer'll like ter do w'en you gits ter glory?"

"Well," said Brother Dickey, "since you put de question ter me, I'll make answer ter it: Ef dey lets me have my way, I'll des lay back on a white cloud an' let de heavenly winds blow me fum star to star."—Atlanta Constitution.

Her Day Out.

Private Inspection At New Library

It was hoped two weeks ago to reopen the Thomas Crane Public Library on Memorial Day, but it was found that a few days longer would be necessary to put the building in readiness for public inspection, possibly on the Seventeenth of June.

It was on Washington's Birthday in 1881 that the corner-stone of the Crane Memorial Hall was laid by Rural lodge of Masons, and on Memorial Day in 1882 that the hall was publicly dedicated by the Grand Lodge of Masons, and if the reopening occurs on the Seventeenth of June, three of the holidays will be notable in the history of the library.

It has been the annual custom of the family of Thomas Crane, the donor, to visit the Memorial Hall on Memorial Day, and this year Mr. and Mrs. Albert Crane of Stamford, Conn., came to meet the Mayor and Board of Trustees of the Library. They were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Francis Adams, and Miss Adams, and also William Martin Aiken, the architect.

All the members of the Board of Trustees were present—Harrison A. Keith who has served continuously since elected on the first board in 1871; Rev. E. C. Butler, the present chairman of the board; George W. Morton, Henry McGrath, Charles R. Safford and George F. Sawyer, Jr.

Ex-mayor Charles H. Porter, who was on the Board of Selectmen in 1880 when the family offered the town of Quincy the memorial building, was present; also Miss Alice G. White, the librarian; Miss Amelia L. Bumpus, the librarian for many years; Miss Charlotte Cochrane, the cataloguer, and Miss Hibbard, who will have charge of the children's department.

The transformation has been wonderful since work was begun on the addition to the building, and the capacity of the library has been more than doubled. All the new electric lights, which are controlled from one switchboard, were turned on for this private inspection, and the artistic beauty of the library was very pleasing. It will be even more attractive when the finishing touches are completed and the library is ready for business. The public is sure to be pleased with it and to praise the Crane family for their continued generosity and interest.

City Council Tonight.

A regular meeting of the City Council will be held tonight when it is probable that considerable business that has been delayed by the discussions over the granting of permits to transport liquor will be taken up. There are several applications for permits now before the Council but as many permits have already been granted as was granted last year the chances are that no more orders will be passed. Several committees have held meetings since the last meeting of the Council and a number of reports will be received.

Get What You Ask For.

When you see an article well advertised in the newspapers, you may be sure it's a good article, for advertising only pays if the goods are honest and possess merit. The people who make a specialty of one advertised article like Cascarets, Candy Cathartic for example, stake their whole business existence on it's doing what they say it will. They must "make good" as the saying is. Readers of this paper are urged to be sure that they get what they ask for, when they ask for an advertised article, for it's the good thing that is imitated and counterfeited. Don't accept substitutes! Insist on getting the genuine.

—Butter may be kept solid in warm weather if put in a bowl that is covered with a plate and set in a pan of cold water. Then fold a towel and lay across the plate with the corners hanging down into the water, and put the pan in a cool, if possible a drafty place, and the evaporation will keep the butter firm.

THOSE WHO TOIL

What Unions And the Church Have Done For The People

The last of a series of talks at the Washington Street Congregational church on "What labor has done for the people, and what the church has done for the people," was held Sunday evening. The speakers were Chas. W. Hanscom, State organizer of the Electrical Workers, and Rev. Alfred Ray Atwood, the pastor of the church. Music was furnished by the Fore River quartet.

THE UNION.

Mr. Hanscom said his subject was one that opens the door to all the reforms, both material or spiritual which are discussed by society today, and we can only judge the future by the past.

He spoke of the different labor unions, and said today their total membership was 2,500,000. Death benefits paid to members the past year amounted to $1,076,000, sick benefits to $712,000, travelling benefits to $3,500, tool insurance to $11,000, to unemployed $27,000, deceased women members $42,000, or a grand total of $1,845,000.

The platform of the American Federation of Labor is: Free Schools, free text books and compulsory education, a work day of not more than eight hours in the twenty-four, Municipal ownership of public utilities, abolitions of sweat shop, nationalization of telegraph and telephone, women suffrage co-equal with men suffrage, suitable and plentiful playgrounds.

The civic federation composed of the public, the employer and the employee, is doing splendid work in avoiding conflict and strife, by means of mediations and conciliation. Strikes are only after every endeavor has been made to adjust actual grievances.

Trade agreements aid materially in the elemination of differences which otherwise might arise. Labor favors equitable agreements with capital. Collective bargaining is as necessary to the perpetuity of industry and its progress as labor is. It is only by mutual understanding that results are accomplished.

When a man sells his labor for less than a minimum living wage he helps degrade his fellowmen and depriving them of liberty, of happiness and to acquire an education for his children.

The union recognized that men are human and have different points of view, and that these views result in misunderstanding, and that by meeting in conference mutual agreements can be arrived at.

The trade union is not a trust and cannot be. Trusts are organizations for the control of products of labor. Workmen possess the power to produce. They have no products to sell.

The union is conducting a movement to eliminate child labor. The union is also in favor of temperate living. Nearly every labor temple in this country prohibits the sale or use of intoxicants on any part of its premises. Resolutions cutting out the use of beer and liquors have been passed by scores of local unions. Labor meetings can not be held in halls that are back or over saloons.

The union is striving to build up and not to tear down. Its value to industry cannot be over estimaed.

Organized labor in he future will advocate such measures as will alleviate the conditions of the workers.

THE CHURCH.

Mr. Hanscom was followed by Rev. Mr. Atwood, who said in part:

Tonight we are looking into the future, and we ask, What is the church to do for those who toil? I have had personal experience among the toilers of the earth. My father was one of them. In a Cleveland car shop he put up one freight car a day till called into the Christian ministry. I was working at the plumber's bench when called to preach the gospel. After studying in college and seminary I studied social questions and conditions at first hand for parts of two years, while living and working at the north end, Boston. It was there I learned what the people wished the church to do for them.

What is the church to do for these people who, six days in the week are morally tainted by the immoral atmosphere of a trade which, though honorable in itself, is peopled with dishonorable people? To answer the question What will the Church do in the future for the people, we need to ask, What has it not done for the people in the past?

It has freed them bodily from the shackels of slavery; it has freed them intelellectnally from the bonds of superstition; it has freed them spiritually from the bonds of sin. It will continue to break and to banish the bonds of sin and to foster the brotherhood of all mankind. The church in the past has cared well for the souls of men. The church in the future will also care for the bodies of men, for these bodies are temples of the Holy Spirit. To care for the body, the church in the future will established fresh air camps, having bathing facilities, boating and righteous recreations. Thank God that three of our churches of the city are starting such a fresh air camp for July. The church in the future will establish gymnasiums, for it is a religious duty to cure spinal curvature caused by standing in workshops eight hours a day, the same as it is a religious duty to create christian character. The curing of spinal curvature is a part of the creating of christian character, for a sickly body is not usually the home of a strong soul.

The church of the future will maintain evening schools for those whom toil has denied an education. These toilers will gather after the supper hour, beneath the church roof to be taught the elements of an education, taught sewing and sloyd work, taught carpet making and carpentry. The church of the future will elevate social conditions. Debating societies, clubs, dramatic organizations, socials and societies for young men and women, reading and writing rooms will have a large part in the curiculum of the church. Thus the environment of youth will be bettered. In the future the church will try to purify the environment of the people that the lives of the people may be pure. This will be done in part by securing more sanitary houses and by showing the advantage of the suburb over the city.

In these and similar ways the church is not only to spiritualize but also to socialize society. The church is not only to be ministered unto numerically and financially by the people but the church is also to minister to the physical, intellectual and spiritual needs of the people. Do you ask, What is the church to do for the people? It will preach to the people the word of God. The church will give to the people the gospel. The gospel of Jesus Christ is the solution of the sins and shames of society.

"The church with renewed zeal is going to require the employer of labor to deal justly, to love mercy and to walk humbly with his God. The church with renewed zeal is going to ask the laborer to give an honest day's work for a day's pay, to render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's, and to God the things that are God's—to live Godly in the present world. The gospel of the Lord, Jesus Christ, directly applied is the greatest uplifting force known, says Isabelle Horton, and experimenting with ethical culture and social reforms without direct religious effort, says a noted worker, is trying to elevate the masses without the elevator. The gospel of Jesus Christ is the elevator. It is slow progress trying to get up without it. Therefore, take this elevator, take this gospel of Jesus Christ and apply it to your lives."

SOLDIER'S HOLIDAY

Large Numbers Interested in Observance of Memorial Day

Another Memorial Day has come and gone. Again have the members of the Grand Army of the Republic and kindred organizations performed their time honored duty and paid reverence to those comrades who have answered the final call. The day dawned bright and clear but as the morning wore on it became very hot and sultry. There was but little air stirring and it was a trying day for marching. The weather remained clear all the morning although toward noon the weather began to look threatening and it was evident that the predicted showers would come.

It was 2 o'clock, however, before the first rain fell and then it was but a slight shower. Although the weather was showery all of the afternoon it was not until some time after the exercises of the day were over that it began to rain in earnest.

In accordance with general orders No. 2 the Post assembled at headquarters in full uniform at 7 o'clock. Details under the command of the senior and junior vice commanders, and officers of the day and comrade Parrot saw that the graves in the various cemeteries in Quincy were properly decorated as well as the graves of comrades who lie buried in cemeteries out of town.

Senior Vice Commander George L. Phillips accompanied by a detail of comrades and the chaplain of the day, Rev. N. J. Sproul, proceeded to the National Sailors Home where brief services were held at the graves of the sailors who manned the guns on the ships of yar during the rebellion.

AT WEST QUINCY.

By 9 o'clock all of these details had returned to headquarters, and half an hour later the command was formed for a visit to the cemeteries at West Quincy. At 9.30 o'clock the command headed by the Oriental Fife and Drum Corps with John Easton as drum major and the United Spanish War Veterans escorting Paul Revere Post who were accompanied by the Finnish band, marched from headquarters on Hancock street to the junction of School and Franklin streets where barges were taken for West Quincy.

Alighting at the junction of Copeland and Crescent streets the line was again formed and a march taken to the Hall cemetery. After the graves here had been decorated the command gathered about the Willard monument where exercises were held, and there was an address by the chaplain of the day.

This over they marched to the St. Mary's cemetery adjoining where the graves of veterans buried were decorated and services held by Rev. A. F. Roach who also gave an address in which he paid a tribute to the sacrifices made by the men who fought in the Civil war and prayed that the liberties that they fought for nigh ever be preserved.

They then visited the grave of John A. Boyd for whom the local camp of Spanish War veterans was named. Services were here by Rev. William J. Duffy who spoke briefly. A brief address was also made by Mayor William T. Shea. The services a West Quincy over, the command marched to the junction of Copeland and Crescent streets where the barges were again taken for headquarters for the noon hour.

During this hour a lunch was served at Faxon hall under the direction of Comrade Lennon who was ably assisted by the ladies of the Woman's Relief Corps and the Ladies Aid society.

Shortly before 2 o'clock the drum corps marched to the depot to meet the 1.27 train from Boston upon which came a detail of the Spanish War Veterans from Brockton, and a Camp of the Philippine Army from Charlestown. They were escorted to headquarters.

IN THE AFTERNOON.

Although the indications were that rain would fall the next minute, the usual large crowd were out for the Grand Army program of the afternoon. Some rain did fall during the exercises at the Soldiers Monument, and at the Grand Army lot, but for the majority it had no terror, and was perferred to a 90 degree day with a clear sky. The program of the afternoon was carried out to the letter without abridgement.

The procession was formed in front of Grand Army hall on Hancock street in the following order:

Chief of Police
FRANK E. BURRELL.
Squad of Police

BRAINTREE FIFE AND DRUM CORPS,
Drum Major and 12 Men.

BOYD CAMP, U. S. W. V.,

TAX COLLECTOR CAREY

Carriage with PAST COMMANDER FRANCIS P. LOUD
COUNCILMAN GILSON and
F. F. PRESCOTT of DAILY LEDGER.

The route was via Hancock Temple, Coddington and Sea streets to Mount Wollaston cemetery, and hundreds of people accompanied the procession thither. Many were pleased to see that the hucksters were not allowed on Coddington street or near the cemetery as in other years. Police were on duty at the corner of Woodward avenue, Newcomb street, Valley street and Sea street, while another officers drew the line about half way between Coddington and Field streets.

AT THE MONUMENT.

Thousands were at the cemetery with umbrellas in hand, and the umbrellas were needed shortly after the exercises began at the Soldiers' Monument. The order of service was:

Introductory address by Commander John D. Williams.

Funeral March by Finnish Band.

Prayer by Chaplain Sproul.

President Lincoln's speech at Gettysburg by William Safford.

"America" by Band.

Adress by Mayor William T. Shea, in which he told of the object of the day, and wanted all to stop and consider what the soldiers did. He paid a tribute to the flag, and expressed appreciation of the soldiers.

"Nearer My God to Thee" by Band.

Rev. N. J. Sproul was the orator of the day, and his address in full will be found in another column of the Daily Ledger. It dealt with the desecration of Memorial Day, which should be a sacred holiday, and said the greatest need of the hour was men of courage.

Wreathes were then deposited upon the monument by the officers of Paul Revere Post, a red wreath for Fraternity, a white wreath for Charity, a blue wreath for Loyalty and a red, white and blue wreath for country.

A salute for the dead was fired by the color guard of the Post, taps sounded by two buglers, and the closing address was by Commander Williams.

AT BUMPUS GRAVE.

All the organizations proceeded from the Soldiers' Monument to the grave of Lieut. Edward A. Bumpus who was massacred in the Philippine, where they were met in the absence of Judge Bumpus by Miss Mary S. Bumpus, an aunt of the dead soldier. The order of services included:

Prayer by Chaplain Sproul.

Address by Past Commander George Adams of Camp Boyd, who spoke of Memorial Day as a sacred holiday in reverence of the soldiers. In answer to the question—why are we here today? He said: "First, to honor the dead; and second to set an example to the living. The service of the soldiers was one of sacrifice and the veterans of the Spanish war follow the example of the Grand Army of the Republic in tribute to those who gave their lives. In appreciation of the service of Lieut. Bumpus, a brave soldier, a son of a soldier and a grandson of a soldier, he deposited near the memorial a wreath of roses, pinks, evergreen and galyx leaves.

Commander Richard F. Howard of Bumpus camp, Army of the Philippines, of Charlestown, was then introduced, and spoke of the benefits of Memorial Day, and paid a tribute to those who went to the Orient to carry the lesson of liberty and patriotism. A beautiful large wreath of white roses and galyx leaves was then deposited on the grave.

The service closed with prayer by Chaplain Sproul.

AT GRAND ARMY LOT.

The organization then proceeded to the Grand Army lot near the Sea street front where services were conducted by the Women's Relief Corps, Mrs. Edith Wolfe president. To the accompaniment of the band the members sang "Nearer My God to Thee." The regular W. R. C. service was followed and wreaths deposited. The band played "America" and Mrs. Hayden recited a beautiful poem. The color guard of Paul Revere Post fired a salute to the dead, and Chaplain Sproul offered prayer.

The return to headquarters was by the same route except that the procession passed around he fountain in City Square and in front of City Hall.

ON THE PICKET LINE.

Camp Bumpus of the Philippine Army and Camp Boyd, U. S. W. V., were entertained after the exercises at Mt Wollaston at the residence of Judge Bumpus on Goffe street. Refreshments were provided.

A squad of police under command of Lieut. McKay were on duty outside of the cemetery and saw to it that the fruit peddlers were kept at a safe distance.

Quincy lodge of Elks held memorial services at its club house on the morning of Memorial Day, after which delegations visited the graves of brothers at Mt. Wollaston and St. Mary's cemettry and at Hingham and deposited wreaths about which were entwined small silk American flags.

Quincy Court of Foresters attended memorial services at St. John's church on the morning of Memorial Day where mass was celebrated by the pastor, Rev. John J. Coan.

The street railway suspended work laying its new tracks out of respect for the veterans and saw to it that the sides of the excavaion was cleaned up for he occasion.

The rain that had been threatening all day came with a vengeance during the evening and at times it seemed as though the water fell in bucket fulls.

Flags were displayed at half mast on many private and all public places during the morning and were raised to the mast head at noon.

There was very little disturbance of any kind about the city and the police on duty at night in City Square reported it the quietest Saturday night for a long time.

New Newsdealers.

Henry Coram, for many years the news agent at West Quincy, has sold out to Daniel Guilfoyle of Dover, N. H., an experienced newsdealer, who took possession today. At first Mr. Coram had no store, but business has grown, and from a store on a side street he moved to the Main street, and has faithfully served the people. But for poor eyesight he would have continued, but felt the necessity of retiring. Mr. Guilfoyle is moving his family to West Quincy, having a wife and daughter, and we wish him success.

The Red Headed Policeman

One day as the red headed policeman was pacing his beat in a certain American city of 100,000 inhabitants a woman called to him from the steps of a house and reported that soon after daylight that morning, just as she had awoke and was making ready to get up, she had been frightened half to death by the sight of a large monkey at the open winodw. She had screamed out, and the animal had fled. Later in the day she had seen the monkey frisking about on the roof of the shed attached to the house next door, into which a stranger, who was evidently a foreigner, had moved three or four days before. He was a man of middle age, and there was an old woman with him, probably to act as housekeeper.

"And I'm asking you, sir," continued the woman as she raised her hand and waved it to and fro, "if it's the law in America that a foreigner and an old woman and a rascally monkey can move in next door to a respectable widow woman, who has paid taxes for the last fifteen years, leaving the monkey to run at large and scare people out of their seven senses?"

"It's an Italian, ma'am, who is your new neighbor," answered the policeman. "I was jabbering with him the day he rented the house."

"Then he's in the hand organ business?"

"Then he's not, ma'am. He's in the count business. He's had to fly from his own sunny skies to save his life. You ought to be proud that you have a live count living next door."

Three or four days later the police heard at the station to which he was attached of a bold burglary in the neighborhood. A burglar had entered by a second story window and made a haul of money and jewelry, and no clew had been left behind. This burglary was followed by another within twenty-four hours, and then came what the police and press called a "wave" of crime, though it was strictly confined to despoiling private residences. In some cases it was impossible to tell how entrance had been effected. In others it was plain that an open window was the route.

Of course the detectives investigated, and of course when no arrests followed they got a roasting in the newspapers. It reached the point where the chief of police was asked to resign as a man utterly unfitted for the place. In return he bounced two of his detectives because they could not pick up clews where no clews had been left. Then the red headed policeman sat down to do some thinking. He thought of many a thing before he followed the line down to the widow who had told him about the monkey.

Then he began to scratch that red hair and think the harder and finally decided to take a walk around on Sands street and see if the count still occupied the house. He reached the house of the widow first. Again she was standing on the steps. At sight of him she descended to the walk and said:

"So it's you, is it? I've been waiting a whole week to ask you if it's the habits of monkeys to go to bed like honest folks at night and get up at a reasonable hour in the morning or whether they are philandering all over town after midnight and coming home any time before daylight."

"In the wilds of Africa, ma'am"—began the officer, but was interrupted with:

"But these are not the wilds of Africa. I've been doing some watching for these last few moonlight nights. I didn't know but the Black Hand would be coming for the count next door. I've seen the monkey come and go half a dozen times. He comes and goes by way of the shed roof."

"And what of it, ma'am—what of it?" asked the officer.

"I can't say, sir, but it's a matter that bothers me. I thought I'd speak of it and let it bother you."

It did bother the red headed policeman for the next hour. Then he consulted with his superiors, and as a result two detectives were sent to interview the count. They didn't succeed in their purpose. He and the old woman had skipped out in a hurry an hour before their arrival. People who had seen them go said that they had no monkey along with them. In fact, the animal was discovered on the roof in the sunshine and fast asleep, but escaped capture. It was felt certain that he was the mysterious burglar, and a watch was set on the premises. He came not back, while during the next ten nights there was a burglary every night to mix things up again. Then a boy solved the whole case.

Two blocks distant from where the count had lived an old tomcat had retired to a stable to die in peace. In his wanderings the monkey had come across him and, being full of sentiment, had sought to make the feline's last hours pleasant ones. He had continued to rob and plunder as before, but had deposited everything beside old Tom and was a mourner there when discovered and shot by the red headed officer. More that $3,000 worth of stuff was found right there, and, leaving the respectable widow entirely out of it, the officer took on a new and prouder look as he said to himself:

"It pays for a policeman to have thoughts. If I hadn't had 'em this thing would never have happened, and it might have been twenty years before they made me a roundsman."

IT PAYS A CITY TO SUPPORT A GOOD NEWSPAPER.

WILL NOT INTERFERE

Acting Governor Draper's Reply to Request of Senators

IT IS CALLED UNWARRANTED

Considers Efforts to Influence Him to Force Woman and Child Labor Bill to Adoption Improper--A Possible Dash of Politics

Boston, June 1.—Acting Governor Draper has made public his reply to nine senators who sent him an appeal on Friday to use his influence in having passed by the state senate the fifty-four-hour bill for women and children working in the mills and factories of the commonwealth. Draper declines to interfere, as he states he should consider such action highly improper.

The communication which was sent to the acting governor declared that the Arkwright club had been lobbying the senate against the bill; that the bill could now muster seventeen or eighteen senators in its support, and that "several more are desirous of voting for it, but fear its passage will place you (the acting governor) in a difficult position politically, no matter whether you sign it or not." It is commented that the house has passed several bills benefiting the laboring people, none of which passd the senate, and the statement is made that "it has been said that senators have failed in this regard entirely out of consideration for your political interests."

The senators close by appealing to the acting governor to send a message to the senate recommending the passage of the bill and "requesting its members to ignore any political consideration."

Draper's reply states, in part: "The request made to me by you in this manner is a most unusual one, if not absolutely unprecedented. You ask me in my executive capacity to interfere with the action of the state senate and of its members. I do not conceive that this action would be proper for me to take, as it would be, under the circumstances, interference by the executive with the legislative department, and I do not think the exigency of the circumstances require such action.

"When you say that you ask me to act in the matter, 'irrespective of political considerations,' I reply that I believe 'political considerations' is the only reason you ask me to do anything of this kind.

"You say it has been said—and I am informed and believe some of you said it—that senators of the commonwealth have acted on important public measures this year entirely out of consideration for my political interests.

"I do not believe that statement, but leave the senattors to whom you refer to reply or not, as they see fit, to your unwarranted and insulting statement.

"If this bill should pass, our great cotton and woolen industries would be much handicapped in competition with similar industries in other sections of the country and the competition that they have in that line is now very keen and hard to meet. This is not a good year and time for Massachusetts representatives to hamper these great industries unless they believe that the women and young people who work in them need this change because the conditions of their labor are too severe to be longer endured.

"I do not propose to improperly say in advance what my action will be on pending legislation."

Photographed Dead Woman's Eye

Alton, Ills., June 1.—Belief in the theory that the last object seen by a murdered person may be fixed as a photographic negative on the retina caused Coroner Streeper to have a photograph taken of one eye of a woman, whose body was taken from the Mississippi river, and who, it is thought, was murdered. The developed photograph, the coroner says, shows a faint outline of the face of a man. The coroner says he will try to find a possible murderer by the use of this photograph.

Boys Held Up Train

Great Falls, Mont., June 1.—The holdup and robbery Saturday night of a passenger train at the stock yards was the work of three boys, who are now in the city jail. A fourth youth, who admits having assisted in planning the holdup, also is a prisoner. The quartet have made a complete confession to the police. The boys are Albert Hatch, aged 15; William Randall, 17; Harry Rheams, 15, and George Creswell, 16.

Plague Prevails at La Guaira

Caracas, June 1.—Notwithstanding President Castro's decree of May 23, in which it was set forth that because of the absence of any new cases of bubonic plague at La Guaira, the port would be opened to traffic with the interior on May 29, great alarm is felt here for fear of the spread of the disease. The plague still continues at La Guaira, several cases being reported daily.

Has Never Met Defeat

New York, June 1.—Greeted by the enthusiastic cheers of 30,000 race-goers, Colin won the valuable Belmont stakes at Belmont park. It was Colin's fourteenth consecutive victory, with never a defeat against him. The race was worth $20,765 to the winner and brings the horse's returns to his owner, James R. Keene, up to more than $160,000.

DRUMMING-UP CEREMONY

Boston Ancients Had to Confine It to Certain Localities

Boston, June 1.—The differences between the Ancient and Honorable Artillery company and Police Commissioner O'Meara of Boston as to the sounding of the reveille by drum corps at 4 o'clock this morning to rouse the Ancients for their annual field day were settled in conference yesterday.

The police commissioner offered no objection to the sound of the reveille in front of Faneuil hall, the soldiers' monument on Boston common and in front of the state house, that the time-honored custom of the Ancients might be perpetuated.

In former years the Ancients' drum corps had sounded reveille in front of the homes of each officer of the company at daybreak and complaints having come to the police commissioner he forbade the practice for the present year and declared in a statement issued last week that he should consider such a practice in the light of a common disturbance and cause the arrest of the disturbers.

Baby Found Dead In Bed

Berlin, N. H., June 1.—Because his son, 3½ years old, was found dead in bed, Edward Wilson, a farmer of Shelburne, was taken into custody by the county authorities and is in jail at Gorham. He has been separated from his wife, who now lives in Bethel, Me., but secured his wife's permission to take the boy back to Shelburne for a short visit.

Accomplished Suicide

He was also inspector of wires and superintendent of fire alarm and police signal wires.

Auto Racer Meets With Accident

Lowell, Mass., June 1.—Unfamiliar with the turns of the boulevard which runs from Lowell to Tyngsborough on the north of the city, Barney Oldfield, the automobile racer, suffered a road accident late last night, his car being overturned and Mrs. Oldfield badly injured, while another occupant of the car, Joseph O'Brien of Boston, received a broken ankle. Oldfield and two other occupants of the car were but slightly bruised.

Ball Children's Bodies Found

Brockton, Mass., June 1.—The bodies of Thomas and Grace Ball, 7 and 9 years old, respectively, missing since Dec. 2, when they were taken away by their demented mother, were found buried in the woods off Oak street. The real mystery in the tragedy is still unsolved, for Medical Examiner Paine says that decomposition was so far advanced that it is impossible to give the exact cause of death. No inquest will be held.

Ended Life With Pistol

Medford, Mass., June 1.—The body of Claude Brown of Winchester, aged 25, who had been missing from his home since last Tuesday, was found yesterday in Spot Pond grove in this city. There was a bullet hole in the head and a revolver lying close by. Brown had left a letter saying that he was tired of life and was going to his grandfather, who died about four years ago.

YOU COULD See This CITY GROW

If Your Dollar
Circulated in Quincy.

Why Do Country Boys Flock to Big Cities?

Most small towns are short of young men. As a rule there are plenty of agreeable girls who would not object to matrimony; there are plenty of old people and enough babies to go around. But the boy—oh, where is he?

The boy, the young man, has gone to the city, where he imagines there are opportunities. To him the old home town is dull and stupid. He sees no future for himself there. Both for social and financial considerations he rushes off to the great city. Very frequently he finds that he is lonesomer there than at home—nearly always so; and even more frequently he finds that riches do not grow on ten story walls.

BUT STILL HE GOES TO THE CITY.

In going there the boy simply follows his daddy's dollars. For years his daddy and his mother and his big sister and his Aunt Mary Ann have been mailing their money to the big city for Mail Order bargains.

Result: Home merchants don't thrive, grass grows in the streets, no jobs are to be had, no opening for a new business, and the young man goes to the city because it is a place where people have traded at home and built up their own community and provided opportunities for outsiders as well as for themselves.

IF YOU WANT TO KEEP YOUR BOY AT HOME BUILD UP YOUR TOWN SO THAT HE CAN BUILD UP HIS CAREER AMONG HIS HOME FOLKS.

RENOVATING OF PILLOWS.

How to Fill Them With Feathers Without Losing Many.

Renovating pillows is of vast importance during the house cleaning season. Stuffing in more feathers when your pillows wear soft is a thing most inexperienced housekeepers dread, and with good reason, for unless it is done just so the feathers fly every which way, bits of the soft down clinging to hair and dress and everything in the room with a persistence remarkable in such apparently yielding things. When that necessary time comes around, shut yourself up in as empty a room as you can get (a small one is best), taking all the pillows which need filling, a case full of feathers (or another pillow from which you purpose to replenish the others), strong thread and stout needles and a knife for the ripping.

Tuck your hair up under a cap or tie a big handkerchief over it. Don't wear a cloth dress to do the work in, even though you take the precaution to put on a big work apron—the kind that covers you up from throat to hem. Those feathers have a way of creeping along the floor—the slight drafts of air caused by your movements being sufficient excuse—and attaching themselves to the hem of your dress.

Close doors and windows before you begin your work. Then with your knife rip open the end of a pillow and the end of the one whose contents are to be divided among the others. An old method was to transfer the feathers by handfuls, pressing each little lot well down before taking another. But a better way is to insert the ripped end of the pillow to be emptied into that of the one to be filled and then to shake down enough to make it fairly—but only fairly—hard. Then slip your hand inside and push the remaining feathers far back, at the same time working the edges of the ticking together. When you finally separate them there will be fewer feathers set flying around aimlessly than in any other way.

Pin the seam of the filled pillow together and begin on the next, doing all of them before you sew up any, but seaming them all before you leave the room.

How to Renovate an Old Waist.

Last season's waists were made much narrower in the shoulders than this year's, and the sleeves simply were immense. If you have a waist which has sleeves made of the same material as your waist and which are too large, it probably also has a yoke of some shape of net. Maybe your waist, especially if it is of silk or satin, is worn under the arms. If you have a few pieces of velvet or silk you can make your waist as good as new and in a pretty, up to date style. Rip the sleeves out and cut the armhole from two to four inches larger, or enough larger so that all the worn part is cut away. Cut the neck round, if it was V shaped or square, and finish it with a half inch wide band of velvet or silk and sew a band of the same material into the large armhole. This band should be two or two and a half inches wide. Make a belt of the same material. If the old waist blouses too much it should be let down an inch or so. This will give you a pretty, modern overblouse, which may be worn over lingerie, net or lace blouses.

How to Weigh the Baby.

Use the basket in which baby's toilet articles are kept, supposing it is average size. Buy five yards of webbing—an extra heavy tape. Cut two strips each sixty-four inches long. Pass one under the basket diagonally and fasten securely at corners. Do same with other strip, fastening at opposite corners. Join the ends over the top. This leaves ample space to slip baby under. In one end of the remaining piece of tape sew a loop large enough to pass one prong over the chandelier. On the other end sew the ring of your ordinary hook scales at such a height that when the loops on the basket are hooked into the scales the basket will skip the bed or table by six inches. Place a pillow and set of clothing in basket and weigh. Place the baby in and after weighing him subtract the weight of basket and clothing and you have baby's exact weight.

How to Slip House Plants.

To slip house plants, fill a dish with sand. Cut slips away from any kind of house plants, taking care the slip is made from a young green shoot and the cut is made slanting. Keep sand wet all the time. Place in a sunny window. They will begin to show little roots in from two to three weeks. After roots are formed put in small pots and shift into larger pots as they need it. Water each day. To enrich plants water with a solution of 150 grains of glue in about two gallons of water.

How to Amuse Children.

When children become restless on a rainy day a good way to keep them amused is to give them an old tomato basket, some white cloth and thread. They can make little rafts, canoes and boats out of the basket, using the cloth for sails, and with the use of the bathtub will keep themselves busy the rest of the day.

How to Soothe Tender Feet.

It is a clean and dainty habit to be as particular about the condition of the feet as the hands. In many cases the same preparations may be used on both. Daily baths in camphorated oil or cologne water are refreshing if the feet are tender and sensitive.

How to Clean a Chiffon Blouse.

To clean a chiffon blouse cover the blouse with powdered ammonia, roll it up tightly and leave it for a day or two. Then shake out the blouse, which will look like new.

THE NEXT POLE HUNT

Peary Plans to Make a Start the First of July

IN NEED OF MORE FUNDS

Feels Confident of Accomplishing His Mission In Fifteen Months, but Will Take Supplies and Equipments For Three Years' Stay

New York, June 1.—Confident of his ability to carry the Stars and Stripes to the North Pole, Commander Robert E. Peary, who has planted the American flag nearer the coveted northern goal than any other living man, is in New York making active preparations for another Arctic dash in the hope of solving the mystery of the north, which for centuries has been the aim of daring explorers.

Steamer Roosevelt, which the Peary Arctic club built for Peary and which carried him and his little party on his last northward journey, has been overhauled and put in better condition than ever for her expected battles with the ice barriers of the frozen north.

Peary's present plans contemplate his departure from New York about July 1, but lack of sufficient funds to finance the expedition may prevent the start. In fact, unless $25,000 is forthcoming the project will have to be abandoned. An auxiliary ship or collier will accompany the Roosevelt as far north as Etah, where Peary's coal depot in the last expedition was located. A small party of sportsmen and scientists may go north as far as Etah on the auxiliary ship, returning with her about Sept. 1.

Commander Peary has devoted nearly twenty years to efforts to solve the great problems of the north and already has put into the work all of his personal means, amounting to $80,000. His work and objects have the hearty endorsement of President Roosevelt.

Peary expects to accomplish the journey to the pole in fifteen months, but will take with him supplies for a three years' stay. "One very important result of my last expedition as bearing upon the success of the coming one," said Peary, "is the distinct improbability that conditions in the comparatively short distance of 200 miles between my furthest north point and the pole itself will be in any way different from the conditions encountered by me for the last 100 miles of my journey. If conditions are no worse in the next season than they were during the last voyage I shall hope to accomplish the objects of the expedition and return in about fifteen months—in October, 1909. I ought, however, to have supplies and equipment for a stay of three years."

Commander Peary described the changes made in the Roosevelt, the makeup of the crew, etc., and continued:

"My equipment, sledges, provisions, etc., will be the same practically as on my last voyage with, of course, slight changes suggested by added experience. The provisions are all of the simplest and most effective kind. I know the value of any given amount of any given food and what results can be obtained from it, and my facilities and experience in securing game in the region itself renders a wide range of food unnecessary.

"So far as the voyage and itinerary of the ship is concerned no changes from the last voyage are contemplated. The Roosevelt will go north over the same route, and I shall make every effort to force her to the same or similar winter quarters on the north shore of Grant Land as were occupied by her on the last expedition.

"There will be three modifications of the sledge journey suggested by the experience of the last trip. First, following of the north coast of Grant Land further to the west than before; second, a course across the sea ice somewhat more west of north than on the previous expedition; and, third, the more rigid massing of the sledges while en route, to prevent the possibility of a portion of the party being cut off from the rest with supplies insufficient for a protracted advance.

"All these modifications are the direct result of the determination of actual ice conditions in the central Polar sea made during the last expedition, and the object of these modifications is to counteract and allow for the steady easterly set of the central Polar ice discovered during that expedition."

Other work which Peary hopes to be able to accomplish, if conditions are favorable, is an examination of the interior ramifications of the great ice fjords of north Greenland and north Grant Land, and the exploration of the unknown portion of the east coast of Greenland and of Crooker Land, the new land discovered in his early expedition.

The last point at which the explorer will be able to communicate with civilization on his northward journey will be at Etah, when the auxiliary ship steams south the latter part of August.

Total Gifts of $4,500,000

New York, June 1.—The gift of an additional $500,000 to the Rockefeller institute at Sixty-Sixth street and the East river by John D. Rockefeller was announced after a meeting of the trustees of the institute. The money is to be used for the erection of a new building near the present institute. The gift makes a total of $4,500,000 given to the institute by Rockefeller.

AN ELECTION PRIMER

Pertinent Points About Our Election Machinery For New Voters and Old

THE ELECTORAL COLLEGE.

What is the electoral college?

That is the popular but unofficial designation of the body of men who elect the president and vice president of the United States.

What! Don't the people elect the president?

Well, only indirectly. The people elect the presidential electors, who compose what is known as the electoral college. The constitution of the United States provides that each state shall choose as many electors as there are senators and representatives in congress from the state. Each political party in each state nominates the state's proper quota of candidates for electors. These candidates are placed on the general state ticket, and the set that receives a majority or a plurality of the state vote is elected.

What then?

The presidential electors in each state meet at a designated point in the state on the second Monday in January following the general election and cast their ballots for president and vice president. Three lists are made out, one of which is deposited with the federal judge of the district. The other two are sent to the president of the United States senate, one by mail, one by messenger.

And the next step?

The next and final step takes place in the hall of the house of representatives at Washington on the second Wednesday in February. Both houses assemble, and the presiding officer of the senate opens and counts the state returns and announces the result.

SECOND FLOOR PLAN.

This is a very pretty arrangement of a modern colonial dwelling both on the exterior and in the interior. Note the reception hall, which opens widely into the parlor, making it possible to turn the two rooms into one for purposes of entertainment. The stair arrangement with its wide landing and bay window, is also notable. A good sized kitchen and a large pantry are provided. Upstairs there are four large bedrooms, with many closets. The estimated cost is $2,200.

The Observations In the Daily Walk

June.

Leafy June.

Graduation month.

City Council tonight.

Eight pages again today.

The Board of Trade will hold a regular meeting on Wednesday evening.

Miss Grace Perry of Medford spent the week end with relatives in this city.

George Ewell of Foster street is recovering from a serious case of blood poisoning in the hand and arm.

The Quincy Day Nursery association will meet at the club house on Goffe street tomorrow morning at half past ten.

Frederick W. Codding passed away on Sunday at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. W. A. Darling of Wollaston.

Today the Quincy members of the Ancients are in Boston for the celebration of 270th anniversary of the company, concluding tonight with a banquet.

Flags were placed on the graves of all the soldiers of the Revolutionary war in the cemeteries of the city by Adams Chapter Daughters of the Revolution, as has been their custom for several years.

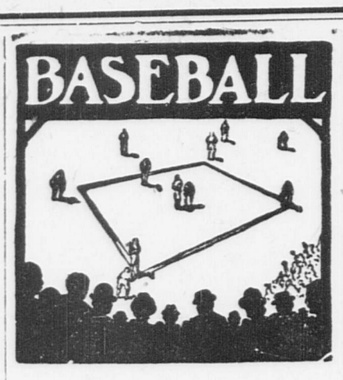

The case of Mrs. Mary Dolon of Brookline, who was injured at Revere road some six years ago, vs. the Old Colony street railway is being tired at Dedham today, and several well known people of this city are in attendance as witnesses.

One of the thriftiest of the young maples recently set out on Coddington street by the Civic committee of the Women's club was sacrificed to vandalism the night before Memorial day. The wanton destruction of private and public property is deplorable.

Lyndon Gurney of Walker street has returned from a trip to Islesboro, Maine where he was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hatch. Mr. Hatch was a clerk for Mr. Gurney for many years and is well known in Atlantic, where he was very popular. He has a prosperous farm in a beautiful site and is interested in the raising of chickens on a large scale.

The lecture by Senorita Huidobro which was postponed from last Wednesday evening will be given on Tuesday evening at eight o'clock in First Church chapel. The lecture will be beautifully illustrated and interesting, the subject being from "Panama to Patogonia." Senorita Huidobro is a charming speaker and a large audience is anticipated.

A meeting under the auspices of the Philanthropy committee of the Quincy Women's club will be held tomorrow afternoon at two o'clock at the club house. A conference of charities will follow at three o'clock, which all charity workers are invited to attend. Miss Zilpha Smith, co-worker with Dr. Brackett is to speak and answer questions concerning the work of charity organization.

MAKARIA WIN.

At 10.30 on the morning of the holiday the Makaria met the North Dorchester team at Merrymount Park and after a hard fought game, won by a score of 6 to 5.

It was one of the bests contests seen at the park in a long while, Penley for Makaria pitched an excellent game allowing only three hits while only two men walked, one being hit. Swanson for North Dorchester had fine control and held the home team down well until the eighth when Makaria bunched their hits and scored three runs.

Nicoll led with the stick work for Makaria, getting three hits, Smith close behind with two, one a 3-bagger, while Tupper landed two hits, the last a two-bagger bringing in the winning run. For North Dorchester all three hits came in the sixth and netted the four runs, being nicely bunched, Kelley, McDonald and Bill Smith each getting one.

There was a good crowd, at least 500, and Makaria feels very much encouraged by the support they receive financial and otherwise. The full score.

The first field day athletic meet of the season participated in by the Y. M. C. A. athletics resulted in a decisive victory for the Quincy boys.

The event was a dual meet with the Cunningham Gymnasium at Milton Saturday afternoon. Quincy secured 41 points to Milton's 17 bringing home all of the gold medals (first prizes) but one, and taking several seconds and thirds.

The events and winners were:

100 yd. dash—won by Elcock; Hall second and Floyd third, all of Quincy; time 10 4-5 seconds.

Running high jump—won by Hull; Histon third; distance 5 feet.

220 yd. dash—won by Elcock; Floyd second and Hull third; time 25 seconds.

Milton won the mile run making all three places, and Quincy took the relay race.

The meet was under the sanction of the Y. M. C. A. Athletic League of North America.

The next athletic event in which the Quincy association will participate will be the State meet at Riverside on June 20.

Police Get Wise To Pickpockets

Friday afternoon, Mrs. Montague of Braintree, who was a witness in a civil case at the district court, lost her pocketbook containing $35. Mrs. Montague left the court room for the depot and did not miss it until she arrived there.

Just about this time two men, who were said to be acting in a suspicious manner, arrived in town from Brockton way. One of these entered a store in City Square, where he tried to raise money on his watch, while the other remained outside and is reported to have been seen trying to get a pocketbook from a strange woman. Then several persons got wise and put Officer Murray onto the men. At this one of the men took his departure by the 3.43 train for Boston and the other disappeared down Hancock street where he was overtaken by Officer Murray near the Woodward Institute. After being questioned by the officer he was allowed to depart as there was nothing he could be held upon.

It was about this time last year that pickpockets made their appearance in City Square and those who saw the two men Friday think that perhaps they may be of the same kind.

The Atlantic Race

The Yacht race of the Atlantic Athletic Association was very successful. Harry Hinkley's new yacht the Guide, in spite of a poor start, finished seven minutes ahead of the Kitten causing much commet among yachtsmen algng the waterfront, who witnessed the race.

The Brownie (A. Briggs) finished third with the Merry Widow (formerly the Nestor) owned by Capt Packard at close fourth. Following in order were the Blossom (C. W. Hill. San Top Ralph Hendrie.) Alpha (President H. Arthur) and the Gladia (William Rice.) Had the Samaris been able to finish the winners would undoubtedly been changed, but Mr. Colman met with an accident and could not finish. The judges were J. McCarthy, Frank Johnson and William Hayes and time keeper Mr. Wildinson. The time over the course was 1 hour 45 minutes.

☞Scores of base ball games played Saturday will not be published hereafter unless the scores reach the office before 9 A. M. on Monday.

Sunday from 4.30 P. M. to 6.20 P. M. Washington street was more than lively, for in that time 172 automobiles passed.

City Plans Presented

Saville street and Irving place, although in most cases the houses can be moved back. It also takes the Veazie property on Granite street. On Granite street the Faxon property would be somewhat damaged by the change of grade ofthat street. The estimate of $350,000 includes construction but does not include land damages.

WATER STREET.

Beginning at a point 100 feet north of School street, the grade begins to ascend on a 1-10 per cent. grade for a distance of 1100 feet to the elevation of 35.8 at Water street. At the southerly side of Water street then rises by 43-100 per cent. grade for a distance of 500 feet to the elevation 38, then rises on a 65-100 per cent. grade to the elevation 50.

This drops the tracks at School street 4-10 of a foot making a headway of 15.4 under School street. At Water street the grade is dropped 4 feet giving a headway of 18 feet. Water street is increased in width from 45 to 60 feet.

On the westerly side of the bridge, the street descends by a 3 1-2 per cent. grade for 485 feet to the easterly side of Pleasant street, then across Pleasant street by a 2 per cent. grade, then 100 feet at a 3.1-2 per cent. grade, then a 2 per cent. grade for 150 until it meets the present street.

This necessitates raising the grade of Franklin street at Water street for about 5.2 feet, and Pleasant street at Water street about 9 1-2 feet.

On Franklin street from the northerly side of Water street toward the east the proposed grade is 1 per cent. down for a distance of 310 feet until it meets the present grade. From the southerly side of Water street the grade is 3 per cent. for 150 feet to the present grade.

From the southerly side of Water street the street will descend 5 per cent. grade to Presidents avenue extension for a distance of 260 feet. The proposed new street connecting Liberty and Water streets will have a 3 per cent. grade. The proposed way from Water to Liberty street will have a 5 per cent. grade down from Water street.

The station and platform are to be depressed to the grade of the railroad. Ample provision is made for carriages on the easterly side rather than the west. Presidents avenue is to be relocated to the east for a distance of about 60 feet for a distance of 250 feet, beginning at the southerly side of Water street. This will be an approach to the station from Water street. The westerly platform is not approached by carriages. Passengers reach platform by stairs from the bridge or by foot subway located opposite the present way. This subway passes under all tracks and connects with the easterly platform.

Connections for all industries and to all freight yards have been retained on the westerly side but the freight house on the easterly side will be abandoned. Water street bridge will be a single span truss about 175 feet long with three trusses.

The estimated cost of construction of Water street is $120,000. The width of 65 feet will be from Franklin street to Pleasant street. Of the houses taken a majority can be moved back on their present lots.

Other plans had not considered the station lay out, which was improtant and the plan is substantially different from other plans presented. Prof. Breed further said there were many ways of abolishing this crossing, but he considered this plan the best solution of the problem. The depression of tracks at Water street was very much linked with the draining problem. The School street proposition was also a feature of objection to raising the tracks at Water street.

Prof. Breed answered a number of questions profounded by those present.

Mr. Allen, representing Henry M. Faxon, stated that if the Commission decided to accept the city plan he had no objection to offer, although it seriously damaged his property. If, however, the city plan was rejected he would present plan for consideration. This plan closed Saville street at the railroad crossing with two dead ends. Upland road was extended straight to Granite street. This would do the least damage to property. A foot bridge or subway would be provided to reach the depot.

C. B. Bates stated that he had been requested to present a plan which however he did not favor. This plan retained Saville street as at present, but made a dead end of the railroad tracks on each side of the street.

The hearing was adjourned at 12.40 until July 7.

The Holiday At Houghs Neck

The summer season of Houghs Neck was formally opened Memorial Day. Despite the rain the beach was crowded with people all day and late into the night. Everything was open. One of the largest crowds seen in years was also at the beach Sunday. The bay was filled with boats of all description. The theatres were open but ran a "sacred program" which had been approved by the State police. The beach was very finely policed.

The only excitement of Sunday was arrest of Archie Thayer, the ice water king. Archie was making a speech on Socialism, on the Steamboat wharf. Officer Henry Thorne warned Archie, but Archie told the cop that he had the right to make a speech, and continued to address the large crowd that had gathered by this time. Officer Thorne placed Archie under arrest. Archie and the cop were followed by a crowd of nearly one thousand. He was taken to Quincy but got bail and returned to the neck. However made no more speeches.

Mayor Shea was a visitor at the Neck on Sunday. His honor came down in his auto. After a tour of inspection the mayor ended his visit by having a lobster at the Great Hill House.

The patrol wagon was at the Neck Friday night after a couple of drunks. Officer Thorne made the arrests.

The Ways and Means committee of the Houghs Neck Associates are to meet Thursday evening at Brown's bowling alleys.

There will be a good number of the residents of Houghs Neck attend the council meeting tonight to see what the council may do on the Houghs Neck street lights.

The Mt. Pleasant Outing club of Roxbury kept open house all day Memorial Day and Sunday. Their cottage the Agnes Belle on Atlantic avenue was very prettily decorated for the occasion. Everyone was welcomed; lunch was served throughout the two days. A fine musical program was arranged for the hundreds of guests.

Chief Burrell paid the Neck a visit. The chief was greatly pleased with the manner the great crowd was handled by his men. So were the residents of Houghs Neck.

The power boat Crescent can be chartered for fishing or pleasure parties. Apply to Walter Sturgis Houghs Neck 61

A special public meeting has been called by the Steamboat Service committee of the Houghs Neck Associates. The meeting is to be held at eight o'clock tonight at the Sea street theatre. The matter of boat service to Boston will be the topic of discussion.

Banquets In Elizabeth's Time.

In Queen Elizabeth's time the first course of a banquet is given as wheaten flummery, stewed broth or spinach broth, or smallage, gruel or hotch pot. The second consisted of fish, among which are lampreys, poor John, stockfish and sturgeon, with side dishes of porpoise. The third course comprised quaking puddings, black puddings, bag puddings, white puddings and marrow puddings. Then came veal, beef, capons, humble pie, mutton, marrow pasties, Scotch collops, wild fowl and game. In the fifth course all kinds of sweets, creams in all their varieties, custards, cheese cakes, jellies, warden pies, suckets, sillibubs and so on, to be followed perhaps by white cheese and tansy cake; for drinks, ale, beer, wine, sack and numerous varieties of mead or metheglin.—New York Tribune

Chamois Maker Is a Magician.

Most everybody uses chamois, and everybody imagines it comes from the graceful goats of the Swiss Alps, but it doesn't. It really hails from the cavernous depths of tanneries of Peabody, in New England. Peabody tanners make beautiful leathers of sheep pelts. The chamois maker is a magician of the leather trade. To his door he draws sheepskins from the great ranches of Montana or their possible future rivals on the plains of Siberia, the pampas of Argentina or the fields of Australia. Mary's little lamb, masquerading as brave Swiss chamois, has a wonderful career.

Natural Anxiety.

A very talkative little boy was allowed to accompany his father to a friend's house on the understanding that he should not speak until somebody asked him a question. He remained silent for half an hour. "Father," he then murmured, "when are they going to begin asking me questions?"

She Speaks Out.

"I don't yearn to live cheaply, young man."—St. Louis Republic.

QUINCY RECTOR

Receives an Unanimous Call To a Large Historic Church

News comes from Cambridge that the St. James church at North Cambridge at a parish meeting on Monday evening extended an unanimous call to Rev. William E. Gardner of Christ church, Quincy, to succeed Rev. Robb White, who has resigned.

Rev. Mr. White presided at the meeting and a letter was read from Bishop Lawrence highly recommending Rev. Mr. Gardner for the position. Mr. White, who was chosen about two years ago to succeed Rev. Dr. Edward Abbott, has accepted an assignment to the Philippines as a missionary, his resignation to take effect Sept. 1.

Rev. Dr. Abbott was for 25 years the rector of this church, and his prominence in church affairs made the church one of the prominent ones about Boston. It includes in its parish a considerable territory of Somerville, some 500 families in all. The church is a large one, having a seating capacity of 800.

It is not assured that Rev. Mr. Gardner will accept this position, for it seems that he is considering other important offers. Mr. Gardner came to Quincy over five years ago, and the church has grown and prospered wonderfully during his rectorship, and a branch church has been started at Braintree. Should Mr. Gardner resign he would be greatly missed, not alone by the church, but by the charitable workers of the city, the Y. M. C. A., the No-License League, the Woodward Institute, and the city generally, he and Mrs. Gardner being very popular throughout the city.

Rev. Mr. Gardner was born in Sherborn, March 22, 1872, and early became a resident of Nantucket, where he was married on Sept. 14, 1898 to Miss Mary Tracy of that town.

Mr. Gardner fitted for college in the public schools of Nantucket, and in the Coffin preparatory school, and entered Brown University in 1891. While at college he was editor of the Brown Magazine and Liber. He was graduated in 1895, and entered the Episcopal Theological school, at Cambridge, graduating in 1896.

While in the Theological school he was lay preacher at Medway and organized a mission at Franklin. He was ordained a deacon at Providence by Bishop McVickar. June 1, 1898, he accepted the call to Swampscott, and Dec. 7 was elevated to the priesthood. He remained at Swampscott until coming to Quincy Jan. 1, 1903, as rector of the Church of the Holy Name. Mr. Gardner has written "The History of Christianity" and other works.

Newsy Budget From Shipyard

The Quincy built warships are now active in the movements of the navy receiving frequent orders from port to port. The Vermont has just returned from Seattle to San Francisco; the Rhode Island and New Jersey are now at Bremerton, Wash.; the submarines Cuttlefish and Viper have reached Kingston, and the Birmingham is reported at Guantanamo.

Fight Pictures Decided Hit.

An immense crowd witnessed the original pictures of the Burns-Moir Fight and the Gotch-Hackenschmidt Wrestling Match at the Scenic last night, in spite of the threatening weather. The pictures are remarkably clear and distinct, and everyone attending the exhibition were thoroughly satisfied that they are the best yet produced in New England.

PLATFORM FOR TAFT

To Be Framed at Conferences of Friends of Candidate

THE POLICIES OF ROOSEVELT

Pledge Will Be Made to Carry Them Out--Will Favor Speedy Revision of Tariff and Passage of the Hepburn Anti-Trust Proposition

Washington, June 2.—There will be no lukewarm endorsement of President Roosevelt and his policies in the Republican national platform, if the wishes of Secretary Taft and his friends have potency in the framing of that document. This much was made known after the first of a series of conferences to be held with Taft on the subject of the platform.

Should the Chicago convention adopt this sort of platform and nominate Taft, it is predicted in authoritative quarters that his letter or speech of acceptance will contain a pledge to carry out the Roosevelt policies already inaugurated and earnestly strive for those not enacted which will have a ring similar to that pronounced by President Roosevelt on taking the oath of office.

Wade Ellis, attorney general of Ohio, who has prospects of being the Ohio member of the resolutions committee of the convention, and who was largely responsible for the conceded virility of the Ohio Republican platform, is here for a thorough understanding with Taft. He was with Taft at his offices for several hours yesterday and at the Taft residence for a long time last night. Another conference is to be held today, when it is not unlikely the result will be brought to the attention of President Roosevelt.

Secretary Taft has made no secret of his position on the tariff. He is for revision at a special session of the Sixty-First congress, to be called immediately after the inauguration, March 4, 1909. His ideas as to what the tariff should be also are public property. The schedules should be drawn as near as possible to cover the difference between the lesser cost of production of a given article in foreign countries and the cost to produce that article in the United States. This he regards as "protection" in its true and fair sense.

Schedules which are fixed at a higher rate than this difference, he believes, are not only unnecessary as a means of protection, but are evil because of their temptation to capitalists to form monopolies and trusts in this country for the control of the market in that particular product. From this information, the prediction is declared to be a safe one that the tariff plank to be presented to the resolutions committee by the Taft adherents will follow closely the lines of the Ohio platform, with the added specifications regarding the manner of arriving at the amount of tariff which should be levied.

Mr. Ellis is known to be heartily in favor of a plank stipulating that amendments should be made to the Sherman anti-trust laws, and Taft is known to be a thorough believer in the efficacy of trust control through federal laws. The embodiment of these ideas into a plank which may take the form of an endorsement of the Hepburn bill, which died a peaceful death in the house judiciary committee, is said to be a safe prediction.

The conferences will not be restricted in their personnel, and it is believed that before the Taft platform is finally perfected for submission the views of many of the party leaders will have been obtained.

Another conference was held at the White House last night, which was prolonged until after midnight. Besides the president, there were present Secretary Taft, Secretary Garfield, Wade H. Ellis, Senator Hopkins of Illinois and others.

Commissioners to Tokio Exposition

Washington, June 2.—Secretary Root has decided on the personnel of the commission to represent the United States at the Tokio exposition in 1912. The commissioners general will be Francis B. Loomis, former assistant secretary of state; Frederick J. V. Skiff, director of the Field museum in Chicago, and Francis D. Millet, the artist.

Lake Navigation Delayed

Cleveland, June 2.—At a meeting of the Lake Carriers' association it was decided to defer the opening of navigation on the lakes for at least two weeks, because of the fact that only about 25,000,000 tons of ore is scheduled to be brought down the lakes this season, against more than 40,000,000 tons last season.

Celt Wins Brooklyn Handicap

New York, June 2.—Celt, a 3-year-old colt bearing the colors of James R. Keene, won the twenty-second running of the $25,000 Brooklyn handicap. He did it easily, but at the same time made a new record for the race and the Gravesend track, stepping the distance, 1 1-4 miles, in 2:04 1-5.

Hearst Continues to Gain

New York, June 2.—The contents of twenty-six ballot boxes had been recounted yesterday when the work of counting the ballots cast for Hearst and McClellan in the last mayoralty election ended for the day. The net result was a gain of eighty-nine votes for Hearst.

MINISTERS' DIGNITY STUNG

Billy Sunday's Language Too Strong For Some of Them

Pittsburg, June 2.—Rev. "Billy" Sunday, the evangelist, delivered an address to the Presbyterian ministers of Pittsburg last night. His words caused consternation among the preachers, some of whom left the First Presbyterian church, but most of them remained to the end.

Sunday has been conducting a revival at Sharon, near here, and came to Pittsburg to speak on "Why Some Ministers Fail." The evangelist said many of the ministers of the present day were "fudge-eating mollycoddles, who were continually springing bum bull-con to their congregations." He asserted that few ministers of today are anything but stiffs, salary-quacks, willing to accept social distinction, and that many of them are qualified candidates for the "funny" house.

Continuing, he said: "Some of you ministers are controlled by riches and not by the Bible. Many of you are grafters, pure and simple. You know this, too. There are some of you preaching today that should be carrying the hod.

"What we do want is to tear down the seminaries, and stand the professors on their heads in mud puddles. A seminary and its teachings are of no more use to preaching than a crane's legs to a setting hen. I am no osteopath. I am a surgeon and my line is to cut out the abscess in the side of the church."

Goodbye to Horsecars

New York, June 2.—The old Fulton street horsecar line, in the down-town district, is no more. The five ancient cars, all that remained of the equipment, were withdrawn at noon yesterday. With them went ten drivers and conductors who had seen many years of service running "cross-town" between the rivers. Receivers of the New York City Railroad company, which owns the Fulton street line equipment, left to holders of Fulton Street Railroad company bonds only a few blocks of trackage with no cars to operate upon it.

Boycott Upheld by Court

Helena, Mont., June 2.—The supreme court of Montana dissolved an injunction issued by a district court restraining the Montana Federation of Labor and others from interfering with the business of Lindsay & Co., a wholesale fruit firm. A circular had been spread broadcast urging all union labor sympathizers to withhold from Lindsay & Co. their patronage. The supreme court holds that it is not unlawful for labor unions to withdraw their patronage from a firm.

Fire Scared Actor to Death

Cleveland, June 2.—Eugene Jepson, aged 50, leading man in a vaudeville sketch at Keith's theatre, dropped dead of heart disease in his dressing room when an alarm of fire sounded. No one was injured among the audience. The flames are said to have originated in the apartment where the moving picture machine is worked. The fire damage amounts to $5000. Jepson had a varied career, playing with Maude Adams at one time.

Chili on Good Terms With Us

Santiago, Chile, June 2.—President Montt opened the national congress yesterday. In his message to congress the president referred to the good relations which Chile had with all other countries, and specially referred to her relations with the United States. He spoke of the visit of the American fleet to Valparaiso, which, he said, was a sign of the fraternity between the two nations.

Liner Delayed by Accident

Antwerp, June 2.—The Red Star liner Vaderland was anchored in the River Scheldt yesterday, repairing a defect in her machinery. Considerable anxiety was felt on account of rumors that the Vaderland had gone ashore or been in collision. The accident consisted of a simple disarrangement of her machinery.

To Cast Society Aside

TILT OVER LABOR MEASURE

Avowed Candidates For Governor Are Ones Chiefly Concerned

Boston, June 2.—The Democratic senators who wrote Acting Governor Draper a letter last week urging him to put through the 54-hour bill for women and children have offered a compromise. They are willing to cut the 58-hour law to 56 instead of 54, but it is said that Draper has rejected this counter proposition.

The 54-hour bill provides that women and children in textile mills shall work no more than 54 hours a week, whereas at present they work to a limit of 58 hours, according to the bill enacted some years ago.

The piquancy of the situation comes from the fact that it is generally regarded as a tilt between Draper and Senator Vahey, who will probably be pitted against each other at the fall election.

Senator Vahey was one of the signers of the letter sent to the acting governor, and he was lashed by Draper in his reply. The acting governor referred to the statements made by Vahey on the floor of the senate, that labor legislation had been killed to save the acting governor from political embarrassment, as "unwarranted and insulting."

Mills on Full Time Schedule

Boston, June 2.—From all over New England come reports of resumption of full time schedules in many factories, fully 35,000 workers being benefited by this and other wage conditions which signal the return of prosperity. The welcome change is due largely to an increased demand for textile goods. The long period of curtailment has depleted stocks in the hands of jobbers, and the spring trade has revived business with the retailers.

A Jewish Complaint

Boston, June 2.—An appeal is to be made to the theatrical managers of the country by the Independent Order of B'nai B'rith, an international organization, to eliminate caricaturing the Hebrew race on the stage. At the meeting of the executive board here a resolution to this effect was passed, and the president of the order was instructed to see that it was carried out. Even many of Shakespeare's plays are condemned.

Charged With Murdering Babe

Gorham, N. H., June 2.—On a charge of murdering his son, Elmer, aged 3½ years, Edward Wilson, a farmer of Shelburne, was held in court here without bail for the superior court. Wilson claimed that the baby was accidentally smothered while asleep. He and his wife had separated some time ago and Wilson had agreed to return the child to its mother, who resides in Bethel, Me., the day following the death.

Hanged Himself In Cell

Boston, June 2.—When the attendant at police station 15 attempted to open the door of the cell in which John Broderick had been placed an hour earlier he found the lifeless body of the prisoner hanging to the doorknob by the neck. Broderick had torn his shirt into strips and used it as a rope. He was 40 years of age and had been arrested on a charge of intoxication.

Second Union Trust Dividend

Providence, June 2.—The board of directors of the Union Trust company, which recently resumed operations after being in the hands of receivers, voted to pay to its depositors a 10 percent cash installment on released claims on July 6. This will be the second 10 percent payment, the first having been made on May 4, when the bank reopened.

Fishermen Lose by Gale

Newport, R. I., June 2.—Fishermen, upon visiting their pounds where fish are left for the market, discovered yesterday that many of them had been broken by the gale and the fish lost. About 4000 barrels of scup, worth about $8 a barrel, have been lost. Many fishermen also suffered the loss of small boats and damage to other gear.

Weavers Object to Reduction

Woonsocket, R. I., June 2.—Following the announcement of a 10 percent reduction in wages in the Scotia worsted mills in this city, eighty weavers remained away from the mill. A meeting was held last night to discuss the question of declaring a formal strike.

Stabbing In Penal Institution

Boston, June 2.—During a baseball game at the Deer Island house of correction a fight occurred in which Frank Feola was stabbed in the back and Charles Pintzold was struck by a bat and rendered unconscious. Feola will recover.

Claimed Doctor Stole a Kiss

Lowell, Mass., June 2.—Mrs. Nellie S. Prince loses the $5000 damage suit she brought against Dr. F. S. Temple, in which she charged that he had kissed her against her will while he was examining her for heart trouble.

Effort to Have Sight Restored

Washington, June 2.—In the hope that he may recover his eyesight, Thomas P. Gore, the blind senator from Oklahoma, entered upon a course of treatment at a hospital in this city under the care of Dr. Wilmer. Gore lost his sight in childhood, and but slight hope is hold out by the physicians as to the benefit to be derived at this late day.

Poor Outlook For Lumber

Fredericton, N. B., June 2.—The outlook for the New Brunswick lumber industry in the immediate future is not bright. A falling off in the price of bank logs at Springhill is accompanied by an unofficial announcement that rafting operations will not be commenced until July 1.

THE FASTEST AFLOAT

Mauretania Breaks Lusitania's Record By Seven Minutes

MADE 635 KNOTS IN ONE DAY

Total Distance of 2890 Knots Covered In Four Days, Twenty Hours and Fifteen Minutes-One Propellor Not In Operation During the Trip

New York, June 2.—The Cunard liner Mauretania broke the record over the long course from Queenstown to this port, covering the distance in four days, twenty hours and fifteen minutes, with an average speed of 24.88 knots, according to a wireless dispatch received by the Cunard Line company from the steamship.

The Mauretania's record is seven minutes better than the high record held by her sister ship, the Lusitania. The Mauretania, according to the report sent by Captain Pritchard, passed the Sandy Hook light vessel at 7.50 last night. The Mauretania's log showed that she made 635 knots Sunday, which is the best day's record ever made by a trans-Atlantic steamship.

The record of the Mauretania is considered most remarkable, in view of the fact that she covered the course with only three of her four propellors in operation. The Mauretania's log shows that she covered 2890 knots.

The wireless report received from the Mauretania states that the Cunarder passed Daunt's Rock at 4.35 a. m. on May 28 and up to noon of that day covered 202 knots. The log further shows that the Mauretania covered up to noon of the 29th 621 knots; up to noon of May 30, 620 knots; to noon of May 31, 635 knots; to noon of June 1, 605 knots, and from that time until she passed Sandy Hook light vessel 207 knots, making a total of 2890 knots.

The Lusitania's best record of four days, twenty hours, twenty-two minutes was made over a course of 2889 miles.

New Record by Lusitania

Queenstown, June 2.—The Lusitania of the Cunard line broke her eastbound record over the long course from New York to this port by two hours and forty-three minutes, covering the distance of 2932 miles in five days, four hours and thirty minutes. The best previous record of the Lusitania over the course was five days, seven hours and thirteen minutes.

Mystery In Steinheil Tragedy

Paris, June 2.—The Paris police seem far from a solution of the mysterious murder of the noted painter, Adolphe Steinheil, and his wife's mother, Mme. Japy, which occurred in the artist's residence in the early hours of Sunday. The police refuse to allow any one to communicate with Mme. Steinheil or her 16-year-old daughter, who returned from the country yesterday. They also point out that jewels which Mme. Steinheil declared had been stolen by the murderers were yesterday discovered in a concealed safe.

Providence Newspaper Man Dead

New York, June 2.—Martin C. Day, formerly city editor of the Providence Daily Journal and Evening Bulletin and later of the Providence News, died in a hospital here. He wrote a history of the Graves-Barnaby poisoning case. Dr. Thomas T. Graves of Providence, after his conviction of poisoning Mrs. Barnaby by sending her poisoned whiskey, committed suicide in jail at Denver. Day leaves a widow, two daughters and a son.

Cummins After Allison's Seat

Des Moines, June 2.—Political parties in Iowa are today for the first time nominating candidates for November elections by a state primary. Among Republicans the chief interest lies in the fight made by Governor Cummins against Senator Allison for the Republican nomination for the United States senatorship. Nominations will also be made for all state officers.

Pattern Taken From America

Berlin, June 2.—The first court in this city for juvenile offenders, founded on an American model, inaugurated its sittings yesterday. Representatives of the press were admitted to the hearings, but the presiding judge requested that the names of the youths be withheld from publication, and referred to the American practice of not admitting reporters to these courts.

Death Sentence For Fourteen

Warsaw, June 2.—Three girls and eleven men were sentenced to death by court martial here for attacking a post-car on the Vistula railroad. A bomb thrown at the car killed two and wounded ten soldiers and railroad employes, and after the car was wrecked the safes were looted.

Won't Talk of Campaign Fund

New York, June 2.—Thomas F. Ryan, in an interview, declined to discuss the report that he had contributed to the Nebraska Democratic campaign fund to elect W. J. Bryan United States senator in 1904 and said he was not going to the Democratic national convention in Denver.

Better Times In Alabama

Ban Remains on Dancing

Baltimore, June 2.—The Methodist Episcopal general conference during the last day of its session will doubtless be much discussed for the things it did not do. Of these, two had been looked forward to as of much importance—the amusement question and the matter of a time limit on pastorates. Neither was permitted to come before the conference for discussion. Hence, the much-talked-of paragraph 248 stands as it has been, without the elimination of dancing, and pastors may be returned to their charges year after year, as has in recent years been customary.

Death of Former Senator Jones

Washington, June 2.—Former United States Senator James K. Jones of Arkansas died at his home here of heart failure after an illness of a few hours, aged 69. He was one of the strongest supporters of Mr. Bryan, having, as chairman of the Democratic national committee, conducted the campaigns of 1896 and 1900. Since leaving the senate in 1903 he had conducted a law practice in this city and had not actively engaged in politics. He was born in Mississippi in 1839 and fought as a private soldier in the Confederate ranks throughout the Civil war.

Bids For Big Contract

Washington, June 2.—The isthmian canal commission yesterday opened proposals for furnishing 4,500,000 barrels of Portland cement for construction work on the isthmus, the deliveries to begin about Dec. 1. Twenty-five proposals in all were made, including European cement manufacturing concerns. All the foreign bids were for quantities less than the full amount required. The bids will be sent to the Isthmus of Panama for inspection before any awards are made.

Actor Charged With Slander

Detroit, June 2.—Jacob P. Adler, the Jewish tragedian, was arrested here in a $10,000 damage suit brought by Sidney Frank, a local saloonkeeper. Frank alleges that Adler slandered him in making a speech before the curtain at the Detroit opera house. The trouble arose over the division of the proceeds of a Yiddish performance. The tragedian charges that he was cheated. Adler was released on $1000 bonds.

Death of Wife Slayer

Fairmont, W. Va., June 2.—Rev. C. A. Coffman, who murdered his wife two weeks ago, died here last night from nervous collapse. He was to have been tried on a charge of murder in court here this week. He is believed to have been mentally deranged. Last week he became violent and was put in a padded cell after a struggle. When taken to the hospital he refused to eat for three days.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Miss Anne Wales Abbot died at her home at Cambridge, Mass., aged 101. Her sister was 105 years of age when she died in 1904.

Brown university was formally invested with the custody of the replica of the statue of Emperor Marcus Aurelius, which stands in Rome, presented by the late Moses B. I. Stoddard. The copy of the famous statue is located on the college campus.

WORMS

Unsuspected worms are the cause of numerous little things that go wrong with children. When a child is sick you rarely think that its sickness is caused by worms, yet worms, either directly or indirectly, are the cause of three quarters of all the ills of childhood. Children, and often-times adults feel out of sorts, are irritable, feel listless and unrefreshed in the morning; suffer with indigestion, have a variable appetite, foul tongue, offensive breath; hard and full belly, with occasional gripings and pains about the navel; eyes heavy, and dull; itching of the nose; short, dry cough; grinding of the teeth; slow fever; and often in children, convulsions—in the majority of cases the cause of all the trouble is worms though you may not suspect their presence.

DR. TRUE'S ELIXIR

a pure vegetable compound, has been the standard household remedy since 1857; it never fails to expel not only worms but all waste matter, leaving the blood rich and pure, the stomach sweet, the bowels regular and the whole system strong and healthy.

The mother who gives her children Dr. True's Elixir regularly is wise, because it not only increases the appetite, acts as a preventative of coughs, cold, fever and worms but gives rugged, robust health.

June 7 will be Whit Sunday.

Have you seen the new moon?

Tomorrow is Donation day at the Pond Home.

The Overseer of the Poor invites proposals for coal.

Recent sales of real estate will appear in the Daily Ledger tomorrow.

There will be an eclipse of the sun the last Sunday of this month.

John Parsons has withdrawn from the firm known as the Cranch Hill Granite Works.

The Country School will hold a session tomorrow evening at the Universalist church.

The home on Botolph street owned by J. B. Sterling of Boston is at present occupied by Mr. Sterling's son and daughter.

Representative Coombs will please accept thanks for a copy of the Manual for the General Court kindly forwarded to the Daily Ledger.

Senorita Huidobro lectures tonight at First Church chapel on "From Panama to Patagonia," illustrated with beautiful views.

Councilman George Sawyer and family of Faxon road are occupying their summer home at Squantum, where they will remain throughout the summer.

The menus for the June breakfasts on Saturday, both at Quincy and Wollaston, will appear in the Daily Ledger tomorrow. They will be given in aid of the Quincy Day Nursery.

The alarm from Box 45 at 9.28 this morning was for a fire in a carpet hanging in the yard of Patrick Buckley on California avenue. There was but little damage.

Traffic was plenty along the boulevard on Sunday. The machines found the new road excellent for driving, the only difficulty being that the street is a bit narrow for the passing of two automobiles.

POINT CHURCH

Entertain the East Norfolk Christian Endeavor Union

The annual gathering of the East Norfolk Christian Endeavor Union, was held Monday evening at the Washington Street Congregational church, Quincy Point.

The delegates commenced to arrive at the church at six o'clock. They were met by a reception committee consisting of Fred Barnard, Helen Lincoln, Tom Skinner and Harry Brown. The delegates from each of the 12 societies had special seats reserved for them in the main auditorium of the church.

At 6.30 the Ladies' Aid Society connected with the church, announced that the banquet was ready. It was in charge of Mrs. George Bailey, ably assisted by ten ladies who efficiently served the following menu: Corned beef, baked beans, hot mashed potatoes, rolls, cheese, pickles, pies and cakes, jelly with whipped cream.

About 120 C. E. members and invited guests sat down to the tables prettily decorated with flowers by members of the local society.

After the banquet, President Harvey in a few well-chosen words, paid tribute to the Ladies' Aid Society, pastor and church. Then he introduced as toastmaster the Rev. E. N. Hardy, Ph. D., who in his bright way called upon the following post-prandial speakers:—

Mrs. H. G. Tirrell of East Braintree, "A Forward Look;" she spoke about the Union C. E. rally to be held at Weymouth Landing Sept. 7.

Rev. George Credeford of East Milton, who spoke about the founder of the future of the C. E. movement.

Miss Ina M. D. Liddell of Readville, who in her beautiful and charming way, spoke from the toast, "Our Opportunity," referring especially to the Lynn C. E. convention next fall.

Rev. N. J. Sproul, closed that part of the program by calling forth the allegiance of every C. E. member to Christ and the church.

At 7.45 the guests gathered in the upper room for the annual meeting. After the devotional service led by Rev. Mr. Ayer of Braintree, the pastor of the Point church, Mr. Atwood, spoke hearty words of welcome. "Faith and Love" and "Beautiful home life" were then sung by the following male quartet:—T. B. Pollard, Harry Sherburne, Lars Fjallback, and James Melville.

The address of the evening was given by the Right Reverend E. W. Phillips of Whitman, who has spoken in early every county in the state on C. E. work. His theme was "C. E. as an evangelistic effort; based on Matthew 3. After picturing John the Baptist, preaching repentance and the need of returning to righteousness, Mr. Phillips said, "The touch of the Master gives spiritual power in religious work. To have this power you need to have a clean life and a consistent conduct. Inconsistences spoil ones influence." The address was interestingly illustrated by personal experiences.

After listening to the annual reports from the retiring treasury, lookout committee and secretary, the following new officers for 1908-9 were elected.—

President—Victor E. Landstrom of East Milton.

Vice President—Herbert C. Poore, of Wollaston.

Recording Secretary—Miss Annie I. Walker of South Quincy.

Corresponding Secretary—Miss Ida L. Thomas of Quincy.

Treasurer—E. G. Smith of Norfolk Downs.

Auditor—Wendall A. Harvey of Braintree.

Office on Hancock Court.

Dr. H. E. McNally, formerly of Rockand, has opened an office at his residence, 19 Hancock Court, where he will be pleased to see his former Quincy patients as well as others. Dr. McNally is equipped to do only the finest work in all branches of the profession and is especially capable in advising and caring for children's teeth. This is a matter to which he has devoted a great deal of study and work with excellent results. This branch of the profession has not been developed as greatly as the others, and for that reason the decayed teeth of youth and early manhood are responsible. Prices consistent with first class work.

Pretty Wedding At West Quincy

One of the prettiest of the early June weddings was that of Dr. Daniel B. Reardon and Miss Mary Cashman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Cashman, one of the most popular West Quincy young ladies, which was solemnized this morning at St. Mary's church.

Both Dr. Reardon and his bride are extremely popular, and have a host of friends, many of whom were present at the ceremony.

Rev. A. F. Roche, pastor of St. Mary's church performed the ceremony and seated inside the sanctuary rail were Rev. William J. Duffy, Rev. John P. Cuffe, and Rev. Frank W. Walsh.

Miss Mary McConarty presided at the organ, and the bridal party entered the church to the inspiring strain of Lohengrin's wedding march. The decorations at the church were palms.

During the ceremony Emerson's mass was sung by a quartet composed of Miss Ellen Galvin, Miss Angelina McCarthy, D. J. S. McCurdy and M. H. Donovan.

The ushers were Dr. Joseph Stanton of Newton, Martin A. King, Vincent Reardon and Henry Teasdale.

The bride wore a white lace robe with chiffon and messaline trimmings, with tulle veil caught up with lilies of the valley. She also carried a shower bouquet of the same flowers.

Frank Reardon, a brother of the groom was the best man, and Miss Ellen Cashman, a sister of the bride, was the maid of honor. The latter wore a pale blue chiffon with picture hat with blue chiffon trimmings and plume.

After the ceremony Rev. Fr. Roche spoke of the solemnity of the marriage ceremony in the Catholic church. He also said he had known the bride and groom from childhood and they were models of Christian man and womanhood.

At the offertory Mr. Donovan sang the "Ave Maria." The organist and the quartet with the exception of Mr. Donovan are from the choir of St. John's church, of which Dr. Deardon is also a member.

Following the ceremony there was a wedding breakfast and reception at the home of the bride's parents on Cross street. The decorations at the house were potted plants and ferns, the mantles being banked with pink and white carnations.

Among the many guests present were Mayor Shea, City Solicitor McAnarney and other city officials.

Dr. and Mrs. Reardon left later in the day for a trip to Montreal and Quebec, returning from which they will reside at 22 School street, where they will be at home after October 1.

Pink Wedding At Braintree

Miss Alice Dow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willard E. Dow of Middle street, Braintree, and Mr. George Lewis Anderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Anderson of Wollaston, were united in marriage on Monday evening at the home of the bride. The house was beautifully decorated with asparagus vine and daybreak pinks by Waldecker of Braintree. Rev. William E. Gardner rector of Christ church of Quincy, solemnized the marriage at half past seven, in the presence of a few near relatives and friends.

The maid of honor was Miss Alice M. Redding of Quincy Point, and the brides-maid Miss Mabel L. Anderson of Wollaston. Alva Morrison Dow, brother of the bride was best man, and the bride was given in marriage by the father.

Gowned in chiffon satin and chantilly lace, the bride was dainty charming and girlish. She carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley. The maid of honor was in pink silk and carried sweet peas and maiden hair ferns. The bridesmaid wore a white silk over pink, and also carried sweet peas and maiden hair ferns. It was a pretty blending of color.

Four hundred invitations had been issued for the reception, which followed the ceremony from eight until ten o'clock, and the spacious rooms were thronged with guests from Braintree and neighboring towns. The young people were assisted in receiving by their parents, and the guests were ushered by Clarence Dow, M. I. T. '11, and Joseph Gregg Morrison, Harvard '09 of Braintree, N. Gorham Nickerson, Jr., of Wollaston, and Gordon Gannett of New York.

Astrella Brothers of Boston played for the ceremony and reception. A wedding supper was served in the dining room.

Among those present were the grandmother of the bride, Mrs. Abel Dow of Canobie Lake, N. H., aged seventy-five, the great aunts Mrs. Moses C. Page of Canobie Lake, aged seventy-nine, and Mrs. A. Parker Heath of Nashua, N. H., aged seventy-five. This trio has attended many family celebrations, the first being Mrs. Dow's wedding in September 1849; later her silver and golden anniversaries, and in 1905 the silver anniversary of Mrs. Dow's son, Mr. Willard E. Dow of Braintree.

Mr. and Mrs. Anderson left amid a shower of confetti and good wishes for a short bridal trip. On their return they will reside on Middle street, Braintree.

Houghs Neck Boat to Boston

The special public meeting of the Houghs Neck Associates was held Monday evening at the Sea Street Theatre. Every seat in the house was taken. Many suggestion were offered by those present. Captain Oliver G. Fosdick, chairman of the steamboat service committee opened the meeting with an earnest appeal to the audience to do something. William Cavanaugh, president of the Boston and Houghs Neck Steamboat Company, and Matthew Connors, general manager and treasurer of the company, were present and readily answered the many questions put to them.

The idea of the management of the company was to have two hundred residents or property holders of Houghs Neck purchase one share of stock. The president stated that the company did not need any money and the object of selling stock was not for the money derived from the sales, but to get the people interested in the company. By doing this their patronage would be assured.

A motion was made that the Secretary, Alfred LaBrecque, keep open a subscription list for the sale of stock and report to the meeting Thursday.

A. F. Baird suggested that the company issue 200 books of 200 tickets and sell them at $15 a book good on the Boston boat or the Nantasket Point line.

The management stated that if the company was assured $3,000, the boat to Boston would run. Meeting adjourned until Thursday evening.

The power boat Crescent can be chartered for fishing or pleasure parties. Apply to Walter Sturgis Houghs Neck 61

The double track location on Hancock street may be connected tonight. Last night it was laid from School street to Temple street, and today work is being rushed in front of City Hall connecting with the double track which extends from Neponset bridge to City Hall. Probably cars will be running over the double track tomorrow but it may be a week or two before Hancock street is rebuilt as it will be necessary to regrade the street between Music Hall and City Hall, which will be done at the expense of the street railway company.

From Panama To Patagonia

Those who failed to attend the illustrated lecture at the Unitarian chapel on Tuesday evening, missed a very instructive and interesting talk, given by Senorita Huidobro of Chili, whose subject was "Panama to Patagonia." South America is really a continent of which the people of the United States know very little, and the lecture of Senorita Huidobro is apt to take the conceit out of many, for in some respects such countries as Chili and Argentina are in advance of the United States.

The gifted speaker had a thorough knowledge of South America and the questions of the day. She spoke at length of the isthmus of Panama and the work on the canal, and its advantages. It would cost, she said, many millions of dollars, but was needed more than the battleships, for she predicted there would never be another big war between countries.

Several pictures were shown of the towns on the Pacific coast, their beautiful cathedrals, monuments, harbors, docks, street scenes, scenery, ostrich farms, wool markets, etc. Facts and figures were presented particularly of Argentina showing the large amount of business.

Greatest interest, however, was taken in her story of "Christ in the Andes," the peace monument erected by Chili and Argentina on the summit of the great divide between these countries. It had already resulted in peace treaties between other countries of South America, and was setting an example to the world.

A series of beautiful pictures of the beautiful flowers of the continent were shown, and they were greatly admired, calling forth applause.

Menus for the June Breakfasts

The Quincy Day Nursery is nearing the close of its fifth year, and as from the first, some special effort must be made at this time to procure money to carry on the work; for ft upon the generosity of the public, that the Quincy Day Nursery Association depends for its support.

Mrs. W. E. Simmons the treasurer writes: May I say a few words to place the Nursery before the public in its true position; so many have asked what the Nursery is for and what good it does?

The Nursery is a place where children, from three months to seven years are cared for daily, while their mothers are from home earning money to keep a home for the little ones. Here the little folks are cared for and fed, the mothers paying the sum of five cents per day.

If any one wishes to see the result of this care, let him go to the Nursery and see the clean, well fed, happy children. All are invited to visit the Nursery any day, excepting Saturday, which is cleaning day.

I have often heard persons remark, who do not take the trouble to inquire into it, that the outlay is so great, for so small a result. To those let me say, that last year the Nursery cared for 1866 children at an expense to the association of $863.83. Can any one call this a great outlay for a small result?

The Association is now planning a benefit breakfast, to be held Saturday, June 6, from 11.30 to 2.30 o'clock, at the First church, Quincy, and at Odd Fellows' hall, Wollaston, at the same time. I inclose the tempting menus for both places at twenty-five cents each:

Burglary Reported At Houghs Neck

It is said that the Houghs Neck Associates will frame the pen with which Mayor Shea signs the order providing for street lights at Houghs Neck.

A gang of workmen are engaged this week in extending the water service of the city at Rock Island, were a large number of cottages have been erected this season.

The Winthrop lunch room owned by Charles Daley and located on the corner of Winthrop and Sea streets, was broken into by thieves early this morning. Eatables, china and crockery were stolen. The thieves gained entrance by breaking a window in the rear door and then pulling the door from the hinges. Mr. Daley discovered the robbery when he arrived to open up business. Officer Thorne is working on the case.

The meeting of the ways and means committee of the Houghs Neck Associates, scheduled for June 4, has been postponed to June 6, on account of the steamboat meeting being adjourned to June 4.

The regular summer time table for the street cars went into effect Memorial day, cars running every half hour. Late car every night except Sunday.

Miss Fannie Frye Becomes Mrs. Holmes

There was a pretty wedding on Tuesday evening at Christ church, when Miss Fannie Ellen Frye and Mr. Walter Irving Holmes, both of this city, were united in marriage by Rev. William E. Gardner, the rector.

The bride is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Frye of South street, and was most becomingly gowned in white with a large white picture hat with light blue plumes; she carried a shower bouquet of white sweet peas. The maid of honor was Miss Delia Jones, also gowned in white, but carrying pink sweet peas. The best man was Charles F. Foster.

The chancel decorations were of pink and white. Wendell H. Luce, the organist of the church, presided at the organ, and played Lohengrin's march as the bridal couple entered the church, and Mendelssohn's wedding march for the recessional. During the ceremony at the altar "O Promise Me" was played very softly.

About 100 guests attended the ceremony. The ushers were Chester Bean of Atlantic and William L. Thomas of Quincy.

Mr. and Mrs. Holmes left on the 9.13 train for Boston, and their wedding trip will be among the hill of New Hampshire. On their return they will reside on South street, Quincy.

Short—Morton.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Prout on Whitwell street was the scene of a very pretty wedding or Monday evening, June first, when Rev. C. C. Butler united in marriage, Miss Bessie Morton and Mr. John O. Short of Boston. Miss Lucy Perham of West Roxbury was maid of honor, and Mr. Byron P. Morton of Medford the best man, both cousins of the bride. Doris and Olive Prout were flower girls. The ushers were Mr. Philip Crichton of Cambridge and Mr. John Ross of Dorchester.

The bride wore a costume of white crepe de chine, a tulle veil caught up with lilies of the valley, and carried a bouquet of sweet peas. The maid of honor wore white batiste and carried pink sweet peas.

Guests were present from Medford, Malden, Everett, Canton, West Roxbury, Cambridge, Dorchester, Chelsea, Newburyport and Quincy. Amid a shower of rice and best wishes, Mr. and Mrs. Short departed on a trip to Niagara, Toronto and the Thousand Islands.

Miss Ellen Thompson.

Word was received in Brookline, Monday of the sudden death in Edinburg, Scotland, of Miss Ellen Thompson, widely known in women's clubs as a lecturer, and in many of the best-known local families for her practical talks on authors, their works and traditions.

Allowing for the difference in time, it is believed by her Brookline friends that Miss Thompson died during the night Sunday, probably of heart failure. She had been subject to such attacks. A cablegram announcing her death was received Monday. The American consul was the informant.

Miss Thompson left home April 15 to spend the summer abroad in literary research. As had been her custom for ten successive years, she intended to accumulate material for lectures and talks for the next season. Last summer she lived among the peasant people of Ireland, absorbing their ideas and observing their manners and mode of living.

Miss Thompson was a highly cultured woman in every sense of the word. She was a natural speaker and had the happy faculty of holding the attention of all before whom she appeared. Her pleasing manner, coupled with her simple form of address, won for her many friends, and her engagements were consequently much sought after.

Miss Thompson was aged 47 years, and was born in North Attleboro, the daughter of John and Emily Thompson. The family later lived in Plainville. She was formerly teacher of English literature in the Waltham high school and other schools.

Miss Thompson was a great favorite with Quincy club women, lecturing several seasons here at private homes and she will be sincerely mourned by many friends.

Just Jotted Down By Ledger Men

The billiard tournament is now occupying the attention of the members of the Granite City club.

This is the month of graduations and the pupils of the public schools are getting ready for these annual events.

A special meeting of the School Committee will be held this week to examine plans for an addition to the Lincoln school.

Mr. and Mrs. William Nelson of Standish avenue went to Portland, Maine, last week to spend a week with Mr. Nelson's relatives.

A large number of men are now being employed in the street, water and sewer department, and the weekly pay rolls are heavy.

It seems as though it was time that the annual City reports for the year 1907 made their appearance. Five months of the present year have gone by.

Miss Edna Fowler, Raymond Fowler and Charles Thompson of Berlin street attended the social given by the G. F. S. of St. Lukes Branch of Malden, last week.

Business at the granite cutting yards is now rushing. The strike delayed the shipment of a great deal of work and the manufacturers are now rushing to get these orders ready for delivery.

The electrical connection with the travelling crane in the new freight yard at South Quincy have been made, and it will be given its trial operation this week. It should be put into actual service next week.

The City Council has evidently made up its mind that no more permits to transport liquor shall be granted this year. The thirteen granted should be ample to supply Quincy with all the liquid refreshments desired.

Postmaster Hammond should see to it that there is more than one clerk at the stamp window when there is a crowd. With but one clerk and several to register letters it means a long wait at time. One man stood in line nearly ten minutes waiting for stamps on Tuesday evening.

DOCTORS' CAMPAIGN

Will Oppose Laws Intended to Abolish Vivisection

LARGE SANITARY PROBLEMS

Suggestion That Government Have a Chief Who Could Draw on Whole Scientific World For Experts--Its Relation to States Rights

Chicago, June 3.—Vivisection came in for much attention by the delegates to the convention of the American Medical association here and was the subject of significant action by the governing board of that organization. By unanimous vote the house of delegates approved a recommendation to the board of trustees to create a commission, the sole duty of which shall be to watch and oppose the enactment of laws intended to abolish vivisection.

While this action was under consideration, Dr. Cannon, chairman of the section on pathology, advocated the campaign of education against opponents of the practice, whom he accused of untruthfulness and ignorance, and in another meeting—that of the section of surgery—results of animal experimentation were being described by Dr. Carrel of New York.

The resolution passed by the house of delegates, owing to an evident unanimity of sentiment, was passed with but little time consumed by discussion of the subject.

The first general session of the convention was addressed by Dr. Burrel of Boston, who made a plea for co-operation between the physicians and the public and for the education of the latter in matters of sanitation.

At the evening session Dr. Harrington of Boston took for his subject "States Rights and the National Health," and suggested that the movement for national control of the public health should be focussed either into a department "represented in the cabinet or of a division of an existing department with a commissioner for a chief.

"Its head should be charged with advisory powers in relation to other departments and to the states, and with supervisory and executive powers in matters pertaining to his own bureaus. He should not attempt to meddle in local matters not of national concern, nor to encroach upon the duties of other branches of the government. He should, as occasion requires, draw on the whole scientific world to secure experts for the investigation of large problems of sanitary importance.

"Inasmuch as no one man could be expected to conduct so great an establishment with only the advice of his bureau chiefs, and inasmuch as the cordial co-operation of all the states would be absolutely essential to satisfy achievement, he should have a national council, consisting of one delegate from each state, appointed by the governors or state boards of health."

As a means of carrying out this plan Dr. Harrington suggested the formation of a national sanitary police system "to suppress the rioting of epidemics when the state is powerless or neglects to act." He added:

"It seems not unreasonable to suggest that the right of the state to be a national health nuisance might properly be abridged by constitutional amendment, giving the central government authority to act for the common good when local neglect or inability makes it imperatively necessary, but only then."

Decision In Customs Case

New York, June 3.—Customs duties of 60 percent must be paid on the $340,000 pearl necklace imported from France by Mrs. William B. Leeds under a United States court decision, which sustained the ruling made by the collector of the port. After the necklace was purchased in Paris the pearls were separated and brought to this country as individual gems in the belief that they would be admitted upon the payment of 10 percent duty which the law provides for individual pearls.

May Lose Sight of Eye

Chicago, June 3.—James T. Sheckard, left fielder of the Chicago National League baseball team, was seriously injured when a bottle of ammonia exploded before his face. His left eye may be permanently blinded, it is reported. Sheckard has not been playing for several days because of an injury to his ankle. He was about to treat the injured member with the fluid when it exploded.

Two Workmen Killed In Riot

Vigneux, June 3.—Twelve gendarmes, while attempting to arrest a striker here, were surrounded by 200 workmen. The gendarmes used their weapons. Reinforcements to both parties soon reached the scene, and in the fight with revolvers which ensued two of the workmen were killed and six wounded. Four gendarmes were wounded.

Young Gould Forfeits Bail

New York, June 3.—Judgment on a forfeited bail bond of $100 was entered against Kingdon Gould, who was not in court when the charge against him of automobile speeding was brought up for trial. A bench warrant was issued for Gould's arrest, but the police learned that he had sailed a week ago for a six weeks' vacation in Europe.

MADE WORLD'S RECORD

Balloon Had Made 800 Miles When Checked by Rain

Watertown, S. D., June 3.—Compelled to alight because of rain, the balloon owned by Charles A. Coey and driven by Captain Bumbaugh and Charles Leichliter, which left Quincy, Ills., landed near Clear Lake, S. D., covering over 800 miles in eleven hours and securing the world's speed record with an average of seventy-five miles an hour.

Captain Bumbaugh was disappointed is not breaking the long distance record and his failure to win the Lahm cup. He said that had he not encountered rain he would have easily outdistanced all previous records. Leaving Quincy the aeronauts went west to Kirksville, Mo., and from there due north. After leaving Kirksville neither man in the balloon spoke until after alighting.

When struck by the storm, Bumbaugh made an ascent of 6500 feet, but could not avoid it. He then dropped 1600 feet in one minute.

Leichliter left Clear Lake for Chicago. Bumbaugh remaining behind to pack the balloon ready for the return by rail. He said he would make another effort to win the Lahm cup.

"I have great confidence in my balloon," he said. "It is a marvel. Not a particle of gas escaped in the long flight, which was without incident. I am confident that this will prove the fastest air vessel of the present age."

Hammond was formerly connected with the Guggenheim Mining company, but for the past year has been engaged independently in his professional work as mining engineer.

Must Not Ride on Platform

St. Paul, June 3.—The United States circuit court of appeals holds that railroad passengers who ride on the platform of a moving train are precluded from collecting damages for injuries resulting from their action. The defendant left his seat in a car and went to the rear platform, where he was standing when a collision occurred in which he was killed.

Dahlgren, who arranged with Slocum to bring the specimen to New York.

The fee was demurred to by the officials of the road, they claiming to be exempt under the gross earning tax.

IMMIGRANT PROBLEM

College Men Will Endeavor to Reach a Solution

A JOURNEY THROUGH EUROPE

To Study Aliens at Close Range, Trace History of Races, and Trail Them From Their Homes to Destination In This Country

New York, June 3.—With packs on their backs and only enough money to supply their immediate wants, a college professor and ten students sailed today in the steerage of the steamship Alice, bound for the immigrant fields of Europe.

At the head of the party was Professor Edward A. Steiner of Iowa university, who persuaded Pennsylvania authorities to make the present experiment. The members of his class are volunteers from the colleges and universities of the middle west.

The plan mapped out for the party is to study the alien as he is at home, to learn his language, his habits, his social condition and its causes, and to trace the history of the races that are pouring into America at the rate of several millions a year.

The party will make its way through Bohemia, Poland, Russia, Hungary, Austria, the Balkans and thence to Italy, and from there it will return by steerage to New York, trailing the immigrant all the way across, through the customs, immigrant station, and to his future home.

Upon the completion of this task, which will take over a year, the ten men will enter the mining fields of Pennsylvania as social workers and interpreters under the auspices of the Pennsylvania Young Men's Christian Association. The year's study is intended to fit them for this work. They will not preach any particular creed or religion, but with their special training and equipment will strive to get close to these alien men, to teach them the responsibilities of American citizenship.

One-half of the expense of the tour will be met by the cities of Erie, Connellsville, Scranton, Warren and Uniontown, which have subscribed enough money to take care of five students. The expenses of the professor and the other five will be met by a group of citizens from all over the state.

Five Hundred Marines For Panama

Washington, June 3.—The 300 marines on the Isthmus of Panama, officers and men, are soon to be increased by about 200 others. These men will be taken down on the cruisers Prairie and Tacoma, which will leave the United States about the 12th instant, the men being drawn from the Philadelphia and the New York navy yards. The entire 500 will be available in the event there is any necessity for their services in keeping order during the presidential election in Panama.

Chamberlain Popular In Oregon

Portland, Or., June 3.—Governor George E. Chamberlain (Dem.) is the choice of the people of Oregon for the United States senatorship to succeed Charles W. Fulton (Rep.), and a Republican legislature has been chosen to elect him. Chamberlain's opponent was Henry M. Cake (Rep.) Chamberlain's victory is in the nature of a personal triumph. Oregon normally is Republican, and in 1904 Roosevelt's plurality was 42,434.

Hartje Case Is Up Again

Pittsburg, June 3.—J. S. Ferguson and W. B. THE
Young Men's Christian Association
OF QUINCY, MASS.
(Legal Title—Incorporated 1852.)

The Directors of the YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an Endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sums as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

OUR HOSPITAL
INCORPORATED 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000 but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need will be most gratefully received.

The Secretary, TIMOTHY REED, Adams St., Quincy, or the Treasurer, RICHARD D. CHASE, Savings Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

Hughes Declares That He Has Calm Confidence In It

GAMBLING ON RACE TRACKS

Laws Enacted Must Be Observed and If They Are Not Right They Should Be Changed--Favors Direct Nominations to Public Offices

Nyack, N. Y., June 3.—Governor Hughes again took occasion to express himself forcibly on the subject of race track gambling in a public address and predicted the ultimate triumph of the campaign he has inaugurated against it. The occasion was a gathering of the Rockland County Taxpayers' association at Nanuet, near here.

The governor was given an enthusiastic greeting by the 2000 people present, and his address was frequently punctuated with demonstrations of hearty approval. At the outset he commended the idea of taxpayers' associations and paid tribute to the good they had done in the curbing of governmental extravagance.

Leading up to the race track gambling question, Hughes expressed confidence in the trustworthiness of the vast majority of the people. "The men you cannot trust," he said, "are the self-chosen persons who undertake to dominate the men you can trust. Having this calm confidence in the honor and integrity of men, we insist that the laws we have enacted must be observed; that if the laws are not right that they must be changed, and that we will not become connivers at law breaking ourselves or tolerate an evasion or a tricky performance of legislation on the part of others,

"I selected one matter because it was one about which there could be no debate. With the morality and the integrity and the manhood of the state on one side, reinforced by the express language of the constitution; and on the other side only those who would, with contemptuous disregard of the morals of our youth and the explicit mandate of the constitution and of our law, seek to make money by the most despicable and demoralizing means."

Governor Hughes' remarks on the subject of race track issue led him into a discussion of the principle of direct nominations, which he strongly advocated, not, he said, in disparagement of party organization, in which he thoroughly believed, but in order that the people may get the representatives they want and the legislation they desire, so, he said, "that each representative may feel that he must go back, not to a man in a corner room to explain, or to three or four men to fix it up, but to the community which sends him, which will uphold or condemn, according to his record."

Attention Demanded by Politics

Pittsburg, June 3.—Speaker Cannon and his automobile party, including Senator Hemenway of Indiana; Congressman Landis, recognized manager of the Fairbanks presidential campaign; L. W. Busbey, the speaker's private secretary, and B. M. Clinedinst, a Washington artist, completed their journey over the mountains and reached this city last night. It is probable the automobiles will be abandoned here and the speaker and Hemenway hurry to their homes by train, both having received urgent telegrams from political and business associates to hurry to their homes.

Had Varied Army Record

London, June 3.—Sir Redvers Buller, commanding the English army at the time the Boer war broke out, is dead. He was 69 years old. His conduct of the Boer war was such that for a time there was talk of his recall. Buller served in China in 1860 and successively took part in the Red river expedition, Ashanti, Kaffir, Zulu, Soudan and Boer wars. His relief of Ladysmith, after it had been besieged by the Boers for 118 days, threw England into a paroxysm of joy.

Big Ditch Excavation For May

Washington, June 3.—A falling off of over a half-million cubic yards in excavation on the isthmian canal for May, as compared with April, is shown in a dispatch received by the canal commission from Chief Engineer Goethals. The decrease is attributed mainly to great rainfall. The May excavation was 2,702,923 cubic yards.

UNTIL HE WINS OR DIES

Peary Will Continue His Active Quest For the North Pole

Portland, Me., June 3.—Speaking of the expedition which it is said is being fitted out to locate the South Pole, Commander Peary, upon his departure for New York to prepare fr his trip to the North Pole next month, stated that he had felt for some years that this country should take up the subject of the exploration of the South Pole.

"If I arrive at the North Pole on this trip," said Peary, "my next ambition will be to plant the Stars and Stripes at the farthest point south. I feel that it would be about as difficult to reach one as the other. Having started for the farthest north I am going to keep on until I succeed or die, but I do wish that some one would come forward who would be able to battle with the elements of the southland and make that also territory to be invaded by a Yankee."

Lilley Sticks to Charges

Waterbury, Conn., June 3.—Congressman Lilley, who made charges in connection with the submarine boat scandal, and who was warmly dealt with by the Boutelle investigating committee, in his reply says: "I believed and still believe that the Electric Boat company has received excessive profit in the sale of submarines to the United States government. Whether the conclusions of the committee in this particular were justified or not, I leave to the public to judge."

As a result of his injuries he later became a physical and mental wreck.

Fire Started by Boys

Touching Tribute of Esteem

St. Paul, June 3.—A few minutes after Robert A. Smith had retired from the office of mayor of St. Paul yesterday, he was handed a draft for $11,000, contributed by business men of St. Paul as an appreciation of his services to the city. Smith is 81 years of age and has an office-holding record of fifty years in this county, fifteen years of which, with the exception of one term, was spent in the mayor's office. At one time he was wealthy, but failure of a bank of which he was an officer led him voluntarily to dispose of all his property to help depositors. He would have left the mayor's office penniless had it not been for the contribution.

President Mellen And the New Haven

If a European traveling in this country were to pick up a current newspaper what impression would he get of the resident of the New Haven Railroad? He would probably fail to apprehend certain interesting details in the career of Charles S. Mellen.

Who is this ogre?

First, he is one who, having passed most of his years in New England and served with success and distinction in another field, returns at a time in life when many successful men think of retiring from active business, and undertakes to develop a transportation field which the larger railroad factors have neglected.

In the period when many railroads are condemned for holding human life cheaply, Mr. Mellen so operates the New Haven that since his taking the presidency not a single passenger has been killed in a derailment or collision.

While Legislatures in various parts of the country are passing acts to compel passenger rates to be reduced to two cents a mile Mr. Mellen voluntarily adopts the two-cent rate.

He buys trolley lines and extends them, in some cases constructing tracks parallel to the steam lines and everywhere making efforts to increase business by connecting up undeveloped territory. Informed that his trolley holdings are illegal, he offers to do, without a lawsuit, whatever the Attorney-General of Massachusetts may suggest.

Learning that trunk line interests are negotiating for the Merchants and Miners' Transportation Company, over which shippers at New Haven points enjoy their Southern differential rate in competition with the Trunk lines, he obtains a half interest in the Merchants and Miners, thus preserving this indirect but cheaper route. The Hepburn act having been interpreted to forbid the use of the Northern differential route by New Haven points unless the rate can be given alike to all New Haven territory, Mr. Mellen makes a contract with the Boston & Maine and the Canadian Pacific by which all New Haven points can use the cheaper Northern route via Montreal, notwithstanding that in most cases this gives the New Haven a shorter haul than it would get if the goods went over its own line to the Hudson by the direct and more expensive route.

Mr. Mellen reduces the rates on coal from New England ports to various interior points, at an annual loss to the road of about $500,000, which through no fault of his the barge companies presently proceed to offset by raising their coastwise rates correspondingly.

Merchants of Boston asking for an outside freight steamship line to New York, Mr. Mellen puts one on and invites the merchants to make the rates which they do.

Mr. Mellen introduces a liberal policy regarding improvements, concessions and other assistance to industrial establishments.

While other companies are resisting petitions for elimination of grade crossings, Mr. Mellen rarely does so, usually joining the petition, and often bringing it himself; with the result that the New Haven spends more than the Boston & Maine and the Boston & Albany combined for this purpose in Massachusetts.

The passenger trains on Mr. Mellen's road more than 10 minutes late are less than 5 per cent. of the whole —a record unsurpassed in the world.

Although the railroads of southern New England have always opposed the competition of a Cape Cod canal, Mr. Mellen favors it on the ground that it will help New England manufacturers; and the canal in now under construction.

In the face of bitter opposition to his plans, Mr. Mellen declines to employ the lobby.

Now if the traveler from Europe were to compare this record with what has been appearing in the newspapers, he would fall a-marveling.

"You accuse," he would exclaim, "of restraining trade a man who constructs new facilities, provides a choice of routes and promotes traffic. You cry outlaw at a man who regarding trolleys offers to do whatever the Attorney General asks, and regarding the Boston & Maine accepts disfranchisement of his stock for a year, though at the time advised by counsel that prohibition by the Legislature would be unconstitutional. You shout political corruption against a man who is not dealing in any way with the lobby and who says he will carry out his plans with the approval of the public or not at all. Is it impossible for Massachusetts to get together with a man like this? If not, there must be something wrong with Massachusetts."

And wherein would the traveler err? Mr. Mellen has the ability, the resources, and the disposition to bring inestimable benefits to New England and he has expressed entire willingness to conform his methods to the desires of the Massachusetts people. Then why load him with chains? Is it not barely possible that he will do more good at large than in limbo, both to morals and to business?

—The Boston Post, seems to think that Taft and Guild would look well and sound well.

Gram Makes Good At Technology

Carl W. Gram of Wollaston who won honors for Quincy High school during the years 1901-1905, has made a grand record at the Institute of Technology. He was unanimously elected on Tuesday, captain of the Technology track team for the coming year. The election was held at a meeting of the team after the annual picture.

Gram has run on the track team for three years. Last year he won the quarter in the dual event with Maine, and the 220 in the dual event with Brown. In the New England intercollegiate meet last year he broke the association record for the 220-yard dash, running the distance in 22 seconds flat.

At present Gram is president of the junior class. This year he was chairman of the junior prom committee, and he has held many other offices of importance at the institute. Karl D. Fernstrom, 1910, is manager of the team for next year.

Newsy Budget From Shipyard

The new scout cruiser Salem for the U. S. Navy left the yard of the Fore River Ship Building Company today for Provincetown on her builders' trials. On Thursday the Salem will be brought to Boston and will be dry-docked at the Charlestown Navy Yard to be cleaned and painted below the water line. On Saturday she will again be floated and preparations for her final government tests will begin. The exact dates of these tests have not yet been set, but they will probably be late next week. There will be the official standardization runs over the measured nautical mile course off Rockland, Me., the four-hours' run, during which she must maintain a speed of at least 24 knots an hour, the 24 hours' run at sea, the turning and the anchor and chain tests.

The cruiser left the Fore River works at noon and passed through the draw of the Quincy Point bridge at 12.30 o'clock. On board were the following Navy officers who will remain with her during the trials: Captain Albert L. Kay, commander; Lieut. Commander M. M. Taylor, executive officer; Lieut. Commander R. C. Bolmer, navigating officer; Lieut. H. H. Cage, chief engineer.

Capt. Evans was in the pilot house. Other representatives of the Fore River Co. on board were: Assistant Manager F. O. Wellington, Chief Engineer Edwards and S. T. MacQuarrie of President Bowles' office.

A Washington dispatch to the Herald says: Secretary Metcalf has decided that the big 100-ton floating derrick authorized by the recent naval appropriation bill shall be located at the Boston Navy Yard. This will mean a boom to naval business at that yard, especially in the repair of heavy guns. The derrick is to cost $250,000, and is rigged on a pontoon so as to be portable. The derrick has a lifting capacity of 100 tons and it can handle the big 85-ton guns like so many bales of hay. Specifications will be prepared by the bureau of yards and docks, and bids will be asked for Aug. 1. In all probability, in view of its future location, the principal bidders will be New England ship building concerns.

A Newport disptach of Tuesday to a Boston paper says: The submarine torpedo boat Octopus, built at Quincy, which is under-going her final acceptance tests off this port, returned here today after having been at sea for 36 hours. The board of inspection and survey announced that the Octopus, while on the surface, maintained a speed of from 10 1-2 to 11 knots an hour for two consecutive hours, and that she averaged 8 1-2 knots an hour for two hours while submerged the figures in both instances exceeding the contract requirements. The Octopus left port again later in the day for a final 24 hours run, during which she will undergo various speed tests.

Annual Reception Mothers' Association

The reception held Wednesday by the Mothers' Association was a great success, and great credit is due to the ones who worked so hard to make it such. Dr. E. N. Hardy had charge of the devotional exercises, and read a paper on "Child training," which was interesting and instructive, and gave very valuable thoughts to all. The ladies are always pleased to hear Mrs. Lawrance Sturtevant, and she sang, very sweetly, a devotional song and later in the afternoon, a group of songs. A children's entertainment was furnished under the direction of Mrs. Fred Willams and much praise is due her for the time and thought which she gave to it. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Henry Schulze, Mrs. E. E. Miller and Mrs. F. F. Prescott, who decorated the tables prettily with flowers.

A Pilgrimage From Worcester

Forty-seven members of Col. Timothy Bigelow Chapter, D. A. R., of Worcester, are in Quincy today on a pilgrimage to some of the historic places of the "City of Presidents."

The party left Worcester at 8.10, and arrived in Quincy at 9.49. They were met at the depot by a special car which took them to South Quincy where they visited the birthplaces of the two Presidents of the United States, John Adams and John Quincy Adams.

Then they climbed to the top of Penns hill, visiting the cairn erected there by Adams chapter, D. R. From there they visited the Adams shrine under the First church and then continued on to Squantum where a dinner was enjoyed and the Myles Standish cairn visited.

Board of Trade.

The June meeting of the Quincy Board of Trade was held Wednesday evening in the rooms of the association in the Adams building. The vacation season has arrived and there was little business on the calendar. The special committees on abolition of grade crossings, and water front improvements made brief reports, but both committees are at work.

Because of notice from the Telephone Company, the telephone at the rooms will become a pay station, the board giving a guarantee.

Members were urged to pay their dues promptly, and a committee appointed to see delinquents. Action relative to attendant at the rooms was postponed.

The Poet Priest Becomes a Pastor

Rev. Francis A. Cunningham, who for several years was a curate attached to St. John's church in this city, has been appointed pastor at Georgetown and South Groveland in this state. Rev. Fr. Cunningham has recently been attached to the parish of Belmont. His many friends in this city will learn with feelings of great satisfaction of his promotion for he had endeared himself to a large circle of acquaintances in this city.

Rev. Fr. Cunningham is a gifted and scholarly man and is known as the "poet priest." He has published many poetical works which have won admiration for his genius from all who have read them. When leaving Quincy in 1898 Rev. Fr. Cunningham published a little volume of poetic gems which were dedicated to various organizations in this city. One of them, "My Quincy Home," was as follows:

I love the lanes, the alleys and the streets
Of dear old Boston, and its busy roar,
And pretty Malden, with its cool retreats,
But I love Quincy more.

It is not for the glint of gathered gold,
For men are richer found in other parts;
It is not for the wealth of wood and wold,
Its industries or arts.

I love the grandeur of its granite heights,
Its shores beflecked by ocean's fleecy foam,
But more than all, my heart of hearts delights,
That Quincy is my home.

I love it with the love a father feels
Who gathers to his heart at eventide
His little ones, and fears the fate that steals
One jewel from his side.

With jealous love I love it from my soul,
No pang more rudely tears my loving heart
Than does the thought that I have reached the goal
And we must weep and part.

Another poem was entitled "The Old Mansion" and was dedicated "To the City of Presidents, the City of the Granite Hills, from which went forth noble men and fair women to be distinguished in the service of their country." This little poem was inspired by a view of the birthplaces of the presidents John and John Quincy Adams, and was as follows:

Keep a jealous guard upon it:
Let no hand destroy its walls,
Till it crumbles in the lap of years.
And timely honored falls.

Set your country's flag above it:
Let its blessed colors wave,
Like a sentinel protecting
A memorial of the brave.

For it stands a relic hoary
Of the valor of your sires.
When they kindled on its hearthstone
Revolutionary fires.

For it tendered to the nation,
When the nation yet was young,
The chief upon whose guidance,
The nation's glory hung

All its gables and foundations,
E'en the mossy well beside,
Every hall and every chamber
Should arouse a thrill of pride.

For the patriotic lessons
That it tells in quaint old way

Valuable Tests.

The list of theses for the degree of bachelor of science this year in the mechanical engineering course at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology contains many deeply interesting and valuable tests. As is usual the number of plant tests is large, but running more than ever this year to those on gas engine and producer plants and turbines.

Among these were three tests carried forward on turbine plants, one by C. H. Bangs of Braintree and S. F. Kedy on a 2000-kilowatt Curtis turbine at Quincy Point power station of the Old Colony Street Railway Company.

BOSTON BOAT

Houghs Neck People Anxious It Shall Make Regular trips

Houghs Neck has received the largest boom during the winter in history of the beach. Nearly two hundred new cottages have been built and many new business enterprises have been started. In fact the place is outstripping other seaside resorts in improvements and progress.

The only thing that will prevent Houghs Neck from being one of the most popular summer resorts on the South Shore will be the pulling off of the Boston boat. That boat must run; that is the verdict of the property holders and business people. Without the Boston boat Houghs Neck will receive a setback that will take years to recover. The owners of cottages will be inconvenienced and the business people will lose a lot of patronage that in years past came to Houghs Neck by the boat.

So much interest has been taken not only the property holders and business people, but by the summer residents that the Houghs Neck correspondent of the Daily Ledger has made a thorough investigation into the matter to find out what the real conditions will be if the boat is not run, and what losses the property holders have suffered by the rumor that has been afloat relative to the discontinuance of the Boston boat.

The Ledger man first interviewd the management. They say that the boat has been a losing proposition to them for seven years, but claim that the boat could be made profitable if the people of Houghs Neck would patronize it as they should. They claim that they can let all their property at the beach and realize 10 per cent. on everything.

Mr. Cavanaugh, the president of the company says, the company does not want to pull the Boston boat off. We realize what it would mean to Houghs Neck. The company has several offers for their landing, and also for the boat. I want the boat to run, but do not intend to dig into my pocket to run the boat like I and the other members of the board of directors have done in years past. The company is willing to meet the Houghs Neck people half way, and will consider any fair proposition. In fact we have a proposition that will be offered at the special meeting this evening.

M. J. Connors, general manager and treasurer of the company, says about the same thing. He is also anxious to have the boat run, but thinks the people of the Neck should help to make it pay at least the running expenses.

The Ledger man also saw many cottage owners. One man a wealthy man from Waltham, who built a cottage on Great Hill two years ago, on the strength of the running of the boat. This winter he induced three friends to lease houses on the hill, by telling them of the great ride to Boston on the boat. When he heard that the boat had been discontinued he was very disappointed, and threatens to sell his house and go to some other beach where he could go to Boston every morning to business by a boat.

C. D. Smith of Bird street leased one of his cottages this winter to a Boston man with the understanding that the boat would run. When the Boston party heard that the boat was not to run he refused to take the cottage.

This case is only one of many that were found all over the beach. The business men claim not only loss of trade but on perishable goods that are shipped from Boston over the road.

Tonight there will be a special meeting called by the steamboat service committee of the Houghs Neck associates at 8 o'clock at Sea street theatre. It behooves every one interested in the future welfare of Houghs Neck to be present.

Edward Galvin gave the scout cruiser Salem a gun salute from his cottage when it passed the Neck. The Quincy Yacht club gave one also. The Salem returned both salutes with three whistles.

The power boat Crescent can be chartered for fishing or pleasure parties. Apply to Walter Sturgis.

Opening Smoker Of the Q. Y. C.

The opening smoker of the Quincy Yacht club was held at the clubhouse Wednesday evening, and proved to be one of the best in recent years. A large number of the club members were present, also Commodore Bryant of the Squantum club, who just dropped in for a minute, but was prevailed upon by Councilman Whiton to change his mind and remain.

At the opening Commodore Robbins spoke of the recent death of Albert A. Hibbard, secretary of the house committee, and a vote was passed instructing the club secretary to draw resolutions of the regret and sympathy of the club, and forward them to the family of Mr. Hibbard.

Commodore Robbins also spoke of the racing season, of the renewed interest in racing this season, and predicted some good sport during the coming months.

Ed Kelley was then introduced who brought with him a troupe of his best entertainers. Cigars were passed and everybody made ready to enjoy the evening.

Hindo Sam, the magician, was the first on the program. He performed a number of wonderful tricks that were truly mystifying. He stood very near his audience yet for the life of them no one could fathom how he fooled them.

Kittie Nelson, recently from Providence, gave a number of popular airs such as "The Merry Widow," "Afraid to come home in the dark," etc., during the chorus of which all joined in.

Marie Ford, late of Paris, soprano solist and change artist, delighted the audience with her sweet toned voice and beautiful costumes.

Catherine Dixie, late of Keith circuit, sang several of her latest songs and was given an ovation.

The last number on the program was given by Visocchi Bros., novelty, musicians singing, and whistling comedians. Their instrument was the concertina, and it was a revelation to many the amount of music these instruments can produce in the hands of such artists. Their number was a rare treat.

Miss Florence Andrews presided at the piano during the intertainment, and added no little to its success.

At the conclusion of the entertainment all hands were called below, where coffee, crackers and cheese were served.

June Breakfast Posters.

Attractive, original designed and hand-sketched posters advertising the June breakfast at the First church Saturday morning have been placed in all of the store windows in City Square. The posters are the work of two well known young ladies and are works of art. No two of the designs are alike and the whole would form a valuable addition to some den.

Each poster has some attractive sentiment that immediately catches the eye. For instance, a charming maid in a merry widow hat has the sentiment, "Won't some one take me?" A bachelor hands in pocket and pipe in mouth says, "Haven't eaten anything for a week." Others read, "I am going to the;" "I will have to go;" "Every one goes;" "Keep out of the hot sun and go;" and the like. The picture on each poster being made to fit the sentiment, or rather the sentiment expressed fits the picture. All wind up with the words "May breakfast, June 6, from 11.30 to 2.30. It is understood that these posters will be for sale at the breakfast.

University Graduates.

Five Quincy young people were graduated on Wednesday from Boston University; in the College of Liberal Arts with the degree of A. B.,—Miss Helen D. Rhines, Miss Elizabeth Hallowell and Henry Houghton Schumacher; with the degree of L. B., Miss Rachel Grace Warshaw; from the School of Law, Henry Edward Teasdale. Nearly 5000 people, including several from Quincy, attended the commencement exercises held at Tremont Temple. There were 290 graduates.

A BOARD FOR CHELSEA

Experiment Likely to Be Watched With Great Interest

FIVE MEN ARE NOMINATED

City's Loss on Taxable Property In Fire-Stricken District Amounts to $5,479,400--Of Public Property Over $1,000,000 Was Destroyed

Boston, June 4.—Acting Governor Draper yesterday afternoon sent to the executive council the names of William E. McClintock of Chelsea, Abraham C. Ratshesky of this city, Mark Wilmarth of Malden, Alton E. Briggs of Chelsea and George H. Dunham of Chelsea as nominees for the newly-created Chelsea board of control, which is to take up the problems of governing and rebuilding the city, an experiment which is likely to be watched with great interest throughout the country.

Mr. McClintock is named as chairman for the term expiring the first Monday in January, 1913; Ratshesky and Wilmarth for the term expiring on the same day; Briggs for the term expiring on the first Monday in January, 1911, and Dunham for the term expiring on the first Monday in January, 1910.

To fill McClintock's place as chairman of the Massachusetts highway commission the acting governor nominated Harold Parker of Lancaster, at present a member of the commission, and Parker's place is filled by the nomination of William D. Sohier of Beverly.

Mr. McClintock resigned as chairman of the highway commission in order that he might take up the work on behalf of his city, as chairman of the city of Chelsea relief committee. McClintock is a practicing civil engineer. He was the city engineer of Chelsea for ten years and an alderman four years. He is now a member of the school board of Chelsea.

Figures given out by the Chelsea board of assessors yesterday afternoon show that the city's loss on taxable property in the four wards affected by the fire amounts to $5,479,400, and in addition to this the assessors report that the fire also destroyed non-taxable property worth $1,141,200 in these same wards. Work is now being done to obtain the totals for ward 5, which was not invaded by the conflagration.

As there is no reason to expect any noteworthy change either way in the case of ward 5, the losses given probably come pretty near the final figures for the entire city. It is possible, moreover, that the upper end of the city may show a slight increase, owing to the demand for real estate in that section.

The heaviest loss on taxable property is reported from ward 3, where the decrease is $1,818,450; after that come ward 1, with $1,473,500; ward 2, with $1,419,950, and ward 4, with $767,500 loss.

In the matter of non-taxable property ward 4 leads, having lost $386,800. Ward 3 comes next, with $378,500 decrease; ward 2, with $191,400, and ward 1 last, with a decrease of $184,500. The property on which no tax was assessable included schoolhouses, fire stations, city hall, Fitz public library, churches and synagogues.

Delayed in beginning business by the big fire of April 12, Chelsea saloons that ordinarily would have opened on May 1 were allowed to unlock their doors to customers for the first time yesterday. Thirteen opened, among them three hotels.

At the places in the down-town section business started with a rush. Revere has been provided for after the usual custom, by putting several saloons and a hotel near the boundary line, where they are fully as accessible to residents of that town as they are to Chelsea drinkers. Then, too, Lynn will find these same places convenient for some of its residents, that city being no license for the first time in several years.

Louisiana Delegates Not Instructed

Baton Rogue, La., June 4.—W. J. Bryan was endorsed for the presidency by the Democratic state convention here. It was decided, however, to send the Louisiana delegation to Denver uninstructed. Previously a resolution instructing the delegation to vote for Bryan "as long as his name remains before the convention" had been overwhelmingly voted down.

Pittsburg, June 4.—The automobile tour of Speaker Cannon and party has been abandoned. Speaker Cannon and Congressman Landis went west last night over the Pennsylvania railroad. In refusing to discuss politics, Speaker Cannon said: "I am willing to stand on the record of the last congress."

Specimen of Moroccan Warfare

Mequinez, June 4.—Mulai Hafid, the usurping Sultan of Morocco, has confiscated the wives of General Bagdani and his brother, and has informed them that the women will be sold unless submission is sent to him immediately.

Traffic Delayed by Floods

Helena, Mont., June 4.—Flood conditions throughout Montana are so bad that no trains have arrived at Helena over the Northern Pacific for several days in either direction. Great Northern trains are moving with delay.

CONVICTED OF FORGERY

Promoter Bailey Appeals From Sentence of Two Years In Prison

Worcester, Mass., June 4.—Wilford A. Bailey, well known in Boston and Worcester county as a promoter, was found guilty on one count of an indictment charging forgery by a jury in the superior criminal court here and was sentenced to serve two years in the house of correction. Bailey appealed to the supreme court and sentence was suspended. He was released on $5000 bonds.

Bailey was formerly manager of the Worcester and Southbridge street railway and other lines, which went into the hands of receivers several years ago. Since that time he has been in business for himself.

In a transaction between Bailey and O. O. Ware of Wilmington, Vt., Ware claimed that his name had been forged to two notes of $5000 each and Bailey was arrested.

Plucky Motorman's Effort Failed

Brockton, Mass., June 4.—James Dunn's infant son, less than 2 years old, was killed by an electric car in front of his home in Montello. The boy ran onto the track just as the car had started down hill. Motorman Stetson, finding that he could not stop the car in time, jumped from the platform and, running ahead, tried to drag the child out of danger. He was too late by a fraction of a second, the heavy car striking the boy just as Stetson seized him. The motorman escaped with a slight injury to his knee.

Alleged Conspiracy to Defraud

Boston, June 4.—George P. Bullard, president and treasurer of the Eastern Expanded Metal company of this city, was arrested upon his return from a fishing trip in Maine on a warrant charging conspiracy to defraud the city. It is the last arrest of those concerned in the so-called "Boston agreement," by which, it is claimed, the city was defrauded in its contracts by the combination of iron, steel and other firms.

Circus Lion Took a Stroll

Greenwich, Conn., June 4.—At the close of the afternoon performance of Washburn's circus here, a lion, the door of whose cage had in some way become unfastened, walked out of the cage and out of the tent into the crowd. The animal appeared to be more frightened than the people and was led back to its cage by an attache of the circus.

Octopus Exceeds Expectations

Newport, R. I., June 4.—The board of inspection, which has been here watching the trial of the submarine torpedo boat Octopus, left for Washington with a report that the craft had worked a great deal better than they expected, and that she more than exceeded her speed contract.

War Over Merger Measure

Boston, June 4.—The merger bill, which permits the New Haven road to take a couple of years to straighten out the tangle of its alleged illegal acts, was passed to a third reading in the senate by a vote to 12 to 25. Already the fight against the measure has begun in the house.

Bryan Men In Minority

Baltimore, June 4.—The Democratic state convention was held here and delegates to the national convention at Denver were elected and a platform adopted. The Bryan followers, who had been demanding half the delegates sent to Denver, count but four sure Bryan men among the sixteen delegates chosen. The platform promises the candidates named at Denver the "generous and loyal support of the thoroughly united Democracy of Maryland," but makes no suggestion as to who the candidates should be.

Thinks Lilley Should Keep Quiet

Chicago, June 4.—Congressman Boutelle, who was chairman of the house committee which conducted the submarine boat investigation, in replying to charges made against him by Representative Lilley, said that nothing would now be so becoming in Lilley as silence and nothing would be so much appreciated by his friends and relatives. "Before adjournment of congress Mr. Lilley had three months after the introduction of the resolution in which to express his views and suspicions," said Boutelle.

Bryan Ends Nebraska Tour

Omaha, June 4.—The week's speechmaking tour of W. J. Bryan through northern and western Nebraska ended with a rear-platform speech at Columbus and he arrived in Omaha last evening. Bryan made forty-two speeches and nearly that many informal talks since he left home last Thursday. In nearly every speech he pointed out what he regarded as the weakness of the currency measure passed by congress during its closing sessions.

Hanged Himself Before Workmen

Beatrice, Neb., June 4.—C. F. Wilber, a butcher, improvised a gallows in the presence of workmen and hanged himself in the building he formerly occupied as a store. He parried questions while attaching a rope to a ceiling hook and when attention was diverted, drew a noose over his head and leaped from his ladder. His neck was broken by a fall of seven feet. It is supposed he was demented.

Socialists In Prussian Diet

Berlin, June 4.—The diet elections were held throughout Prussia yesterday. The most noteworthy result is the election of five Socialist members, of which four were victorious in Berlin and the suburbs and the fifth in one of the Hanover districts. This is the first time that the Socialists evet elected a member of the diet.

Strike of Austrian Students

Vienna, June 4.—A strike involving nearly 20,000 students in Austrian universities and high schools has begun through the renewed activity of Dr. Wahrmund, professor of Catholic ecclesiastical law, whose speech in which he criticised the doctrines of the Roman Catholic church recently led to difficulties with the Vatican. Wahrmund resumed his anti-clerical lectures at Innsbruck university, but the clerical students there caused such disturbances that the university was closed. The liberal students at Innsbruck then called upon the non-clerical students of all the universities to organize a general strike until Wahrmund's academic freedom was respected.

Killed While Defending Son

New York, June 4.—Mrs. Caroline Campbell, aged 53, wife of Cornelius Campbell, a bricklayer, was stabbed to death at their home. The elder Campbell, it is said, quarreled with his son, 20 years old, when the latter chided him for making no apparent effort to obtain work. One blow from a butcher knife had inflicted a gash several inches long in the young man's forearm. When the knife was raised for the second time, Mrs. Campbell rushed in between the combatants and received the full force of the blow, the knife penetrating her breast, causing almost instant death.

A War Department Change

Washington, June 4.—John C. Schofield has been appointed assistant and chief clerk of the war department, to take effect July 1 next. Schofield has for some time been chief clerk of the war department. The new title, adding the word "assistant" created by congress, is interpreted as adding an additional secretary of war. In salary the change means a compensation of $4000 instead of $3000 a year to Schofield.

Denial of Plague Report

St. Thomas, D. W. I., June 4.—The report sent out from here Monday last that one fatal case of bubonic plague had been reported here and that there were two suspected cases is erroneous. There is no bubonic plague here.

NEWS IN BRIEF

The annual June exercises of the United States military academy are now under way at West Point, N. Y.

Ferdinand M. Swett, 76 years old, a ship carpenter, while at work on a bark at Portland, Me., fell into the hold of the vessel, fracturing his skull and causing death.

John I. Martin of St. Louis, sergeant-at-arms of the Democratic national convention, has arrived at Denver to remain until after the close of the convention.

President Frost, during commencement exercises at Berea college, Lexington, Ky., announced that a contribution of $50,000 had been made to Berea college school fund by an unknown easterner.

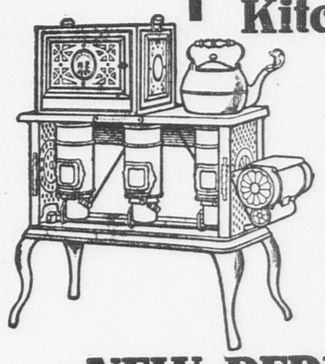

All of the yardmen of the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis railroad at Memphis have struck. In addition to the switchmen, the engineers and firemen in the yards are involved.

The mammoth Holland-American line steamer Rotterdam, of 25,000 tons, had a successful trial trip off Belfast in which she made 18 knots an hour.

The Norwegian bark Oskar, for Canada, is ashore near Start Point, Scotland, on a rocky bottom. She probably will be a wreck. Her crew have been saved.

George M. Jarvis, district superintendent of the Intercolonial railway, died suddenly at St. John from acute indigestion. He was 58 years old and had been forty years with the railroad.

Keep the Kitchen Cool

Why swelter over a glowing range in a stuffy kitchen, when a new Perfection Wick Blue Flame Oil Cook-Stove will do the family cooking without raising the temperature enough to be noticeable?

By putting a "New Perfection" in and allowing the range fire to go out, you may make this summer's kitchen work not only bearable, but actually a pleasure. The produces an intense heat under the kettle or in the oven, but does not radiate heat in all directions as a coal range does—hence is used with comfort on the hottest summer day. Made in three sizes, and warranted. If not with your dealer, write our nearest agency.

NEW PERFECTION

The Rayo Lamp comes as near lamp perfection as it's possible to get. Gives a clear, bright light that reaches the farthest corner of a good sized living-room. Well made throughout of nickeled brass; perfectly safe and very ornamental. Warranted in every particular. If not with your dealer, write our nearest agency.

QUINCY Y. M. C. A.

Fifteen Different Nationalities Represented

The object of this effort among young men and boys as has been stated, is to enlarge the possibilities in the lives of young men, physically, mentally, socially, and religiously and to stimulate clean and unselfish living and high motives. In many respects this year's work of the Y. M. C. A. in Quincy shows better results accomplished than in any year since the new building was opened three years ago.

As John V. Farwell, Jr., said at the Chicago Jubilee "We may raise many dollars, we may build many buildings, but we must never fail to remember that our supreme work is to touch the hearts and minds of young men that they may dedicate to God's service whatever wealth, power or ability He may give them." It has been our aim to do this in the work of the year which has just closed.

MEMBERSHIP.

In a community such as ours, cosmopolitan, changing and diversified, membership is a constant problem. We have met it, however, with considerable success. 653 different men and boys have been members during the twelve months ending April 30. The total bona-fide membership at that date was 448, a net increase of 24 over the preceding year. $2,847.83 was received from membership fees and other returns from members, or 33 percent of the entire budget. There are 305 members of the Senior department, and 143 of the Boys' department, a substantial increase of men and a slight decrease of boys. As will be observed, the personnel of the membership is constantly changing, both by removal from town, 51 having left previous to the time of "membership" expiration and failing through other reasons to renew.

We have received 234 new members and 214 renewals during the year. We have a fine body of men and boys connected with us, 80 percent of whom are receiving benefits through participation in privileges more or less regularly. Special efforts at various times during the year have been made to secure new members and to secure renewals, and a steady persistent effort is constantly maintained.

Following are some interesting statistics regarding the men and boys now members.

Number of different nationalities represented in Senior department, 15; in Boys' department 8, as follows: American 302, English 23, Scotch 39, Swedish 25, French 7, German 4, Welsh 3, Finnish 1, Italian 4, Irish 27, Canadian 4, Norwegian 2, Nova Scotia 2, Armenian 1, Greek 2.

Number of different religious denominations represented in Senior department, 12; in Boys' department, 10, as follows: Congregational 157, Baptist 43, Methodist 30, Episcopal 44, Presbyterian 33, Catholic 50, Unitarian 39, Universalist 14, Lutheran 21, Christadelphian 4, Church of New Jerusalem 1, Society of Friends 1, no preference 9.

Number of different occupations represented 61 as follows: Professional 29, Business Men 152, Mechanics 99, Students 16, Clerks 48, Grammar and High School Students 102.

Average age in Boys' department 14 1-4 years; in Men's department 25 3-8 years.

SOCIAL.

While the social side of the individual is not the most important of his make-up, social life enters into every department of Y. M. C. A. work, and may be said to be fundamental to the success of every phase of it. The young man who is away from home and the young man in search of companionship finds the Association building a most attractive social center, with its games, music, recreation rooms, organized and unorganized clubs, banquets, suppers, and spreads. There have been 37 social occasions for men, and 14 for boys, including suppers during the year. This does not include the number of "informals" about the fire-place and other good times in connection with the education and physical departments.

The Mandolin and Guitar club have kept their organization again this year, having played at various occasions for the association, and have filled creditably a schedule of public engagements. Seventy different men have lived in the dormitory, representing a great variety of occupations and coming from many distant countries and states.

PHYSICAL.

This department has been under the able direction this year of Physical Director G. S. Maxwell, who will be with us another year. In most associations this is the most popular department of the entire work; it is so here with the boys, and is fast becoming so with the men. Seventeen classes were held each week from October to May, for young men, business, and professional men, employed boys, students and juniors. The total attendance upon all classes was 5,664, and 2,000 more upon other privileges such as bowling alleys and athletic meets. A leader's corps of ten men and sixteen boys was trained and used in class work. The bowling alleys have come in for their share of the interest; a fine team tournament was run through the winter with marked success.

Basket ball teams and athletic teams have represented the association creditably in 55 different competitive events. Four exhibitions have been held showing the kind of work which is being done, and have aroused much interest. Additional trophies have been won and a large number of prize ribbons and medals have been won by individual members. One of the "star" events of the year was the boys' athletic meet held in March in which some 80 boys competed, representing eight different associations; the trophy went to Cambridge this time by a fraction of a point.

EDUCATIONAL.

The educational committee laid out a somewhat larger scheme than on previous years and have come through with a better and more systematic work. Effort was made to reach non-English speaking men but without apparent success. Reading rooms containing 52 different periodicals have been maintained and have been constantly used. A literary and debating society was conducted with success with the older boys, and four practical talks were held for men, averaging 70 in attendance. The evening class work in industrial subjects has been fully up to the previous years' standards, and has provided supplementary education for 82 different young men. Eleven different classes have been maintained, taught by seven different teachers. The total attendance has been 1,721 upon 175 different lesson periods, the average attendance upon all classes for the year was 74 percent. The money received from the students meets the cost of advertising and salaries of teachers. Two exhibitions of the work have been held during the year showing the variety and excellence of the work done.

RELIGIOUS.

This phase of the work is fundamental; all men are religious by nature, and need to have their lives ordered and regulated by practical, unselfish, religious principles as seen in Jesus Christ. Influences here are immensurable and are not capable of being tabulated. We believe, howeve, that many lives have been influenced to cleaner and more manly living and others have made a distinct stand for Christ and have joined churches. There have been 22 different meetings for men and 99 sessions of Bible classes for 75 different men and boys; this is exclusive of the shop meeting work which was only held through three months of the year. Bible Study rally day was observed in October and the week of prayer in November was observed with a social song and prayer service.

BOYS' DEPARTMENT.

This department has touched more than 212 boys in the membership this year. It has been under the able leadership of Mr. J. A. Goodhue, and has shown marked gain. The department numbers 145—44 intermediates, 64 juniors ,and 37 employed boys. An all-round work has been in operation for these boys conducted on scientific lines. Statistics of much of the work of this department has been given in connection with the men's work, little being left to speak of here. The boys have enjoyed outings, "hikes" and educational trips. We were ably represented by ten picked fellows at the State Conference. The opportunities to learn to be leaders, of coming in contact with a christian organization and christian leaders, together with the time spent in wholesome fun has had a marked effect upon many of these plastic young lives.

PROPERTY AND INCOME.

The property is now valued at $42,000. There is a mortgage of $15,000 and a temporary building loan of $1,053.43—incurred in enlargement for boys,—less $91.57 on hand. The plant and equipment are kept in good repair, and insurance for $32,000 is carried on building and contents.

The work for the year has been kept well within the budget which was figured at $9,531.67, having spent $8,911.46. The business depression and money stringency has naturally affected our income in every line, as it has all similar organizations, receipts from memberships have fallen off and the income from contributions is materially lessened. Though our friends have given loyally and the expenses have been kept at the lowest possible minimum, we are obliged to show a deficit ($874.89) for the first time since the new building was opened. We have, however, unpaid pledges and over due membership fees which are collectable amounting to $400.

The directors desire to thank all the loyal friends including the Women's Auxiliary, who have helped to make the work possible by their generous gifts and bespeak their future confidence and support.

Following is the detailed report of receipts and expenses for the year ending April 30, 1908.

The Observations In the Daily Walk

Capt. Wilson Hammond of Billings street has been confined to the house by illness this week.

Rev. L. H. Bugbee, D. D., of St. Marks church, Brookline, will preach at the Wollaston Methodist church on Sunday at 7 P. M.

Representative Coombs voted to pass the bill to repeal the police listing act for Boston over the veto of Acting Governor Draper.

The house on Botolph street owned by J. K. Sterling has been sold to his son, C. E. Sterling of Boston who has moved in for permanent occupancy.

Quincy is thought to meet the requirements of the new law relative to municipal playgrounds. It is said that Weymouth and Hyde Park do not.

Sarafino Sylvester was brought into court this morning upon complaint of Truant Officer Charles H. Johnson, for neglecting to send her child to school. She was fined $15.

Quincy will not get an allotment from the State Highway commission this year, but $6,000 will be expended in Weymouth, $6,000 in Sharon and $6,700 in Canton, a total of $17,700 for the county.

It is rumored that Mrs. Joseph C. Morse has sold her estate on Goffe street to H. G. Smith general manager of the Fore River Shipbuilding Company, and that she will build on another location on Presidents hill.

Tomorrow will be tree day at Wellesley college, and on Saturday Z. A. masque. June 11 will be invitation night at the senior play and June 13 invitation night at the Shakespeare play.

Senator Jenney voted with the majority on Wednesday in favor of passing the Boston & Maine, New Haven merger bill to a third reading. The vote was yes, 25; no, 12. The bill comes up again today on a motion to reconsider.

Instead of rolling whoop in Atlantic, the children seem to carry the whoop in their throats this spring. Coughing in bunches is quite the fashion just at present for misery likes company and two or three children who feel a spell coming on are apt to cough it out together.

Nearly 150 friends from all parts of Norfolk county and from Boston visited the Pond Home at Pondville on Wednesday. Beside $250 in money contributions, donations of useful articles and food were received. This was additional to the proceeds probably nearly $100, realized from the various sales tables.

Hancock Cemetery Badly Neglected

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

Many have been the remarks of late, upon the condition of the old Hancock cemetery. Even upon Memorial day, the grass was uncut, the paths overgrown with weeds, old papers and other rubbish strewn about, ahd an all pervading air of neglect over all. Why should this be? It is without doubt not sanitary to allow burials there, but as this is the one historic burial place in the city, it would be well to give it reasonable care.

It has been stated, that within a short time there has been made a bequest "the income of which is to be devoted to the care of the Hancock cemetery in Quincy.

What has been done with it? If one dollar has been used for that purpose, the result is not noticeable. It was even suggested last year, that as the iron fence needed repairs, it would better be removed. Probably the newer residents and perhaps those of the present generation are not aware that the iron fence was bought over sixty years ago, with the proceeds of a fair given by the women of Quincy, that the little God's acre where rested their people, should at least be decent.

Also that the texts above the gateways were selected by the lamented poet and scholar, the Rev. William Parsons Lunt, of First church. Why destroy that which their hands wrought?

Here is the grave of the one for whom the town was named, a name which the city of Quincy should feel honored to bear. Upon these crumbling stones are carved the names of men whose descendants have been our most honored citizens. Men who have been a power in the town, in the state and in the nation. In this now neglected spot, rests all that is mortal of men who fought to make the nation, and of men who fought to save it.

When strangers come to visit our "shrines" (and teey often do) as they leave the tomb of the Presidents, they do not visit the beautiful city of the dead, where rest the loved of this generation, but they cross the street to the little old graveyard "Where sleeps the rude forefathers of the hamlet." What must they think as they trail through the tall grass and push aside the weeds to read the half-effaced inscriptions!

Some of this destruction is the work of Time; but his hand might be stayed a little and not helped.

At present it is doubted, if from Concord to Plymouth there is another spot more neglected, than the little old Hancock cemetery in the very heart of "Ancient and Historic Quincy."

Let us hope, let us pray, that for the credit of the city, there may soon be an improvement in this respect.

A Native.

Dr. Everett's Sermon.

Editors Daily Ledger:

The sermon preached last Sunday by Dr. William Everett in the First church was an expression of his deepest convictions and maturest thought on a question that is vital to church people. That it was the best sermon he ever preached was a common comment. Be that as it may, it was an able sermon and one that should be placed within reach of more people than the handful who heard it. It has occurred to the writer that the church ought to obtain the manuscript from the doctor and publish it in full in the Ledger, or in pamphlet form for free distribution. The cost would probably not be great and it would be money well invested. The writer will cheerfully contribute his mite toward a fund for such a purpose, and there isn't any doubt that many others would do likewise.

Don't Cut the Trees.

For utting down a large elm tree in front of his house, Michael Costello of Holworthy street, Cambridge, was recently fined $20 by Judge Almy in the district court. Costello said that he thought it was his privilege to do as he pleased with trees in front of his house.

Fifty Dollar Fine.

George Donahue of Brockton was called upon in the district court this morning to contribute $50, for refusing to stop his automobile at Milton when called upon by Officer Davis of the Metropolitan police. Officer Davis testified that on June 2 Donahue went through Milton at a 40-mile clip, and that he followed him on a motor cycle. He followed him for three miles before he overtook him. He then called upon Donahue to stop. Instead of complying with the request, Donahue put on more power and got away. He was arraigned upon two complaints, one for refusing to stop, and a second for exceeding the speed limit. He was fined $50 on the first complaint. The second was placed on file.

HOLM LEA BAZAR.

Several Quincy people are interested in the charity bazar to be given at the Sargent place Holm Lea, Brookline on Saturday. Holm Lea is famous for the size and variety of its trees, shrubberies, expanse of lawn, meadows, charming vistas and natural woods. It is considered the best specimen of landscape gardening in America. Is also remarkable because it is almost in the heart of a large city, yet cattle graze peacefully and it is typically country and restful. The rhododendrons and azalias are now in full bloom and at their best. The collection is the oldest and best in the world, many of the plants being over fifty years old.

The bazaar is held for the benefit of the Welcome House Industrial home and the admission fee to the grounds has been placed at a low figure so that every one may enjoy the beautiful estate and at the same time help a worthy cause. The hours are ten until eight o'clock. Carriages and automobiles will enter on Perkins street, Jamaica Plain, and space will be reserved for the carriages and autos. Visitors on foot can enter from Chestnut street and Chestnut place, Brookline and Perkins street and Olmstead place, Jamaica Plain. Boston & Albany trains to Brookline Hills, or street and elevated cars run conveniently.

Booths of all sorts will be conveniently placed for the sale of most everything and there will also be a cafe chantant with special features by well known young society people. Side shows will abound and there will be music by the First Corps Cadet band.

Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer, Mrs. Charles F. Adams, 2d, Mrs. F. Russell Nourse, Miss Eleanor Quincy, Mrs. Robert Homans and others connected with Quincy are prominent in the bazaar.

If stormy Saturday the bazaar will be held first fair day next week.

Builders Trial Of Cruiser Salem

The scout cruiser Salem, built at Quincy, had a very successful builders' trial on Wednesday. She left the Fore River at 12.30, and steamed to the government course off Provincetown.

The object of the trial was chiefly to test her machinery. She is the first vessel of her kind to be equipped with the Curtis type of turbine engine, and her trials will be watched with interest.

Another reason for watching her is the fact that she will attempt to beat the record of the cruiser Chester, which made a record of 26.52 knots on her four-hours' run.

The trial Wednesday was very successful and her builders are confident she will develop great speed. She will go into dry dock at Charlestown today to have her bottom scraped and painted.

Saturday she will be floated from the dry dock, and final preparations made to get her ready for her government trials which will probably be held the latter part of next week.

The contract for the Salem calls for a speed of 25 knots per hour, which is greater than any other cruiser of the United States navy.

Mrs. Ellen Griffin.

The funeral of Mrs. Ellen Griffin, widow of Michael Griffin, was held this morning from St. John's church and was largely attended. A solemn high mass was celebrated with Rev. John J. Coan as celebrant, Rev. Julian E. Johnstone as deacon, and Rev. John J. Casey as sub-deacon. Miss Mary McConarty presided at the organ, and Schmidt's mass was sung. There were many beautiful flowers. The burial was at St. Mary's cemetery. The bearers were Daniel J. Ford, Dennis Ford, Timothy J. Carey, Michael T. Sullivan, Daniel Kelliher and Michael Burns.

Robbed at Neponset.

John J. Rooney of Pittsburg, supposed to be employed at the Fore River shipyard, was held up on Neponset avenue, Neponset, at midnight. He was beaten about the head and robbed of $22 in money. The three men who did the job disappeared across the line into Quincy.

Shortly after Officer Duffy held up three men and questioned them as to the reason for being out. Half an hour later he received word from Sergt. Barry to look out for three men who answered the description of the three he had held up. It was too late, however, for the men had gone on toward City Square.

A $25,000,000 Contract For Rails

Pittsburg, June 4.—It is said here that the United States Steel corporation is negotiating with the Russian government to provide rails for relaying practically the entire track of the Siberian railway and that probably more than 1,000,000 tons of rails will be required for the purpose. The value of such a contract would be about $25,000,000.

Alleged Fraud In Prize Contests

St. Paul, June 4.—A federal grand jury returned three indictments against James L. The alleged fraudulent schemes consist of puzzles and prize contests conducted in his papers.

Newsy Budget From Shipyard

The Des Moines has sailed from Port Lenox for Vera Crutz. The Cuttlefish and Viper have arrived at New York.

The working of the ship subsidy in other countries is shown by a New York dispatch to the Herald: The turbine steamers Lusitania and Mauretania have earned for the Cunard Steamship Company an annual subsidy of $750,000 per year, according to a cable message from Liverpool, received Tuesday by the New York representatives of the Cunard line. The message notified the New York office of the Cunard line that the British government announced in Parliament on Monday that the two great steamers had fulfilled all conditions of the subsidy agreement. The conditions of the agreement were that the ship should make 24 1-2 knots per hour for a transatlantic round trip. The Mauretania has averaged 24.86 knots per hour westbound and 24.42 east-bound. The Lusitania has averaged 24.83 westbound and 23.62 east-bound.

The interest of Germany in shipbuilding is shown in the following cable of June 3 from Berlin to the Transcript: Emperor William and the empress, accompanied by King Gustave and Queen Victoria of Sweden, opened the shipbuilding exposition in this city today in the presence of the entire diplomatic corps. Emperor William's exhibit consists of a large collection of gold and silver models representing every kind of craft, from the vessels of the Vikings to the most modern yachts and warships. The German Naval Department sent in models of war ships with their armaments complete, and the transatlantic steamship companies exhibit a series of models of the latest state-rooms and cabins. The Government shows also a number of lighthouses, etc.

The Quincy built warships did not show up as well as expected in the recent target practice. The battleship trophy went to the Maryland, while the star ships are the Illinois, Kentucky, Virginia, Louisiana, Alabama, Connecticut and Tennessee. The Vermont stood 9th, the Rhode Island 13th, and the New Jersey 16th, in the list of 21 battleships. The cruiser trophy went to the Albany, and the star cruisers are the St. Louis and Charleston. The Des Moines was at the bottom of the list of twelve cruisers. The gunboat trophy went to the Wilmington with the Yankton as the star ship. The torpedo boat destroyer trophy went to the Perry. The Lawrence stood fifth in the class of eleven and the Macdonough is not reported.

TRAVELLING CRANE

Fulfills All Tests for the Shipment of Granite By Rail

The 40-ton travelling crane at the new freight yard at South Quincy was thoroughly tried out Thursday afternoon and worked to perfection. The crane is operated by electricity the three-phase system being used. Along the west side are three trolley wires suspended from brackets on poles. An arm from the crane takes the current from these wires to the machinery which operates the crane. This machinery consists of a series of rheostats which are located in a little house in which the operator stands.

The operator by simply throwing a lever can operate the small hoist, cause the small carriage to move east or west, or the crane itself to move along the track which runs the whole length of the yard. It will readily be seen, therefore, that a team may drive into the yard and the block of granite taken from it and moved anywhere desired, without any back-breaking work on the part of anyone.

Supt. Martin, Engineer Sampson and Assistant Engineer Clark of the Boston division of the New Haven road were present Thursday afternoon, and also J. I. Condon of Quincy who made the electrical connections. Everything about the crane was operated for several hours and thoroughly tested, even to hoisting a forty ton load of steel, which was handled as easily as though it was a block of granite weighing but a hundred pounds.

The crane will be tried out every day until the man who is to run it becomes familiar with it, when it will be put into service. There are now two spur tracks running into the yard, but ample room for more if they are desired.

This powerful crane will greatly facilitate the handling of granite to be shipped from Quincy, not only doing the work easier, but expediting business and saving in time and cost. It means much to our granite industry.

But of all the worthy objects for which this lecture has been given, there never was a more genuine one than that organization for the benefit of which he gives "Historic Quincy" tonight, namely, The Fresh Air Camp Association of Weymouth and Quincy.

WILL RETIRE

The Old Firm of McGilvray & Jones Going Out of Business Soon

Frederick L. Jones, the well known South Quincy granite manufacturer, retires from active business this month. Mr. Jones began cutting stone, as it was then called, in 1860, and he has been at the business ever since, excepting the time when he laid aside his granite tools and shouldering a musket, fought a good fight for the preservation of the Union.

In June, 1878, Mr. Jones associated himself with James McGilvray under the firm name of McGilvray & Jones, for the manufacture of granite. For thirty years this firm has been in business and during that time some of the largest and most elaborate and costly granite monuments ever cut in Quincy have gone forth from their yard.

Mr. Jones learned his trade as a granite cutter of the Mitchell Granite Company and it was his pleasure upon the return from the Civil war to cut the shaft for the Soldiers' Monument dedicated in Mount Wollaston cemetery as early as June 25, 1868, by the town of Quincy.

Among the latest large jobs of the firm might be mentioned the two large fountains that are now being erected on the estate of John D. Rockefeller in New York, and the very elaborate granite memorial recently erected to Mark Hanna.

McGilvray & Jones have always been looked upon as one of the solid firms of Quincy, and their reputation for fair dealing and honesty has never been questioned. Having worked themselves at the trade, they knew what the lot of a granite cutter was, and the feelings between them and their men has always been of the most friendly kind.

Mr. Jones has been prominent in city affairs. He was a member of the first City Council, and later served on the board of Sewerage Commissioners. He was at one time the Republican candidate for Mayor in a triangular fight, and has been urged to allow the use of his name in other years without avail. He was born in England, Jan. 3, 1846, but came to Quincy about 1860. He is a past master of Rural lodge of Masons.

Some few weeks ago Mr. McGilvray sold his interest in the business to Mr. Jones and retired to private life. Now Mr. Jones thinks he has had enough, and he will also give up business. He will sell his tools, etc., at auction in a few days. The site now occupied by his plant will be occupied by F. H. Crane & Sons.

June Weddings Of Local Interest

There was a pretty church wedding on Monday evening at the Baptist church, Weymouth, when Miss Vira-May Bates, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander K. Bates, became the bride of Edward Boyd Stewart of Reading. Palms, potted plants and cut flowers were used as decorations. Miss Helen L. Sulis at the organ played while the guests were gathering and at eight o'clock to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march the bridal procession entered the church.

The ushers came first. They were Winthrop N. Burgess, Homer Morrison, Henry H. Kinsley of Reading; Leonard G. Nichols, George Snyder, Ernest Bradeen, A. Otis Anderson of Boston and Charles H. Gutterson of Wollaston. The bridesmaids were Miss Helen E. Stewart, sister of the groom and Miss Nellie E. Hollis of Weymouth. Miss Mila Gertrude Bates of Quincy was maid of honor. The bride was escorted by her brother, J. Edward Bates and was met at the altar by the groom and his best man Maurice Potter of Wakefield. Rev. Frank B. Cressey, pastor of the church solemnized the marriage.

Following the ceremony an informal reception was held at the church, the maid of honor and best man assisting in receiving.

Besides a jeweled necklace to his bride the groom presented his ushers with gloves and neckties and the bride gave her attendants gold pearl pins and gloves.

Mr. and Mrs. Stewart left that evening on an automobile trip, destination unknown, and upon their return will be at home Tuesdays during July and August at 52 Bluff road, North Weymouth.

Butman—Jones.

At the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Walter F. Jones, 98 Beach street, Wollaston, on Thursday evening, their daughter, Miss Marion B. Jones, and Mr. Frederick C. Butman of Holbrook were united in marriage by Rev. Edward A. Chase of the Wollaston Congregational church. The bride was given away by her father. The maid of honor was Miss Frances W. Jones, sister of the bride, and the best man, Mr. William F. Barnard of Holbrook. A reception followed the ceremony. The wedding trip will include a visit to Washington, D. C., and the future home of Mr. and Mrs. Butman will be on Union street, Holbrook.

Young—Packard.

On Thursday Mr. Sherburne P. Young of Braintree and Miss Hattie May Packard of Brockton were united in marriage by Dr. Edwin N. Hardy at the parsonage on Foster street. After a wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Young will begin their domestic life at 44 Forest avenue, Brockton, where they have furnished a very cosy home. Mr. Young is well known in Quincy and Braintree and Mrs. Young has a host of friends in Brockton.

A popularity contest for the most popular yachtsman will be inaugurated by the Daily Ledger next Monday.

Guarantee Wanted By Boat Company

One of the largest crowd of men that ever attended a meeting turned out for the special meeting of the steamboat service committee of the Houghs Neck Association, held in the Sea Street Theatre on Thursday evening. Every seat in the large hall was taken and many were forced to stand.

The meeting was opened by Henry W. French, who explained to the members about the street lights and asked the members to step up and sign a petition to the Mayor requesting that the appropriation for street lights be expended for gas street lights.

The gas question was quickly settled and Mr. French turned the meeting over to Captain Oliver G. Fosdick chairman of the steamboat service committee. Captain Fosdick went over the work of the committee and asked the members to get right down to business. The secretary made a report of the number of shares of stock subscribed.

M. J. Connors, treasurer of the company, made the following statement: We have considered the proposition made by A. F. Baird at the last meeting, his proposition was to have us issue two hundred books of tickets, each book to contain two hundred tickets, to be good only the season of 1908. Last year the boat carried 33,000 passengers and received $4,650, an average fare of 14 cents. Now Mr. Baird is asking us to give 40,000 tickets for $3,000. This would be a very bad plan.

William Cavanaugh, president of the company, said: The proposition of Mr. Baird cannot be accepted by the company. I heard that there was a man in Houghs Neck that had plenty of sand and he was going to build a wharf on some land of his near Nut Island and run a boat to Boston. That would take too much time. The steamboat company will give that man the right to land at our wharf for $100, a dollar a day, that is the cheapest rent I know for a wharf. The board of directors met the other evening, they do not want us to sell any stock even for $25 a share.

I will make the following proposition on behalf of the company. If the Houghs Neck associates will get $2,000 cash, and deposit that amount in any bank as a guarantee against loss, the boat will run. Take for an example, if the company at the end of the season runs behind $500, it gets $500 of that $2,000 or if it runs behind $2,000 or more the company will get the $2,000, and if the boat meets the running expenses, the money will be returned to the subscribers of the money. The boat costs the company $77 a day; that amount includes everything.

John P. Moses, treasurer of the Colonial Amusement company, and one of the largest property holders at the Neck, made a lengthy speech, going over all the ground, and appealed to those present to do something to get the boat to run. Mr. Moses made a motion to have a committee of ten appointed by the chair to canvass the beach and see if the $2,000 could be collected.

At eleven the meeting was adjourned without action.

The power boat Crescent can be chartered for fishing or pleasure parties. Apply to Walter Sturgis.

Missionary Service.

Sunday evening at the Point church the 7.30 service will be in charge of the Missionary society of the parish. The president of the society has secured as the speaker of the evening the Rev. Mr. Lilliback, who is by trade a stone cutter, being engaged in that business for several years. But upon his conversion, he decided to study for the Christian ministry, so he graduated from Lay college and has become a successful worker among his own people at Revere, Maynard and Quincy. Music will be furnished by a Finnish delegation, playing their stringed instruments and singing in their native tongue to sweet songs of their fatherland.

Just Jotted Down By Ledger Men

Rev. J. M. Adams will preach at the Wollaston Unitarian church Sunday morning.

The graduation of the grammar schools of the city will be held Friday, June 19, and the graduation of the High school Wednesday, June 24. Only nine more days of school for all grades below the High school.

Quincy Point is fast becoming a pretty place. Houses are being repaired, improved and painted; lawns are being well kept, trimmed and tended; several streets are being straightened and repaired. The foliage is beautiful.

Quincy bay has been a beautiful sight the past week, dotted with scores of sailboats. Barrow's boat yard at the foot of River street, Hanley's on Germantown shore and Baker's Basin at the Point, are nearly emptied of their craft, most every boat having been launched.

Superintendent Charles H. Johnson has prepared an interesting order of service for the annual floral festival at the Unitarian church on Sunday at 10.30 A. M. It will include a processional, anthems, songs, carols and solos, scriptural and responsive readings, address by pastor, presentation of diplomas to Sunday school pupils, a service of baptism and a memorial service. The school now has an enrollment of over 200.

NOT SURE FOR TAFT

Claims of Nomination on the First Ballot Are Disputed

ANTIS HAVE POOLED ISSUES

Much Will Depend Upon Settlement of Unusually Large Number of Contests For Seats--An Exhibition of Bitterness Is Expected

Chicago, June 5.—Political activity has commenced in earnest around the Auditorium and the Auditorium Annex, and the Coliseum, where the Republican national convention is soon to be held. The Cannon headquarters have permanently opened in the Auditorium, and the announcement is made by a number of the politicians friendly to candidates other than William H. Taft that Foraker headquarters will be opened very soon in the Great Northern hotel.

Charles P. Taft of Cincinnati, brother of the secretary of war, is in Chicago and announces that he expects the secretary to be nominated without difficulty on the first ballot.

Vice presidential gossip is prominent for the first time, the names of Senator Dolliver of Iowa and James S. Sherman of New York being mentioned. John H. Hammond, the mining engineer, is also talked of.

At the headquarters of Joseph G. Cannon it is declared that the estimates of strength made by the Taft people are largely overdrawn, and it is asserted that the Illinois candidate will not only have more strength than has been generally credited to him, but that the Taft people will not be able to show more than 350 votes on the first ballot.

The full Republican national committee will begin today the hearings on which will be determined the contests involving 229 seats in the convention. The number of contests filed is so large that the settlement easily has become the most important of the pre-convention proceedings.

The nomination of the Republican candidate for the presidency hinges absolutely upon the decision of the members of the national committee and the subsequent approval of that decision by the credentials committee of the convention. Half of the contests decided in favor of Mr. Taft would result in his winning on the first ballot, while failure to capture this number unquestionably would put the nomination in doubt.

Realizing the necessity of keeping a majority of the contested delegates out of the Taft column, the representatives of other candidates have pooled issues in most of the cases and the proceedings therefore largely will be resolved into a Taft and anti-Taft controversy.

If the program mapped out by National Chairman New to govern the proceedings of the committee in hearing the contests is carried out, little opportunity for fine arguments or oratorical effort will be presented. This program will provide for daily meetings to begin at 10 a. m. and continue until 6 p. m., without recess for luncheon. Thirty minutes for each side will be allowed in state contests, involving the seating of four delegates-at-large and their alternates in each case. There are eleven such contests. Fifteen minutes on each side are to be allowed in the argument of each of the district contests.

Chairman New estimates that if this schedule is followed and no delays result, it will require 114 hours to dispose of the contests, without taking into consideration the time required for deliberations of the committee. Of course, there are some states where the issues in some of the districts are identical with the contentions over the delegates-at-large, and some time, therefore, may be saved in discussion of such cases.

It is not likely that the committee will be able to dispose of more than the Alabama contests today. These are regarded as the pivotal cases in the entire controversy, and an exhibition of bitterness is anticipated by the committee over their settlement. All of the nine districts in the state are contested as well as the four delegates-at-large. The disputes are complicated by all sorts of factional differences, and their importance is further increased by the fact that Alabama comes first in the roll of states. The issue in the state and that of the various districts are identical.

There are two factions in Alabama Republican politics at the present time and both have sent complete sets of delegates, involving twenty-two seats in the convention. One of these is advocated by Julius W. Davidson and National Committeeman Scott and the other by State Chairman Thompson. The Thompson delegates are instructed for Taft and the Davidson-Scott delegates are not instructed at all. Outside of the merits of the case, it is not known what effect the courtesy rule of members of the national committee standing by one of their own membership may have on the vote.

Ryan Did Not Help Bryan

Lincoln, Neb., June 5.—In a statement given last night to The Associated Press, William J. Bryan replied to an article appearing a week ago in a New York newspaper charging that Bryan was the beneficiary of a campaign contribution made by Thomas F. Ryan. Bryan says that Chairman Allen of the Democratic state committee and Mr. Dahlman, Nebraska member of the national Democratic committee, have already denied the charges and stated that the only money received came from the national committee. Bryan adds that if Ryan contributed to the Nebraska campaign it was not with his knowledge or consent. He says he is not willing to be, in the slightest degree, obligated to any favor-seeking corporation.

Johnson Still In the Fight

Chicago, June 5.—Governor Johnson of Minnesota has arrived in Chicago. Discussing political conditions, he said: "I believe that the Denver convention will be a deliberate body and that nobody has a sufficient number of delegates to assure a nomination. I regard the conditions as favorable for Democratic success if the right man is named and the right sort of a platform made. Nothing in recent developments has changed my attitude, and I am still a candidate for the nomination."

Close Contest In Georgia

Atlanta, June 5.—With both Governor Hoke Smith and Joseph M. Brown claiming victory in the Georgia state primary, the returns are coming in slowly. The Brown managers claim the nomination, which is equivalent to election, by from 25,000 to 40,000. Smith's managers, however, do not concede Brown's election and declare that the full returns will be necessary to determine the result.

Close Congressional Fight

Des Moines, June 5.—On the face of the unofficial count Congressman Hull was nominated for re-election by the Republicans in Tuesday's primaries over Judge Prouty, but Prouty says that an official count will give him a majority of twenty-six or more. The returns give Hull a majority of thirty-one.

Disappeared In Mountains

Bristol, Va., June 5.—A report from Wise county, Va., says that W. F. Kelly, superintendent of a coal mining company, mysteriously disappeared in the Black mountains a week ago and searching parties have not succeeded in locating him. Kelly is the fourth person since Edward L. Wentz, the young Philadelphia millionaire, to disappear in these mountains. None of the others have been heard from. Though a reward of $150,000 was offered for Wentz' body, it was six months before his fate was known. His body was found riddled with bullets.

Searched Italians For Weapons

New York, June 5.—Every Italian who approached the doors of the county court or supreme court in Brooklyn yesterday was searched by police for weapons or bombs. A warning had reached the police that an attempt would be made to rescue a prisoner, shoot a judge or dynamite a courtroom yesterday, and as Judges Fawcett and Dike were hearing Italian criminal cases, precautions were taken to protect them. No weapons or bombs were found, nor was any outrage attempted.

Esperanto For Good Templars

Washington, June 5.—The introduction of Esperanto, "the world language," into the course of study of the Order of Good Templars was decided upon by the delegates at the international convention of that organization. This was deemed advisable because of the fact that after each address is made in English to the convention, interpreters have to be employed to explain to the delegates from foreign countries the purport of what was said.

Soldiers Maltreated by Officers

Berlin, June 5.—Eight non-commissioned officers of the guard artillery regiment have been sentenced to terms of imprisonment varying from two weeks to fifteen months for the maltreatment of subordinates. There were no fewer than 600 counts in the charges against Sergeant Thamm, who freely used horsewhips and bit chains upon his victims and forced them to run the gauntlet between two lines of older soldiers.

Landslide Maroons Travelers

Helena, Mont., June 5.—A landslide at Whitefish has stalled nine Northern Pacific trains which came in Wednesday night and early yesterday and started west on the Great Northern tracks. Several hundred passengers are on the trains, and it is said there is small prospect to get by the landslide inside of forty-eight hours. Great Northern tracks are washed out both north and south of Helena.

Oliver Belmont Perhaps Dying

New York, June 5.—With his family summoned to his bedside, Oliver H. P. Belmont is hovering between life and death at his country home near Hempstead, L. I. Following an operation for appendicitis, Belmont developed peritonitis and sank rapidly. Although they will not say that all hope has been abandoned, his physicians state that their patient's condition is very precarious.

No Testimony From Accused Men

Harrisburg, June 5.—The defense in the case of the five defendants charged with conspiracy to defraud the state in connection with the capitol metallic furniture contract abruptly rested without putting any of the accused men on the stand. The state at once announced that it proposed to present evidence in rebuttal.

THE YORK BRIDGE ROW

Government Will Not Permit Navigation to Be Blocked

York, Me., June 5.—Acting under orders from the war department, Colonel Zinn, the engineer in charge of this district, came here and investigated the closing to navigation of Piscataqua river by the failure of the town to provide for the opening of the draw in the recently completed $47,000 bridge.

Colonel Zinn held a conference with the selectmen, town agent and their counsel, and was informed that the town had not accepted the bridge and would not operate the draw. He advised them that navigation must not be obstructed and that he should report the situation to the Washington authorities, who, he said, would take means to re-establish navigation.

It is considered likely that if the draw is left open permanently the county commissioners will proceed against the town, as it forms a part of a county highway. Developments are expected soon on the part of the war department.

The failure to provide for the operation of the draw is due to a controversy between the selectmen and the building committee, it being set up by the former that the action of the town in voting for the structure was not legal. The selectmen refused to accept the bridge when it was formally turned over to them about two weeks ago. The complaint to the war department was made by the Piscataqua Navigation company of Portsmouth, which is unable to reach an empty barge now imprisoned above the bridge.

Renounces Christianity

Boston, June 5.—Rev. Samuel Freuder of New York, a clergyman of the Episcopal church, who was in this city attending a meeting of the Boston council of the Sabbatical Messianic society, has renounced his orders and has become a Jew. Freuder is canonically attached to the diocese of Pennsylvania. Freuder was formerly a Jewish rabbi, but seventeen years ago he was converted to Christianity and was baptized. After working as a Congregationalist in New York and Boston he joined the Episcopal church and was ordained.

Passenger Car Telescoped

Kennebunkport, Me., June 5.—In a collision of cars Miss Sarah E. Corliss, aged 30, received injuries which resulted in her death and five other persons were hurt, some of them severely. An open electric car, containing a dozen passengers, was on its way from Cape Porpoise to Kennebunkport when it collided head on with a train of empty coal cars which were being pushed along by a motor car at the rear end. The cars met with such force that the passenger car was telescoped for three-quarters of its length.

Was Fifty-Two Years In Office

Providence, June 5.—After serving Richmond as town clerk for fifty-six years Halsey P. Clarke, 90 years of age, met his first defeat at the polls. Clarke, a Republican, was not nominated by his party this year, his former supporters fearing he was too old to fulfil the duties of the office. He ran as an independent candidate and got sixty-nine votes. The party candidate, Oscar E. Barber, got 118 votes.

Strikers Return to Work

Woonsocket, R. I., June 5.—The weavers, dressers and sewers at the Scotia worsted mills, who struck on Monday against a 10 percent cut in wages, returned to work yesterday. The management and the strikers compromised on a reduction of 5 percent. About 200 persons are affected.

Charged With Setting Fire

Portland, Me., June 5.—Harry E. Adams, 20 years old, was arrested on a warrant alleging arson. Officers allege he set fire to a building on Burnham street owned by Odell S. Harvey, which was partially burned. Adams admits having been in the house and says that he was smoking.

Mental Healing Failed

Allegan, Mich., June 5.—The jury in the case of Mrs. Mabel Neeley, charged with manslaughter through neglect, as the result of the death from pneumonia of her 2½-year-old child, Walter, while under treatment by members of a mental healing sect, announced that it could not agree and was discharged. Prominent members of the healing sect from many places attended the trial and gave testimony.

Policemen's Feelings Hurt

Detroit, June 5.—At the convention of the International Association of Police Chiefs a resolution was adopted declaring that policemen are entitled to more respect and consideration. The cartooning and caricaturing of the policeman in publications and the making of him a subject of ridicule in stage productions was condemned, and efforts to stop it were ordered begun.

Will Not Buy Pittsburg Rails

St. Petersburg, June 5.—The ministry of railways denies the report that it is contemplating the purchase of Pittsburg rails. The state, as well as private railroads in Russia, are obliged by charter to buy their rails from Russian works. The latter recently filled orders from Italy, the Argentine Republic and Brazil, taking advantage of the export bounty.

The Octopus Up to Contract

Washington, June 5.—Members of the board of inspection and survey, who have been conducting tests of the submarine boat Octopus on Narragansett bay, have returned to Washington. They are now preparing a report for the secretary of the navy. Members of the board say the vessel has met all contract requirements.

PARIS IS STIRRED

Attempt on Life of Dreyfus Makes Profound Impression

TRAGEDY IN THE PANTHEON

France Was Honoring Emile Zola, Which Aroused Some of the Old Time Animosity--Assailant Influenced by Anti-Semitic Hatred

Paris, June 5.—Just at the close of the ceremonies attending the canonization of Emile Zola in the Pantheon, when the President of France, the premier and a host of ministers of state were taking their departure, Louis A. Gregori, a military writer of note, drew a revolver and fired two shots point blank at Major Alfred Dreyfus, for whose liberty Zola had fought and won.

Men distinguished in all walks of life filled the Pantheon, and when the shots rang out there was intense excitement in the fear that the president had been assassinated, but even the attempt on the life of Dreyfus created a profound impression. Soldiers speedily surrounded Gregori and he was taken, bruised and bleeding, with his clothes almost torn from his back, to jail.

The affair has created a tremendous sensation in Paris and the motive of the would-be assassin is the cause of much mystification, for Gregori, instead of being an ordinary fanatic, such as is carried away by the political passions of the moment, is a man of mature age, having been born in 1844, and was highly esteemed in the circles where he was known. Although born of Italian parents, he has been an ardent Frenchman for years and has written authoritatively on military subjects, enjoying close relations with many high French officers.

Major Dreyfus was not seriously injured. A bullet entered his forearm, but did not injure the bone. The official statement is made that his condition is very favorable and that no complications are feared.

With regard to the reasons for Gregori's act, the opinion prevails in Paris that there is much truth in his avowal that he was driven to the deed by the appeals to hatred with which the anti-Semitic papers have been filled since the government resolved to place the body of Zola in the Pantheon. The state of this feeling can be gauged by an interview with Henri Rochefort, editor of The Patrie, in which he says: "It would have been a glorious death for Dreyfus. It would have been his first and only time under fire."

It was definitely established at the reconstruction of the scene in the Pantheon that Gregori fired the first shot from behind Dreyfus, the ball penetrating the sleeve of his coat and burying itself in a flower-pot at the base of the catafalque. When Dreyfus wheeled at the sound of the detonation he threw up his left arm over his heart. The second shot was fired point blank at his breast, the bullet entering the wrist and ranging upward. It was located by means of a radioscope, but was not extracted.

Mathieu Dreyfus, brother of Major Dreyfus, who sprang forward to save him, chivalrously protected Gregori from the crowd which was raining blows from canes and umbrellas upon the man, shouting: "It is not for us to punish; let the law take its course."

Gregori made a statement to the police directly after his arrest, and during a second interrogatory he said: "I did not wish to kill Dreyfus. It is true I aimed at him, but I only wanted to graze him. My object was to protest against the participation of the army in the glorification of Zola and the rehabilitation of Dreyfus. My blow was aimed less at Dreyfus than at Dreyfusism."

During the course of the day the police made several hundred arrests, but no serious importance is attached to these, as the prisoners are mostly students and rowdies who took part in numerous street brawls.

A curious feature of the ceremonies in the Pantheon was the absence of many of the foreign ambassadors. It is understood that the Turkish ambassador was the prime mover in the plan to induce the members of the diplomatic corps from going to the Pantheon. Rumors were afloat of possible trouble and the feeling that the French people were divided on the issue exercised considerable influence in the matter. The Japanese ambassador, Kurino, British Ambassador Beetle and German Ambassador Von Radolin refrained from attending the ceremonies.

Henry White, the American ambassador, who was present, said: "I received an invitation from the French government to meet President Fallieres at an important state function, and, as the representative of the American people, I considered it my duty to go."

Denunciation of Currency Bill

Wilmington, Del., June 5.—Classed with divorce laws, Sabbath desecration, polygamy and other alleged evils of government being attacked by the National Reform association, the Aldrich-Vreeland currency law was denounced as class legislation and the most dangerous measure that had ever come before congress at the convention of the association. Alfred O. Crozier said that Wall street will start the panics needed to create the "emergencies" needed to unlock the public treasury.

Congressman In Difficulties

Norwalk, O., June 5.—Congressman Lanning, formerly vice president and director of the defunct Ohio Trust company; J. P. Gibbs, president of the closed bank; F. W. Christian, its secretary and treasurer, and William Perrin, a director, were indicted on various charges in connection with the failure of the bank. It is alleged that Lanning and Gibbs abstracted and misappropriated funds and credits of the bank. It was stated that the failure of the Ohio Trust company brought about the failure of two other banks, the failure of two steel companies and a receivership for the Lanning Printing company.

Elevated Trains Collided

New York, June 5.—Six passengers were more or less seriously injured and a score slightly hurt in a rear-end collision of elevated trains on the Brooklyn bridge last night. The collision occurred when the brakes of a train refused to work on the sharp incline and the train crashed into the rear of a train ahead.

Prince Not In Conspiracy

Belgrade, June 5.—The official Servian news agency has issued a statement declaring that the evidence presented at Cettinje during the trial of a number of revolutionaries, which alleged the complicity of Crown Prince George of Servia in a conspiracy against Montenegro, is absolutely without foundation.

BRIDE'S CAKE.

One-half pint of butter, one-half sugar, one quart of flour, whites of eight eggs, one-half pint of milk, level teaspoonful of baking powder, one-fourth teaspoonful each of almond and vanilla extracts. Cream the butter and sugar, then add the milk, flour, with the baking powder sifted in the flour; then the extracts; beat to smooth batter; then fold in the eggs, which have been whipped to a stiff froth. Bake in a loaf in moderate oven. When cold ice with white and decorate with tiny ferns and roses.

GROOM'S CAKE.

One-half cupful of butter, one cupful of sugar, one cupful of candied cherries cut in two, one cupful of milk, one cupful chipped citron, one-half cupful chipped candied pineapple, whites of five egges beaten stiff and dry, one and three-fourths cupfuls of flour, three-fourths pound of cocoanut, one teaspoonful baking powder, one-half teaspoonful almond and one teaspoonful rose extracts. Dredge the fruit in the flour; cream the butter and add the sugar and cream both together; add the milk, then the fruit, extracts, lastly the stiffly beaten eggs. Bake in loaf and ice when cold. June.

ECONOMY CAKE.

One pound of fat pork, free from lean, and chopped so fine as to be almost lard; pour one-half pint boiling water over it; add one pound seeded raisins, chopped, two cups of sugar, and one cup of molasses with which one teaspoon of soda has been stirred; mix these ingredients together, then add one tablespoon each of cinnamon, cloves and nutmeg; stir in sifted flour until quite stiff; bake slowly for one hour and forty minutes; test with a broom splint, and if nothing adheres it is done. This is a fine cake considering the inexpensiveness. * * *

ONE EGG LAYER CAKE.

One egg, one cup powdered sugar, one cup milk, three cups flour, two teaspoonfuls baking powder, one-half saltspoon salt; flavor; mix the sugar and egg well together; add the milk; have flour, baking powder and salt well sifted together; combine and flavor.

For a dark layer take a part of the dough already prepared, and add one or two teaspoons of cocoa and one of powdered sugar, dissolved in a little boiling water. Bake in a hot oven twenty to twenty-five minutes. Put together with frosting, jam or jelly.

Frosting—Take one or one and one-half cups powdered sugar, wet with three or four teaspoonfuls boiling water and one of milk, mix and add flavor. Spread on cake with knife dipped in hot water. Ward Five.

HOW TO TELL IF YOU HAVE WORMS

THE REMEDY THAT QUICKLY EXPELS THEM

The common symptoms of worms in children and adults are:—Paleness of the face with occasional flushing; indigestion accompanied by an unnatural appetite at times; foul tongue and offensive breath; itching nose; vomiting; grinding of the teeth during sleep; swelling of the upper lip; hard swelled bowels; griping or colic pains; also convulsions and many other unaccountable nervous symptoms, which, if not checked in time, lead on to something more serious.

TOOK DR. TRUE'S ELIXIR AND GOT WELL

SOMERVILLE, ME.

DR. TRUE, DEAR SIR:—

"For more than three months one of my children had been troubled with spells of vomiting and symptoms of fever nearly every week, together with canker-sores about the nose and mouth. I obtained, about two weeks ago, two bottles of your Elixir, and before the first bottle was exhausted the sores were entirely healed, and no appearance of his vomiting or fever-spells has ever returned. I really believe that the lives of thousands of children suffering from worms or canker might be saved by a timely and judicious use of your Elixir." Yours truly,

J. L. HAMMETT.

This is only one of hundreds of such testimonials. This marvelous remedy has been made and sold by Dr. J. F. True & Co. for fifty-six years, and in all that time nothing but words of praise have been bestowed upon it. This is what Mr. Wing thinks of it.

AUBURN, ME.

DR. TRUE, DEAR SIR:—

"For the past seven years I have constantly kept a supply of your Elixir in my house, and it never failed to give prompt relief. It has been a great blessing to my children, and unsolicited I give you this tribute of gratitude, hoping the merits of your unrivaled family medicine may be widely known and appreciated."

Very respectfully yours,

CHAS. E. WING.

Even though worms may not be found present Dr. True's Elixir tones up the stomach and liver. Read what Dr. J. Haley, of Brunswick, thinks of it:

"It is a safe and effectual remedy. For worms it has no equal, and is an excellent remedy for canker of the mouth and throat."

Dr. True's Elixir is sold by druggists everywhere at 35c., 50c., and $1.00 per bottle. The booklet, "Children and Their Diseases," will be sent free by simply addressing Dr. J. F. True & Co., Auburn, Me. We have a special treatment for tape-worm. Send for free book.

Mr. Clements was driving a two-horse load of lumber, and when near the Quincy Point bridge one of the horses shied and ran away. The wheel of the wagon struck the curbing overturning the load and Mr. Clements was buried beneath the lumber. He was attended by Dr. Bushnell and Dr. Drake and removed to his home on North street, North Weymouth, where he died at 11 11 o'clock.

Eastern Steamship Sailings.

The weather of this week has given a decided impetus to the tide of excursion travel on all arms of the Eastern Steamship service. Needless to say, the Portland division, which at present has daily service (Sundays excepted) is one of the most popular of the Eastern Steamship lines. The International Division, which now has sailings from Boston for Portland, Eastport, Lubec and St. John every Monday and Friday (Union Wharf) at 9 A. M., is experiencing a little more than the normal amount of passenger travel in both directions. June, July and August are, however, the banner months on this division, and the patronage bids fair to be larger than ever this season.

On the Bangor division, with daily sailings (Sunday excepted) there has come a steady increase of travel, this week showing the maximum thus far. Here, too, the heaviest traffic comes in the summer months, when the magnificent white flyers City of Bangor and City of Rockland carry practically a full passenger list on almost every trip. One or other of the boats leaves Foster's wharf every week day for Rockland and landings on the Penobscot river and bay, besides making direct connections at Rockland for Bar Harbor and all intermediate landings.

There are at present three sailings a week on the Kennebeck division, every Monday, Wednesday and Friday from Union Wharf at 6 P. M. for Bath, Richmond, Dresden and Gardiner, with connection there for Hallowell and Augusta.

Take a Back Seat.

Quincy is not the only city where the new High School hall does not come up to expectations. A Boston paper says: Parents of pupils in the graduating class of the Malden High School are much disturbed over the report that, when graduation day comes, some of the pupils will have to sit on the floor with the audience, for the stage will not accommodate them all. The stage is in the new hall built in the recent addition to the building and it was planned to accommodate at least eighty persons. But when the State building inspector looked over the addition he decreed that only sixty-five persons may be seated upon the stage, and that only 790 persons may occupy the hall, which was built to hold one thousand. As there are more than one hundred pupils in the graduating class, the prospect is not agreeable to parents and pupils. There was previously considerable dissatisfaction in regard to the construction of the $250,000 addition to the schoolhouse, and this trouble about accommodations may precipitate the investigation of the whole matter which has been asked in the Board of Aldermen.

Give to the World the Best.

Sunday morning, June 7, the pastor of the Point church, Rev. A. R. Atwood, takes for a part of his text the words of Madeline S. Bridges:

"Life is the mirror of king and slave,
'Tis just what we are and do,
Then give the world the best you have,
And the best will come back to you."

—The assessors of Chelsea say the real estate loss by the Chelsea fire was $6,620,600, of which $5,479,900 was on taxable property.

City Receipts And Expenditures

A comparison of the receipts of the city from taxes, water and sewer assessments will be of interest. From the books of City Auditor Fairbanks, the Daily Ledger learns that the collection of taxes for preceding years amounted to $117,058.45 for the five months ending June 1. The figures for the same period for three years were:

|---|---|
| 1906, | $107,172.45 |
| 1907, | 117,517.81 |
| 1908, | 117,058.45 |

The water receipts are increasing as these figures for five months show:

|---|---|
| 1906, | $45,853.16 |
| 1907, | 46,087.50 |
| 1908, | 47,787.79 |

The receipts from sewer assessments are much smaller and help but little in expenses of the department. For the five months they were:

|---|---|
| 1906, | $9,899.17 |
| 1907, | 7,994.81 |
| 1908, | 5,287.63 |

The city expenditures for June were $74,591.22 as follows:

|---|---|
| Mayor's warrants, | $50,776.47 |
| Notes redeemed, | 18,950.00 |
| Interest paid | 4,864.75 |

Field Day.

Quincy council, Knights of Columbus, will celebrate its fourteenth anniversary tomorrow by a field day to be held at Merrymount park. It is not a dress affair, for members are requested to appear in overhauls that they may participate in the sports. There will be running races, tug of war between married and single men, fat men's race, base ball, etc. The sports are scheduled for 2 o'clock in the lower field.

Harvard-Yale "Flyers."

Fourteen hours and twenty minutes is the latest record accredited to the new triple-screw steel turbine steamship Yale of the Metropolitan Steamship Line between Boston and New York. Her sister ship the Harvard, which is accounted equally as speedy and which has similar equipment, did the trip one night last week in fourteen hours and twenty-five minutes. They have each averaged tweny-one knots and on almost every trip thus far this season have covered the distance between New York and Boston on the all the way by water route well within schedule time. This means that these magnificent white flyers are establishing new records, doing in round figures 296 nautical miles in fifteen hours or less, as the case may be.

This fact once established was all that the traveling public required to know in order to feel satisned that the promises of the Metropolitan Steamship Company regarding the new express passenger and freight service between Boston and New York have been fulfilled. The symptuous furnishings and extraordinary conveniences and accommodations, of the Harvard and Yale, together with the excellent cuisine and service in general are points in connection with the new express turbines which appeal to all. They are assuredly a revelation and have evoked no end of favorable comment.

In addition to the 240 regular staterooms each ship has 28 larger rooms en suite with bath, the prices of the staterooms ranging from $1.00 upwards. All the $1.00 rooms have accommodations for two persons, and the $2.00 staterooms are all outside rooms. A few of the amidship inside $1.00 rooms are provided with three berths.

The leaving time, both from Boston (India Wharf) and New York (Pier 45 North River, foot of West 10th st.) is 5 P. M., daily, Sundays included, and the ships are due at the port of destination on the following morning at 8 o'clock.

"DEATH

would often have been welcomed before I heard of ELBA HOME REMEDIES. I was a great sufferer from kidney trouble and the tortures I endured were beyond description. I bought No. 2, which was guaranteed to cure diseased kidneys and nothing else. It did it."

The above is the unsolicited testimonial of Mr. Frank R. Morgan of Richmond, Va. We ask you to bear in mind that ELBA HOME REMEDIES are bona fide prescriptions each made from the formula used by a famous specialist. There are 34 ELBA HOME REMEDIES. Each one is intended to cure a certain ill and it will positively cure that ill. They are not "cure-alls." They are not patent medicines. The formula from which each is made is printed plainly on the package. Your physician, no matter how conservative, will tell you how valuable this formula is. We will refund your money if you are not satisfied with the good that will be accomplished in your case by the use of any one of these preparations.

We lend our endorsement to them and will cheerfully refund all your money if you are not satisfied with the results from their use.

A CHARGE OF PERJURY

Brought Against Secretary of the Mayor of Philadelphia

M'NICHOL GETS WARRANTS

The Republican Organization Leader Takes Action After Having Been Held on Libel Charge--Is Also After the Scalp of Gibboney

Philadelphia, June 5.—An action which, it is said, presages one of the bitterest political fights that has been witnessed in this city for a long time, was taken here last night by State Senator James P. McNichol in causing warrants to be issued for Max Kaufman, until yesterday secretary to Mayor Reyburn, and D. C. Gibboney, secretary of the Law and Order society, on criminal charges. The warrants charge in the case of Kaufmann perjury, and in that of Gibboney, libel.

The issuing of the warrants followed the holding of McNichol, the acknowledged Republican organization leader, earlier in the day on a charge of criminal libel preferred by Kaufmann, who sought redress because he was named by McNichol as the go-between who had been paid $10,000 to induce Gibboney to make raids on disorderly houses and gambling places in 1905 and so discredit the administration of the then mayor, John Weaver.

Kaufmann, at the hearing of McNichol, took the witness stand and denied that there was any truth in the statement that he had received the $10,000 from McNichol. He denied that he had represented himself as an agent of Gibboney, and declared that the story was absolutely false in every particular.

Immediately after the hearing Mayor Reyburn sent a letter to Kaufmann, notifying him that he was discharged from the position of secretary.

Hardly had it become known that Kaufmann had been dismissed by the mayor than the announcement was made that McNichol had issued warrants for Kaufmann and for Gibboney, who had also been a witness for Kaufmann in the case against McNichol.

The warrant charging Kaufmann with perjury is based on testimony he gave in denying the receipt of $10,000 from McNichol when on the witness stand. The warrant against Gibboney is based on the publication of a letter written by Gibboney and bearing upon the conditions in this city.

Neither warrant was served, but as in the case of McNichol the matter was left to the attorneys to arrange a suitable time for the hearings, which, it is said, will probably take place Saturday.

Smuggled Chinese Discovered

San Francisco, June 5.—When a sealed box car, which apparently had come intact from Galveston, was opened here, sixteen Chinese were found squatted on a half load of steel. The car was ten days on the road and had been in the yards for forty-eight hours. The Chinese had a little water and a few crackers left, but were weak and hungry. It is supposed that the men were smuggled across the Mexican border and placed in the car at El Paso, the seal of the car being replaced later. There evidently was an arrangement for their release here, but in some way it miscarried.

Wild Western Affair In Mining Town

Pittsburg, June 5.—Following the recent holding up and robbing of a Pennsylvania express train and a street car, two men, masked, heavily armed and riding horseback, smashed the window of a general store at Boston, a mining town nearby, appropriated valuable articles and galloped away, firing revolvers. The clatter of the horses' hoofs and the shots aroused many persons, who immediately started in pursuit.

Efforts to Further Prosperity

New York, June 5.—A prosperity convention of the Commercial Travelers' Interstate Congress will be held in New York Aug. 14 and 15 under the auspices of the Travelers' Protective association and the United Commercial Travelers, which have a combined membership of 86,000. The travelers are making an effort to promote a feeling of confidence and optimism in every city and district of the country.

Not Killed on Gunness Farm

Saratoga, N. Y., June 5.—Mae O'Reilley, whom Julius G. Truelson, Jr., in a "confession" to the Texas authorities, declared was murdered on the Gunness farm at La Porte, Ind., is in this village alive and well, the guest of friends here. She at first denied her identity, but later admitted it.

Queer Case of Hypnotism

Richmond, N. Y., June 5.—Sylvan A. Lee fell unconscious as the result of experiments made upon himself in his investigation of auto hypnosis. Mrs. Lee says he has recently devoted much of his time to the study of auto hypnosis, persisting in experimenting upon himself in spite of her protests.

New Scout Cruiser Needs Repairs

Washington, June 5.—The scout cruiser Birmingham, now on a "shaking down" cruise at Guantanamo bay, has been ordered to return to Boston by July 1, where some repairs and alterations are to be made to the vessel.

Newsy Budget From Shipyard

The scout cruiser Birmingham, built at Quincy which is now on a shaking down cruise at Guantanamo bay has been ordered to Boston by July 1, for repairs and alterations.

A contest is being waged for chief of the bureau of engineering in the navy, with Capt. John R. Edwards, Commander Harold P. Norton, Capt. Albert F. Dixon and others among the candidates.

The shipyard employes hope that the Street Railway Company will turn their attention to the needs of the shipyard when the double tracking of Hancock street is completed. A location has been granted on Chubbuck street, Des Moines road and East Howard street, and should have been built upon months ago. It looks as if the street railway was blind to its own interests, as many now walk who might ride.

An item in a morning paper states that it leaked out at the Boston navy yard on Thursday that the government is planning for a great race between the scout cruisers Chester, Birmingham and Salem. Each cruiser has a different type of engine, and it is to test the merits of these engines that the race will be held.

Visitors' Day.

Thursday was visitors' day at the Farm school on Thompson's island off Squantum, and about 700 ladies and gentlemen made the trip from Boston by steamer South Shore, built at Quincy.

This school does not take boys who have been before the courts or who have any physical or mental ailment. It is not a corrective, but a preventative school, where indigent boys are taught to become useful citizens when it shall come time for them to go out into the world to make their own living.

Seven boys who formerly were members of this school were burned out in the Chelsea fire. When they were seen and asked if they wanted help, with one accord they said they did not. One of the objects of the instruction is to make the boys self-reliant, and this is the basis upon which their education is founded.

This school was the pioneer in several educational movements. It was the first to adopt the sloyd department; it was the first to have a miniature city government in relation to school work; it was the first to introduce meteorology, and Charles H. Bradley, the superintendent, believes that it will be only a question of time before this study is in troduced into the public school courses.

The Old Fairbanks House in this town, says the Dedham Transcript, has been undergoing quite a renovation the past month. Through the indefatigable efforts of the Family president, Hon. J. Wilder Fairbank, considerable progress has been made in interesting the scattered family. He has been ably assisted by the custodian, (Henry G. Fairbanks of Somerville) who has had charge of the homestead since Judge Rufus Fairbank's death. New window sashes have been put in where needed, shaving up the floors at spots, the old fireplace re-opened, etc. In the old fireplace was found hanging the original old crane. Much other work has been done, and more is planned ere the summer reunion, which occurs this year on August 6. The house has been open to visitors every week the past month, once or more. Commencing next week, the house will be open Wednesdays and Saturdays, 11 to 4, and can be open other days to parties if the custodian is notified in advance. Address, Winter Hill Somerville. President Fairbanks informs us that preparations are being made of unusual interest for this summer's gathering.

HANCOCK CEMETERY

Resting Place of Historical Interest Should Receive More Attention

A gang of men has been at work nearly all the week in the Hancock cemetery putting it in good condition. Early in the season the dead leaves were raked up and carried away and several trees that had outlived their usefulness were cut down. This week the grass has been mowed and the walks have been trimmed.

The increase of the legacy of $3,000 left the city for this purpose some time ago amounts to $120 per year. That sum has already been expended.

There are several things that ought to be done at this cemetery. One of these is to rebuild the wall on the Hancock street front which is in a bad condition.

Another thing is a fence along the cemetery on the southerly side. There was a fence there originally, but when the Y. M. C. A. was located in the Old Court Room building the boys who used the ground in the rear as a play ground tore the fence down, and it has been down ever since. Since that time boys going too and from the depot, from Chapins news stand and Granite street, have worn a well-beaten path across one corner of the cemetery. Along the railroad side there is an iron picket fence and the boys have succeeded in smashing out some of these pickets. The department of Public Burial Places every year puts in new iron pickets only to have others broken out.

As to the wooden fence on the south side, the Burial Places department says it is up to Mr. Faxon or Mr. Kincaide to build it. Mr. Faxon says that it is not on his property, but Mr. Kincaide's, and that he should build it. There it hangs, and in the meantime one corner of the lot is used as a path. It is doubtful even if a fence would keep the boys from crossing. The only thing to do is to place signs prohibiting crossing thre and then prosecute the first person cought doing so.

The Public Burial Places repartment like other departments in the city is cramped for money. They difsomewhat, however, from other departments, for while the appropriations for the latter departments are increasing every year the appropriation for burial places is going down, while the expenses are increasing.

A few years ago the amount passed in the annual budget for this department was $4,800. It has been gradually coming down until it has now reached the $4,000 mark, notwithstanding the necessary expense has increased.

If the City Council could make a specific appropriation each year for the Hancock cemetery in addition to the $120 per year received from the legacy, there would be no cause for complaint.

As mentioned in the chapter of annals, says Pattee's History of Quincy, at a town meeting in 1809, a deed was presented to the citizens of Quincy, giving them absolute control over this cemetery, on the following conditions:—

"Provided, that the inhabitants of the town shall never hereafter allow the said burial ground to be used as a pasture, or any horse, or cattle of any description, to run at large therein, and that it shall at all times cause a fence to be maintained around the said burial ground, sufficient to exclude all cattle therefrom; and that no trees shall be permitted to grow within the said ground."

ADAMS CHAPTER D. R.

Adams Chapter Daughters of the Revolution held their last meeting for the season at Randolph on Monday at the home of Mrs. Patience Braley, with Mrs. William Porter, Mrs. Frank C. Granger and Mrs. Charles Belcher assisting as hostesses.

The business meeting was held out of doors in a grove back of the house but the weather becoming dubious and chilly an adjournment was made to the house. Owing to the illness of Mrs. Stoddard the June outing is postponed until July.

Mrs. Henry G. Weston, recently regent of the Washington Elm Chapter of Cambridge and a member of the State Council, was the guest of honor and gave a most interesting paper on the "Historic Cod Fish."

A social hour followed during which a dainty lunch was served in the dining room by the hostesses and all too soon the hour of departure arrived. Members always enjoy meeting at Randolph and Monday's meeting proved no exception.

Voting Contest begins Monday.

CAUGHT IN HELL-HOLE

Four Men Killed and Ten Injured on Flagship Tennessee

EXPLOSION OF BOILER TUBE

Survivors, Though Injured, Displayed Great Heroism In Aiding Mates--Admiral Sebree Escapes by a Margin of Less Than a Minute

San Pedro, Cal., June 6.—A terrible accident occurred on board the armored cruiser Tennessee while the ship was steaming 19 knots on a speed trial off Point Hueneme, Cal., a steampipe in the starboard engine room bursting under 235 pounds' pressure, killing four men and injuring ten others, all of the men in the compartment at the time.

The dead are George Wood, water tender; E. C. Poggs, second-class fireman; A. Reingold, machinist's mate, and G. W. Meek, first-class fireman. S. S. Lemattis, first-class fireman, and F. S. Maxfield, second-class fireman, are fatally injured.

There were fourteen men in the fireroom when the tube, which is four inches in diameter and enclosed with water inside the boiler, blew out, driving a torrent of scalding steam, coal dust, cinders and hot ashes through the ashpit, and showered the half-naked men.

A blast of white steam from the ventilators told those on deck of the accident and Lieutenant Commander Robinson, the navigator, instantly sounded a general alarm and dropped twenty lines of hose ready for instant use in case of fire. Within the doomed fireroom, which is one of the sixteen enclosed fire compartments, the surviving seamen were fighting for life. Reinhold and Meek were stricken dead at their posts. Poggs and Wood crawled into the adjoining fireroom, No. 11, and died almost immediately.

The surviving seamen, all of whom suffered some injuries, acted with the greatest heroism in aiding their unfortunate mates.

Rear Admiral Sebree himself escaped death or serious injury in the fated fire pit by a narrow margin. He had left the room where the explosion occurred not fifty seconds before the fatal blast. The admiral stood in the engineroom adjoining the fireroom with Chief Engineer Robertson and Captain Howard. His first intimation of the tragedy was as he mounted the ladder and a half naked fireman leaped past him, suffering from severe scalds.

When the smoke came from the fireroom, the fire call was sounded and all the crew went to their stations in perfect order and in a few seconds fifteen to twenty lines of hose were ready to turn on the fire. Several of the crew behaved with heroism and will be reported to the department.

The ship was undergoing inspection by the commander of the second division, and had been under way for over two hours, the engines, boilers and all machinery working perfectly and fully equal to the acceptance trial.

The Tennessee, flagship of the second division of the Pacific cruiser fleet, left Santa Barbara, with the cruisers Pennsylvania, Washington, Colorado and West Virginia in her wake, on the semi-annual speed trial provided by naval regulations. Admiral Sebree had ordered the cruisers to full speed and the Tennessee had just concluded a series of evolutions and started straight away at a speed of between 18 and 19 knots. The admiral in the engine room had just taken note that the dial recorded a steam pressure of 235 pounds when the explosion occurred. Less than fifteen minutes earlier the tubes had endured a pressure of 265 pounds.

An official investigation of the accident, the cause of the explosion not being yet known, has been ordered. The boiler was of the standard, tubular kind, the Babcock & Wilcox make, used on many warships. It consists of a large cluster of four-inch tubes carrying water into the main boiler. Only one tube, and this one of the bottom tier, exploded. The break was less than six inches in length.

There was no wreckage, but the explosion was described by the survivors as frightful. So great was the blast of soot and steam that every man in the room was blackened from head to foot, while those closest to the break were cooked alive. There are sixteen similar firerooms, but each are separated by steel doors and the men in adjoining compartments did not feel the explosion.

When the first outside rescuers entered the fireroom it was in utter darkness, the steam and soot covering the electric lights and ceiling and walls with a thick coat. The men in this fire pit work naked except for short trousers and slippers, and the dead and injured were blackened almost beyond recognition.

"It was a hell-hole," said one of the surviving seamen. "Everything seemed all right, when, without any warning, the shower of hot cinders, steam and ashes burst out of the fire-hole. The boys dropped all over the room."

The impression among the officers and crew is that Reinhold and Meek were martyrs to duty, for they were found dead where others escaped and stayed at their posts to the last. The accident served to demonstrate the complete efficiency of the naval fire drill. There was no confusion.

CHELSEA TO GET $700,000

Right to Raise It by Loans Given by Legislative Committee

Boston, June 6.—At the close of a hearing on the petition of Representative Robinson of Chelsea that the city of Chelsea be permitted to borrow $1,000,000 outside the debt limit for the construction of public buildings and other permanent improvements in the burned area the legislative committee on cities agreed upon a bill giving the city permission to borrow $700,000 beyond the debt limit. Representative Pierce will report the bill in the house on Monday next. The money is to be secured by the issue of 4½ percent bonds, to run forty years.

Every member of the new board of control of Chelsea spoke at the hearing and all declared that the city needed at least $1,000,000 more than may be borrowed within the debt limit. All the members favored Robinson's petition and accompanying bill.

Members of the committee on cities brought out the fact that the city can borrow $210,000 inside its debt limit and that it has an insurance surplus of over $48,000, after paying all expenses incurred since the conflagration.

Sudden Death In Carriage

Boston, June 6.—William A. Buckley, assistant superintendent of agencies of the Provident Life Savings Assurance society, died while driving in his carriage from Boston to his home in Winthrop. The case was such that Medical Examiner McGrath refused to give the cause of death until he had performed an autopsy. The coachman, Herbert Bradshaw, was detained as a witness. Buckley had been stopping at a local hotel, where he complained of being ill, and sent for his coachman to take him home.

Newspaper Man Passes On

Duxbury, Mass., June 6.—Thomas H. Murray, secretary-general and one of the founders of the American-Irish Historical society and formerly editor of the Lawrence Sun, died at his home here, aged 50 years. He had been ill for some time. For twenty-five years he was prominent in newspaper circles in Boston, Bridgeport and Meriden, Conn., and Providence. He was the author of many books and pamphlets and delivered many historical addresses.

Vessel and Crew Probably Lost

Rockland, Me., June 6.—Schooner Lizzie Cochran, from Perth Amboy, N. J., for Machias, her home port, with coal, is believed to have been lost with her crew of five men. Captain Lindsey, part owner of the vessel, identified a yawl boat which was towed into this harbor as belonging to the Lizzie Cochran. The Cochran was reported at Vineyard Haven May 27. She left there the next morning and since that time has not been heard from.

Will Be First In This Country

The exposition will be held in Boston in the fall of 1909.

Shots Fired at Balloon

North Adams, Mass., June 6.—While a balloon carrying N. M. Arnold of this city as pilot and C. D. Frua was passing over the village of Poestenkill, N. Y., four rifle shots were fired at it, according to Arnold, who has returned here. Arnold says that one of the bullets apparently passed between him and his companion in the car, as both felt the wind from it and heard its whizzing.

Cut Throat and Took Poison

Boston, June 6.—A man registered as Harry Poonhour of Portland, Me., twice attempted suicide at the Hotel Revere and was taken to a hospital, where he is in a critical condition. The man gave his age as 24 years. He cut his throat with a razor, and that not being effective, he later took laudanum. He would give no definite reason for his acts.

Charge of Involuntary Manslaughter

Bangor, Me., June 6.—Harold Colby, driver of the automobile which struck and killed Frederick O' Connor, aged 10, was arraigned on the charge of involuntary manslaughter. He pleaded not guilty, waived examination and was bound over to the supreme court, bail being fixed at $2000, which he secured.

Fine of $2000 For Plumbers

Winnipeg, Man., June 6.—The Manitoba high court handed down a judgment against the Plumbers' union for interfering with non-union labor during the strike here last winter, Judge Mathers fining the union $2000 and issuing a perpetual injunction against picketing. The action was brought by the master plumbers.

Almost Ready For Jury

Harrisburg, June 6.—The capitol conspiracy case, in which five men are charged with defrauding the state in connection with metallic furniture contracts, has closed, so far as the taking of testimony is concerned, after having been on trial since May 11. It is expected the case will reach the jury Wednesday afternoon.

To Meet "Shortage" of Meat

CUBS HAVE NO CINCH.

Champion Chicago Nationals Not Having an Easy Time.

CINCINNATI'S BIG ADVANCE.

Little More Team Work and Manager Ganzel's Nine Will Be a Great One Phillies Are Strong—Race For Pennant an Interesting Affair.

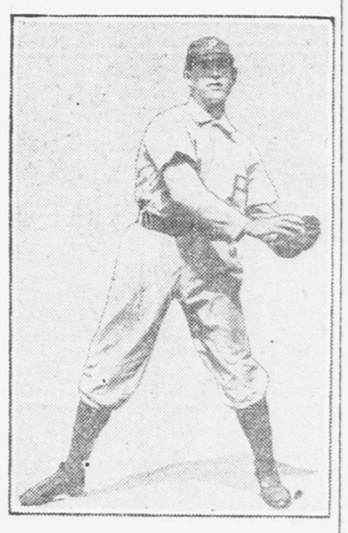

It is little wonder that the supporters of the National league are inclined to rave a bit over the closeness of the pennant race this year. It is a long time since the campaign in the old organization has been anything else than a walkover. Seldom indeed have there been more than two teams fighting it out at the finish, and sometimes the winner of the race was ascertained before the season was more than three-fourths over. As a result of this disparagement in the strength of the teams, interest in the season died about the Fourth of July, and the crowds thereafter scarcely paid expenses.

The outlook now is, however, that there will be no premature dying out of interest, but that fans in at least six cities will be watching the results of the games with deep interest right up to the last week of the battle. A western writer predicts that there will be no long consecutive winning streaks in the National league in 1908. With the teams balanced as they are it will certainly be a difficult matter to win many games in a row. The team that wins three or four running may be fortunate.

This is a very pleasing state of affairs. It means that the fans will be furnished better baseball, for so long as the race is close and the fighting hot every man in the game will be on his toes, whereas when a team realizes that it has not a chance to gain anything by hard playing, once that it has fallen hopelessly behind, the men are not likely to overexert themselves in the slightest degree, for there is no incentive for them to do so.

Many think that the 1908 campaign will prove the closest in the history of the old organization and that the autumn days will be in sight before it is possible to pick the winner with any degree of accuracy. The weak teams of former seasons have been greatly improved, and many times have they jolted the leaders.

The New York Giants started out well, but fell by the wayside on their western trip. McGraw evidently sees the weaknesses in his team as clearly as the others who have been pointing them out. If he does not, he should consult an oculist at once, for some of them are glaring indeed. McGraw is already making efforts to add strength to the team. He offered to trade Pitcher Ames to Cincinnati for Lobert, declaring that he wanted to use Hans on second base, this in spite of the fact that McGraw, Tenney and others have been lauding Doyle to the skies and declaring him to be one of the best second basemen in the business.

The Phillies are not overlooking anything that comes their way this season. In years past they have lacked the requisite amount of life and ginger to make them winners, but Manager Murray has made a few changes, and the team is playing 25 per cent better ball this year than in 1907.

The Pirates have been going along very well, but there is no doubt that still better things are in store for the followers of the Pirates. In the first place, nearly every man on the team will hit better than he has been doing of late, and, in the second place, the pitchers will soon show great improvement in form.

What is most pleasing to Manager Clarke is the fact that the Pirates, though encountering all varieties of hard luck, have managed to keep well up in the race. This is really a remarkable showing under the circumstances and leads Clarke to believe that when everything starts to going right there will be no stopping his men.

Followers of the Cincinnati team are aroused as never before over the splendid showing which Manager Ganzel's men have been making for the past few weeks. They are very much a factor in the race, and it is to be hoped that they will maintain their stride and continue in the fight. There is plenty of good material among the Reds, and Manager Ganzel seems to be exercising splendid judgment in handling it.

Republicans Will Gather Where Several Successful Tickets Have Been Named Before—The Convention and Its Duties.

THE name of the city of Chicago has a winning sound in Republican ears, and doubtless this had something to do with the choice of the busy city on Lake Michigan as the meeting place of the national convention of the party which opens on June 16. Lincoln was nominated there in 1860, Grant was nominated there in 1868, and Garfield in 1880 and Blaine in 1884 were named for the presidency there. Benjamin Harrison received his first nomination at Chicago in 1888. All these nominations were winning ones except that of Blaine. After 1888 the Republicans did not again meet in Chicago until 1904, when Theodore Roosevelt was nominated for the presidency and carried the country by the largest vote ever received by a presidential candidate.

There will be 980 delegates in the Republican convention, and the man who obtains the vote of a majority of them, or 491, will be the nominee of the party for president. The Democrats have a rule making a two-thirds vote necessary to a choice. Delegates are chosen by congressional district conventions in the different states, and each state is entitled to send to the convention twice as many district delegates as it has representatives in congress and four delegates at large, the latter being chosen at state conventions and their number being twice that of the state's representation in the United States senate. In addition the Republicans admit to seats in the convention two delegates from each territory, there being seven of these, Alaska, New Mexico, Arizona, Hawaii, Porto Rico, the Philippines and the District of Columbia. The Republican convention therefore has fourteen territorial delegates, while the Democratic convention has forty-two, as it allows six delegates to each territory. For each delegate an alternate is chosen, who takes the place of the delegate in the convention in case of the latter's death or inability to attend.

There will be no "booze" at the Republican convention at Chicago—that is to say, none will be served at the meeting place, according to a regulation adopted by the party's national committee. The committee cannot be held responsible, of course, for what delegates drink outside, but the convention hall itself will be "dry." The place of assemblage is the Coliseum, one of the largest halls in the world, seating 10,000 people and 300 feet long by 150 wide. It was built in 1900 of steel, stone and glass, and on its site at Wabash avenue and Fifteenth street once stood the famous Libby prison, which was transported from Richmond, Va., and set up brick by brick in Chicago for the World's fair of 1903.

The convention will be called to order by the chairman of the national committee, Harry S. New of Indiana, and United States Senator Julius Caesar Burrows of Michigan is slated as temporary chairman. He will make the keynote speech of the gathering, and then the convention will act on the report of the committee on permanent organization. The opening prayers on the first three days of the convention will be delivered respectively by Bishop P. J. Muldoon of Chicago, Roman Catholic; Rev. William O. Waters of Grace Episcopal church, Chicago, and Rev. John Wesley Hill of the Metropolitan temple, New York, Methodist. The general secretary will be John R. Malloy of Columbus, O., and his chief assistant will be Lafayette B. Gleason of New York.

One feature of the gathering will be a big parade of marching clubs from various parts of the country. Old time convention goers will note the absence of portraits of living Republicans from the convention hall. It was deemed necessary to put the ban on such decorations by reason of the large number of favorite sons.

Comedian Hitchcock Locked Up

New York, June 6.—The trial of Raymond Hitchcock, the comedian, came to an abrupt halt shortly after the opening of the proceedings. On request of M. F. Stouer, who had been retained to succeed Hitchcock's former counsel in defending Hitchcock on indictments growing out of charges preferred by young girls, Justice Goff granted an adjournment until next week to allow the attorney to familiarize himself with the details of the case. The trial having technically begun and Hitchcock having been surrendered by his bondsmen, Goff ordered him committed to the Tombs without bail.

May Have Been Killed by Robbers

New York, June 6.—Investigation into the death of George E. Green, 27 years old, whose body was found lying in six inches of water in a small stream in the Bronx Zoological park, is being conducted. Green had been employed as a clerk by a stock exchange firm and was supposed to have had in his possession $250. When his body was found his watch and chain were missing and there was no money in his pockets. An autopsy disclosed bruises on Green's face and neck and behind the right ear.

The Roosevelt's Crew Selected

St. John's, June 6.—Captain Bartlett, sailing master of Commander Peary, and crew of eleven sailors departed on steamer Siberian for New York, where they will make their start for the Arctic on the Roosevelt. The sailors have been selected with regard to their adaptability to Arctic exploration and are practically the pick of Newfoundland's seamen.

Root's Plans For the Summer

Washington, June 6.—Secretary Root, when asked if he was to "sit on the lid" in Washington during the summer, replied that his plans were so arranged that he should leave Washington June 20 and spend two or three weeks at a training establishment in New York state and then go to his farm near Utica for the remainder of the warm season.

Students Deficient In Studies

Washington, June 6.—Sixty-nine students in the second ,third and fourth classes at the naval academy this year have been found deficient in their studies in their final examinations. Thirteen of the students will be dropped, nine will be turned back, others will be re-examined and some will be allowed to resign.

Missouri Pacific Dividend Omitted

New York, June 6.—The Missouri Pacific Railway company yesterday omitted its semi-annual dividend which has been declared for several years at the rate of 2½ percent. Up to six months ago the Missouri Pacific dividends were paid in cash. At that time a semi-annual dividend of 2½ percent was declared in stock.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Dr. Henry Van Dyke of Princeton has been nominated by Harvard to give the American lectures before French universities next winter.

Colby won the annual debate from the University of Maine. The debate was on the question: "Resolved, That the state of Maine should adopt the initiative and referendum."

Postmaster General Meyer says that all talk to the effect that he may become chairman of the Republican national executive committee to conduct the coming campaign is "mere newspaper gossip."

Attractions of a Pastoral Life.

A philanthropist sent a child from the New York slums to the country. To this child, raised among slum horrors, all the beauty and poetry of a pastoral life was offered. One day the man went to see the little girl. He took her on his knee, glanced with approbation about the quaint old farm kitchen and said:

"And do you find the country very beautiful, my dear?"

"Oh, beautiful," the youngster answered.

"And what have you seen during the week's sojourn here?"

"I've seen eighty-seven turkeys killed and a man's nose broken in a pumpkin raffle."

THE ETERNAL CIRCLE.

If this great world of joy and pain
Revolve in one sure track;
If freedom, set, will rise again
And virtue, flown, come back,
Woe to the purblind crew who fill
The heart with each day's care
Nor gain from past or future skill
To bear and to forbear!

—Wordsworth.

Coin of the Realm.

During civil war times Gilman Fay, a local character known by all as Gil, went to the general store in Fayville, Mass., kept at that time by Colonel Dexter Fay, to make his purchases. The amount was 68 cents, and Fay tendered the clerk a dollar bill. Change being scarce in the store, as was often the case during those strenuous times, the clerk passed him some slips of paper with figures on them to equal the amount of change due. Gil looked at the change and then at the clerk and slowly said, "What's all this?"

"Why, that is what we are giving for change now. When you get a dollar's worth we will redeem them," replied the clerk, and Gil went out.

A day or two later Gil went to the store again for some tobacco. The clerk passed out the plug, and Gil put his hand in his pocket and pulled out a handful of pumpkin seeds and handed them to the clerk, saying:

"These are what I am using for change now. When you get a dollar's worth I will redeem them."

Priest and Parishioner.

There was a priest who had among his parishioners an Irishman who, with a lot of others, was digging a ditch under an Italian boss. The priest thought he would get a rise out of his parishioner as he met him going to work.

"Good morning, Pat."

"Mornin', father."

"How do you like your 'ginny' boss, Pat?"

"Oh, all right, father. How do you like yours?"

The Exception.

Two old negroes, gazing at a many colored circus poster, were comparing the merits of the old time circus with those of the up to date performance.

"Der am no argument necessary," said Rastus emphatically. "It have been 'knowledged dat de John Robinson circus am de best in de world."

"What fo' you talk like dat, man?" Jackson replied. "Der am only one circus worf mentioning, and dat am de Barnum & Bailey greatest show on earth. Look at de picture, man! See where it say 'greatest show on earth?'"

"Shore Ah sees dat, but you neglect t' look in de far corner where it say somethin' else."

"What else it say?"

"It say, 'greatest show on earth' S-E-P-T 1, 'cept one—an' dat one am de John Robinson circus."—Lippincott's.

Tried to Make Good.

"What's become ob dat little chameleon Mandy had?" inquired Rufus.

"Oh, de fool chile done lost him," replied Zeke. "She wuz playin' wif him one day, puttin' him on red to see him turn red and on blue to see him turn blue an' on green to see him turn green, an' so on; den de fool gal, not satisfied wif lettin' well enough alone, went an' put him on a plaid, an' de poor little thing went an' bust himself tryin' to make good."—Everybody's.

John's Memory.

A perspiring man, laden with bundles, bustled into a railway station, upset a small boy, carried away half a yard of flounce from the skirt of a lady and finally stopped, panting and exhausted, beside a small woman sitting tranquilly in the waiting room.

"John"—

"There, now, I know what you are going to say, Jane—that same old question. My dear, I forgot nothing."

"But, John"—

"No, I did not forget to buy the fruit or the towels or the seven and three-quarter yards of cambric or the spool of silk. There you are—the whole list; not a thing missing."

His wife smiled up into the triumphant face and said, "Yes, dear, but in which shop did you leave your hat?"

And then the train came in.

A Loyal Partisan.

"It was just after W. O. Bradley was elected governor of Kentucky in 1905, and the Republicans in my county were holding a big ratification meeting," said Colonel W. P. Thorne of Kentucky, telling of one of his experiences. "Brass bands, all kinds of floats and banners and hundreds of men and women and boys had been parading the streets. A young girl claimed that while standing on her front porch, which was almost covered with vines and foliage of different kinds, she was repeatedly hugged and kissed by a young man whom she hardly knew. A warrant was sworn out for her assailant, and it was my duty as commonwealth attorney to prosecute him. I soon finished my examination of the witness and turned her over to defendant's counsel for cross examination.

"'What night was this?' he thundered.

"'Thursday night,' answered the witness.

"'Thursday night, you say? What time of night?'

"'About 8 o'clock.'

"'That was about the time the parade was passing your house?'

"'Yes, sir, the parade was just passing my house.'

"'Street full of people?'

"'Yes, sir, the streets were full of people.'

"'Did you ever cry out or scream?'

"'No, sir, I did not.'

"'Will you please tell this jury why, with the streets thronged with people and this man hugging and kissing you against your will, as you claim, you never uttered a single cry for help or assistance?'

"'Yes, sir. I will tell the jury and everybody else that you'll never ketch me hollerin' at no Republican gatherin'!'"—Judge.

Knew His Father.

"Elnathan," asked the teacher of a boy at school, "if your father borrowed from you $100 and should agree to pay you at the rate of $10 per week, how much would he owe you at the end of seven weeks?"

"One hundred dollars," said the boy.

"I'm afraid you don't know your arithmetic, said the teacher.

"Well," said the boy, "I may not know my arithmetic, but I know my father."

Not Used to Women Doctors.

The librarian of the University of Wyoming at Laramie is Dr. Grace R. Hebard, a lawyer by education and a doctor of philosophy. She is also an authoress, having written, among other things, a volume on "The History of Wyoming." Dr. Hebard and Dr. Agnes Wergeland, a member of the faculty of the university, have a cozy home in Laramie, which they call Doctors' Inn. A stranger called at Doctors' Inn to see Dr. Hebard concerning the third edition of her book on Wyoming. Ringing the bell, he was met at the door by the doctor herself.

"I wish to see Dr. Hebard."

"I am she."

"Dr. G. R. Hebard, the author of 'The History of Wyoming?'"

"The same."

"But I expected to find a man."

"And why?" the doctor asked.

"Never heard of a woman, and a young woman, being called a doctor, and it takes my breath away."

He recovered sufficiently, however, to transact the business satisfactorily.

The Only Way He Could Help.

Justice Matthews, while presiding over the supreme court at Washington, took the several justices of the court for a run down Chesapeake bay. A stiff wind sprang up, and Justice Gray was getting decidedly the worst of it. As he leaned over the rail in great distress Chief Justice Matthews touched him on the shoulder and said in a tone of deepest sympathy, "Is there anything I can do for you, Gray?"

"No, thank you," returned the sick justice, "unless your honor can overrule this motion."—Ladies' Home Journal.

Eating House Language.

It takes the frequenter of New York's cheap restaurants quite awhile to become familiar with the language in which his orders for edibles are transmitted to the cook. He soon learns that "Beef and!" means beef and beans and that "Ham and!" refers to ham with the same nutritious vegetable.

Before long he grasps the fact that "Draw one!" is an order for coffee. "Draw one in the dark!" meaning black coffee; that "Brown the wheats!" is the correct command for buckwheat cakes, and that "Hash in the steamer!" is the open sesame to the supply of corned beef hash.

Perhaps you may know eggs, fried on one side, are ordered in Bowery eating houses as "White wings, sunny side up!" Recently a visitor ordered fried eggs and gasped half a minute before he could answer the darky waiter's polite query: "Yes, sir. Will yo' hab dem blind or lookin' at yo'?"

Poe's Fame.

Many years ago an admirer of Edgar Allan Poe boarded the stage to drive to Fordham, then a suburb of New York city, where, in a small cottage, Poe wrote many of his famous tales.

"Why are you so anxious to go to Fordham?" asked the stage driver.

"Because Poe lived there."

"Poe wouldn't ha' been much thought of if he'd only lived at Fordham. It wasn't on that account he's famous. It was on account of them there pomes and tales."

Systematic Abbreviation.

"There's the laziest man who ever signed a hotel register," remarked the hotel clerk.

"He's a drummer, and his name is Samuel Parker Sedgewick Elliott. Ten years ago he used to sign his full name in a very deliberate and careful manner, using considerable flourish. Then he began to abbreviate it slightly, like this:

"'Samuel P. S. Elliott.'

"Then I noticed on the register 'Sam'l P. S. Elliott.'

"The following trip disclosed a further slight elision. 'S. P. S. Elliott.'

"Coming in one night rather late, he took the proffered pen and wrote 'Sam Elliott.'

"On his arrival here last week I saw he had the habit incurably. Here is what he scrawled: 'S. Eliot.'"

EDITORIAL.

Up to the present time but little objection has been raised to the plans presented by the city for the abolition of the grade crossings. Some opposition may develop, however, at later hearings. Henry M. Faxon, whose property will suffer the most damage, does not object if the commission decides to depress the tracks at Saville street. The greatest damage to his property will be on Granite street. The plan contemplates raising the grade of this street so that to enter the stores of his block it will be necessary to go down a few steps. It is claimed that the buildings cannot be raised but could not the floor be raised.

The Penniman house and other property along Irving place will be damaged, although in most cases can be moved back. The estimated cost of construction by the depression plan is $350,000. When the land damage is added to this the sum will be a large one.

The proposed extension of Upland road through to Granite street will be appreciated as will also the proposed walk on the east side of the tracks leading from Granite street to the depot. Another breat improvement will be the raising of the grade of Granite street under the bridge thus doing away with the damp hole.

In view of the unimportance of Saville street west of the tracks there is a doubt in the minds of many if the special commission will approve of a plan entailing such a large cost.

The plan for Water street meets with more general approval, although there are some objections to an overhead bridge.

The government maintains at an expense of over $3,250,000 a year, a diplomatic and consular service in all parts of the world for the purpose, among other things, of aiding the commerce of the country by gathering information of value to American business interests. Today there is no medium sufficiently comprehensive properly to take advantage of this information or through which it can be disseminated so that it will reach those merchants and manufacturers specially interested but with the establishment of an information agency, with a permanent bureau in Washington intelligence of a commercial value could be conveyed to all merchants and manufacturers concerned therein throughout the country.

The proposition by the National Council of Commerce to establish in Washington an agency of the council for the dissemination of information respecting domestic and foreign commerce is one that should meet with the hearty support of all. It is estimated by Secretary Straus of the Department of Commerce and Labor and by the advisory committee of the National Council of Commerce that the maintenance of a proper agency in Washington, in order fully to take advantage of important trade information, would cost the merchants and manufacturers of the country only about $20,000 a year.

This session of Congress has broken all records in the number of bills introduced, the total being 29,125. Thirty-eight treaties have been ratified and made public, more than had been ratified during the twenty years preceding.

June Breakfasts Prove Popular

The June breakfasts served today at Quincy and Wollaston for the benefit of the Day Nursery are proving a great success, being well patronized.

The Quincy feast is served in the Unitarian chapel under the direction of Mrs. A. H. Gilson ,and the tables well filled most of the time from 11.30 to 2.30. The menu already published, proved very satisfactory, and was well served by a large corps of ladies. Many city officials came promptly at noon when City Hall closed. Representative Hultman and wife were among the guests. Many of the business men of City Square dropped in, and several were accompanied by their families. People from Wards One, Two Three and Four were present, and also some from out of town. The extra dishes, ice cream and strawberries, were in demand. It should net a good sum for the Day Nursery.

At Odd Fellows' hall, Wollaston, cold meats and vegetables with side dishes of ice cream, strawberries, lobster a la newburgh and cream chicken comprised the menu.

The ladies who contributed the eatables are all famed for their cooking and the breakfast was one fit for a king.

Those that were on hand at the beginning did not want for room, but a little later when the trains began to arrive from Boston, and unload their freight of hungry men there was not quite so much room. The supply, however, was amply sufficient and none went away dissatisfied.

Mrs. Arthur Sibley and Mrs. Frank A. Page, were the chairmen in general charge, Mrs. W. C. Sanders and an efficient corps of ladies had charge of the tables.

Other ladies in charge were: Mrs. Herbert Hicks of the ice cream department; Mrs. N. G. Nickerson of the strawberries; Mrs. Herbert T. Whitman of the salads; Mrs. George W. Bennett of the chafing dishes; Mrs. Arthur Sibley of the sale table. Each of these had an efficient corps of assistants.

Mrs. Walter E. Simmons was the advertising manager and treasurer.

Fifty Years In Business

After an active business life extending over a period of fifty years, Joseph L. Whiton, one of Quincy's well known citizens, retires this month from business, and will settle down to enjoy a well-earned vacation.

Mr. Whiton is a son of Isaiah G. Whiton and was born at Quincy Point, Nov. 14, 1844, within a few hundred feet from where he now resides. He received the education common with boys of those days and at the age of sixteen years started in to earn his own living and make his mark in the world. His first business venture was with a dry goods trimming store in Boston, where he remained for two years. The retail trade was not to his liking however, and on Nov. 5, 1860, he entered the dry goods commission house of what was then Faulkner & Kimball, and which afterward became Faulkner, Page & Co.

He entered the store as a general utility boy at the salary of $2 per week or $100 per year, hardly enough to pay his car fare to and from Boston, the single fare those days being thirty cents. He started in to learn the business, and although the lot of a boy was not a happy one, he was persistant and eventually reached the top round of the ladder.

In those early days there were no electric cars running from his home to the depot and his salary was not large enough for him to enjoy the luxury of riding in the barge so he "hoofed it" both ways. The first train for Boston left Quincy at 6.15 and this he was obliged to take, necessitating his leaving home at 5.45. The weather was not always pleasant, and the walking at times, especially during the winter month, was a hardship. He had grit, however, and no matter what the weather, the morning was sure to see him with "Jake" Hersey trudging along through the snow banks toward the depot.

From his situation as a boy he gradually advanced to a full fledged salesman, and in 1890 was admitted a member of the firm. He retired from the firm ten years later, but continued to remain with the house having charge of one of its important departments.

During all these years his health has been exceptionally good, and there have been but few days that he has missed going to his business. Even in late years in the severest north easters he could not be prevailed upon to remain at home, although at times he was obliged to walk to the depot as he did when a boy.

The changes have been many at the Point, especially during the past few years and while many of the older residents have moved away to more congenial locations, he is loth to give up his handsome and cosy residence where he has spent so many happy days. Mr. and Mrs. Whiton are among Quincy's most respected residents and they have the wish of all for many years of continued happiness. They have two sons, Councilman Joseph L. Whiton, Jr., and Dr. Ross K. Whiton, and four granddaughters, and when they are all together it would be hard to find a happier family.

Mr. and Mrs. Whiton are contemplating a trip to California in the near future.

Like Fred L. Jones who also retires this month he is a past master of Rural lodge of Masons.

Put This Stove in Your Kitchen

It is wonderfully convenient to do kitchen work on a stove that's ready at the instant wanted, and out of the way the moment you're done. Such a stove is the New Perfection Wick Blue Flame Oil Cook-Stove. By using it you avoid the continuous overpowering heat of a coal fire and cook with comfort, even in dog-days. The

NEW PERFECTION

is so constructed that it cannot add perceptibly to the heat of a room; the flame being directed up a retaining chimney to the stove top where it is needed for cooking. You can see that a stove sending out heat in but one direction would be preferable on a hot day to a stove radiating heat in all directions. The "New Perfection" keeps a kitchen uniformly comfortable. Three sizes, fully warranted. If not with your dealer, write our nearest agency.

The Rayo Lamp is the ideal lamp for family use—safe, convenient, economical and a great light giver. If not with your dealer, write our nearest agency.

CITY OF PRESIDENTS

Birthplace Of Two Burial Place Of Two

Old historic Quincy settled in 1625 has much of interest to visitors. When Braintree was incorporated in 1640, the territory now known as Quincy, was a part. In 1792 Quincy became an independent town, and in 1888 was incorporated as a city.

Quincy was named in honor of Col. John Quincy, descendant in the third generation from Edmund, 2d, who settled in Quincy, in 1634; grandfather of Abigail (Smith) Adams, the wife and mother of a President of the United States.

BILLIARDS ON TRAINS.

Union Pacific Railroad Contemplating Putting Tables on Its Limited.

"Through sleepers; buffet, library and billiard coaches; handsome observation cars and diners," will be an extract from prospective Union Pacific folders if the plan to install billiard tables on limited trains is carried out.

Billiards on the train! That sounds as if it might have been concocted by the corresponding secretary of the Ananias club, but rumor in railroad circles says it is an impending actuality. A quiet game of billiards while the express train whirls the players away to the Pacific coast, a little string of twenty-five points to while away that impatient hour when the diner is crowded and a second table must be awaited, a few games of balk line while the porter is making up the berths—it sounds too good to be true. Nevertheless it is actually under consideration and may become a reality any day.

A few days ago a test trip was made over the Union Pacific out of Chicago for the purpose of determining whether billiards could be played on a moving train, says the Denver Republican. A table was installed on one of the capacious observation cars on that line, and the train was run at regular speed without regard to the game in progress within. The results are said to have been remarkable. The side to side motion of the car is understood to have been so regular that one motion neutralized the other, and in consequence the balls remained stationary. The gradient of the Union Pacific being one of its remarkable features, it was found that there were long intervals when the slope of the table was so inconsiderable that it had no effect on the game. This may be understood when it is known that the maximum rise between Denver and Omaha on the Union Pacific is sixteen feet.

Naturally some difficulty was experienced when the train started and stopped, but once under way the game is said to have been feasible to a degree almost unbelievable. If the Union Pacific mechanics can devise some means of automatically adjusting the table to the level as the train ascends or descends a grade, there is every probability that billiard tables will soon be installed as part of the regular equipment on the Los Angeles limited, along with bathtubs, barber shops and other luxuries unthought of by car builders a decade ago.

NOVEL CHILD LABOR IDEA.

Kansas Man Would Have State Pay Needy Children a Per Diem Wage.

W. L. A. Johnson, commissioner of the Kansas bureau of labor and industry, has a new solution of the child labor problem, says a Topeka (Kan.) dispatch.

Mr. Johnson's plan is to pay a per diem wage to children between the ages of ten and fourteen in order that they may attend school and still have a means of at least supporting themselves without being compelled to labor in a factory.

Mr. Johnson made this suggestion in a speech before the Kansas Federation of Women's Clubs at Manhattan, Kan. He does not state what he thinks this per diem wage should be, but he thinks the state could well afford to pay a small sum and that the reduction in the amount necessary to pay for the state support of schools for delinquent children would be sufficient to pay the bill.

BELL RINGING FISH.

Ocean City Man Makes His Victims Betray Themselves.

A fisherman at Ocean City, N. J., has created a good deal of amusement by the ingenious contrivance by which he makes the fish help him to catch them.

He always has at least six or eight lines out, at a pretty good distance from one another too. Each line is tied firmly in the slot at the end of an old umbrella rib. The rib in turn is fastened at the other end to the rail of the pier. On each rib is a little bell such as are put on collars for pet animals.

When a line gets a bite the umbrella rib is bent, or at least twitched, and the little bell tinkles a summons to the fisherman. In this way the fish themselves give notice to their enemy.

Black Slugs For Society's Soup.

Black slugs are the latest delicacy. Ugh! "Beehi-de-mer" soup is made of a black slug found on the coral reefs of north Queensland, Australia, and it is announced that England will have it on its choicest bills of fare. This of course means that it will come to the United States before many moons, says the New York Press. The slug is smoke dried, and there is comfort in knowing its chief market is China. It is valued at $1,000 a ton there, and one enthusiast says it is cooked so deliciously that the memory of such a choice morsel drove him to ordering its pale reflection in England and then to drink.

A Double Shelled Egg.

A double turkey egg has been added to the Mercer county freaks by some industrious Thanksgiving hen on "Dump" Donelson's place, says a Mercer (Mo.) dispatch. Mr. Donelson took the egg to Mercer the other day for exhibition. It appeared to be a turkey egg of unusual size, probably of the double yolk variety. When broken open, however, another perfect egg with a hard shell was disclosed.

Emulation.

Now that Luther Burbank has evolved a crimson plum larger than a goose egg it is up to the geese, says the Chicago Journal, to evolve eggs larger than a crimson plum.

He Knows

Consult your doctor freely about medical matters. He knows. Trust him. Do as he says. Follow his advice.

Talk with your doctor about Ayer's non-alcoholic Sarsaparilla. Ask him if he prescribes it for pale, delicate children. Ask him if he recommends it when the blood is thin and impure, and when the nerves are weak and unsteady. Ask him if it aids nature in building up the general health. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

A memorial window in remembrance of Mrs. O. W. Allen will be dedicated with appropriate services, next Sunday morning at 10.30 o'clock at the First Congregational church.

On Sunday at Union church, Rev. Edward Norton of Quincy gave a patriotic address with ringing tones and earnest manner. The music was in accord with the national theme and was of a high order. Mr. Eugene Murphy sang in expressive tenor a devotional solo.

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Simonds of Franklin street were pleasantly surprised at their home last Friday evening by about twenty of their friends. The occasion was the eighth anniversary of their marriage and Mr. F. A. Bates, of Union street, in his original style, presented the couple with substantial tokens, which proved in a small way the esteem of the assembled friends. With bounteous refreshments and various forms of sociability the happy hours quickly fled.

The members of the Chickatawbut club held an entertainment and supper last night at their clubroom on Railroad street.

Rev. C. F. Hill Crathern delivered the Memorial address before the Grand Army of Fitzwilliam and Troy, N. H., on Saturday afternoon at one o'clock.

Tuesday afternoon the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. George Reviere died. He had been delicate from birth. A dear little baby and his parents have the sympathy of their neighbors and friends.

About one o'clock Wednesday morning someone tried to break into Frank Holbrook's house. They had opened two windows but were frightened away by the barking of the dog who awakened the family.

The Union school has been enriched by the gift of a beautiful silk flag, presented by the Auxiliary of the Sons of Veterans.

The Krow Eldeen society will meet Tuesday evening at the home of Miss Nellie Peck on Union street; the members will meet at the Public Library at 6.45. The society is planning for a "Merry Widow Social" to be held in the South M. E. church.

The opening of the championship season at Garfield Park, Weymouth, on Memorial day at 3.30 P. M., was a well matched game between the Stoughtons and Deweys of the Old Colony league. It was a great game. The Stoughton men held the lead from the start but the skillful batting of Kenneth Nash of the Deweys turned the tables and the score when the game closed declared the Deweys victors.

Mrs. Bayley, widow of Timothy Bayley, who is boarding with Mr. and Mrs. Richmond Clapp, Front street, suffered a shock of paralysis Monday. She is reported as improving slowly.

Voting Contest begins Monday.

Another Tree Appeal.

The work of tree planting on Coddington and Sea streets is completed until fall, the trees having been set out and fifty of them protected at an expense of $175. Of this amount $142.25 was contributed by abutters and friends, and the Civic Committee of the Quincy Women's club, leaving a deficit incurred for protectors. The committee would like to protect all the trees as next winter's storms will be apt to damage such young slender trees especially where the winds sweep across the meadows on Coddington street. If any tree lover or public spirited citizen cares to contribute toward this cause it will be gratefully received and acknowledged by Annie L. Prescott, Chairman Tree Com. Civic Com. Quincy Women's Club.

Motor Boat for first prize.

Worthless Creek.

Charles E. White, who claims his home as Marblehead, was arrested yesterday by Inspector McKay, for issuing a worthless check to John W. Bagnoll, a wholesale confectioner. White hired and opened a variety store in the block on Hancock street near the High school. The day he opened Bagnoll sold him twenty boxes of candy, accepting in payment a check for $9.61, drawn on the National Granite bank at Marblehead. The next day White closed up his store and moved to Wollaston. The check came back marked worthless and a warrant was issued against White. In court White pleaded guilty.

Voting Contest begins Monday.

KING'S VISIT TO CZAR

Edward's Statesmanship About to Receive Its Hardest Test

DISCUSSION OF WIDE RANGE

Considered Likely to Have a Serious Bearing on European Politics—Russia Ready to Meet England More Than Half Way

London, June 6.—King Edward, Queen Alexandra and Princess Victoria started for Reval, Russia, last night for a visit to the Emperor of Russia. A large suite accompanied the royal party. The party boarded the royal yacht Victoria and Albert at Port Victoria.

As Viewed by Russia

St. Petersburg, June 6.—The effects of King Edward's forthcoming visit to Russia are being keenly canvassed in political circles here, principally with regard to its relation to Germany, against which the trend of the king's recent policies is supposed to run.

Serious politicians are of the opinion that King Edward's statesmanship has now to face the hardest test, the initiating of more intimate relations with Russia, on whose soil he will be the first English king to set foot.

Public opinion here is ready to meet England more than half way. All political parties except the extreme reactionaries look upon an Anglo-Russian accord as natural to the completion of the chain of Franco-Russian and Anglo-French ties.

Matters to be discussed at the meeting by King Edward and Emperor Nicholas will take a wide range and particular attention will be given to the questions relating to Morocco and Macedonia, regarding which the need of a common Anglo-Russian-French policy is especially felt.

The imminence of Austrian succession also forces to the foreground the question of central Europe in which Russia is vitally interested.

An agent in favor of an Anglo-Russian understanding has been the anti-German setiment which has been artificially stimulated by the recent Slavic reunion in St. Petersburg.

Life Hanging by a Thread

New York, June 6.—O. H. P. Belmont wavers between life and death at his home in Hempstead, L. I., with his friends both apprehensive that his illness may take a fatal turn at any moment and hopeful with the passage of each hour that the patient may show signs of recovery. Belmont was found to have appendicitis and after a surgical operation Thursday he failed so rapidly that it was feared he would not survive the night.

Kept Marriage a Secret

Chicago, June 6.—The information has just become public that Mayor Fred A. Busse was married on April 29 to Miss Josephine Lee of this city. The ceremony was performed by Judge Brentano. There were only five persons present at the time of the marriage. Unusual steps were taken to keep the story quiet and even the immediate relatives of the mayor were not informed of his marriage.

Payment of Fines Aggregating 60,000

Kansas City, June 6.—Three packing companies and one railroad company, convicted in 1906 of rebating and sentenced to pay fines aggregating $60,000, have handed to the clerk of the United States court a check for the total amount of their fines. These fines were paid by Armour Packing company, Cudahy Packing company, Swift & Co., and the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad.

Improvement In Trade

New York, June 6.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says that improvement continues in commercial channels, increased manufacturing activity and seasonable weather being the dominant influences of the past week. In all leading industries there is less idle machinery, and staple lines of merchandise at retail quickly respond to the larger payrolls.

Income of Only $6000 a Month

Paris, June 6.—Counsel for Mme. Anna Gould applied to the civil tribunal to grant her a delay in the payment of $24,000 to Mme. Nemidoff, a singer, for a necklace purchased by her former husband, Count Boni de Castellane, pointing out that her income now is only $6000 a month. The court consented to the payment of $6000 each three months to the singer.

Two Hundred Annapolis Grads

Annapolis, Md., June 6.—In the presence of thousands of persons from all over the country, the 200 members of the class of 1908 were graduated from the United States naval academy. The diplomas were presented by General Porter, president of the board of visitors, who acted in place of Secretary of the Navy Metcalf, who was unable to be present.

Flora Wilson Makes Good

Paris, June 6.—Flora Wilson, daughter of James Wilson, United States secretary of agriculture, a pupil of Jean de Rezke, had a successful debut at a concert here. Society and the prominent members of the American colony were present. Miss Wilson was repeatedly encored.

MRS. MAE WOOD.

Woman Who Claims That Senator Thomas C. Platt Made Her His Wife.

Mrs. Mae Wood, who brought a suit for divorce against Senator Thomas C. Platt of New York, found herself quickly transferred from the position of plaintiff to that of a defendant by the action of the court. The judge dismissed her suit, and because of the sworn statements she had made in it she was charged with perjury, remanded for the consideration of the grand jury and in default of bail was committed to jail, being released later. Mrs. Wood said that Senator Platt married her at his apartments in the

A SNAPSHOT OF MRS. MAE WOOD.

Fifth Avenue hotel, New York, Nov. 9, 1901, and she presented to the court an alleged marriage certificate and a statement purporting to be an acknowledgment by Senator Platt that she was his wife. The senator swore that this was fraudulent, that he had never signed any such statement, had never married her or asked her to marry him and that the document purporting to have been signed by him must have been obtained through typewriting the words it contained on a sheet of paper blank except for his signature, which he often gave to persons desiring it as a souvenir.

Senator Platt's first wife died in 1901, and somewhat more than a year later, when he was about to be married again, demand was made upon him, according to the testimony of his son, Frank H. Platt, for $50,000 in return for certain letters alleged to have been written by him to Mrs. Wood. The demand was made through A. H. Hummel, the lawyer who recently served a term in prison and who is now in Europe. The letters contained no promises of marriage, according to the testimony of the younger Mr. Platt, nevertheless it was deemed best at the time to pay $10,000 in the hope of getting rid of the woman's claims.

Mrs. Wood formerly held a government position at Washington, and as she is a lawyer she promises to cross examine Senator Platt herself, if the court will permit, when her case comes to trial.

MRS. RUTH BRYAN LEAVITT.

The Talented Daughter of the Noted Democratic Statesman.

The newspapers keep William J. Bryan busy denying something or other about his daughter, Mrs. Ruth Bryan

MRS. RUTH BRYAN LEAVITT.

Leavitt. The Democratic statesman does not like this tendency of a certain class of papers to make free with his family affairs. He does not care what they say about him, but he considers that the rules of the game are violated when all sorts of yarns are invented about members of his household. He has had to deny one silly story to the effect that Mrs. Leavitt was going to take the stump next fall against Mrs. Nicholas Longworth. It appears that neither of these ladies is going into the lists as a political campaigner. Then there was the report that Mrs. Leavitt was going to get herself elected a delegate to the Denver convention from Colorado and rise in her seat at the proper time and make a speech seconding her father's nomination for president. It did not take long to settle that fabrication. But they keep coming. Mrs. Leavitt returned not long ago from a visit abroad with her mother looking very fresh and blooming. Her husband, William H. Leavitt, now maintains a studio in Paris.

Keith's Theatre.

Seasonable in every way will be the program to be presented at Keith's next week, turns of a comedy nature predominating. Digby Bell, than whom the American stage has never known a more versatile star, as witness his clever performances in many comic opera roles, is to present his newest gathering of stories and jests.

"The King of Slang," as Bert Leslie is known the country over, is to play his last vaudeville engagement in Boston prior to joining the Frohman forces. Assisted by Maude Emery, George Ryan and Dick Flower, he will play his latest skit, "Hogan in Society," for the first time in Boston.

Boston Theatre.

Adding another to the list of strong and exclusive attractions that are now being offered at the Boston Theatre, next week will see "La Tosca," the great play by Victorian Sardou and with which the name of the late Fanny Davenport will always be associated. "La Tosca" is one of the plays that will live for all time and last season it was used by Mrs. Leslie Carter, who toured the county with remarkable success. It is worth while to mention that the Boston Theatre players are the only company who have been able to secure it. "La Tosca" is a strong play and the period in which it takes place is 1800. It is in five acts and in the cast are all the leading members of the stock company.

MANY NEW BALL FINDS

American League's Crop of Recruits Better Than In Years.

CLASSY PITCHERS NUMEROUS

Manning, Vickers, Burns, Chech and Summers Have All Twirled First Class Ball—Several Catchers Look Good—Infielders and Outfielders.

Many, indeed, were the young baseball phenoms picked up by the American league scouts last season. In particular the number of classy pitchers that were gathered was remarkable. Outside of Chicago there was not an American league club that did not succeed in pulling in a star pitcher as the result of the dragnet that was thrown out last year.

Of the pitchers, Manning, Vickers, Summers and Burns have looked the best, though it is possible that others are just as good, but have lacked the chance to display their ability. This is particularly true of the Cleveland recruits, Lattimore and Chech.

Manning, the New York find, has the best record of any, he having won five out of the first six games pitched. Vickers has been the Athletics' winning pitcher this season. Burns, the Los Angeles left hander that Cantillon of the Washingtons picked up, has proved to be a phenomenal youngster. True, he has lost a few games, but that was because things broke badly for him, and it was not as much his fault as that of his team mates.

Summers, the fourth of the galaxy of star youngsters, has made a most favorable impression wherever he has performed. He was Detroit's winning pitcher at the start of the season and then had to "lay off" in consequence of a twisted ankle.

Vickers is not the only ripe young finger that Connie Mack picked up. Carter and Schlitser have done excellent work for the Athletics, and Maxwell did well enough to keep him on Connie Mack's payroll.

Graham has been the only youngster tried out by McAleer this season, but he has proved very effective against certain teams, and if he is not worked too often he looks as if he would go the route all right.

Cicotte and Burchell of Boston are only fair. Cicotte was touted as a wonder after he succeeded in downing the New Yorks, but his famed "knuckle ball" has been easy for Boston's opponents since then. Burchell evidently is not right yet, for he has not shown the form that he did with Baltimore.

The other young pitchers that have been retained on the payrolls are Graney of Cleveland, Lake of New York, Cates of Washington, Malloy and Suggs of Detroit and Freeman of Chicago. Malloy looks fairly well, while Suggs has not rounded into shape. Cates is a warm weather man and has not done anything astonishing. Freeman has not had a trial, and Graney is now out of the game with a broken finger.

The young catchers that were landed are Davidson of Cleveland, Sid Smith of Philadelphia, Street of Washington, Blue of St. Louis, Blair of New York and Carrigan of Boston. Carrigan has been tried before, but is doing better work than when with Boston two years ago. Davidson, Blue and Sweeney have not been tried, while Blair has caught but two or three games in consequence of the excellent work done by Kleinow.

The best two of the lot, however, seem to be Smith of the Athletics and Street of Washington. Street has batted hard, and Smith has also carried off his share of the honors with the stick. Each has performed creditably behind the bat.

The new infielders are Atz of Chicago, Killifer of Detroit, Perring of Cleveland, Ball of New York, McConnell and Lord of Boston, McBride and Freeman of Washington. The two "live ones" in this bunch are Ball and McConnell, with Lord a fair third.

McConnell has proved to be a fast fielder and a sensational batter, leading the league in hitting for a couple of weeks. When Elberfeld was spiked Ball was called upon to go to short. Elberfeld's absence has not been felt in the least, Ball doing some sensational fielding and timely hard hitting.

Lord is said to be almost as fast as Thoney in getting down to first base. Atz has done nothing wonderful for Chicago, but has fielded acceptably. Killifer has had but two chances to show what he could do, but his batting more than made up for his errors.

Perring, who is always slow to get started, was only fair at first, but later he was fielding splendidly, and Cleveland is sure to retain him as utility infielder. McBride has been up in the big leagues. He is a weak batter. Freeman is a good first sacker, but will not break up the league with his batting.

As for the outfielders, there are several new men that are sure to be carried all year as regulars. Foremost among them are Josh Clarke of the Naps and Thoney of Boston. Clarke has proved to be a good man to lead off the batting order for Cleveland, while Thoney's batting ability and speed have made him very popular with the fans of the Hub. Gessler, Cravath and McHale have done fairly well for McGuire, but Thoney has performed much better in every way.

The other youngsters that are still on the American league payroll are Pitcher and Utility Man Criss and Outfielder Schweitzer of St. Louis, Outfielder Moran of Philadelphia and Utility Man Eddie Collins of the same team. Collins, however, has been carried by Mack for two years.

TAFT GETS THE POLE

Delegates Favorable to Him Get Seats In Convention

ALABAMA CONTEST SETTLED

Secretary of War Assured of First Nomination Speech--Taft Delegates From Arkansas Also Landed--Hitchcock Protest Tabled

Chicago, June 6.—Without rollcalls, the Republican national committee decided the contests from Alabama and Arkansas, involving twenty-four seats in the Republican national convention, in favor of the delegates instructed for Secretary Taft. The victory for the Taft forces was sweeping, not even a division being required to determine the will of the committee.

The proceedings would have been devoid of interest had it not been for an effort to prevent Frank H. Hitchcock, the Taft manager, and Arthur E. Statter and Charles G. Phelps, both assistants to Hitchcock, from sitting in judgment on the contests. These men held proxies of the members of the national committee from New Mexico, Alaska and North Dakota, respectively. Their entrance into the executive session of the national committee provoked Joseph B. Keating, manager for Vice President Fairbanks, and Representative Burke, who acts in a similar capacity for Senator Knox, to make vehement protests from the outside.

After a hurried conference between representatives of all the anti-Taft forces, it was decided to reduce the protests to writing and have them presented to the committee before the contests were taken up. When this had been done the protests were sent to W. F. Aldrich, one of the contesting delegates-at-large from the Scott-Davidson anti-Taft delegation from Alabama. It recited the fact that Hitchcock is directly interested in the management of one of the candidates directly involved in the case, and "therefore disqualified to sit in judgment" upon it. It also declared that Hitchcock did not reside and is not a qualified voter in the territory he claims to represent, and was not a regularly or properly chosen national committeeman from that territory. The same representations were made in regard to Statter and Phelps, except that they were termed "employes" instead of a "manager" for one of the candidates.

Mr. Aldrich presented the protest to the committee and in connection stated that he did not regard it proper that they should be compelled to present their arguments to members who had an "interest" in the outcome.

Debate on the question was shut off by A. M. Stevenson, the member from Colorado, who promptly moved to lay the protest on the table. The motion carried. The Alabama contests, affecting twenty-two delegates, were then taken up.

In spite of the fact that the number of contests was so large and that it was known that some of them would be fought with exceeding bitterness, the feeling among members of the committee was cordial in the extreme. Among the last to arrive were Senators Crane and Lodge of Massachusetts. The former is a member of the committee and was warmly greeted by his colleagues. "Let me in on that," said Lodge, "for I am the Filipino member." Sure enough, the senator had a proxy from Henry D. McCoy, the member from the Philippine Islands.

It was decided that in the case of contests involving the delegates-at-large thirty minutes for each side will be allowed for the presentation of arguments and fifteen minutes will be allowed each side in district contests. Provision was made, however, for the consolidation of cases from one state where the issues are identical and also for using the same evidence in such contests.

The Alabama cases, by agreement of all parties concerned, were consolidated and therefore two hours were given to each side. It was regarded as the most important of all the contests, because of the fact that twenty-two delegates were involved, and it is first in the list of states that will be called in the convention when nominations are being made. The candidate securing the delegation from Alabama is to be the first placed in nomination, because the state having no candidate of its own always yields to the state presenting the candidate favored by Alabama.

The Scott-Davidson faction, being the first to file its contest, was given one and one-half hours to open, the Thompson faction following with two hours, and the Scott-Davidson people closing in half an hour.

After the arguments had been made, all except members of the national committee were excluded from the room and a few minutes later it was known that the Taft delegates had been seated. There was no demand for a rollcall and on the viva voce expression it is said that only Scott of Alabama voted for the seating of the delegates elected by his faction.

The Arkansas contest, involving the two delegates from the Fifth congressional district, was then taken up. Only half an hour was devoted to it and the committee voted without a dissenting voice to seat the delegation instructed for Taft. The other delegation claimed to be for Taft's nomination also, but it was not instructed.

All of the members of the committee were present in person except fifteen. Thirteen of these were represented by proxies, and J. E. Addicks, the member from Delaware, and J. W. Brock, the member from Vermont, were absent and were not represented.

Money Was From General Fund

New York, June 6.—Whatever money was sent to Nebraska for use in the campaign of 1904 was taken from the general fund of the Democratic national committee, which was made up of voluntary contributions from many persons, according to a letter written by William F. Sheehan of this city to W. J. Bryan on June 1 and just made public. The letter bears upon the allegation which has been published that Thomas F. Ryan contributed $15,000 to the state campaign in Nebraska in 1904 through William F. Sheehan, chairman of the Democratic national committee, who, it was charged, gave the money to T. S. Allen of Nebraska.

Hoke Gets the Hook

Atlanta, June 6.—Official returns from 126 counties and unofficial counts from the remaining twenty of the votes cast in the Democratic primary give Joseph M. Brown, for governor, a majority of 12,000 over Hoke Smith.

Duma Gets After Admiral

St. Petersburg, June 6.—The duma has taken up the discussion of certain interpellations regarding alleged faults in the construction of the cruiser Rurik. After listening to an explanation from Vice Minister of Marine Admiral Bostrem, it passed a unanimous vote of dissatisfaction and demanded that those guilty of communicating the secrets of Russian gun, shell and armor construction to the English firm that built the cruiser be brought to trial.

To Make City Up to Date

Washington, June 6.—President Roosevelt has directed Governor Magoon to issue a decree which will result in the construction of water works and sewer system for Cienfuegos, Cuba, the entire expense of which shall be borne by the Cuban government. The work is to be done by Hugh J. Reilly of New York. Cienfuegos' efforts to get the work done have been continuous for the past forty years.

Eight Killed In Collision of Cars

Annapolis, Md., June 6.—In a head-on collision between two special electric cars eight persons were killed and a score of others were seriously injured, some of them perhaps fatally. The collision was due to a confusion of orders, as the line had been running several extra cars each way in connection with the commencement festivities at the naval academy.

A Mile In 38 3-5 Seconds

New York, June 6.—Road records for automobiles were broken during the races held in connection with the subway opening celebration at Jamaica, L. I. One mile over a road was covered in 38 3-5 seconds by a car driven by Herman Kilpatrick. This was at the rate of 93.26 miles an hour. Seven other cars bettered the time-honored mark of a mile in 51 4-5.

Government Sues Railroads

Philadelphia, June 6.—More promptly than was expected, the United States government has begun suit against seven coal-carrying railroads, under the "commodities clause" of the act to regulate commerce, by filing in the United States court here a bill in equity and a petition for an alternative writ of mandamus, which was granted and will be argued June 16.

10,000 Miners to Resume Work

Cleveland, June 6.—Coal operators and miners of the eastern Ohio district reached a two-year agreement after a stormy session. All differences were amicably adjusted and work in all mines will be resumed in the eastern Ohio field, where 10,000 miners are employed. The scale decided upon is the same as that of two years ago.

Collapse of Lord Tweedmouth

London, June 6.—Lord Tweedmouth, lord president of the council, has been ordered to take the rest cure in the country, owing to a nervous breakdown. It is understood that Tweedmouth is not likely again to be seen in the house of lords and is even not in a condition to write a letter of resignation.

Ten Thousand Fighting Flood

Missoula, Mont., June 6.—The flood situation in western Montana is more serious than it has been at any time since the thirty-day rain began. The fight against the waters is being carried on by 10,000 men, but the water is gaining steadily, and the rain continues to fall in torrents.

Disinclined to Answer Questions

New York, June 6.—Thomas A. McIntyre, senior member of the suspended stock brokerage firm of T. A. McIntyre & Co., in his examination in bankruptcy proceedings, took refuge behind the contention that to answer certain questions would tend to degrade and incriminate him.

Winter Mixes With Summer

Butte, Mont., June 6.—Eight inches of snow on the level, washed into slush by a driving rain, has cut Butte off from the outside world. No telephone lines, street car or power lines are working and many mines are closed, having lost their electrical power.

Ruth's Aunt Mehitable.

By ANNE HEILMAN.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

Hetty Peters sat gazing out of her window across the closely cropped lawn, past the garden of many hued roses and away to the woods, all white with dogwood and purple with violets. She held a letter in her hand. Not in many a long year had Hetty's face worn such an expression of woe.

"If you please, ma'am," awakened her from the trance. She turned to the cook and gave her orders for the day. Then, with a sigh, she opened the letter and reread it:

Dear Aunt Mehitable—Papa and Jessie Miller will be married Tuesday morning and sail for Europe the same day on an extended trip. So I shall leave college and go home to look after you.

The Stirlings are here for the wedding. You know they are related to Jessie. Fred looks as old as his father. They have made a mint of money mining in Colorado and intend to buy back their estate and settle down as our nearest neighbors again. No place like the south, they declare. Papa invited them to make our house their home while negotiations are pending. Business will detain Mr. Stirling in Boston for a few weeks, but Fred will come to town with me. Expect us on Thursday. Your loving RUTH.

"Jessie's a dear soul. I hope they'll be very happy," Hetty murmured to herself, "but I never thought John would marry again. And Ruth coming back a year before I expected! This'll never seem like home to me any more."

Hetty Peters was single. She had never had a lover, had never looked for one and, incredible as it may seem, had never wished for one. She had been altogether too busy, first, in looking after a younger sister and brother, and, second, in caring for her delicate mother, to consider her matrimonial prospects. The brother and sister had grown up, married and moved north. Her mother's death had left her alone.

When her elder brother's wife died she had gone to live with him, and for several years her existence had been happy if monotonously uneventful. Now came the disquieting news of John's second marriage and of her niece's unexpected return.

Ruth had a decided predilection for managing everything and everybody she came in contact with. Her aunt had always trembled before her. Ruth was the only one who remembered her baptismal name, and Hetty detested it, but Ruth persisted in calling her Aunt Mehitable.

"Perhaps she intends to marry Fred!" Hetty reflected hopefully. "If she does, of course he'll have to give in. He was a nice looking boy when he left. I remember I kissed him goodby, he seemed such a boy, and he is a year older than I am."

On Thursday Miss Peters was at the station when the northern train arrived. While she was watching the outcoming passengers from one car a hand touched swiftly her arm, and a pleasant voice exclaimed, "Hetty, you have not changed a bit since we parted."

"I've grown fifteen years older," she answered, giving her hand to a tall, bronzed, handsome man, whose dark eyes were scrutinizing her admiringly.

"I know it," he replied. "So have I"—

"Fred, loosen that checkrein. Aunt Mehitable, how could you drive this horse in such a condition? You really need some one to look after you!"

And Hetty realized, with a pang, that Ruth had come back to her own.

"No tea for me," she commanded at the dinner table. "Aunt Mehitable, I'm surprised at you! Any doctor will tell you that tannic acid is a rank poison. It's positively criminal to use tea or coffee when one can have fresh milk."

The next morning Ruth's sway began.

"Just up?" she called out as Hetty made her appearance at 7 o'clock. "I've been up for hours. I shall move the breakfast time an hour earlier, and you must come for a walk every morning before breakfast. It will do you a world of good." And Aunt Hetty, realizing the futility of argument where Ruth was concerned, miserably acquiesced.

"Is it possible you sleep on a feather bed?" exclaimed Ruth that evening, unexpectedly invading her aunt's room. "Don't you know that feathers are not sanitary? You need some one to look after you, Aunt Mehitable."

"I'm not so old as that," protested Hetty.

"It isn't altogether a matter of age; it's temperament. You take life like a grasshopper. You really do need some one. Of course you'll have me until"—

"Until you marry?" suggested Hetty.

"I have been thinking of it," Ruth admitted complacently. "By the way, how do you like Fred?"

"I think he is in every way desirable. I don't believe any woman could ask for a better husband."

"I'm glad to hear you say so," said Ruth. "Was his father a good husband?"

"I do not remember Fred's mother. She died when I was very young. But I always understood they were very happy."

"I met Mr. Stirling frequently at Jessie's," said Ruth. "He came to Boston on business. If Fred is like his father I'm sure he'll make a good husband. We were talking about you this afternoon. He thinks you look younger than I do, and he thinks, as I do, that you need some one to take care of you. He really takes a great interest in you, Aunt Mehitable."

"He takes a great interest in you apparently, which is more to the point," ejaculated her exasperated aunt. "Do you mean to pretend that you don't want Fred to be fond of you?"

"Why, of course," asserted Ruth as she rose to leave the room. "Of course I hope Fred is going to be fond of me. I shall have that feather bed taken up to the garret tomorrow morning, Aunt Mehitable."

In the days that followed Hetty found herself taken in hand and "looked after" with a thoroughness that reduced her to the verge of melancholia. All her actions and movements were regulated by her energetic niece, who decided what she should eat, what she should drink and wherewithal she should be clothed.

"Ruth is so systematic," said Hetty loyally when Fred awkwardly attempted to condole with her. "She has such executive ability. She's really wonderful."

"She is, indeed," Fred assented. "She is a perfect example of what the higher education can do for a woman. But, joking aside, I don't think she's an awfully good sort, and I'm fonder of her than any other girl I know. This is a very pleasant day. Can't you come for a row on the river, Hetty?"

"N-no. I have some work that must be attended to," she faltered.

"You haven't given me any of your attention since I've been here," he complained. "You're not treating me right, Hetty."

"But—Ruth"— Hetty began in surprise.

Fred rose to his feet.

"Hetty," he said, "I want you to know something. When I left for the west, you kissed me goodby. Oh, I know you felt nothing but friendship for your old playfellow, and it sounds silly to say, but it's true, I've never kissed another woman. I meant to tell you some day, and now that"— He paused. "I promised not to say anything until Ruth told you, but"—

"I understand," said Hetty softly.

"Did she tell you?" he asked.

"Not in so many words, but I think she meant me to understand. I am so glad."

"It began last winter," said Fred. "I'm glad too. I think we're all going to be very happy."

"Aunt Mehitable," broke in Ruth's crisp voice, "here's a telegram from Mr. Stirling. He will arrive this evening."

The interruption was welcome to Hetty. She felt that she could not have endured another word.

Hetty spent the remainder of the day in her room. Fred and Ruth waved their hands gayly when she drove off to the station to meet Mr. Stirling. How well they looked together, she thought. Something in the sight stirred a strain of sadness in her. She seemed to realize for the first time that she had been cheated out of her girlhood.

Absorbed in her sad musings, she absentmindedly took a turning which made her drive longer by half a mile. When she reached the station Mr. Stirling had already started for the Pines.

Hetty drove back slowly. The full moon arose and the air was sweet with the scent of roses, but Hetty had no thoughts for the beauty of the night.

She threw the reins to the stable boy and took a short cut for the house. She was in no mood to join the family party and intended to go quietly to her room.

As she passed the rose garden she caught sight of Ruth's white dress in the shrubbery. Ruth's face was upturned to her companion, and—yes, he had taken her in his arms. It was Ruth's kiss Fred would remember now.

Hetty sat down on a rustic seat under a live oak. The meaning of it all swept over her. She was thirty-four, and there had never been moonlight or a rose garden for her. She had always left love out of her plans for herself, and now it was Fred, Ruth's Fred, out there in the rose garden, and she was alone with the emptiness of thirty-four unlived years—alone and old. Her eyes filled with scalding tears, and she sobbed aloud.

"Why, Hetty, what on earth are you crying about?"

Fred sat down beside her and gathered her in his arms.

"Don't cry, dearest," he implored. "Tell me what the trouble is. Don't you want dad to have Ruth? Why, I"—

"Your father!" gasped Hetty. "Is that who she's with?"

"Why, of course," said Fred. "I told you all about it."

Hetty sprang up in astonishment.

"I expected her to marry you," she cried.

He laughed softly.

"I didn't. She knew all along that I wanted to marry you. She's been doing all she could to make the match. She knew you needed some one to look after you."

The Seven Prophets.

"The late Duke of Devonshire," said a diplomat at a Washington dinner, "kept a stud and took a calm and decent interest in the races. There was a certain sporting paper that kept a large staff of prophets and always prophesied the outcome of important races. The duke for some reason put great reliance in these prophets and their prophecies. He always read the paper, and he continually recommended it to his friends. But once at Goodwood, at the day's end, a man came up to the duke and said:

"'What of your paper now? Did you see it this morning? Six prophets prophesied that six different horses would win, and here only seven ran, and the winner was the seventh, which no prophet had selected. Well, what have you to say now?'

"'All I have to say,' the duke answered calmly, 'is that there's room for another prophet on that paper.'"

Brick Veneer Dwelling.

Much Warmer Than a Frame House, Much Cheaper Than Solid Brick—Cost $4,000.

Copyright, 1908, by P. T. MacLagan, 695 Broad Street, Newark, N. J.

PERSPECTIVE VIEW.

FIRST FLOOR PLAN. SECOND FLOOR PLAN.

This design is especially adapted to a narrow lot, but should be effective in almost any situation. It has a frontage of twenty-six feet. It is a pleasant house to look at and a convenient one to live in, having four nice rooms on the first floor, besides the reception hall and five large bedrooms in the second story. The house is built in what is commonly called the veneer style, one thickness of brick over wooden sheathing. It is much warmer than a frame dwelling and costs much less than a solid brick one. The estimated cost is $4,000.

P. T. MAC LAGAN.

SEA BOTTOM IN MINIATURE.

To Be Reproduced From Coral In a Natural History Museum.

Dr. R. E. Dahlgren of the American Museum of Natural History in New York city recently returned from the Bahama islands, bringing with him nearly 200 cases of coral. It is the purpose of Dr. H. C. Bumpus, director of the museum, to cut out a section of the first floor of the museum building and reproduce below the level of the floor a representation of the bottom of the sea showing coral reefs in all stages of development. The section of floor to be cut out will be 6 by 30 feet.

When the reproduction of the reef and sea bottom has been completed the flooring will be replaced by a rectangle of heavy plate glass. The work so far has been quite expensive, and the actual installation of the reef will be a task of a very delicate and tedious character, requiring probably six months for completion. It will be under the direction of Dr. Dahlgren and Mr. Miller, also of the museum, who went to the Bahamas with him.

Dr. Dahlgren, while in the Bahamas, got an unusually complete collection of coral and scores of excellent photographs showing the live and tender polyps in the actual coral making.

HATLESS IN CHURCH FOR $50.

How Women Are Helping to Raise a New Building Fund.

By removing their hats in church the ladies of the Congregational church in Keokuk, Ia., are all helping to raise $50 for the new building which is now being put up on the corner of Sixth and High streets.

Some time ago one of the attendants at the church when asked for a subscription to the building fund agreed to give $50 if the women of the church would remove their hats during service. He had been there so often and sat behind a "Merry Widow" that he thought it a good plan for the ladies to take their hats off during the service.

The word was passed around, and now at each service on Sunday the ladies take off their hats, says the Keokuk Gate City, and are helping in this way to add $50 to the building fund.

A friend of the first man has agreed to raise his friend's donation of $50 just $10 on the same proposition, so there is now a fund of $110 awaiting the new building if the ladies will do their part.

And they are doing it.

BET WON ON KEEPING SILENT

Man Piled Bricks For Ten Hours Without Answering Questions.

The open season for fool bets is on in St. Charles, a suburb of St. Louis. That's the reason for the queer antics of Edward Boston.

Boston went to work at 7 the other morning to furnish diversion for a big crowd at Fifth and Decatur streets, the busiest corner in St. Charles. On a wager of $5 with six young men whose names he would not divulge he agreed to work ten hours without speaking to any one.

All he had to do was to pile six bricks on the curb on one side of the street and then carry them over to the other side and pile them there and back again all day long.

Several hundred persons watched him as he trudged back and forth with the bricks. They asked him questions and hurled taunts at him, but he kept his lips tightly shut, and at 5 p. m. he had won the bet.

Great Hawaiian Dock.

It has practically been decided by the navy department, on the advice of the naval officers who have to do with the preparedness of ships for war, to make the dock at the new Pearl Harbor station the largest of the naval structures of that sort. It will be of the granite concrete type, which is best suited to withstand the influences of climate and resist the encroachments of water, and large enough to take in battleships which may be designed in the next twenty-five years. There is a difference of expert opinion as to the ultimate size of ships, some officers believing that the battleship has attained its maximum size. Others maintain that the 30,000 ton battleship is not far off. At all events, the Pearl Harbor dock will probably be nearly 900 feet in length. It will be no mistake to give the dock its largest possible dimensions, since a big dock can be used in accommodating several ships and the space is not wasted. It is also purposed that the Pearl Harbor station shall be a model of its kind. It will cost in its completed state about $10,000,000, since it will have elaborate coaling, cold storage and handling facilities as well as a plant for repairing ships.

Mosquito Killing Cactus.

Cactus, instead of petroleum, is the mosquito exterminator that is being tested by the sanitary authorities of Gaboon, French Africa. The thick pulpy leaves are cut up and macerated in water, and the sticky paste so formed is spread over stagnant pools, giving the isolating layer that destroys the mosquito larvae by preventing them from coming up to breathe. The paste retains its place for weeks and months, while the petroleum quickly dries up and disappears in the fierce heat of a tropical sun.

Memorial Day, 1908.

After the sob and breath held fast
As the thin blue ranks march slowly past,
After bared head and swimming eye
As the shreds of the battleflags go by,
There come the sturdy lines of sons
And grandsons of our honored ones,
And, while the cheers arouse the air,
Again the sob and then a prayer—
O Lord, keep these from passing through
The hell their grizzled fathers knew!
—H. C. Faulkner in New York World.

The bride wore a dainty gown of white organdie trimmed with valenciennes lace and a tulle veil fastened with white sweet peas, with a corsage bouquet of the same flowers. ## Historical League Visit Quincy

The annual meeting and outing of the Bay State Historical League was held in Quincy Saturday afternoon. About 65 were present representing sixteen historical societies. The party arrived at 1.59 and went direct to the birthplace of President John Quincy Adams where they were entertained by the Quincy Historical society. George W. Morton, Emery L. Crane, Rev. Dr. Edwin N. Hardy, Fred B. Rice and Rev. Ellery C. Butler, assisted by several ladies, doing the honors of the occasion.

The old house never looked more attractive than it did on this occasion. Benjamin King the care taker has been hard at work for some time putting things in shape and the result of his labors was apparent. The floors and all the woodwork has been cleaned and painted and everything looked spic and span.

Here the annual meeting of the league was held. President W. C. Eddy of Medford presided, and made an address of welcome during which he told of the work of the league during the past year. This was followed by a business session. The by-laws were amended so as to provide that the admission fee shall be one dollar and the annual dues two dollars. A vice president was also added to the list of officers of the league.

Then came the election of officers the following being elected:

President—W. C. Eddy of Medford.

Vice president — John Albon of Swampscott.

Secretary—John F. Ayer of Wakefield.

Treasurer—Howard M. Newhall of Lynn.

Executive committee—F. E. Fowle of Arlington, Charles F. Reed of Brookline, Charles G. Chick of Hyde Park and F. W. Woodward of Malden.

After the meeting the party was taken through the birthplace of President John Adams. Special cars were then taken to the Adams shrine beneath the First church. The party also went to the Dorothy Q. house where they finished up the day.

Mission Study Club Outing.

The final meeting for the year of the young ladies of the Mission Study club connected with the Wollaston Congregational church, was held at the summer residence of one of its members, Miss Annie Perry, at Green Harbor, Saturday and Sunday, at which time a large number of the members were given a most enjoyable time. In spite of the many attractions of the place, the young ladies carried out their regular study, which this year has been that of Hawaii, and made plans for the coming year. The party also visited the home of Webster, which is in the immediate neighborhood. Altogether the outing was one of great enjoyment and profit.

Busy Bee First.

A number of Quincy yachts participated in the race of the Mosquito Fleet Yacht club off City Point on Saturday afternoon.

The best racing was in the Cape Cat class in which a number of Quincy boats participated. The Iris of ex-Commodore F. F. Crane led the fleet home, but lost to the Busy Bee on allowance. The race between these two boats was a close one from start to finish. Other boats in this class finished, in this order: Josephine, Arawak, Stridway, Mudjekeewis, Emeline, Eleanor and Almira.

Wollaston club boats sailed in the Class B and S of the Interclub classes and Commodore Dawes got a second with the Wawenock in Class S.

Motor Boat for first prize.

FORTY-FIFTH PSALM

The Subject of Dr. Gifford's Commencement Day Address

Commencement week at the Quincy Mansion school began Sunday by a sermon to the graduating class by Rev. O. P. Gifford, D. D., of Brookline. The service was held in Livermore hall at 4.30 o'clock, and was attended by a large number of friends of the school. It opened with a hymn, and Rev. Dr. Barbour of Wollaston offered prayer.

Rev. Mr. Gifford took for his text the 13th and 14th verses of the 45th Psalm "The King's daughter is all glorious within."

He said in part:

"The 45th Psalm is a marriage song. Date and author are unknown. The singer gives a description of the king; he is noble in appearance, courtly in manner, brave in battle, but neither court nor camp can content him; like the first man of Bible record he finds no satisfaction. In a palace in Egypt sits a king's daughter waiting for his coming. Her garments are in keeping with her home, embroidered, shot through with gold threads.

"Clothes should express character as fruit expresses the life of the tree. Woe betide the man who learns that the beautiful garments are not expressive of a beautiful life, that the woman of his choice is a sort of Christmas tree decorated by taste beyond her, that the clothes are fit for the palace but do not express the life of the wearer. That she is a stage, not a real queen; a whited sepulchre, fair without but within full of selfishness. Dressmakers see to it that the clothes are in keeping with the palace, but only the woman can see to it that she is in keeping with her beautiful garments.

"Great bitterness of soul follows when a man finds his choice for life is a draped dummy, that the beautiful hat covers a blockhead. Read the Merchant of Venice and learn the disappointment of life to the princes who chose gold and silver and got Death's head and an idiot. Make the contents fit the cover. Be all beautiful within.

"Life is not measured by palace and garments but by character. Education has more to do with what the head covers than with what covers the head. Kind hearts are more than coronets and simple faith than Norman blood. Put the emphasis on a meek and quiet spirit rather than on plaiting the hair, wearing gold and putting on of apparel.

"Dr. Huntington points out four enemies to the symmetry of a woman's character:—1—Social ambition. Vulgar appetite for external distinctions. Marketing the tender sanctities of life for social honor; 2—Appetite for admiration. Selling the soul, if not the body, for praise of man. Living beyond means, bankrupting hard-worked fathers and husband for social applause; 3—Passion for excitement, haunting theatres, dances, card tables, horse tracks for thrills. Titillating the poor nerves till they are tangled, hunting the face of the earth for a new excitement; 4—The dull drudgery of domestic duties.

"The foam on the top and the dregs at the bottom are alike unfit to drink. Excitement and drudgery are alike soul-suicide. We read in these days about waste of natural resources; the President calls the Governors into council to guard the national wealth but the waste of things is a trifle to the waste of life. When substance is wasted the prodical may seek his father's resources, but when the real life is wasted there is no waiting reservoir of the years and strength.

"Men may build palaces, workmen may weave cloths, women may make dresses, but each one must make his own character. Buildings waste away, clothes fret away, but inward beauty abides. Your mind is your real kingdom. Born to palaces, born to the purple, make yourselves all beautiful within. The mind is its own place and in itself can make a heaven of hell, a hell of heaven. You can become what you will, and what you are is more than where you are and what you have."

Dr. Gifford paid a tribute to the Memory of Dr. Willard, and on the piano stood an excellent large photograph of Dr. Willard in a heavy silver frame beside which a small vase of forgetmenot had been placed by a loving hand.

Floral Sunday At First Church

The annual floral Sunday of the Sunday school of the First church was held Sunday morning. The service was largely attended, the Sunday school occuping the seats immediately off the centre aisle. The front of the pulpit was covered with flowers. The service was very interesting.

After the organ prelude came the processional, during which the school with its corps of teachers marched in from the chapel. Then came an anthem by the choir and opening verse of the baptismal rite by the school.

Then followed the baptismal service by Rev. Ellery Channing Butler, the pastor. The children baptized being: Warren Greene Ogden, Jr., Charles Irving Stoddard and Floyd Perkins Macdonald.

The remainder of the program included scripture reading, prayer and response, responsive reading and scripture liturgy interspersed with the singing of carols by the school.

The reading of a verse in loving remembrance of Mary Thayer Slade who died Nov. 13, 1907, followed.

Then came the annual reports of the officers of the Sunday school, address to the school by Rev. Ellery Channing Butler; and the presentation of diplomas for the best attendance at Sunday school during the past year. The reports of Sunday school officers were very satisfactory and encouraging, showing the total enrollment of the school to be 202.

BRAVE RESCUE

At Houghs Neck Fire Which Threatened to be A Conflagration

Houghs Neck was threatened with a conflagration early this morning which was only averted by the prompt and intelligent work of the Houghs Neck fire department. Under the old condition of affairs which existed a few years ago a large section of the summer resort would have been wiped out,

The large Peterson block on Sea street, a three-story structure of wood, was the scene, and it is in a thickly settled district near Brown's dance hall, the Pandora hotel, post office, Sea Street Dream, an dother buildings.

But Combination No. 3 was on the spot before the last stroke of the alarm from Box 17. When Capt. Ross realized that a conflagration might result he promptly sent in a second alarm.

The Houghs Neck company got to work like veterans, and there were many volunteers. They held the fire in check until the Steamer and other apparatus arrived from Quincy. Even then it was the work of over three hours for the "all out" signal was not given until after 5 o'clock.

It was about 1.45 A. M. when Officer Thorne discovered the fire which started in the bakery. He quickly pulled in the alarm and then broke into the building and aroused the tenants. On the second floor were Mr. Peterson and his baker and also Mr. Clancy who were rescued. For a while nobody thought of Mrs. Bertha Merrill and her daughter Dora, aged 6, who had apartments on the third floor. Then Frank Collins thought of them and asked for volunteers to go to the rescue. A half dozen started up the stairway but it was too hot for five of them, and they left Mr. Collins alone. He pushed ahead and was successful in finding Mrs. Merrill, and carrying her in an almost unconscious condition to the window. With assistance she was saved, and also the little girl.

Under the direction of John Cusick of the Steamer club a line was formed which passed out and saved considerable of the stock in the store of Mr. Peterson which was not insured.

Mayor Shea responded in his automobile on the second alarm and also all the apparatus at the Central fire station.

The loss on the building was about $1,500 and on the contents about $1,000. The building was insured but Mr. Peterson had no insurance on the stock

Damage at Granite Plant

Unknown parties entered the engine house of Thomas Bishop on Brook road sometime between Saturday night and this morning and ruined a valuable electric generator. The generator is one that is used to operate his derrick and pneumatic tools. The parties poured a can of acid over the machine, then a can of oil and lastly a keg of small nails. It was a dastardly piece of work.

On Trial For Incendiarism

George Mores, proprietor of the market in the Pinel block on Water street was arrested Saturday night on two warrants charging him with setting fire and burning insured property, on the morning of May 17.

On the morning in question the Fire department was called out by an alarm from Box 37 at 2.58 to find a brisk fire in progress at Mores' store. The fire had made great headway before discovered, and the building was badly gutted before it was extinguished. Chief Williams estimated the loss on the building at $400 and $400 on the contents.

The cause of the fire at the time was unknown. The circumstances surrounding it were somewhat suspicious and Chief William promptly notified the State Fire Marshal's office. Inspector Shaw was put on the case and he made a thorough investigation. Saturday morning he came to Quincy and swore out the warrants which were placed in the hands of Officer Broberg, who later made the arrest. Morris was arraigned in court this morning.

The hearing on the cases took up the greater part of the day at the district court. Inspector Shaw of the fire marshal's office looked after the government case, and J. J. McAnarney was counsel for the defendant.

A large number of witnesses were sworn who testified to the thick black smoke, and the odor of kerosene oil in the building on the morning of the fire, also to finding a bundle of wrapping paper that had been saturated with oil.

Several witnesses had been examined up to 1 o'clock, at which time the court took a recess until 2 o'clock. The case was not finished until late this afternoon.

Tablet Dedicated To Gov. Belcher

A bronze tablet to the memory of Gov. Jonathan Belcher was unveiled and dedicated at the Mission of Our Saviour church at East Milton on Sunday afternoon by the Colonial Dames.

Ex-Governor John D. Long made the dedicatory address and spoke of the life of Gov. Gelcher and the early history of Massachusetts.

The tablet was unveiled by Mrs. Barrett Wendell, and there was addresses by Rev. W. R. Roberts, Rev. Roderic Stebbins, Rev. Ira White and Rev. George W. Credeford.

The incription on the tablet reads: "1682-1757, in memory of Jonathan Belcher, Esq., born at Cambridge, Mass.; graduated at Harvard college 1699, captain, general and governor-in-chief of the province of Massachusetts Bay and New Hampshire, 1730-1741 and of the Province of New Jersey 1746-1757. He was one of the founders and procured the church of Princeton college, and bequeathed it to his memory. He died at Elizabethtown, N. J., but by his own desire he was buried in his native town of Cambridge. This tablet in a church built on what was once his farm, is erected by the Colonial Dames of Massachusetts, 1908."

Probation Officer Met His Match

For once, Probation Officer Francis A. Spear has met his match in a rapid fire talker in the person of Annie Brith. According to the testimony in court. Annie had two lovers and both met at her home last week. For a time all was peaceful; then it is alleged one of the lovers became jealous of the attention the other was receiving, and blacked Annie's eye. Annie visited the court and swore out a warrant for the arrest of Charles Hocking.

When the case was called in court this morning Judge Avery got an inkling of how rapid Annie could talk and promptly turned the case over to the probation officer. The parties were taken into his office and for fifteen minutes there was such a flow of talk that Frank was nearly floored. He tried several times to interject a question, but it was no use. During a lucky minute while Annie stopped to take breath, the parties were hustled out, and the case continued until Tuesday morning for the court to dispose of.

THE ANTI-TAFT CAMP

Will Get No Concessions, Except by Complete Surrender

ALLIES RECALL STATEMENT

Will Continue to Present Contests to National Committee, but Decisions Will Not Be Taken as Final Where "Injustice Has Been Done"

Chicago, June 8.—Representatives of the "allies" have recalled their statement that they will bolt the Republican national committee, so far as the presentation of evidence to support the claims of anti-Taft delegations from southern states is concerned.

There is evidence that the announcement made Saturday night on the authority of Representative Burke, manager for Senator Knox, after he had consulted with others identified with the campaign of the "allies," created dissension. Some of the other spokesmen for the "allies" declare the announcement ill-advised and they are busying themselves in counteracting its effect. After numerous conferences the following "statement from the allies" was issued:

"Upon the authority of the representatives of all of the presidential candidates other than Secretary of War Taft, it was announced that they would continue to present their side of the contested delegate cases to the national committee. The decision of the national committee will not be taken as final by the candidates known as the 'allies,' but an appeal will be taken in cases where it is believed injustice has been done, first to the committee on credentials and later to the convention itself.

"The determination of the representatives of the 'allies' to continue the presentation of their side of the contests to the national committee is not to be taken as an indication that they approved of the manner in which these contests have been decided. But in order to be in a position to present all of the cases in proper form to the committee on credentials, it is deemed advisable to comply with the form of procedure laid down by the national committee.

"It is the firm determination of the representatives of the 'allies' first to give the national committee an opportunity to consider all the contests on their merits."

It is generally believed that the announcement made Saturday night was designed to test public sentiment and to influence the Taft forces to compromise. That the effect was not what the "allies" expected was admitted by a number of men who had knowledge of the entire proceeding. Senator Crane of Massachusetts, who has been recognized as one of the chief advisors of the anti-Taft movement, said that the announcement should not have been made.

If the Taft managers hold by their declarations, and it is evident that the attitude of the managers of the local headquarters reflect the situation in Washington, concessions to the anti-Taft camp can be gained by it only by a complete surrender. Arthur I. Vorys, one of the Taft managers, Representative McKinley, chief of the Cannon forces, and Senator Dick, who is looking after the interests of Senator Foraker, arrived here today.

All of the contests still to be settled are brought by negro voters instructed for Senator Foraker, excepting four districts in Kentucky, which are claimed for Fairbanks, and two in Missouri which are claimed for Hughes. The committee begun work again at 10 o'clock this morning, taking up first the contests of the Third Florida district.

A Denial From Ames

Lowell, Mass., June 8.—Congressman Butler Ames gave out a statement regarding the charge made before the Republican national committee at Chicago to the effect that he was responsible for the use of alleged forged tickets of admission to the Florida state convention. Ames declares that he had nothing whatever to do with the tickets and that the statement credited to J. N. Stripling regarding the matter is "unqualifiedly not true."

Would Have Judiciary Endorsed

SUFFERING FROM ILLUSIONS

Boy Declared Himself Responsible For Death of Louise Staula

Dedham, Mass., June 8.—Anthony Santo, the boy who made an alleged confession Saturday that he killed Louise Staula, the child found with her head crushed in the "Cannuck Island district" some weeks ago, has been practically eliminated from all connection with the murder as a result of a long examination. Officers questioned the boy for hours Sunday and, although he declared not only that he killed the Staula girl, but that he also killed two Brooklyn boys in a similar way, the officers came to the conclusion that he was suffering from illusions.

The boy was taken to the Dedham jail, where he remained until this morning, when he was removed to Norwood. Chief of Police Sackett says that he will probably have Santo examined by a board of physicians with a view to having him placed in an asylum for the insane or a home for the feebleminded should his mental condition be found to warrant it.

Two Girls and a Youth Drowned

Worcester, Mass., June 8.—The treacherous canoe claimed three victims on the waters of Lake Quinsigamond, while a fourth member of the canoe party barely escaped drowning. The name of but one of the victims is known, Fred Ketchel, aged 17 years. The two other victims are girls of about the same age whose names are unknown. Allison D. Watrous, aged 13, was rescued. The two boys had met two girls whom they asked to go canoe riding. Only Ketchel knew the girls and Watrous did not learn their full names.

Charged With Setting Fire

Saco, Me., June 8.—Charged with attempting to set fire to his store with intent to defraud an insurance company, Byron K. Dolby, a prosperous business man, was arrested. It is alleged that there have been five fires within four years in buildings owned by him. A plea of not guilty was entered and bail was furnished for his appearance later. A fire on May 27 destroyed the most of the stock in his paint and hardware store. The insurance was $5000.

Signs of Returning Prosperity

Providence, June 8.—The National and Providence worsted mills of the American Woolen company, which has been running on an irregular short-time schedule for several months, resumed on full time today. Some of the departments will be operated nights. It is twenty years since the worsted spinning department has been operated at night. The mills employ 2500 operatives. The Riverside mills also begun running on full time today.

Shots Fired at Blackmailers

Pittsfield, Mass., June 8.—Three Italians who had attempted to secure $5000 by sending Black Hand letters to William Pollock, the New York horseman who spends his summers here, were led into a trap when a wallet stuffed with paper was deposited for them at a place designated, and only escaped capture after being several times fired upon by two employes of Pollock.

Lived Almost a Century

Lawrence, Mass., June 8.—Brother Lawrence, said to be the oldest member of the Augustinian order in the United States, died at St. Mary's parochial residence. His age was 98 years and 10 months. He was a native of Ireland and came to America in the early 40s. He was admitted to the Augustinian order in 1847.

Greeks and Italians In Battle

Attleboro, Mass., June 8.—Four men were shot, one of whom will probably die, as a result of a racial feud battle between two railroad camps of Greek and Italian workmen here. Deputy sheriffs made seventeen arrests after the affray was over. Clubs, knives, stilettos, razors and revolvers figured in the fight.

Sheath Gown Caused "Rubbering"

Boston, June 8.—The sensational "sheath gown" caused a scene at one of the down-town restaurants in this city. The young woman who wore the gown appeared at the restaurant with an escort and was at once the centre of attraction. The proprietor refused to allow the woman to be served and she left the restaurant.

Scout Cruiser Salem's Tryout

Boston, June 8.—The new scout cruiser Salem was tried out on the measured mile course off Provincetown and made 25.9 knots in her best mile. The contract calls for twenty-four knots. The cruiser returned to the navy yard and will be fitted with another set of propellers for testing.

Killed by Fall From Wagon

Auburn, Me., June 8.—The dead body of Frank Furbush, aged 50, a farmer who lived alone on College road, Lewiston, was found beside his wagon on Oak street. The man's neck was broken and it is believed he met his death by tumbling from his wagon when alighting.

Fighter Killed by Trolley Car

RIVALS FAR IN REAR

Venona Wins the Race From Marblehead to Hamilton

SMALLEST BOAT OF FLEET

Second Yacht to Reach Destination Was Twenty Miles Behind Winner --Big Schooners Did Not Arrive Until This Morning

Hamilton, Bermuda, June 8.—With her starboard rail under water and driving under three lower sails in a twenty-knot breeze, the Venona, owned by George E. Bliss of Boston and carrying the flag of the Eastern Yacht club, crossed the finish line at 3:34 Sunday afternoon, winning in class C the race from Marblehead, Mass., to Hamilton, the start of which was made shortly after 11 a. m. last Wednesday. When the Venona crossed no other contestant was in sight. The elapsed time was 99h., 32m., 15s., and the corrected time 98h., 12m., 15s. The three large schooners arrived this morning.

The Venona is the smallest boat in the fleet and Captain Bliss and his crew were delighted with her victory. They account for the fine run by their keeping well to the eastward on Thursday and Friday, so that they picked up the southeast gale Saturday night and ran for the island with slacked sheets.

The little yacht's best run was 193 miles from noon on Saturday to noon Sunday, and the only accident she experienced was that her main topsail was carried away Saturday.

The yachts experienced heavy weather at the start. They passed Highland light on June 3 at 7 o'clock in the evening and were in the Gulf stream the following day at 11 o'clock a. m. The Venona lost sight of the Marchioness, one of her rivals in class C, on Wednesday and saw no other yacht after that time.

The sea moderated after crossing the Gulf stream and an easterly gale set in about noon Saturday, but Captain Bliss was enabled to lay a straight course for the finish and his little craft made a fine run on the last fifty miles, with a beam sea and at top speed. The committee boat barely reached the finish line in time to see the winner cross.

Soon after the Venona finished another yacht appeared on the horizon, which proved to be the sloop Marchioness. She was fully twenty miles behind the winner, being well to the northwest, and had a long beat to come to the waiting boats at the finish.

The Marchioness was carrying a double-reefed mainsail and a full jib. She wallowed badly in the sea, for the heavy wind of the previous night had thrown up a nasty chop, and she had a hard beat around the reefs north of the island.

There was great surprise here that the little boats should beat the three large schooners.

Victims of Deadly Gas

Silverton, Col., June 8.—Six men are dead, eight others in a critical condition from breathing foul air and thirty more are confined to their homes by gas poisoning suffered in the Golden King mine at Gladstone. Fire destroyed the engine house of the mine and also the shaft house. The two buildings were near the doors of the main shaft and to prevent the spread of the flames and smoke to the workings of the mine these doors had been closed temporarily.

Paris Has Another Mystery

Paris, June 8.—With the mystery of the murder of Adolphe Steinheil and his mother-in-law, Mme. Japy, yet unsolved, the police have been confronted by a new mystery in the discovery of Auguste Remy, a wealthy retired banker, 77 years of age, stabbed to death with a dessert knife in his mansion. Money and jewels of great value are missing.

IDEAS OF ROOSEVELT

Will Be Embodied In Platform of the Republican Party

NOW PRACTICALLY COMPLETE

Declaration For Revision of the Tariff and Assurance of Sound Finance-Corporations and Demands o Labor Also Receive Attention

Washington, June 8.—That the platform which will be adopted at the Chicago convention and on which the Republican party will stand during the next campaign has been completed, with the exception of a few details which will be left for the committee on resolutions to insert, is the opinion of many who are in the confidence of the Republican leaders.

The policies of President Roosevelt will be endorsed unequivocally, and this endorsement will be the central idea of the document. These policies will be set forth as the embodiment of the principles of the Republican party, whose achievements will be lauded as at all times wise and beneficient; as ever in the interest of all the people.

These principles, it will be declared, are quite in contrast with the policies of the Democratic party, which, as embodied in the public utterances of its leaders, it will be said, promise nothing good that can be assured of accomplishment. The Republican party's record as the party of protection and sound money, as the party of progress and good principles, as the party that gave freedom to Cuba and lifted the yoke from the necks of the people of the Philippines and Porto Rico, will be held up for admiration and made the subject of much praise, and the voting public will be asked to continue to patronize the political craft that has carried it across so many streams.

Specifically speaking, more attention has been given by the platform makers to the tariff than to any other subject. There will be an unequivocal declaration for revision, but the disposition is to leave working out of the details to congress. There will be a general pronouncement in favor of such changes in the schedules as the advance of time and the progress of the country may have made necessary since the enactment of the Dingley law. The declaration will take the shape of a pledge to so equalize the duties as to give the consumer the benefit of the most favorable prices consistent with the protection of domestic industries and home labor.

It will be emphatically stated that there must be no innovation which will permit American labor to come into competition with foreign labor and it will be specified that in all cases the duty must be equal to the difference between the American and the European cost of production, including a reasonable profit to the American producer. The principle of protection will be endorsed in general terms. A clause declaring against the utilization of the tariff for the promotion of monopoly is also among the probabilities.

Next to the tariff the financial plank has received most careful attention. Congress and the administration will be congratulated upon the passage of the Aldrich-Vreeland bill as in the interest of sound finance and as calculated to protect the business world against possible panics in the near future and provide for the permanent improvement of our currency system through the recommendations which, it is anticipated, will be made by the commission appointed under the new law.

Reference will be made to the financial disturbances of last fall, and while the seriousness of that crisis will be recognized, the claim will be made that the Republican party was found able to meet the situation and that by its prompt action the business world was saved from long drawn out financial depression and industrial inactivity.

The administration will be also especially complimented upon the passage of the railroad law, and this legislation will be pointed to as an example of what the party will do for the country at large in case it is given such lease of power as to afford it sufficient time for the changes which are believed to be desirable. The president will also be given much credit for recent legislation looking to the preservation of the forests, the conservation of the public domain in the interest of the entire country and the reclamation of the arid lands of the west.

The convention will place itself on record as favorable to such an amendment of the Sherman anti-trust law as will enable the railroads to enter into reasonable traffic agreements without taking the risk of prosecution in the criminal courts. There will be a pronouncement in favor of national control of certain corporations as against national ownership.

Cognizance will be taken of the demands of labor to the extent of recommending such legislation as will ensure labor organizations against hasty judgment by the courts in the issuance of injunctions without due notice or necessary hearing. A recommendation for the removal of the triple penalty in conspiracy prosecutions, when such prosecutions are directed against labor organizations, is probable.

Much attention will be given to the planks dealing with the Philippines and Cuba. The pacific attitude of this country towards Cuba will be held to have been demonstrated by the present relationship of the two countries. Our management of affairs of the Philippines will be extolled and it will probably be set forth that to abandon those islands until our work there is finished and the Philippine people are made ready for self-government would be inhuman, unwise and in every way unjustifiable.

As usual the platform will declare for the protection of the civil liberties of the negro race. A special effort will be made to have this plank comprehensive and emphatic. There will be a strong declaration in favor of the continued improvement of the navy, including the constant increase of our battleships. There will be a word in favor of the maintenance of the army on its present basis, but no recommendation for its enlargement.

The action of congress in increasing the pensions of the widows of soldiers will be commended and a liberal pension policy for the future will be advocated. Among other recommendations that will be made will be the following:

The admission at the next session of congress of Arizona and New Mexico as separate states of the union; the protection of American citizens abroad; the fostering of our commerce in the Orient; the continuance of the open door in China; the exclusion of coolie labor, whether Chinese or Japanese; strong commendation of the present civil service policy; endorsement of the plan to grant a subsidy in the interest of the ocean mails to South America and Australasia, and the encouragement of American shipping generally. There will be a demand for continuation of the policies of the present administration towards corporations.

Venezuelan Dreamers

Caracas, June 8.—El Constitucional, the official organ of President Castro, publishes a New York letter stating that it is rumored that the United States will secretly support Colombia in case of war with Venezuela. El Constitucional says that President Castro will await his duty, whatever that may be. The paper also publishes a partisan speech, in which the United States is called "the Cain of America," which simulates fraternal cordiality in order to disguise brutal incidents.

Czar Doesn't Like Rough Weather

St. Petersburg, June 8.—On account of rough weather in the Gulf of Finland the emperor and members of the imperial family have given up the sea trip and will go by rail to Reval to meet King Edward. An unusual spell of unfavorable weather has caused a further change in the plans of the emperor, who will not proceed far out to sea to meet King Edward. Instead the interview between the sovereigns will take place within the roadstead at Reval.

Twice Wrecked During One Run

Hinton, W. Va., June 8.—A flyer between New York and Cincinnati, while passing through West Virginia, was wrecked twice. At Whitcomb, a small station near here, the engine tender left the rails and was followed by four cars. No one was injured. The passengers were transferred to a new train, which had gone only fifty miles when four sleepers and the diner went off the track. Engineer Malone was probably fatally hurt.

The Florida's Next Test

Washington, June 8.—The monitor Florida, shot at two weeks ago with the heaviest naval gun, will on June 13 be punctured beneath her waterline armor by the most powerful American Whitehead torpedo that it may be definitely known whether a water-tight bulkhead, especially constructed with in her, can be depended upon to save a ship from destruction against this dangerous method of attack.

Squiers Home From Panama

Washington, June 8.—President Amador of Panama has cabled the Panama legation here to deny for him newspaper reports that Minister Squiers is persona non grata. This request is the first official notice which has been taken regarding the recent rumors that Squiers has become personally involved as a partisan in the heated presidential campaign now going on in Panama.

Special Service Squadron Sails

San Francisco, June 8.—Leaving the other warships of the Atlantic fleet to follow a month later, the battleships Maine and Alabama, designated as a special service squadron, sailed from this port this morning on the long voyage to Hampton Roads by way of Honolulu, Manila, Aden and the Suez canal. Captain Harber of the Maine is in command of the special squadron.

Cyclone Cellars Proved Handy

Charles City, Ia., June 8.—A tornado struck Charles City last evening, demolishing about 200 buildings and killing two persons. Three children are reported missing. Telephone wires are down, and details as to the destruction wrought in the country are meagre. Many had warning of the approaching tornado and sought safety in cyclone cellers.

Knifed In the Back

Boston, June 8.—Francesco Mondello, aged 24 and single, was stabbed in the back and almost instantly killed at his home, 36 Clark street, late last night, as a result of a quarrel over a card game. The police are seeking Angelo Charaiellotta, proprietor of the house, who, it is claimed, was one of the party.

Newsy Budget From Shipyard

Almost 30 miles an hour is the record of the scout cruiser Salem on her recent builder's trial. She is reported to have done the measured mile of Provincetown at 25.90 knots an hour, which is equivalent to 29.82 land miles per hour. The Salem will have one more builder's trial with still another set of propellors.

The Birmingham with reciprocating engines broke the American record for cruisers with that type at 25.3 knots per hour. The Chester, with her Parsons or English turbines in her trial averaged for four hours 26.52 knots, making the fastest 15 minutes at 26.6 ,and proving herself the fastest cruiser afloat. In her screw standardization trips before the official trial she steamed a mile at 26.07.

The new Salem is equipped with the Curtis turbines ,an American invention and the Fore River company, which is interested in this type, is very anxious to have the Salem show better speed than the Chester, which was built at Bath.

It is said that some of the employes at the shipyard will enter the popularity contest of the Daily Ledger for the motor boat offered to the most popular yachtsman. It is not necessary to belong to a club.

Makaria, 4; Atlantic, 2.

On Saturday, at Merrymount Park, Makaria defeated Atlantic s to 2. It was a fast game throughout and full of star features.

Tupper's hit in the fifth started the batting rally that put the game on ice for Makaria. Curtis hit a 3 bagger the best hit of the game, scoring Tupper, while McKenzie drew a base on balls; Nicoll was out on foul fly while Smith laced out a beauty to centrefield scoring McKenzie, 3 runs.

Tupper led the batting for Makaria getting two hits out of 3 times up, while Curtis was a close second with a 3 bagger out of twice up. Smith and Ganzel each landed one. Bill Troupe on second got two seemingly impossible catches, while Michael in the box had perfect control, Atlantic never getting more than one hit in an inning and drawing 10 strike outs.

For Atlantic, Granahan and Murray each landed two hits out of four times up, while Fay got a beautiful two bagger in the first inning. Duggan landed one hit too. The fielding of both teams was fine Atlantic led with only two errors.

There was the best crowd yet, fully 500 saw the game. Below the full score:

Great Sport at K. of C. Field Day

Quincy Council No. 96, K. of C., on Saturday celebrated the 14th anniversary of the institution of the Council. A field day was held in the lower field of Merrymount park and ball games and out door sports of all kinds were indulged in by the members.

The first event of the day was a game of ball between the "Yannigans" and the "Regulars," and the game was hotly contested throughout, Dr. Murphy, the former Natick High school star, was in the box for the "Yannigans" with Andy Driscoll behind the bat. After five innings in which the "Yannigans" succeeded in trouncing the "Regulars" by a score of 7 to 5. Captain Cunniff, who had pitched a strong game for the "Regulars," took his team off the field.

Then the "Magains" and "Octagans" started a five inning game. Michael Walsh went in to pitch for the "Magains" with Harry McGrath behind the bat, and DeCoste and Morrison were the battery for the "Octagans."

In spite of the umpiring of Mr. Burton, the Ortagaus succeeded in beating the Magains by score of 9 to 7.

The base running and fielding of the teams excited the greatest enthusiarm. The professional men seemed to be in particularly fine fettle. Ed Parker and Lyons O'Hara startled the lookers on time and again with marvellous catches, while Ed. Barrett made a wonderful bair raising stop at short, but hi s throw was a trifle wild as he mistook a conductor standing in the yard of the car barn for the first baseman. Ed bas a good arm.

The next event was the feature event of the day was a match race between Grand Knight Carey and Deputy Grand Knight Murphy. The contest was very close the druggist winning by a hair.

But wait. That is not all. Dennis Crowley offered to race any man in the field a hundred yards. His honor and Michael T. Sullivan immediately took up the challenge, and the three contestants went to the scratch. The three got away prettily with the gun. Crowely and Sullivan lead for an instant, but slowly and surely the Mayor, gained and at the finish was the winner with Crowley a close seond, and the genial gentleman from Ward Two last but not least.

The shades of night were falling when the last ball game was started, with Dr. Reynolds pitching for the "Yannigans" and Bill DeCoste pitching for the "Octagains." It is said that the "Octagains" won 3 to 2.

The outing was most enjoyable and after a strenuous day everybody went home tired but happy.

The committee in charge was composed of Grand Knight Carey, Deputy Grand R. Murphy, William A. Casey, George Powers, Robert Sullivan, James Cantfill and Edward Barrett.

TAKEN UNAWARES

Representative Coombs Assaulted At State House

Representative Coombs of this city had guests on Monday at the State House and while escorting his wife and her sister, Miss Nellie Riley, through the State House he was attacked by an unknown man, who was probably insane. The assault was not serious, and Mr. Coombs was able to report today for duty, but for awhile he did not know but he might be the victim of an assault similar to that some months ago on Gov. Guild which resulted fatally to Edward Cohen and wounded Dennis Driscoll.

The Globe reports the incident as follows:

The sensation of the day at the State House on Monday was an assault by an unknown man upon Representative Rednor P. Coombs of Quincy just ouside the door of the state library in the afternoon.

The representative, accompanied by his wife and another woman, had just come from the library, when the unknown man rushed up and struck him. The representative, surprised, and thinking the man had made a mistake, hesitated for a moment, and the stranger struck him a second time. Then the representative defended himself vigorously and others attracted by the commotion, separated the men.

Representative Coombs' colleagues tried to hold the assailant, but he got away. The district police immediately started on the hunt for him.

A frequent visitor to the state library, and one who has appeared in committee rooms, is suspected. Representative Coombs says he never saw the man before. Others at the state house appear to have been troubled by him.

Representative Coombs was showing Mrs. Coombs and a friend about the building, and while going through the library he saw the man who later assaulted him sitting at one of the tables, but he took no notice of him, as he was an entire stranger.

When the party left the room, however, Representative Coombs was accosted at the door by the stranger, who said: "You have been saying things about me, haven't you?" and at the same time struck him a blow in the face with his right fist. Representative Coombs assured his assailant that he had made a mistake, and the man stepped away a few feet. He then put his glasses in his vest pocket, and returning struck the representative a blow on the nose. Finding that he must defend himself, Mr. Coombs felled the man with a blow in the face, but paid no further attention to him, going to a toilet room to wash the blood from the cut in his nose, and the man made his escape.

He is described as 28 or 30 years of age, 5 feet 6 inches in height and weighing about 150 or 155 pounds. He has dark brown hair, dark eyes, smooth face and a receding chin.

Henry E. Woods, state commissioner of public records, had an altercation with the same man two weeks ago last Saturday at the same place, and he is of the belief that the man is mentally irresponsible. Commissioner Woods had been in the library looking up genealogical data, and when he left the man followed him from the room, and said: "What do you mean by coming into the library and disturbing me? I'll trim you if you ever do it again," at the same time shaking his fist in the commissioner's face. Mr. Wood succeeded in quieting him, and followed him from the building, intending to turn him over to a state police officer if one was seen. Later he communicated the circumstances to Librarian Tillinghast and told him he believed the man insane, but the librarian thought the man had been a victim of a mistake in identity and advised that nothing be done about the matter.

A week, later, however, one of the women attaches of the library came upon the same man engaged in an altercation at the entrance to the library with a man whom she did not recognize, but who is a frequent visitor to the library, and who evidently had excited the other man's anger.

None of the attaches of the library is able to give any information as to the name of the troublesome stranger, although they say that he is a daily visitor, and until recently has never caused them any trouble. He always calls for legal reference books and takes copious notes from them.

Boys Arrested For Break

Two boys were arrested by Officer Cahill at 4 o'clock this morning entering the variety store of Miss Susan McRitchie on Centre street. The store has been entered a number of times of late, and small articles taken such as half a dozen cigars, cigarettes, fruit, candy, etc. Inspector McKay spent two nights in the store, but no break occurred. Monday night Forbes Kinghorn camped there. This time the parties made one of their visits. A milk wagon drove along abotu 4 o'clock. Then there was a key put in the lock and turned. The door opened and the two boys entered. They helped themselves to some cigars, and it was then that Kinghorn gathered them in They were arraigned in court but being juveniles their cases were continued until Thursday.

Graduates' Reception At Quincy Mansion

A pleasantly informal reception was given on Monday evening by the faculty and senior class of the Quincy Masion school and many relatives gathered to make the occasion memorable. Under the school colors of purple, the receiving line of twelve stood to welcome the guests, assisted by Miss Kenney. They were: Misses Elizabeth Scott Acheson, Beulah Nye Bennison, Abby Stone Day, Alice Heathcote Day, Ruth Bradley Drake, Dorice Winthrop Henderson, Alice Lovett Keene, Muriel Knight, Hazel Vera Kramer, Katherine Silver and Edith Clare Strauss.

The rooms with their pretty floral decorations were thrown open with the warm hospitality characteristic of the school. A musical program including selections on the violin by Miss Laura Herrig, and vocal selections by Miss Julia Woods and Miss Gertrude Pfaffmann with Miss Florence Zimmer at the piano was an enjoyable feature of the evening. The artists were finished in their work and rendered their numbers with pleasing gracefulness, both of talent and manner. Early in the evening the dining room was made an appetizing retreat for a warm night, and ices with strawberry garnishings, cakes and coffee were served by the junior members of the school.

The guests included not only Bostonians, for many from the south and west were assembled to attend the graduating exercises of their daughters this week and were among the most interested in the bright surroundings of the Mansion school.

Miss Spear Dead In 97th Year

She has been remarkably smart up to a short time, and although in poor health was able to receive callers on her last birthday and talk intelligently on the topics of the day.

Miss Spear was the oldest member of the Bethany church having joined the church in 1833. Her brother Horace B. Spear passed away a few months ago.

Press Outing

The monthly meeting of the Massachusetts Press Association was held Monday morning at eleven o'clock in the United States hotel, Boston. Following the business session there was a demonstration of the new Simplex type setting machine. After dinner, at 1.30 o'clock, the members of the association were joined by members of their families and invited guests to enjoy the remainder of the day at Wonderland.

In a special car provided by the Boston Elevated Co. and the Boston & Northern Street Railway the merry party was conveyed through Charlestown and Chelsea to Wonderland in Revere. There were about eighty people in the car, every seat being occupied. In passing through Chelsea the great attraction was the ruins of the recent conflagration. Here and there were noticed six or eight new buildings in process of construction, but otherwise the burnt district looked much as it did a few days after the fire, except there was lacking the militia on guard and sightseers.

At Wonderland the party was met by Press Representative McNally, who took his guests over the scenic railway, to the Darktown performance, Pawnee Bill's show, shoot the chutes and infant incubators. Wonderland is much better this year and there are attractions enough to keep one busy a whole day.

The special car returned to Boston at 5.45, leaving only a few of the party to see Wonderland by electric light. June 27 the Massachusetts Press Association will go to Nantucket for a four days' outing.

TODAY'S COURT.

Ernest Sincueorus was arraigned for assault at Holbrook. Case continued until June 15.

The case of Charles Hocking for assault on Annie Brith at Quincy was called, and he was discharged on payment of costs, amounting to $1.30.

JOLT FOR TAFT MEN

A Proposition to Divide the Louisiana Delegation

IT CAUSES AN ADJOURNMENT

Hitchcock Says There Will Be No Compromise With Allies--Taft Needs Southern Votes to Be Nominated on First Ballot

Chicago, June 9.—A few handfuls of sand have been thrown into the cylinders of the Taft political machine. So far everything that has come up has been handled quickly and decisively by the Taft men, but from their own membership came a proposition to divide the Louisiana delegation with the opposition, seating both Taft and anti-Taft delegations with half a vote each.

The proposition in itself did not come as a surprise, but the number of members of the national committee who favored the movement created some consternation in the Taft camp. The friends of Taft on the committee brought about an adjournment rather than permit a vote to be taken.

Before the Louisiana case, which involves four delegates-at-large and fourteen district delegates, is brought to a vote, noses will be sharply counted. Members of the committee who have been ardent Taft supporters, but who have shown a disposition to yield to the appeals from the allied forces to compromise in the interest of harmony will be subjected to pressure from Washington. To allow time for this was the purpose of the sudden adjournment.

Manager Hitchcock of the Taft campaign announces that there will be no compromise. He is determined to fight for the seating of the delegations instructed for Taft and declares that he will insist that the committee pass on all contests.

To settle them in any other way, he says, would be unfair to the delegations themselves. He expresses the opinion that the committee should not shirk the responsibility of sitting in judgment on the merits of every contest, and in this view he is supported by nearly every committeeman from the west and south and many from the north.

Thus far contests have been settled from the states of Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia and Kentucky, and there has been no division of the committee in disposing of any of them. The reason for this has been the rule which denies a rollcall on any question unless it is demanded by twenty members, and the anti-Taft people have not that number on the committee.

The suggestion for a division of contesting delegations has become more frequent from day to day. The political maneuvering by such members of the "old guard" as Senators Crane, Scott and Penrose, and Committeemen Hart of Iowa and Mulvane of Kansas, has not been without effect. The growth of the compromise suggestion was noticed by the Taft men, but they were not disturbed by it until they learned to their surprise that the plan for a division in Louisiana was favored by Senator Lodge and General Powell Clayton.

Hasty conferences were held by the Taft members of the committee during the hearing of the Louisiana contest and the decision was reached that it would be wise to adjourn until they ascertained exactly where they stood. This course was followed. Hitchcock called up Taft in Washington. Charles P. Taft, brother of the secretary, did some telephoning and telegraphing on his own account, and others also grew energetic. What the effect of the many messages will be cannot be accurately told until after the vote.

Manager Hitchcock feels that there is far more at stake in the movement for a compromise in Louisiana than appears on the surface. Similar contests are pending from eight other southern states. More than 150 delegates are involved in the settlement of these contests from southern states yet to be settled. The Taft men declare that if they make concessions now they may expect further demands. They are determined to prevent the insertion of any opening wedge, if such a thing is possible.

Sixteen more votes were gained for Taft yesterday by the settlement of contests. Two of these came from Florida, six from Georgia and eight from Kentucky. These were all the contests heard by the committee. The settlement of the Kentucky cases engendered more ill-feeling than has been manifest since the committee began its work.

Representative McKinley, manager of the presidential boom of Joseph G. Cannon, issued a brief statement in which he said: "The action of the Taft people on the national committee simply demonstrates the weakness of their statements that they had enough votes to nominate Mr. Taft without the southern delegates or those involved in the contests. As the situation now stands, we have every reason to believe that no candidate will have enough to nominate him on the first ballot."

What Lodge Will Say

Chicago, June 9.—The speech of Senator Lodge as temporary chairman of the Republican national convention will be, it is said, based largely on the proposition that the welfare of the party demands that the policies pursued by Roosevelt be upheld. The third term proposition will be touched upon lightly, but the speaker will point out that all the talk that has been made about it is evidence that the country desires for president a man who will follow in the lines laid down by President Roosevelt.

Labor and the Judiciary

Washington, June 9.—Denying that the American Federation of Labor had attacked the integrity of the courts, state or national, President Gompers of that organization declares that the federation will wage a fight in Chicago on the memorial of New Yorkers asking for the insertion of a plank in the platform of the Republican party affirming confidence in the integrity and justice of the courts and insisting on the preservation of their independence and full constitutional prerogatives.

Rhode Island Splits on Bryan

Providence, June 9.—The Rhode Island delegation to the Democratic national convention showed itself evenly divided on the question of endorsing W. J. Bryan for the presidential nomination and as a result the delegation will go to Denver unhampered by resolutions or instructions for any candidate.

Serious Insinuations

Paris, June 9.—Henri Rochefort, editor of The Patrie, insinuates in The Patrie that the police do not desire to solve the mystery of the murder of Adolphe Steinheil, the noted painter. Yet, he says, he could solve the mystery in an hour if permitted to do so. He insists that the alleged robbery of the Steinheil house never occurred. "Let an individual be suspected of having in his possession documents embarrassing to those in power," says Rochefort, "and next morning he may be found with a bullet in his head, a knife in his breast or a cord around his neck."

Inquiry Into Navy Disaster

San Pedro, Cal., June 9.—Admiral Dayton has begun an investigation of the accident on the cruiser Tennessee in which seven men were killed and nine injured. The charge that the explosion may have been due to some defect in boiler tubes recalled to officers of the ship the fact that charges were filed in 1906 against officers of the Shelby Tube company for furnishing defective tubes to the government.

A Conservation Commission

Washington, June 9.—In accordance with the suggestion made by the governors at the conference at the White House in May, the president has appointed a national conservation commission to consider and advise him on questions relating to the conservation of the natural resources of the country, and to co-operate with similar bodies which may be designated by the several states.

Armed Men After Murderer

Guthrie, Okla., June 9.—Alfred Hunter, negro murderer of Sheriff Garrison of Oklahoma City, is believed to be surrounded in the woods twenty-two miles north of here. United States Marshal Abernathy and a posse left for Lovell to join in the hunt. Fully 200 armed men are beating the brush in the vicinity of Lovell and Crescent City and the country is aroused.

Canadian Conservatives Win

Toronto, June 9.—The results of the general elections for the Ontario legislature indicate that Premier Whitney and the Conservative party have again swept the province. The government had a majority of thirty-nine on dissolution. The indications are now that they will return with sixty majority, the Liberals having but twenty seats out of a total of 105.

Confederate Vets' Reunion

Birmingham, Ala., June 9.—The annual reunion of the United Confederate Veterans began in Birmingham this morning. Thus far Atlanta is the only southern city with a delegation on hand working for the next reunion. There is already much rivalry and politics in the air as to the commander to succeed the late General Stephen D. Lee.

Turkish Invasion of Persia

St. Petersburg, June 9.—Special dispatches received here indicate a serious situation on the Turko-Persian frontier. Turkish troops, which hitherto have been massed on the Russian side in the vicinity of Erzerum Villayet, are in full movement towards Persia. Detachments already have invaded Persian territory.

Railroad In Receiver's Hands

Toledo, June 9.—On claims aggregating $8,791,047, due the National Car Wheel company of New York, the Wheeling and Lake Erie railroad was thrown into the hands of a receiver, by Judge Tayler. The petition alleges the total indebtedness of the Wheeling to be upwards of $28,000,000.

Eighty Lost In Steamer Wreck

Hong Kong, June 9.—The British passenger steamer Pow An, running between Hong Kong, Canton and Maco, struck on a rock off Lantao island and is a total wreck. Eighty natives are missing, but all the European passengers and officers of the steamer were rescued.

Elephant Beat Horse to Death

New Albany, Ind., June 9.—Seizing a horse with its trunk, an enraged circus elephant dashed the animal against the ground until it had pounded the horse's life out. Showmen were loading the animals on a train when the horse kicked the elephant.

The Weather Forecast

Sun rises—4:07; sets—7:20.

THREAT OF ITALIANS

It Leads William Pollock to Garrison His Summer Estate

TWO BLACK HAND LETTERS

Pittsfield Police to Be Assisted by Italian Detective From New York--Threatened Man Knows of No Reason For Plot

Pittsfield, Mass., June 9.—Because of the receipt of Black Hand letters by William Pollock of New York, a summer resident of this city, and because of Mrs. Pollock's arrival, the employes of "Holmesdale," the Pollock farm, have organized into a garrison.

The men are armed with shotguns and rifles, and are under the command of George E. Pollock of New York and Marshall Kernochan.

In addition to the employes, half a dozen of whom are Italians, Pollock has sent to New York for an Italian detective to assist the local police in running down the men who have threatened his life.

The first letter, received last week, was mailed in Albany and began with "Dear Miss." The second was mailed in Pittsfield and was addressed to "Dear Will." Both are written in printed characters with a stub pen. In discussing the matter, Pollock said:

"It is incomprehensible to me that any of our Italian citizens, many of whom we have employed on our place here and whom we had always treated with the greatest consideration and kindness, should formulate a plot of this kind."

Officers were sent today to investigate an Italian lumber camp on the mountains about two miles east of Holmesdale. One night last week a gang of drunken choppers were ordered off the Pollock place. No clue could be obtained.

Neither Chief White nor Pollock believes that the letters are from the dreaded secret society, but think they are from local Italians who dynamited the house of a countryman last February.

Conspirators Heavily Fined

St. Paul, June 9.—George W. Wood, Lewin A. Wood and Forest B. Wood pleaded guilty to the first count in the indictments charging them with conspiracy to defraud and misuse of the mails in the operation of the Edwards-Wood company. A fine of $2500 on each defendant was imposed. It was paid at once. The Edwards-Wood company was formerly a grain brokerage company, and was succeeded by the Wisconsin Grain company.

Milwaukee, June 9.—Brewers from all parts of the country, whose business investments represent a total capital estimated at a billion dollars, are attending the forty-eighth annual convention, which opened in Milwaukee today. These laws, he says, will make it necessary for brewers in self-protection to get into politics.

Marvelous how this stove does away with kitchen discomforts — how cool it keeps the room in comparison with conditions when the coal fire was burning. The quick concentrated heat of the

A CRIME ELSEWHERE

But Bookmaking on New York Tracks Is Legalized

A MESSAGE FROM HUGHES

Legislation Which Shields Organized Gambling Business Ought to Be Changed--Says the Evil Is Plainly Preventable and Asks For Action

Albany, June 9.—Governor Hughes sent to the extraordinary session of the legislature last night his long-anticipated special message recommending for consideration "the enactment of suitable legislation for the prevention of race track gambling." He also recommends the enactment of "suitable legislation with regard to diseases of cattle, especially tuberculosis."

Forty-five senators, more than a quorum, were in their seats when the roll was called in the upper house, but Senator Foelker was not present. His vote is apparently of the utmost importance to the fate of the anti-gambling legislation recommended by the governor.

"The issue has been clearly presented," says Hughes to the legislature, "whether the interests of those who wish to maintain gambling privileges at race tracks shall be considered paramount to the constitution of the state. Race track gambling exists, not because it is hidden or elusive, but as an organized business shielded by legislative discrimination. The law which professes to prohibit it in fact protects it."

The governor declares that the failure of the Agnew-Hart bills by a tie vote in the senate at the regular session served only "to illumine the issue and to make still more clear the nature of the test it involves. Nor can the question be finally disposed of save by vindicating the honor of the state and by demonstrating that there is no power, however strong or unscrupulous, which can be permitted to override the will of the people as expressed in the fundamental law."

The intent of the constitutional convention to make it impossible for the legislature to legalize gambling at race tracks and to enjoin upon the legislature the duty of preventing it is clearly shown, the governor says, "in the debates of the convention which adopted the amendment by an overwhelming vote.

"So long as the formalities of the statute are complied with," the governor says, "bookmaking at the race tracks, maintained under authority of law, continues as a favorite of legislation instead of being under an appropriate ban. Bookmaking elsewhere is a crime; upon the race tracks, under the prescribed conditions, it is not a crime. All provisions of the criminal law which might otherwise touch it are rendered inapplicable.

"It is within the power and it is the duty of the legislature to provide a remedy. It has simply to repeal the discriminating provisions of the Percy-Gray law, under which the evil is fostered. It has simply to remove the exceptions which take these practices out of the penal code and to perform its duty under the constitution of providing appropriate penalties to prevent these offenses.

"Racing and lawful sport should be able to flourish without gambling. The question is neither as to sport nor as to horse breeding, but as to the enforcement of the constitutional provision in this application to a plainly preventable evil, the continuance of which outrages the moral sentiment of the state and does violence to our respect for law and order."

Improved Conditions In Panama

Washington, June 9.—President Roosevelt has been told that labor conditions in the Panama canal zone are excellent. This report was made verbally by Messrs. Reynolds, Donnelly and Needham, appointed by the president as a special commission some time ago. A written report giving the observations of the commissioners in detail will soon be prepared and submitted.

Engineer Met Strange Death

Peekskill, N. Y., June 9.—Engineer Miller of a New York Central train from New York, while the train was running through a rock cut near this place, leaned far out of the cab window to get a view of the track ahead. Miller's head was struck by a projecting rock and he was decapitated. His fireman, who witnessed the accident, took the train through to the next station.

Anxious to Get Bailey

New York, June 9.—Creditors of the bankrupt Export Shipping company, who caused the detention of the company's president, Francis G. ### Placing Blame For Nine Deaths

Annapolis, Md., June 9.—Coroner Davis has begun his investigation into the causes of the trolley wreck last Friday night, which resulted in the death of nine persons and injuries to a score or more of others. Testimony tended to show that Motorman Wadsworth, in charge of an empty car, was apparently lax in obedience of orders.

LARGE HOTEL BURNED

One of Newport's Finest Hostelries Reduced to Ashes

Newport, R. I., June 9.—The new Cliff hotel, on Cliff avenue, one of the famous summer resorts of this city, was destroyed by fire this morning. The hotel had recently been remodelled and was to have been opened for the season tomorrow. The only persons in the building when the fire broke out were Manager Jordan and his wife and son, aged 12.

Jordan and his wife occupied a room on the second floor. About 1:30 they were awakened by the ringing of the telephone in the room and some one informed them that the hotel was on fire. The flames had already cut off their means of exit by the stairway. Going to the room of his son Jordan found that the boy had already made his escape. Returning to his own room, he assisted Mrs. Jordan out of a window and, ordering her to drop, followed her example, landing on the soft lawn, twenty-five feet below. They found the boy lying under the window of his room, suffering from injuries due to the fall. The boy was removed to a hospital. Jordan and his wife suffered no severe injuries.

The New Cliff hotel was a large structure owned by the Shipley estate of Philadelphia. It was built thirty-five years ago and has been a favorite summer residence for many wealthy Newport visitors. The cause of the fire is not known. The loss is very heavy.

Santo Is Feeble Minded

Boston, June 9.—Authony Santo of East Boston, the 13-year-old boy who confessed to the murders of four children, including Louise Staula of Dedham, and who also said he assassinated President McKinley, was committed to the Taunton insane asylum. He was examined by Dr. Pratt and Dr. Hodgdon, who found that he is feebleminded. His parents say that his mind has been afflicted since he had scarlet fever seven years ago.

Italians In Fatal Quarrel

Boston, June 9.—Antonio Pennotti fired six shots at his wife, two of which hit her; then he put a bullet through his own head, and died almost instantly at his home on North street. They had been married about fifteen years, and there are two children in Italy.

Hub Experiences a Scorcher

Boston, June 9.—Under the influence of a scorching sun, the temperature rose to the highest point of the year yesterday. The local weather bureau thermometer recorded 90 degrees. ### Lineman Instantly Killed

Watertown, Mass., June 9.—Nicholas S. Olson, 30 years old, employed as a lineman, was instantly killed when he fell from a telephone pole here. ### Terry Pays $10,000 Fine

Portland, Me., June 9.—A fine of $10,000 was paid in the United States district court here by George F. Terry, the Waterville mail order house proprietor, and he was discharged. ### Connecticut Man-Hunt Fails

Danbury, Conn., June 9.—Farmers and constables, aided by members of the local police department, who have been scouring a piece of woods on the outskirts of Newtown for Edward Schirman, who shot and killed Ida Potter on Main street here Saturday, have given up the search without finding any trace of Schirman.

Fire Destroys Business Block

Wakefield, Mass., June 9.—A fire for which a general alarm was sounded burned out the inside of Dudley's block, a two and a half-story wooden structure, this morning. The loss is $10,000. ### Hotel Loses $150,000 by Fire

Mount Vernon, N. Y., June 9.—Two hundred and five guests of the Hotel Gramatan, at Bronxville, were driven from their rooms by a fire which broke out early today in the left wing of the hotel. One-third of the hotel was destroyed before the flames were extinguished. There was no loss of life and the property loss is estimated at $150,000. The fire started from a defective flue in the room of a guest on the second floor and the alarm was promptly sounded. Clerks and bell boys ran through the hallways and saw that all the guests were aroused.

Serious Riot on Street Car

St. Louis, June 9.—Five persons were injured as the result of a riot on a Market street car. The motorman and one of his assailants are in a hospital, the former in a critical condition, while a spectator was run over by the street car after the riot. His leg was cut off and he may die. The trouble began when several men boarded the car and became engaged in an altercation with Conductor Riffle concerning payment of fares. Brown struck Riffle in the face and a free fight ensued.

Planned to Blow Up Royalty

Lisbon, June 9.—The police have discovered and frustrated a big plot, hatched by the Society of the Black Cross, to blow up with bombs the members of the royal family at a religious feast which is to be held on June 18. Among the ringleaders arrested are three notorious anarchists. The bombs which had been manufactured by the society were confiscated, and correspondence seized shows that the society had close relations with anarchists in Barcelona and Madrid.

Heflin Case Goes Over

Washington, June 9.—Representative Heflin of Alabama, whose arraignment on an indictment charging an assault with a dangerous weapon on Louis Lundy, a negro, in this city on March 27 last had been announced for today, did not appear in court. Heflin proceeded to his home in Alabama immediately after the adjournment of congress. After consultation between United States Attorney Baker and counsel for Heflin the arraignment was deferred until fall.

Severe Repressive Measures

Simla, June 9.—The vice regal council has adopted two emergency measures. The first provides stern measures against bomb outrages and conspiracies; the second empowers the suspension and confiscation of newspapers inciting to criminal acts. Viceroy Minto says that if they are found to be not strong enough, still severer measures will be adopted.

HOW THE WRIGHTS FLY

Machine In Which They Made Forty Miles an Hour.

SAIL AIR JUST LIKE A BIRD.

Principle of Floating Disk Utilized. Propeller and Rudder Added to Wings of Cloth Over Spruce Frame. Hundred Miles an Hour Hoped For With a Larger Machine.

Asserting that he and his brother are certain that they have solved the aerial navigation problem and that they will be able to fly five miles at a speed of forty miles an hour at the government test of their machine at Fort Myer on Aug. 28, Orville E. Wright recently gave at Dayton, O., a fuller description of the new air vessel than has before been published.

Taken in connection with drawings of the Wright aeroplane on file in the patent office of France in Paris, his explanation shows that the method by which stability is attained in varying air currents is so simple as to be startling. From a standard in the center of the machine are suspended by their two inner corners movable angled parallelograms, on the upper and lower planes of which linen is stretched.

In calm these "wings" are parallel in a horizontal position with an equal pressure on their lower faces. When the machine is struck by a wind current its operator by an arrangement of cords and pulleys elevates one wing and depresses the other so as to equalize the resistance, and the aeroplane, just as a bird does, comes again on an even keel. That is the whole secret of the Wright aeroplane, which, experts declare, has brought the free navigation of the air into the certainties of the near future.

"I believe our machine is the nearest approach to the practical flier in existence," said Mr. Wright. "The French, who say they are the greatest investigators of aerial navigation, are modeling all their machines after the Wright type as nearly as they can without infringing on our patents. With the exception of a few details of construction that necessarily had to be kept secret in order to preserve the commercial value of our invention, practically every part of our machine has been patented in every country in Europe and America. In a few months our patents will be complete. Then a full and detailed discription of our machine will be made public."

Here is Mr. Wright's description of the machine:

Approximately it consists of a boxlike frame forty feet wide, seven feet long and seven and a half feet deep made of spruce and ash. At the center and top front is a front rudder, a feature which the Wrights introduced and which has proved superior to the old method of a rear rudder. In the center to the rear is the tail of the machine, approximately twelve feet in length, less than one-third the length of those on French fliers. This consists in different models of one or two vertical cloth covered frames.

At the rear, balancing the machine and as near the center as possible, are two propellers. Below the framework and toward the front is a skid similar to the runners on sleds. This is used for landing and differs in this particular from the French machines, which are equipped with wheels. For a portion of twelve feet at each end the upper and lower framework is provided with a surface of strong cotton cloth.

With the wheel arrangement the French find it dangerous to effect a landing on smooth ground with the machine traveling at a rate of more than ten miles an hour. With our skid we can land safely on any ground other than absolutely hilly while our machine is traveling at a rate of fifty miles an hour without any particular danger to the machine or the persons operating it.

In the center of the machine at the bottom is a small double wheel truck, which, running on a monorail, is used while the machine is acquiring speed enough to leave the ground. The monorail is easily movable in any direction. The machine weighs about 800 pounds, and in addition to its own weight, including a four cylinder motor of between twenty-five and thirty horsepower devised and made by the Wright brothers themselves, it can carry two men and fuel enough to drive the machine 300 miles. It can carry enough fuel with one man aboard to travel 500 miles.

In the tests at Kitty Hawk the machine made a five mile flight, traveling as high as sixty miles an hour. The government test is away below the machine's limit, according to Orville Wright. He says that the same model used in the Kitty Hawk trials will be used in the government tests.

In the earlier experiments of the Wrights the first impulse of motion was relied on by the navigators of the air. No motor was included in the airship's equipment, the start of a flight being made from a height and the principle of the floating disk being utilized. This of course allowed the machine to come to a standstill after a time, and it crashed to the ground repeatedly, its weight being in slightly greater proportion to its size than that of the disks used in illustrating the simple principle. Then the motor and propeller were devised, and the Dayton aeronauts became known as men who had solved the problem of flight.

In Dayton last winter the Wright brothers declared that it would be possible after slight changes in their machine, changes which their experiments had developed, to make a speed of 100 miles an hour. The machine in which they flew for twenty-eight miles in Dayton and which was wrecked through the pulling of the wrong lever in the trials in North Carolina attained a speed of forty miles an hour. They declared that up to forty miles an hour the fuel cost of running was slight, but that every additional mile an hour after that would prove very expensive. The resistance of the air at very high speed becomes a great factor, and they had hopes of making 100 miles only with a larger and stronger machine than they could afford to build.

Houghs Neck By the Seaside

The Houghs Neckers want to get into the popularity contest. There will be a great chance for some one from the Neck to win the first prize, a splendid motor boat. Vote early and vote often.

The clubs that are at the Neck this summer are an improvement over those of last year.

Peter Ryan has taken the management of Tessler's drug store again this year. Mr. Ryan is very popular.

It is rumored that Houghs Neck will have another drug store. We can easily support two.

Officer Thorne has been given a bicycle by Chief Burrell. He needs one to properly patrol his large beat.

Captain O. G. Fosdick had a few old sailor friends visit him on Sunday. Some fine old tales of the sea were spun. Captain Fosdick was the conductor on the last Harvard night car.

Miss Florence Matthews of the Sequin cottage, Mear's avenue, Great hill, has fully recovered from her illness and is up and about as well as ever. This will be good news to her many friends.

The Misses Elva and Vera Leonards of Brockton were the guests of Miss Edna Bird of the Fortease cottage, Bird street.

The membership of the Houghs Neck Associates is still growing. Twenty-five new members last week and they are all hustlers.

The old saying that when the police are wanted they cannot be found proved untrue Monday morning at the fire at Geo. W. Peterson's. Officer Thorne deserves a great deal of credit for his quick wit and coolness. Thorne was riding past Petersons when he saw the reflection coming from the bake shop. Putting on more speed Thorne rode to the alarm box at the foot of Great hill, broke the glass, pulled in the alarm and rode post haste back to Peterson's, quickly throwing aside his bicycle he broke in the front door and aroused the men sleeping in the building. Frank Collins who was sleeping in a house near by was awakened by Thorne. While Thorne went in search of a ladder, Collins went up to third floor of the building went up to the third floor of the building and brought down Mrs. Bertha Merrill and daughter Doris to the second floor, by that time Thorne had a ladder raised and went to Collins assistance. The people of Houghs Neck think that the Mayor should do something in recognition of Thorne's splendid work. Already there is a movement on foot to bring the attention of the Humane Society on the work of Collins and Thorne.

"Old Clothes."

[Original.]

I am the hardest substance known. I have a green tinge about me, though my mates are usually colorless. It is the rarity of this tinge and my size that makes me very valuable. Though no larger than a hickory nut, I am worth many thousand dollars. I was born in Brazil. The first of this world, at least of daylight, for me was rolling out with stones, sand, earth and other minerals following the stroke of a pick. I lay on the ground before a workman. He looked about him and, seeing his foreman's back turned, picked me up and put me in his mouth. When he went from work he was searched, but I was not discovered.

The next scene in my life of motion, so to speak, was in a wood. The workman who had found me sold me to a man of better grade. The price paid was $100 in United States bills. The man who bought me took me to a room, locked the door and examined me carefully. I could see by his expression that he was very much pleased with me. He got a box of sewing utensils from a closet and, ripping a pocket in the lining of his coat, put me in and sewed me fast. I didn't suppose that I would stay long in this place, but I did.

One day a policeman came to my owner's room and arrested him. He was not wearing the coat in which he had sewed me. It hung in a closet. A month later it was taken down and with other clothing taken to Villa de Principe, where it was sold to a Jew. A young man "all tattered and torn" came into the Jew's shop, tried on several coats, and, the one I was in fitting him, he bought it. I think the price paid was $2. The young man walked all the way to Rio, doing work here and there for a meal. Had he known that he had me with him he might have ridden in a coach and four.

When he got to Rio he shipped on a vessel bound for New Haven, Conn. I was rolled, with other clothing, in a small bundle and put under his bunk, he donning sailor togs. When we reached New Haven my owner put on his shore clothes, left the vessel and walked up into the city. He met a number of young men he knew, and by his conversation with them I learned that he had been a student in the college there and his father had died insolvent during the son's second year. From a student he had become a sailor, had sought employment in South America and had got stranded in Brazil. One of his old chums loaned him some money with which to buy a ticket to his home in a distant city.

This home was in a shabby little cottage in the suburbs. It was both a melancholy and a happy meeting between the young man and his mother and his two sisters. They were evidently people of refinement living in poverty. Their returned boy was hungry, but there was nothing save a piece of corn bread in the house to give him. They begged him to stay with them, try for a position and help them. To this he consented, and they were happy.

That night after he had gone to bed one of his sisters took his clothes and sat up late patching and darning them that he might appear the better in looking for employment. After the sewing she took them downstairs into the kitchen, heated an iron and pressed them. While running the iron over the coat its nose hit an obstacle in me. She felt of me, took me to the light to examine the place where I was; then, taking a knife, she ripped the sewing and took me out. Seeing nothing but a brownish stone, she threw me into a coal scuttle, but on second thoughts took me up again and put me on a table. Then, finishing her ironing, she took the clothes to her brother's room.

The next morning she showed me to her brother and told him where she had found me. He looked me over very carefully, thinking all the while, and asked his sister to show him the place where she had found me. Then he put me in his pocket and later on started out to look for a situation. About noon he went home. He met his mother in the hall. He was pale and trembling.

"Oh, mother!" he exclaimed.

"My boy, what has happened?"

"If it shouldn't be true it would kill me."

"What?"

The stone Fannie found sewed in my coat. Thinking it might be a jewel in the rough, I took it to a jeweler. He says it's a diamond. A diamond of that size is worth many thousands of dollars."

He took me out of his pocket, and the mother and her daughter gathered round, each trembling with excitement.

"Don't count on too much, dear boy," said the mother. "If it is a diamond, it has a real owner, and you must find him, but he will doubtless give you a reward for its return."

But the owner was never found. The young man wrote to the officers of all the diamond mines in Brazil, and all replied that they had no record of any such diamond, though I had doubtless been taken from some of them when dug from the earth. Since none of them could prove ownership none of them claimed me.

I was polished, cut and sold for a fortune. The young man went back to college, and, the story of his return getting out among the students, they gave him the sobriquet of "Old Clothes."

Newsy Budget From Shipyard

Secretary Metcalf announces that the two new battleships authorized at the last session of Congress would be named Florida and Utah respectively. He said that the next battleship authorized would bear the name Wyoming. The name of the monitor Florida will be changed to that of some other city in that state.

Congressman George E. Foss, chairman of the Committee on Naval Affairs of Congress, was the speaker on Friday evening, June 5, at the Hamilton club at Chicago. He said in part:

"Wherever our great fleet shall sail not only will it demonstrate our strength in the Orient—and the people over there don't recognize virtue unless it is backed up by power—but it will be a gentle reminder that the United States always will defend her interests in this hemisphere and will not forsake her interests in the other hemisphere."

"The cruise has demonstrated that our ships are built right and silenced the criticisms of men who have served a short time in the navy and attack it in the press. It has shown in target practice in Magdalena that our target practice today leads that of the world. The cruise called the attention of our people to the fact that we have a Pacific as well as an Atlantic coast line and that having two seaboards our navy must have two fleets.

"It has shown the friendship of South American countries and as a result of the fleet's visit there we will cultivate more cordial relations with the countries of South America because they will always realize that South and North America are bound together by the Monroe Doctrine and that Uncle Sam has the power to back it up against the world.

"It has called attention to the fact that the trend of our developments is toward the west and it has called the attention of the people to the importance of building the Panama Canal to bring the Atlantic and Pacific coast lines closer together."

SEWER REPORT

Millions of Gallons Discharged Daily Off Peddocks Island

The annual report of the Metropolitan Water and Sewerage Board just issued has much of interest to Quincy.

In the South Metropolitan System there are maintained 40.25 miles of main sewers, with which are connected 479.51 miles of local sewers, having 111 connections with the Metropolitan System.

The Back Bay, Roxbury, West Roxbury, Brighton and Dorchester districts of Boston and the towns of Brookline and Milton still maintain both separate and combined sewers, but all the other districts contributory to this system maintain separate sewers.

The Ward Street pumping station, the Quincy pumping station and the screen-house at Nut Island are maintained for the disposal of sewage for this system.

There have been pumped at the Ward Street station an average of 23,500,000 gallons per day, with an average lift of 41.57 feet, at a cost of $0.074 per million gallons per foot lifted; and at the Quincy station 3,615,000 gallons, 21.04 feet lift, at an average cost of $0.254 per million gallons per foot lifted.

An average of 40,600,000 gallons of sewage has passed daily through the screens at the Nut Island screen-house, and has been discharged from the outfalls into the outer harbor. The maximum discharge per day, which occurred during a heavy storm, was 137,000,000 gallons. The discharge of sewage through the outfalls represents the amount of sewage contributed in the South Metropolitan System, which was at the rate of 215 gallons per day per person of the estimated number contributing sewage in the District. The daily discharge of sewage per capita is considerably larger in the South Metropolitan District than it is in the North Metropolitan District, because, owing to the large size of the High-level Sewer, more storm water is admitted at periods of heavy rainfall.

The additional pumping engine which has been obtained for the Quincy station has been in operation since March 1, and has been successful in relieving the station from the troubles which had occurred, particularly in periods of unusual rainfall.

A small area in the districts of Dorchester and town of Milton, which is so low that its sewage cannot be carried into the High-level Sewer except by pumping, still disposes of its sewage through the Boston Main Drainage Works, and for this a rental is paid to the city of Boston. Otherwise, all the sewage of the South Metropolitan Sewerage District is disposed of through the outfall pipes from Nut Island.

The expenditures for maintenance of the South Metropolitan System for the past year were $95,513.11.

The loans for the construction of the various parts of the South Metropolitan System have amounted to $8,867,046.27. The receipts applicable to the loan fund have been $10,106.60. The amount of expenditures approved for payment in the year 1907 was $459, 807.64. The total amount of expenditures approved for payment from the beginning of the work has been $8,182,580.79. The balance on hand for the South Metropolitan System on January 1, 1908, was $694,572.08.

The bonds issued on account of the loans have been for varying periods, not exceeding forty years, and bear interest at the rate of 3 per cent. and 3 1-2 per cent. The premiums received on account of the sale of bonds on the North Metropolitan System have amounted to $175,518.65, and those received on account of the South Metropolitan System have amounted to $400,332.03.

The amount expended for maintenance of the North Metropolitan System in the year 1907 was $138,271.99, and for the South Metropolitan System $95,513.11, a total for both systems of $233,785.10.

The assessments made to meet interest, sinking fund requirements, and maintenance and operation of the North Metropolitan System amounted in the year 1907 to $270,448.12, and the assessments for the South Metropolitan System amounted to $503,860.49.

The new centrifugal pump at the Quincy Pumpting Station was purchased from the Lawrence Machine Company, having a capacity of pumping 10,000,000 gallons per 24 hours, was in the early part of the year 1907 fully installed in connection with the compound vertical engine, both engine and pump being of a standard type. Two additional boilers of about 100 horse-power each were supplied. The whole additional plant has been in operation since March 1,1907.

Assessments for the year, amounting to $270,448.12 for the North Metropolitan System and to $503,860.49 for the South Metropolitan System, were required for the payment of interest and sinking fund requirements and the cost of maintenance and operation of works. The requirements for the North Metropolitan System were: for interest, $123,858.39; for the sinking fund, $53,144.64; and for maintenance, $93,445.09. For the South Metropolitan System the requirements were: for interest, $367,726.72; for sinking fund, $48,198.97; and for maintenance, $87,934.80. The assessments for the North Metropolitan System were made upon the cities and towns in the District in accordance with chapter 369 of the Acts of the year 1906, and the assessments for the South Metropolitan System were made in accordance with ratios fixed by the Apportionment Commissioners appointed under the provisions of chapter 424 of the Acts of the year 1899, and the respective assessments were as follows:

The Long Delayed Appointment

A few days after Mayor Shea was elected as chief executive of the city he was approached by a well known City Square business man, who jokingly demanded that he be given a job as flag man on the steam roller.

In the same spirit of fun the Mayor promised to seriously consider the advisability of giving him the job, provided he could fulfill the requirements.

That was several months ago, but hardly a week has passed that the business man has not given the Mayor a dig because he did not get the job.

Tuesday afternoon a special messenger called upon the business man, and placed an official looking envelope in his hand, and also handed him a bundle. He thought it was a notice that the crosswalk between Hotel Greenleaf and his coal office would be restored.

The envelope proved to contain a notice of his appointment to the position of carrying the flag in front of the steam roller, and ordered him to report for duty at City Hall at 7 o'clock the next morning. The bundle proved to contain a bright new red flag which was the insignia of his office.

Friends who knew of the appointment were on hand to see if Frank went to work. They were disappointed, for he did not report. He however came poking up Hancock street about 8 o'clock but there was no red flag to be seen, and when he passed the steam roller it was noticed that he indignantly turned his head the other way.

When asked why he was not at work on his job he hesitated a moment, and then said he had accepted another position driving an ice wagon. However, the general impression seems to be that Frankie will have to open a box of cigars and forever hold his peace.

New Schedule.

The work of laying double tracks on Hancock street from City square to the corner of School and Elm streets, which has been done by the Old Colony Street Railway Co., is practically completed. The management of the Old Colony Street Ry. Co., is now at work arranging its schedules with a view to giving a better running time on the West Quincy line. This it is proposed to reduce to a 20-minute schedule. In order to make this improvement of the West Quincy service it is necessary to take a number of matters into consideration. This is now being given attention, and it is hoped that the new schedule giving this 20-minute service will be prepared and ready for operation by June 21 or very soon after.

Regular Expressmen Only.

In dismissing the petition of Charles J. Hersey for a writ of mandamus to compel certain members of the Salem board of aldermen to sign his license to transport liquor into the "Witch City," Justice Hammond in the Supreme court gave a decision that will have an important bearing on the rights of those men who engage in the express business solely for the purpose of bringing rum into dry cities and towns.

The board voted to grant a permit to Hersey, but certain members refused to sign the permit on the ground that the petitioner was not a general expressman within the meaning of the law.

Hersey then sought to have the members compelled to sign the permit. The court heard witnesses a few days ago.—Boston Journal, June 9.

LOUISIANA'S CONTEST

National Committee Votes to Seat Both Delegations

EACH MAN HAS HALF A VOTE

Vice Presidential Situation Brought to Front by Opening of Hammond Headquarters--Guild Boom Will Soon Be Strongly Urged

Chicago, June 10.—After working for four days and with five additional days yet to come before the meeting of the convention, the Republican national committee adjourned late yesterday with two-fifths of its contests decided.

The committee yesterday decided sixteen contests, affecting thirty-six delegates. The contests comprised the delegates-at-large in Louisiana and Missouri, seven districts in Louisiana, six districts in Mississippi and one in Missouri.

The Louisiana contest, which was the most important of the day, resulted in a split delegation, the committee deciding, on a division of twenty to thirty, to seat both the "Lily White," or Taft delegation, and the "Black and Tan" with half a vote for each. This agreement was not reached until after repeated conferences and anxious telegraphing and telephoning between Chicago and Washington.

The decision finally reached by the committee was carried out with the consent and approval of both Secretary Taft and President Roosevelt. It provided that the Republican party in Louisiana shall be reorganized under the direction of a committee of three, composed of the chairman, the secretary and one member of the incoming national committee.

The agreement as reached between the Taft and anti-Taft elements on the committee was highly displeasing to the "Lily Whites," headed by ex-Governor Wermoth, who declared with great emphasis that he would not accept the compromise, but would carry the fight before the credentials committee.

The "Black and Tans" accepted the compromise with entire satisfaction. They have entered into a tentative arrangement by virtue of which their votes will be cast for Taft. They claimed that they were fighting especially for recognition of their organization, and that with them all other questions were comparatively dwarfed. The agreement to vote for Taft, however, is not binding, and to all intents and purposes the "Black and Tan" votes from Louisiana are uninstructed.

The division on the Louisiana compromise was the first test of strength since the committee met. This was not decisive, because a number of anti-Taft men voted for the settlement. Later, however, a vote was taken at the conclusion of a hearing of the contest from the Fourth Mississippi district. Committeeman Scott of Alabama called for a division, and thirty members of the committee rose to their feet in favor of seating the Taft delegation. On the call for negative votes nobody arose and the Taft managers were thereby assured that they had at least thirty votes on the committee.

The opening of headquarters for John H. Hammond of Massachusetts during the day brought the vice presidential situation to the front. He was the first to show his candidacy in a definite form, but coincident with his activity came the movement in behalf of Governor Guild of Massachusetts, who will be strongly urged when the full force of the delegation from his state arrives late in the week.

The New York candidates are numerous. They are George B. Cortelyou and Representatives Sherman and Fassett. The east also has brought forward another possibility in the person of Franklin Murphy, former governor of New Jersey and national committeeman of that state.

From the west Senator Dolliver of Iowa will be most prominently mentioned. Senator Burrows of Michigan, who is to be temporary chairman of the convention, and Lieutenant Governor Sherman of Illinois also have supporters among the politicians.

Much of the discussion as to the availability of these men centered upon their campaigning abilities. On this point the friends of Guild, Dolliver, Burrows and Sherman of Illinois were especially insistent, the advocates of all four claiming that their man is particularly well fitted to take up the position that will be imposed upon the vice presidential candidate between the time of his nomination and the opening of the polls in November.

There was some talk that the placing of Cortelyou on the ticket would be open to criticism, in that two members of the present cabinet would be running for the chief offices of the country, provided that Secretary Taft is nominated for the presidency. To this the friends of Cortelyou replied that while the secretary might be popular with the administration, he also possessed outside strength of his own with the commercial interests of the country, which would render him an available candidate.

Despite the generality of the talk on the vice presidential situation there is no inclination on the part of any of the leaders to pose as authority for or against any candidate. All assert that the situation cannot be brought to a focus as yet and that developments of the next few days may change the entire aspect of affairs.

A bomb was thrown into the Taft camp last night, when it became known that the "allies" were planning to combine and concentrate their strength on Speaker Cannon. Although the story was discredited at first, it developed to such an extent early in the evening that the Taft managers, some of whom were attending a banquet at the Hamilton club, were mustered together to plan a coup to offset the Cannon boom.

In spite of all the Taft talk, there is a tremendous undercurrent for Roosevelt, and it would require but little to make it almost overwhelming.

Warship Narrowly Escaped Sinking

London, June 10.—The crew of the battleship Irrisistable were engaged in Portland harbor in testing the Kingston flooding valves, which finally refused to close. The vessel began to fill rapidly, listing heavily to starboard, and it was necessary to call for the assistance of tugs. The guns were quickly trained to the port side in order to restore the balance of the warship. Divers and pumps were set to work as speedily as possible and finally the leakage was stopped by collision mats. The vessel still has a heavy list, but the danger of her sinking has been averted.

NO ACTUAL ALLIANCE

But England, France and Russia Have an "Understanding"

EDWARD'S VISIT TO RUSSIA

Affairs of Great Moment Were Discussed and Will Have Diplomatic Consequences--Persian Question Must Soon Be Thrashed Out

London, June 10.—Foreign Secretary Grey's announcement in the house of commons that no negotiations for new treaties would be initiated during King Edward's visit to Reval has put an end, for the time being, to the talk of a probable triple alliance between France, Russia and Great Britain, but it has not affected the hope of those Englishmen who are desirous of closer relations between these three powers that important diplomatic consequences will result from the meeting in Russia of King Edward and Emperor Nicholas and their respective foreign advisers.

There is no secret made of the fact that the presence of Sir Charles Hardinge and M. Iswolsky at Reval is for the purpose of discussing questions that have arisen out of the convention which put an end to the recriminations between Russia and Great Britain over Persia, Thibet and Afghanistan, but more particularly the present unsatisfactory state of affairs in Persia.

The good effects of this agreement already have been shown in the speedy ending of the threatening frontier war on the Indian border, a situation which, in the old days of suspicion and enmity between Russia and Great Britain, might have led to an Afghan war. The unanimity of the two governments in dealing with Persia also has proved the stability of this agreement, but the shifting conditions in Persia make necessary a thorough threshing out of this question.

Another more difficult question—one that might be resented by the other powers did they know it was receiving attention—is the Macedonian affair. It is hoped that this can be settled by the cordial co-operation of Russian and British diplomacy.

Following so soon upon the visit to England of President Fallieres of France, it is hard to disabuse the public mind of the feeling that King Edward's trip to Reval has also some relation to European affairs, and, as an actual alliance is considered impossible at present, serious thought is being given to the suggestion that this exchange of visits signifies that Great Britain's policy in Europe will, in the future, follow closely that of the dual alliance, France and Russia.

The foreign office says that too much significance must not be attached to this visit, but this is the usual official policy during such negotiations. A close observer of Anglo-Russian relations summed up the probable result of the meeting in the following words:

"That King Edward's visit will have diplomatic consequences may be taken for granted, but the interviews between King Edward and Emperor Nicholas will contain no threat for neighboring countries. They are rather a friendly completion of the Anglo-Russian agreement, proof of the spirit in which it is to be observed by the parties to it."

Meeting of King and Czar

Reval, June 10.—King Edward VII and Emperor Nicholas exchanged royal visits yesterday on board the Polar Star, in waters of the Bay of Reval, in the Gulf of Finland. It was a notable meeting and one which may have a far-reaching effect in the world policies of the future.

The day was brilliant with sunshine. The hills and the wooded shores of the bay were crowded with thousands, and the arrival of the king by sea and the czar by land was made the occasion of much enthusiasm.

In the evening boatloads of German, Esthonian and Russian residents steamed out into the roadstead and serenaded the royal visitors with national folksongs and village roundelays, the singing of the Esthonians being particularly pleasing coming over the moonlight waters.

Nothing with regard to the purport of the conversation between the king and emperor and the ministers has been published.

Serious Conditions In Persia

St. Petersburg, June 10.—A growing state of anarchy in Persia is reported in all advices received here. While there is an attempt to maintain an attitude of optimism, there is evidently a partially concealed apprehension of a serious turn in events. A dispatch from Tabriz says that a strong anti-Russian movement has broken out in northern Persia.

Panama's Commercial Supply of Firearms All Bought Up

WASHINGTON IN A WORRY

Planning to Prevent a Threatened Revolution--Squiers Gives Some Information and Receives Valuable Advice From the Secretary of State

Washington, June 10.—After an extended conference between Secretary Root and Minister Squiers, it was announced that Squiers would return to his post at Panama. It is understood that Squiers furnished much information in detail regarding the political situation on the isthmus, and in turn received some valuable advice as to the necessity of the American legation preserving absolute neutrality as between the respective candidates for the presidency of the republic.

The Panama elections, which take place on July 11, are giving the American administration much concern because of the expressed declaration of both political factions to resort to force in the event of failure at the polls.

It is stated on reliable authority that the commercial supply of firearms and weapons of all descriptions have been bought up and that practically every voter in that country is armed for this special occasion.

The interest of the United States is explained to be two-fold in the matter: First, its treaty obligation, supplemented by the Taft agreement respecting this election to maintain a republican form of government; and second, its great property interest in the canal.

Officials who are considering the situation have reached the conclusion that it will be much more satisfactory to all concerned for the United States to intervene to prevent, rather than to quell, a revolution. Just how such intervention is to be accomplished is yet to be determined.

One plan suggested is for the American government to provide competent election inspectors for each polling place, to act independently of the local election officials, and to be supported morally by the presence of armed American marines. Should this plan be adopted and its announcement made in advance of the election, it is predicted a full vote will be cast and an honest count made.

Press Stirring Up Public Passion

Panama, June 10.—The coming presidential elections have been a source of intense political excitement, but as far as is known here disturbances have occurred only in some of the towns in the province of Chiriqui, where, it is reported, all of the municipal mayors who are friendly to Obaldia have been dismissed.

It can be said, however, that in Panama little else than politics is discussed, and the bitterness of the campaign has not been diminished by articles which are appearing daily in the newspapers of both parties tending to arouse public passions. For example, The Star and Herald, a semi-official organ, in an editorial entitled "American Intervention," says:

"The supporters of Obaldia do not, nor can they see the intentions of self-benefit the United States may have in intervening. The day of the elections—God may not will it—something may occur in Panama like the blowing up of the Maine, which may involve us all in the common conflagration."

Brewers Opposed to Dives

Milwaukee, June 10.—Resolutions declaring, in effect, the United States Brewers' association to be in favor of the eradication of the "dive," came before the convention today. The resolutions declare that the municipal laws in all the cities of the country should have the co-operation of the brewers in their efforts to wipe out disreputable saloons.

Big Piano Firms Consolidate

SWAN ARRESTED AT RIO

Divorced Wife Charges That He Kidnapped Their Son

Boston, June 10.—When the steamer Balasques, from New York to Brazil, docked at Rio de Janeiro yesterday, Joseph W. Swan, a wealthy real estate owner of Everett, was arrested on the charge of kidnapping his 5-year-old son, Robert G. Swan. The boy was with him on board the boat.

Chief Inspector Watts received a cable message informing him of the arrest. Extradition papers were forwarded today, but it is understood that Swan will contest any attempt to bring him back.

It is claimed that Swan kidnapped the child on May 19 from the home of Mrs. Adyra Swan, and that he took him in violation of a divorce decree, which gave the child to the mother under certain conditions. When Mrs. Swan secured a divorce from her husband by an agreement between both parties it was decreed that Mrs. Swan should have the child and that Swan was to pay $52.08 a month as alimony.

To Fight Seminary "Merger"

Anti-Gambling Bills In Danger

Albany, June 10.—Precarious in the extreme is the condition of the Agnew-Hart bills, framed to carry out Governor Hughes' renewed recommendation of the abolition of the present legal protection of public gambling at race tracks. The peril in which the measures stand lies in the shortness of the time remaining before the hour of 2 p. m. tomorrow, when the extraordinary session will adjourn without day. So short is the time that well-managed obstruction in either house or both might prevent the bills coming to a vote before adjournment.

Canal Commission Wants Steamer

Washington, June 10.—Secretary Metcalf, at the request of Secretary Taft, has appointed a board of naval officers to make a survey of the steamships Shawmut and Tremont, which have been offered for sale to the isthmian canal commission by the Boston Towboat company for transportation purposes. Congress appropriated $1,550,000 for the purchase of two vessels by the commission.

Sculptor Brooks Gets Commission

Richard E. Brooks, a Quincy and Boston sculptor, has been awarded the commission for a memorial monument to Gen. John M. Hood for the city of Baltimore.

It was evidently with a full knowledge of the Boston sculptor's genius says the Boston Globe, that the Baltimore committee awarded Mr. Brooks this commission, for the people of Maryland have been very enthusiastic over the statues of Charles Carroll of Carrollton, one of the signers of the declaration of independence, and of John Hanson, which he made for the state of Maryland, and which are among the most conspicuous, as they are the most artistic statues in Statuary hall, Washington.

In Boston Mr. Brooks is best known by his statue of Col. Cass on the Public Garden, which is regarded as one of the best single figure statues in this commonwealth, which is saying a good deal, considering the Pilgrim statue by St. Gaudens at Springfield and the civil war volunteers by Mrs. Theo Alice Ruggles Kitson at Newburyport. There is no doubt, however, but Mr. Brooks is one of the foremost sculptors in the country today, and he is a busy man at the present time, having on hand several large commissions. He works a good deal in a studio which he has in New York.

Mr. Brooks formerly had a studio at Quincy Adams.

Class Day at Quincy Mansion

The Class Day exercises of the Quincy Mansion school were held Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the pretty stadium on the grounds. An inspiring hurdy-gurdy struck into an inviting entrance march promptly on the hour, and the juniors rushed across the lawn with their bright pillows, pausing near the stadium in two lines with clasped hands upraised for the seniors dignified to march through the arch. The eleven graduates were in costume for the first number on the program,—"The Follies of 1908," and passed up the steps of the platform singly, bowed appropriately to their part and ran away to don cap and gown.

The cast included Miss Abby Day, auto girl; Miss Alice Day, merry widow; Miss Edith Strauss, Q. M. S. girl; Miss Katherine Silver, Fluffy Ruffles; Miss Alice Keene, army girl; Miss Muriel Knight, navy girl; Miss Elizabeth Acheson, puritan girl; Miss Ruth Drake, school girl; Miss Beulah Bennison society belle; Miss Dorice Henderson, athletic girl; and Miss Hazel Kramer, fencing girl.

A charming little playlet in one act, "The Fifth String," adapted by Miss Bertha Bachelor, was the second number and was prettily portrayed throughout by Miss Herrig, Miss Woods and Miss Bachelor. Miss Herrig's violin selections were remarkable in their perfection of detail.

The class history was read by Miss Alice Day, and occasioned much laughter. It was well written and well read. Miss Edith Strauss rendered many pertinent hits in her class prophecy. She predicted in the years to come a grand hotel for Wollaston opposite the station with real live porters at the door.

The school slams by Miss Alice Keene, Miss Knight and Miss Henderson delighted the juniors who received them in good part. Miss Acheson's class will was very bright and apt and delivered clearly and well.

The tree planting and school songs interested the guests, and the little stripling Japanese red maple with its pretty leaves stood up bravely after the eleven shovelfulls of earth had been dropped around it by the seniors.

Refreshments were served and Mr. Macaroni kept his hurdy-gurdy busy for an informal dance on the lawn.

Houghs Neck By the Seaside

Tuesday night the 8.15 cars from Houghs Neck were derailed at the turnout on Babcock street. It was first thought that the front axle on the first car had broken but on closer examination it was found that the rails had spread. Traffic was delayed for over two hours causing much inconvenience to the passengers. Many walked home in preference to waiting for the cars to be repaired. The passengers received a severe shakening when the cars left the rails but no one was hurt.

The boat to Nantasket from Houghs Neck will make hourly trips every Sunday during June. The sail is a most delightful one, besides being the most direct way to Nantasket Beach.

Captain Haskell and Florence Matthews have plenty of friends who are out hustling for them in the popularity contest.

A. H. Taber and family of Quincy have taken possession of their summer cottage on Bell street.

Fred Scott of Bell street won the prize given by H. S. Brown for the largest score on Monday evening, for three consecutive strings. Mr. Scott's score was 276. The prize was a pretty silver pie knife.

Sea street from Bell street to the Sea Street Dream is almost as light by night as in the day time. Almost every business place has a large kerosene arc light which throws an exceedingly bright light.

The Sea Street Dream has opened for the season. The best and latest moving pictures and illustrated songs, every night.

More Mischief At Granite Yards

A number of cases have been reported to the police of mischief that has been done to machinery in the granite yards. Saturday night the generator in the yard of Thomas Bishop was ruined as reported in Monday's Daily Ledger. Since then a report has come to the police that the engine house of Frederick Barnicoat at South Quincy had been entered. There the parties took a wrench and unscrewed the oil cups and other parts of the engine so that some time was required before it could be used.

Tuesday night parties entered the yard of Hughes & Johnson on Granite street and cut off the hose that carries compressed air to the pneumatic surfacing machine.

Inspector Goodhue who has been at work upon the cases has learned that all the mischief has been done by gangs of young boys. Warrants have been issued against them and they will be brought into court.

Newsy Budget From Shipyard

The scout cruiser Salem left Boston on Tuesday to try out another set of propeller blades. The government trial will not take place for two weeks.

There were five gradutes in naval architecture from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology this week: Maurice E. Denny of Cardross, Scotland; Edmund F. Heard of Kingston, N. Y.,; Joseph Pope of Springfield; Carrol D. Steele of Dorchester; Loyd H. Sutton of Marlboro.

Bangs of Braintree, Harold C. Faxon of Randolph, Bernard S. Leslie of Milton, and Joseph W. Wattles, Jr., of Canton, in mechanical engineering.

YOUNG LADY IN LEAD

Has Twice As Many Votes As Nearest Rival Capt. Haskell

The only young lady in the Motor Boat popularity contest has taken the lead today, and it is said that her friends are making an active canvass of Houghs Neck. "Bill" Field has moved up to third place and his friends propose to place several trial orders for the Ledger to boom his candidacy. Several new names are entered today and some of them are popular in different organizations.

Blanks for placing trial orders for the Daily Ledger may be obtained at the office of publication, and will be mailed upon request. Each trial order gives a credit of 100 votes to your favorite candidate.

The standing of the candidates will be printed each day, all votes received previous to 9 A. M. being counted that day.

It is not necessary that candidates shall be members of a yacht club or any other club. Neither is the contest limited to men. Women as well as men may enter.

The prizes offered are valuable ones, there being others besides the motor boat which is offered as a first prize.

The standing today at 9 A. M. was:

The Dolans Lose Street Railway Cases

A verdict for the street railway was returned by the jury at the superior court at Dedham Wednesday night, in the cases of Dolans against the Old Colony street railway. Mrs. Mary A. Dolan sued for $10,000 for injuries received, and her husband sued for $5,000 for loss of services. A niece also sued for $5,000. The accident happened on Washington street near the residence of N. B. Furnald six years ago. Mr. Dolan was driving along the street toward Hull, and his horse became frightened, it is alleged by a car whistle, and threw the party out.

Rejoicing At Milton Church

A hallelujah banquet was held at the East Milton Congregational church Wednesday evening to celebrate the cancellation of the marriage on the church and the burning of the same.

The banquet was served at 6.30 and was very largely attended, the menu including: fruit, broiled halibut, ham, tongue, potatoes, vegetable salad, ice cream, cake and coffee.

The supper was followed by appropriate postprandial exercises.

Selectman Jesse B. Baxter was the toastmaster and the toasts were as follows:

"How we did it"—Austin W. Greene.

"What has been done and may be done by the Women for the Church,"—Rev. William T. Beale.

"What has been done and may be done by the Men for the Church,"—Deacon W. D. Brigham.

"The joy of working together,"—Rev. George H. Flint.

"The strong helping the weak bear their burdens,"—John Wells Morss, Esq.

"Strengthening the Walls of Zion,"—Rev. Edward Anderson.

"The value of the church to the community,"—Rev. Edwin N. Hardy, Ph. D.

Then came the burning of the church mortgage, which was performed by Martin S. Kelsey, assisted by the pastor Rev. George H. Credeford.

During the posprandial exercises there was appropriate music, closing with a prayer and doxology.

The congregation now numbers 500 members, and was never in a more flourishing condition than at the present time. Within a few years the edifice has been entirely remodelled and is now a very attractive church home. Rev. Mr. Credeford, the pastor has been an earnest and faithful worker and he has been ably supported in his work by his parishioners.

Come Again.

Martin Anderson, a clerk at Winer Bros, turned the tables very neatly on a woman shoplifter Tuesday afternoon. The woman wandered about the store, and the clerk saw her slip several articles in a bag which she was carrying. The woman then made a purchase and handed him the bill in payment. Without turning an eyelash, the clerk said, I will also take out for the goods you have in your bag. The woman's face turned scarlet, and she was speechless. The clerk deducted the price of the goods taken, and giving the woman her change said, good afternoon, come again.

No Celebration On the Fourth

The regular meeting of the Citizens' Association on Wednesday evening resolved itself into an informal discussion of questions of the day, including a Fourth of July celebration, the erection of houses for wage earners, abolition of grade crossings, junk licenses, etc.

It was not thought advisable this year to have the proposed celebration of the Glorious Fourth.

Plans were presented for houses which could be sold with the land for less than $2000, and it was announced that work would commence soon on the erection of two at Edison park. Herbert S. Barker and H. T. Whitman are interested financially.

The city plans for the abolition of the grade crossings at Saville street and Water street met with favor.

The increase in the number of junk licenses was deplored, but it was thought too late this year to take any action.

Police Holiday Once a Month

The one day off in thirty for the members of the permanent police force, as provided for by a law passed by the Legislature, went into effect in Quincy on Wednesday. Inspector McKay was the first officer to receive a day off, and Sergt. Hanson is having his vacation today. John J. Duane of the reserve force is the man assigned to take the place of the man off duty.

Wheeler--Jordling June Wedding

On Wednesday evening at eight o'clock at the Church of the Advent, Boston, Miss Bertha Carolyn Jordling of Holbrook, and Mr. George Robert Wheeler of Boston, were united in marriage by the rector of the church, Rev. William H. Van Allen. Mountain laurel, daisies and rock ferns made an effective decoration.

The maid of honor was Priscilla Stern of Randolph, and her gown was of white embroidered mull. The bridesmaids were Edith W. Jordling and Evelyn Jordling of Holbrook, and they wore pink crepe, while the bride was in point d'esprit, with long tulle veil. She carried sweet peas.

Francis L. Craigie was best man and the ushers were John N. Montgomery of Dorchester, Merrill Davis of Boston, James H. Hurter of West Somerville and John Driscoll of Malden. S. B. Whitney was organist.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the parish hall from half past eight until half past nine, the maid of honor and best man assisting in receiving.

As souvenirs of the happy occasion the groom presented his best man and ushers with scarf pins, and the bride gave her bridesmaids gold brooches set with pearls.

After a wedding trip of two weeks Mr. and Mrs. Wheeler are to reside at 62 Myrtle street, Boston, where they will receive their friends after September first. Mr. Wheeler is a well known baritone in Boston and vicinity, having sung with the Berkeley male quartet for the past four years.

Shay—Mc Sweeney.

There was a pretty wedding in Woburn, Wednesday, June 10, in St. Charles chapel, when Miss Mary Eleanor McSweeney of Woburn, daughter of Mr. Bryan McSweeney, Munroe street, was united in marriage to Mr. James Edward Shay of South Braintree. The ceremony was performed in the evening at six o'clock, Rev. Fr. Keegan, pastor of St. Charles church officiating.

Mr. Joseph T. Shay of South Braintree, a brother of the groom, was best man and the bride's sister, Miss Abbie McSweeney, made a charming maid of honor. The bride was beautifully gowned in white princess with duchess lace trimmings of baby Irish lace, and carried bride's roses. The ushers were J. Edward Dee of South Braintree and Bryan McSweeney of Woburn.

The groom's present to the bride was a handsome diamond brooch. After a wedding trip to Saratoga, N. Y., Mr. and Mrs. Shay will reside at 9 Woodland street, Worcester. At home after Sept. 1.

Health to Man.

"We remember that Jesus recognized human nature in its entirety," says Dr. McComb in his new book "Religion and Medicine," "and that in His solicitude for the soul He did not forget the body, and that in giving peace to the conscience He also gave health to the whole man." It is with the desire to help the health of homes, that the Fresh Air Camp of Quincy and Weymouth is to be conducted during July at North Weymouth, within a 5 cent fare of all of Quincy and Weymouth. The Ledger wishes it every possible success.

Team Goes Through Hingham Bridge

The Weymouth and Hingham bridge was completely blocked to travel this morning by a team breaking through.

A heavy wagon upon which was loaded a flag pole 112 feet long, bound for Thomas Lawson's Dreamwold farm was passing over the bridge when the planking broke through, letting the rear wheels through the hole. Travel was completely blocked for some time.

The first report received of the accident was that a load of furniture had gone through the bridge into Back river, and that the driver had narrowly escaped being drowned.

Although a large hole was torn in the bridge, the heavy team did not go through. This bridge has been sadly in need of replanking for a long time and will now probably receive attention.

Epworth League Anniversary.

The nineteenth anniversary of the Epworth League was observed by Kelley Chapter of Hall place M. E. church last Sunday with special exercises.

The sunrise meeting on Long House Hill at 6.15 A. M. was an innovation, and proved a grand success. The special program presented by members of the league at the 7 P. M. service was entitled "In the School of the King," and the parts were well rendered as follows:

1. A song of the King.
2. Prayer.
3. Song.
4. Installation of officers.
5. Song.
6. The Prospectus — Miss Frances Burk.
7. A song of the school.
8. Students introduced by Registrar, Miss Hilda Francis.

Knowledge of the King—Miss Lillian Johnson and Miss Amy Miller.

Knowledge of the Kingdom—Miss Anna Scott and Miss Maud Hodgkinson.

9. A song of the Kingdom.

The service of the King—Miss M. K. Shirley and Mr. Joseph M. Francis.

The student's vocation — Miss Mae Williams and Miss Katie Hodgkinson.

10. Song of Commencement day.
11. The matriculation service with hymn of dedication and prayer of consecration.
12. League benediction.

The music was of more than ordinary worth, and was played skilfully by Miss Berle Hannant, while Mr. Charles Goucher directed the singing.

The altar and platform were prettily decorated with potted plants and the league colors.

One interesting feature of the day was the organizing of an enthusiastic Junior League by the pastor with the following officers: President, Cemille Fuller; Vice President, Edna Miller; Secretary, Maud Nichols; Treasurer, Wesley Williams.

Wooden Wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Goodridge celebrated their fifth marriage anniversary Wednesday evening by a family gathering at their home at 99 Granite street. A wedding supper was served during the early evening, and was followed by a few hours' sociability. Mr. and Mrs. Goodridge received a number of remembrances of a wooden nature.

A race for the Cape Cat class will be held by the Quincy Yacht club Saturday afternoon at 2.45.

It is not too late to enter your candidate in the Daily Ledger popularity contest for the most popular yachtsman.

Miss Gladys Ball will lead the prayer meeting June 14th at the Park and Downs Congregational church. Her subject will be "Choosing our life work."

The crossing on Hancock street from the Greenleaf to the Daily Ledger office is being replaced. The crossing in front of the Quincy Savings Bank building is being relaid with new blocks.

The bill relative to a new parkway bridge over the Neponset river enacted in the Legislature was recalled on Wednesday and referred to the committee on roads and bridges.

Wednesday evening, at her home 592 South street, Miss Margaret K. Shirley was tendered a pleasant surprise by the Phi Gamma and other West Quincy friends. Games and refreshments added to the pleasure of the occasion, and Miss Shirley was presented a beautiful pearl and emerald ring by Mrs. Charles E. Thomas, the President of the Phi Gamma.

TAFT VOTES GROWING

Gets Delegates In Three Contested Districts In Ohio

STRONG FIGHT FOR FORAKER

It Results In Both Delegations From One District Being Seated--Ohio Man Likely to Be Chairman of Credentials Committee

Chicago, June 11.—The Republican national committee, by its work yesterday, decided contests in two states at large and in fourteen districts, the net result being that thirty-three full votes and two half votes were added to the number already accredited to William H. Taft and that two half votes were given to Joseph B. Foraker. The work of the committee, as far as it has progressed, has given Taft a total of 504 on the temporary rollcall.

The chief interest of the day centered in the Ohio contests, of which there were four, namely in the Third, the Sixth, the Tenth and the Thirteenth districts. Taft got the delegates in the Third, the Tenth and the Thirteenth districts, and in the Sixth district both delegations were seated, with half a vote to each man. The Foraker men made a strong fight in this district, because it was the old home of the senator and they were anxious to procure its votes for him.

It is the hope of the national committee that it will be able to finish its work by Friday night. To this end the members are making every possible effort to induce the warring factions to consent to the consolidation of cases.

With the end of the labor of the national committee fairly well in sight, discussion has turned to the possible composition of the credentials committee, to which many of the contests will probably be appealed. The talk centers largely around Harry M. Daugherty of Columbus, O. He is slated for the credentials committee from his state, and it is general gossip that he may be chosen chairman of the committee when it is made up next Tuesday.

"I do not believe that the credentials committee will be ready to report to the convention before Thursday," said Daugherty. "If I am chosen as a member of the body I shall oppose any proposal for an all-night session of the committee on Tuesday, as from present indications it would be impossible to dispose of all the cases that will be brought before the committee even if this expedient were to be adopted. I cannot see how the committee will be able to prepare its report for presentation to Wednesday's session of the convention and it probably will have to work all of that day and part of that night in order to be ready for Thursday."

There was a sudden cessation of activity regarding the vice presidential situation. This was largely due to the announcement made by Frank H. Hitchcock that the Taft forces would not take part in any campaign for the second place on the ticket. The leaders of the "allies" adopted the attitude that it had not been customary for the party to consider the vice presidency until after the first place on the ticket had been filled and that there was no present reason to depart from this precedent.

What discussion is heard centers largely about Senator Dolliver of Iowa and Secretary Cortelyou. Lafayette Young, one of the delegates-at-large from Iowa, says that the friends of Dolliver in his own state are not anxious to see him leave the ranks of the senators for the office of presiding over the senate. He says, further, that he has received promises from some of the energetic friends of the senator outside of Iowa to cease agitating his name as a candidate.

The friends of Governor Guild of Massachusetts seem satisfied with the results of their work thus far. There was no announcement forthcoming from the headquarters established for John H. Hammond.

An indefinite, persistent rumor, which could not be confirmed in any direction, prevails to the effect that Governor Hughes will not permit his name to go before the convention. This rumor, coupled with an Associated Press dispatch from New York in which Timothy L. Woodruff, chairman of the New York state central committee, expressed himself as believing that his state is entitled to the second place on the ticket if Hughes be not given the first place, led to much discussion as to whether Hughes could not be induced to accept the vice presidential nomination. The entire story, however, is indefinite and cannot be substantiated in any quarter.

HAMMOND NOW A VOTER

Says He Will Support Guild If Convention Wants Governor

Gloucester, Mass., June 11.—John H. Hammond, the mining engineer, who has announced himself a candidate for the Republican vice presidential nomination, came to this city yesterday and was registered as a voter here. Hammond was made a voter at city hall by City Clerk Somes, who is also clerk of the board of registrars.

Mr. Hammond said that he had sent a letter to Governor Guild, who is also a candidate for the vice presidency, notifying him that if the Republican national committee or the delegates to the Chicago convention desire a New England man for vice president he will withdraw and do everything in his power to secure Guild's nomination. On the other hand, Hammond asks Guild if the governor will support him, in the event that the party leaders decide that the vice presidential candidate should be from some section of the country other than New England.

Guild Will Not Make Agreement

Boston, June 11.—On his arrival from Washington last night, Governor Guild made public the following reply to John H. Hammond's letter relating to the Republican nomination for vice president:

"I can quite understand why you are unfamiliar with my position. When the governor of Michigan was kind enough to suggest my name in connection with the vice presidency, I stated that I should neither run after the nomination or away from it. My name would not go before the national convention had not the Massachusetts state Republican convention formally put it forward as that of the Massachusetts candidate and had not both senators voluntarily offered to take charge of the matter in the national convention.

"You will readily see, therefore, that it is quite impossible for me to accept your suggestion or to make any combination whatever, even with a personal friend."

For Delegates to Consider

New York, June 11.—The Republican club of this city has sent to every delegate and officer of the Republican national convention a copy of resolutions recently adopted by the club urging the enforcement of the Fourteenth and Fifteenth amendments of the Constitution by congress. The resolution denounces all attempts to create race hatred, prejudice and injustice, as a menace to the peace and welfare of the republic, and "insists upon the recognition of all political and civil rights of all citizens, national and local, regardless of race, color or creed."

Thinks Bryan Stronger Than Ever

Lincoln, Neb., June 11.—Henry Watterson of Louisville has arrived here as the guest of W. J. Bryan. Watterson admitted that "various matters of Democratic interest" would be discussed. Concerning Bryan's candidacy he said: "I have accepted Mr. Bryan as the inevitable candidate for the Democratic party. He will be nominated on the first ballot. I think Mr. Bryan is stronger than ever and has a much better chance to win."

First Place or None

New York, June 11.—Governor Hughes spoke at the commencement exercises at the Fordham law school last night. He had nothing to say regarding his political prospects. He has, however, before this taken occasion to let it be understood definitely that he would not accept second place upon the Republican national ticket. So far as is generally known this attitude has remained unchanged.

Close Congressional Fight

Des Moines, June 11.—As a result of the second day's official canvass of the vote in the Seventh district, Congressman Hull has a majority of only four votes over his opponent for the Republican nomination, S. F. Prouty. The canvass probably will continue through the week.

Persians Prepared to Fight

Tiflis, June 11.—General Suarski has received orders to refrain from crossing the Russo-Persian frontier. The Russian authorities are reluctant to aggravate the serious international troubles of the shah's government among the Persian masses, which, it is reported, are excellently armed with rifles and ammunition of German origin. Suarski's expeditionary force will not be recalled, however, as it might be urgently needed at any moment.

Mail Thieves Got Big Haul

Los Angeles, Cal., June 11.—There is reason to believe that a registered mail pouch stolen at Kansas City, while en route from Los Angeles to New York, will prove one of the richest hauls ever made in a postal robbery. From unconfirmed reports here it is probable that one of the items in the bag was a bundle of currency containing $50,000.

Mind Weakened by Strain

Harrisburg, June 11.—Frank Irvine, formerly connected with the auditor general's department, who had been a defendant in the capitol conspiracy case now on trial here, has been removed to the state hospital for the insane at Norristown. Irvine broke down mentally during the third week of the trial.

Death of Oliver Belmont

New York, June 11.—Oliver H. P. Belmont, the world-famous whip, society man and banker, died at his home at Hempstead, L. I. Belmont had not been in the best of health for some time, but his condition was not serious until appendicitis developed. Belmont was born in New York, Dec. 28, 1851.

Heavy Sentence For Light Theft

Easton, Pa., June 11.—Convicted of stealing an old straw hat and a screwdriver from a church, Edward Whelan was sentenced to serve ten years in the penitentiary. He is a young man, but has served terms in the county jail and in the penitentiary.

MUST LEAVE BOSTON

John Moran's Aspirations Are Checked by Tuberculosis

GOING TO THE ADIRONDACKS

"The Man Who Dares" Has Not Lost His Nerve, and Hopes to Return and Become Governor of Massachusetts--Will Not Resign

Boston, June 11.—The announcement that District Attorney John B. Moran of Suffolk county is afflicted with tuberculosis and will be obliged to leave Boston at once for the Adirondacks for an indefinite period, marks a halting place in the future career of one of the most picturesque characters who has ever held office in the commonwealth of Massachusetts.

True to his soubriquet of "The Man Who Dares" the keen, sarcastic, brilliant criminal lawyer is not at all cast down by the verdict his physicians have found against him. "My physician tells me I've got to destroy the tuberculosis bugs or they will destroy me," stated the district attorney. "Its tough news, but I told my physician that the bugs might get the best of me for a while, possibly, but I will get the best of them in the end, for after I'm dead I'll have my body cremated and burn them alive. My physician said I had the proper spirit, and a man who could joke on such a subject could recover with the proper open-air treatment."

Continuing, the district attorney stated: "If I can, I'm going to come back to Massachusetts and be governor of the state yet. If it weren't for these bugs I should have tried it this fall, even if I didn't have any voice. What's more, after I get to be governor, if I do, if anyone wants me to be vice president, I'll be that too.

"I shall most certainly not resign the office of district attorney to which I was elected. If it seems desirable to remove me from my office the supreme court of Massachusetts can do it, but I think it is too charitably inclined to do that."

John B. Moran has forced himself into the public eye as few other men have done in the history of public men in the commonwealth. Born in Wakefield forty-nine years ago, he went through the schools of his native town, Phillips Andover academy and Boston university, entering the bar and practicing in Woburn and Boston.

Year after year he opposed District Attorney Stevens in contests for that office and finally succeeded in 1905 in defeating District Attorney Sughrue as a candidate of the Independent Democrats and was re-elected as an independent candidate last year for a second three years' term. In 1906 he ran for governor on four tickets, as Democrat, Prohibitionist, Independence Leaguer and as a citizens of Boston. In the final vote he polled 19,946, or but 7500 less than Governor Guild.

Mr. Moran immediately entered into the solution of practically every apparent evil which threatened the commonwealth and her citizens and soon found himself overwhelmed with cases which the courts were not large enough or the days long enough or the evidence sufficiently voluminous to bring to definite conclusions.

Mr. Moran had his victories, however, and not the least was his conviction of the private secretary of Senator Lodge, Robert G. Proctor, of failing to turn over a campaign contribution, sentence for which Proctor has succeeded in evading to date, however.

Mr. Moran's independence was shown in starting his campaign for governor, when he summarily discharged his three managers and conducted his campaign alone. He refused to support Bryan and allied himself with the Hearst interests.

That his ambition is not yet satisfied is shown by his determination, in the face of a sentence of not less than six months to the Adirondacks, for developments as to the seriousness of his present affliction, to be a candidate for governor as soon as he returns.

Trace of Much Wanted Man

Freehold, N. J., June 11.—Information has reached Monmouth county authorities which leads them to believe that Benjamin B. Ogden, the former mayor of Keyport, who disappeared in September, 1903, and was indicted on charges of embezzlement, is living in Havana. It is said that Ogden has been seen within two weeks in the Cuban capital, where he is engaged in business under an assumed name.

President Wheeler's Great Power

San Francisco, June 11.—Power was conferred on President Wheeler of the University of California, at a meeting of the board of university regents, whereby if he should choose he could order the wholesale vaccination, quarantine or dismissal, for reasons of health or sanitation, of every student at the institution, and there would be no appeal.

Program For Naval Militia

Washington, June 11.—Scouting, target practice, torpedo practice, and possibly the presence of submarines, will be a feature of this year's combined maneuvers of the naval ships and the state naval militia organizations. There are to be two rendezvous for the exercises, one at Gardiner's Bay, N. Y., and one in Chesapeake bay.

Hot Stove—Cool Kitchen

How do you expect to endure the broiling days of summer if you prepare all the food over a glowing coal fire?

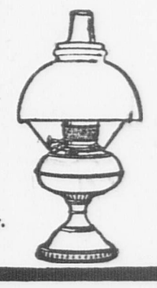

You need a "New Perfection" Oil Stove that will do the cooking without cooking the cook. It concentrates plenty of heat under the pot and diffuses little or none through the room. Therefore, when working with the

NEW PERFECTION
Wick Blue Flame Oil Cook-Stove

the kitchen actually seems as comfortable as you could wish it to be.

This, in itself, is wonderful, but, more than that, the "New Perfection" Oil Stove does perfectly everything that any stove can do. It is an ideal all-round cook-stove. Made in three sizes, and fully warranted. If not with your dealer, write our nearest agency.

The Rayo Lamp a substantial, strongly made and handsome lamp. Burns for hours with a strong, mellow light. Just what you need for evening reading or to light the dining-room. If not with your dealer, write our nearest agency.

BY NINE AMENDMENTS

Railroad Control Bill Greatly Changed by Legislators

HOSTILE TO ORIGINAL DRAFT

Boston and Maine Changes Front and Opposes Measure Which It Had Strongly Advocated Previously --Bill May Die Between Branches

Boston, June 11.—By a vote of 138 in the affirmative to 75 in the negative, the Massachusetts house of representatives late yesterday afternoon ordered to a third reading the railroad regulation bill after the adoption of nine separate amendments, one of which provides that the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company shall dispose of all Boston and Maine stock held by it before July 1, 1910.

The amendments adopted were opposed by the committee on railroads as hostile to the original draft as passed by the senate.

The bill as reported by the committee and passed by the senate provided in the main that "unless otherwise ordered by some federal court of competent jurisdiction, the New York, New Haven and Hartford may continue to hold until July 1, 1910, the stock of the Boston and Maine, not exceeding 109,948 shares." The board of railroad commissioners were given the absolute and sole right of voting this stock.

The amendments adopted yesterday take away the right of the commission to vote the stock and provides for its disposal by the New Haven.

The fight over this bill, which has lasted two days in the lower branch, was one of the most spirited contests ever witnessed in the Massachusetts legislature. From the first the house was about evenly divided, and before the final vote was taken fully fifty members addressed the body pro and con.

The announcement made shortly after noon yesterday by counsel for the Boston and Maine railroad that that corporation had changed its opinion as to the practicability of the proposed legislation caused somewhat of a surprise among those who had advocated the committee bill, and after the adoption of the several amendments the Boston and Maine was charged with the responsibility of the defeat of the original bill. The announcement made was to the effect that the Boston and Maine was not only opposed to the bill itself, but to any and all amendments that had then been offered, and should make every endeavor to prevent the bill from becoming a law.

At the recent hearing given by the committee on the railroad legislation President Tuttle of the Boston and Maine was foremost among the advocates for the legislation which the committee on railroads subsequently reported.

Of the several amendments adopted one providing for the sale of the Boston and Maine stock was most important. Another embodied the suggestion of William B. Lawrence, a minority stockholder of the Boston and Maine, and limited the rights of stockholders in any railroad corporation from voting more than one-tenth part of the whole capital stock.

With hardly a dissenting voice the house adopted an amendment providing that nothing in the acts shall be construed as in any way abridging, restricting or preventing the courts of the state from issuing any order or process relating to the stock of the Boston and Maine or relating to any violation of the laws committed by the New Haven in the purchase of this stock or the stock of any street railway company.

Chairman Walker of the committee on railroads announced after adjournment that an endeavor will be made to reconsider the action taken. If this fails it will be returned to the senate for concurrence in the amendments. The upper branch passed the bill as it came from the committee without change, and Senate Chairman Faxon announced last night that under no consideration would the senate concur; neither would it ask for a committee on conference. Should the senate refuse to concur both in the amendments or for the conference committee the bill would die between the two branches.

BOTH TOOK POISON

Serious Charges Cause Man and Woman to Commit Suicide

Essex, Mass., June 11.—Despondent, presumably because of their arrest on a statutory charge, George A. Gorton, a well-to-do farmer, and Mrs. Edith A. Bowe, wife of Thomas Bowe of this town, committed suicide. Gorton's death occurred from strychnine poisoning, while Mrs. Bowe took a fatal dose of the same poison a few hours later.

The two had been arrested together and were held for the grand jury in bonds of $400. They returned to their respective homes after their hearing, and Gorton immediately took a dose of strychnine, from the effects of which he died. He was 56 years old. His wife, with whom he lived, and a son, who is married and has a farm separate from that of his father, survive him.

Thomas Bowe, a medicine peddlar, returned home yesterday to find his wife sitting on the front steps. "Hello, you won't have me long," was her greeting to him. Then she entered the house, drank from a glass containing strychnine, and died within an hour. She was 35 years old and leaves three small children.

Striking Edge Trimmers Yield

Spencer, Mass., June 11.—The edge trimmers at the shoe factory of Isaac Prouty & Co., who have been on strike for three weeks, returned to work this morning. The trimmers go back to work at the price offered by the factory management before the strike began.

He was arrested last night, charged with embezzlement.

Rich leaves a widow, two sons and three daughters.

Failed to Place Blame

Biddeford, Me., June 11.—The Maine railroad commission concluded its investigation of the accident at Kennebunk, in which one person received fatal injuries and several others were less seriously injured. ### Top of Youth's Head Blown Off

Falmouth, Me., June 11.—Llewllyn Adams, aged 18, was killed instantly by the accidental discharge of a shotgun which he was carrying. It is a pleasure to note that new and smoother stone will be used for some of the crossings in City Square. A "Granite City" like Quincy should have the best in the granite line, partly as an advertisement.

HAL CHASE A MARVEL.

New York Americans' First Sacker One of Greatest Ball Stars.

Hal Chase, the San Jose (Cal.) peach and the champion one mitt grabber of badly thrown balls, who can take care of things very nicely around the first stopping place of the infield for Manager Clark Griffith, is now the leading ball swatter and base purloiner of the New York Americans, besides being the most spectacular first sacker in Ban Johnson's league.

But what makes this young fellow one of the best first basemen in the game today is the way he handles the ball around the first base. He has saved many a game. He has stopped the ball when it looked as though it was going over into the stands or some other place. He gets the balls, no matter how they are thrown—on the inside, outside or any old side. Baseball critics who have seen his work say it is a pleasure to watch the way he goes about things. He makes hard plays look easy.

Chase was born in 1884 at Los Gatos, Cal., but he now makes his home in San Jose. Hal started to get busy with the great game at Alviso, where there was no chance of his being noticed. No one would ever think that Chase made quite a hit as a pitcher. Once it looked as if he would make a success as a slabman. In 1904 Manager Morley of the Los Angeles club signed Chase, and right here is where he made a big hit on the diamond. He was unknown, but it was not long before he was the talk of the state of California. At the end of the 1904 season he was drafted by the New York Americans. It was a great draft. He had no sooner put on the uniform and gathered them up around first base when he was stamped as one of the greatest of first basemen in the major leagues.

Chase plays ball practically all the year around, and while playing in California it does not make much difference to him as to what position he is in. He has covered short in Los Angeles and has played that position well.

STRANG MAY WIN GRAND PRIX

Will Drive American Car In Great French Auto Race.

Lewis Strang, when he starts on July 7 over the forty-eight mile Dieppe circuit to win the Paris Grand Prix race in a Thomas car, will tackle a proposition the difficulties of which he well knows. As mechanician for Walter Christie in the last Grand Prix he drove the circuit scores of times. He knows its turns and twists, its rises and declivities, as well as the turns and curves at Briarcliff.

His victory at Briarcliff was in a measure due to his familiarity with the Briarcliff course, and his familiarity with the Dieppe circuit will give him a tremendous advantage over any American driver save Christie, who might pilot the Thomas car.

Strang is the type of driver to get the most out of a race. Beginning with Christie, he learned his lesson well. When he got the opportunity at Savannah to apply it he was not found wanting. He won at Savannah a conspicuous victory. He repeated that victory with the same Isotta car at Briarcliff by the same sort of tactics.

Recital at Quincy Mansion

The commencement recital by the instrumental pupils of the Quincy Mansion school was given Wednesday evening in Livermore hall. There was a large gathering of relatives and friends and it was one of the prettiest recitals that has ever been given by the school. The pianoforte selections under the direction of Mr. S. Newton Cutler were from such masters as Rubinstein, Bohnn and Schumann, and were executed with remarkable ability. The pupils of Mr. William Howard on the violin were finished in their playing and coupled with their talent a native instinct of the lights and shades possible on the violin.

At the close of the evening a former teacher of the school, Mr. Forrest J. Cressman of New York, who has travelled for four years in Europe, gave a few pianoforte selections that bespoke a master of the art. This last feature was especially interesting to the pupils and teachers as well as to the assembled guests.

The audience was most enthusiastic and the charming gowns of the young women made a notably pretty picture in the home setting of the school hall.

Today is graduation day, and exercises were held at 2.15 P. M. to be followed at 5 P. M. with the Alumnae reception to the faculty and the Class of 1908.

Reckless Speed.

Editor of the Ledger:—

Automobile speeding seems to be on the increase in at least two sections of our city, where the pedestrian, be he young or old, who attempts to cross the street, in a sense, takes his own life in his hands, for there appears no "blue-coat" to warn or to make afraid the man who drives his machine at a rate, far above the lawlimit.

On Quincy avenue, Newcomb square and East Braintree, there seems no limit to speed; also on Washington street between Edison street and the bridge. Three times within a few weeks the writer has had narrow escapes, owing to the reckless rate of the auto and to the failure to hear any warning whistle or gong.

Last fall our police department did excellent service in controlling the speed of autos in our city. Some citizens wish a revival of this good service. Our police chief is an obliging man and the public sentiment is anxious for such a regulation which is due to the citizens of our city. Pedestrian.

Explosion Feared.

Children playing wih matches Wednesday afternoon started a rubbish fire on Whitwell street. The rubbish happened to be very close to one of J. A. Sutherland's wagons that was loaded with gasoline and kerosene. There was an immediate danger of an explosion. Inspector McKay, who was enjoying his day off at home succeeded in extinguishing the fire.

Dramatic Club.

The Sans Soucci Dramatic club met at the home of Miss G. Michael, Caledonian avenue on Wednesday evening, and elected the following officers for the ensuing year: President, E. J. Collins; Vice President, Miss Jennie Grassick: Secretary, Miss Anna R. Giles; Treasurer, William Troupe; Stage Directors, A. J. M. Cowe, Jr., John Cappacioli and Miss Georgiana Michael. After the meeting refreshments were served. The club will open its season in the fall with a strong play, which will include the entire cast.

Representative Coombs voted in favor, and Representative Hultman against the White amendment to the merger bill adopted in the House on Wednesday which provides that the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. shall before July 1, 1910, "sell or otherwise dispose of all stock and beneficial interest in stock in the Boston & Maine."

Houghs Neck By the Seaside

Many large catches of cod are brought into Houghs Neck. Almost every day fishing parties go to the fishing grounds at Boston Light. The largest catch of the season was brought to Houghs Neck by the power boat Crescent, A. F. Baird of Great Hill and a party of friends, who got a large haul of smelts off Peddocks, on Sunday.

There is a bad spot on Sea street near "the Willows" that the Commissioner should look after. Many teams use that road at this time of the year, especially the furniture movers. Two furniture teams got into a hole there and were delayed for some time. A few lots of gravel would work wonders.

The ways and means committee of the Houghs Neck associates met Wednesday evening at Browns bowling alleys. The committee made preparations for the second monthly supper of the associates to be held on the fourth Wednesday of the month.

There is no prospect of a Boston boat from Houghs Neck this summer. This will be a hard blow to the business people and property owners.

Some great hustling is being done by the friends of the Houghs Neck candidates in the popularity contest. Florence Matthews is leading them all a merry chase.

The sail from Houghs Neck to Nantasket point is one of the best sails on the coast. Hourly trips every Sunday in June. The steamer Hough Neck is being used on this line.

The Strollers are to have a merry widow moonlight dance at Pandora hall on the night before the fourth of July. A good time is promised.

Already arrangements are being made for the third annual barn dance to be held in Brown's summer ball room August 21. James Purcell will be in charge.

The Sea Street Dream has opened for the season. The best and latest moving pictures and illustrated songs, every night.

Annual Picnic.

John Hendry, chairman of the Point parish committee on the picnic, reported that the picnic is to be at the grove at the Sailors' Snug Harbor, Germantown, June 27, from 8.30 to 5. Transportation will be by boat from the power house and by special trolley cars, leaving the Point church at 8.25. An interesting program has been arranged for the day with basket luncheon at noon. A silver cup is to be procured for the winner of the athletic championship; this cup is to be the property of the school and the winner of each years' events is to have his name engraved upon it. Entries should be made as soon as possible with Mr. Hendry.

Salem Showing Great Speed

The officials of the Fore River Co. feel confident that the scout cruiser Salem will break the record of the navy. On Wednesday she came up the bay at a 25.24 knot clip. The day before she did a mile at the rate of 26 2-3 knots. The builders trials will continue until June 22, after which her acceptance trials will be held. She is now trying out different sets of propeller blades to see which is the best.

A Boston paper reports that the United Fruit Company has authorized construction of three more fruit steamers, following three authorized a year ago and now practically finished and three others of prior construction but still nearly new. It has been demonstrated that 50 per cent. can be saved on freight by company owned steamers over chartered steamers.

BILL FIELD SECOND

But Young Lady At Houghs Neck Continues in The Lead Today

"Bill" Field moves up again today and is now No. 2 in the popularity contest for the Motor Boat. There are six candidates with over 100 votes, each of them having received a credit of 100 votes for one or more trial orders of the Daily Ledger for two months. Charles W. Forsdick is the latest to enter this charmed circle.

Other candidates are moving up in the list, and as usual there are several new names enrolled. Five trial orders for the Daily Ledger would have placed any one in the lead today.

Blanks for placing trial orders for the Daily Ledger may be obtained at the office of publication, and will be mailed upon request. Each trial order gives a credit of 100 votes to your favorite candidate.

The standing of the candidates will be printed each day, all votes received previous to 9 A. M. being counted that day.

It is not necessary that candidates shall be members of a yacht club or any other club. Neither is the contest limited to men. Women as well as men may enter.

The prizes offered are valuable ones, there being others besides the motor boat which is offered as a first prize.

The standing today at 9 A. M. was:

W. R. C. Service For Mrs. Leavitt

The funeral of Mrs. Emma S. Leavitt widow of Mr. Charles L. Leavitt, was held Thursday afternoon from her late home at 194 Willard street. The services were very largely attended, for besides her many friends and neighbors there were large representations from Paul Revere Woman's Relief Corps, Maple lodge, K. & L. of H. and George L. Gill Rebekah lodge. Rev. Carl H. Raupach, pastor of the West Quincy M. E. church, conducted the services. A quartet from the M. E. church choir sang "Rock of Ages" and "Abide with Me." Following these services the burial services of the W. R. C. was read by officers of the corps. There were many beautiful flowers, the organizations with which she was affiliated sending set pieces. The burial was at Mt. Wollaston cemetery.

Hingham Bridge Closed to Travel

The Hingham bridge between Weymouth and Hingham is closed to travel because of the accident of Thursday, when a dray transporting a large flagstaff broke through. A sign on the bridge limits a load to six tons, and Selectman Hersey of Hingham says the load that broke through weighed fully ten tons, so the trustees of the Quincy and Hingham bridges may not be liable for damages. The flag pole will be erected at Dreamwold in season for a flag raising the Seventeenth of June.

Votes of Quincy Representatives

By a vote of 151 to 37 the railroad control bill was killed in the House on Thursday, Representatives Hultman and Coombs both voting no. The first roll call of the day was on a motion to strike off all amendments made to the Senate bill, which was defeated 73 to 116; Representative Hultman voted to strike out, and Representative Coombs voted no. The House refused to postpone by vote of 65 to 82. The Walker substitute bill was then defeated 92 to 100, Representative Hultman voting for substitution and Representative Coombs against. Then came the defeat of the bill.

Through the courtesy of Charles W. Ganzel, the entire Makaria base ball team is seeing the Cincinnati-Boston game today in a body. D. King, Harry Brooks and Mr. Ganzel are in the party and the team is anticipating a fine time.

HUGHES WINS BATTLE

Anti-Gambling Bills Pass the New York Legislature

DECIDING VOTE BY FOELKER

Sick Senator Risked His Life to Perform What He Considered His Duty--Climax of Most Sensational Legislative Contest In Years

Albany, June 12.—After a struggle, the like of which no man in or about the legislature has ever seen, the famous Agnew-Hart anti-race gambling bills are now laws of the state of New York. Governor Hughes, by his signature affixed to each of the bills at 4:35 p. m. yesterday, crowned a legislative victory the brilliancy of which, equalled only by its unexpectedness, is conceded even by those who fought him in this matter to the last ditch and beyond.

A few minutes before 2 p. m. the truly extraordinary session of the legislature of 1908 adjourned without day. The annals of legislation in this state may be searched in vain for a day like it. The decisive votes which passed the bills were cast by Senator Otto G. Foelker of the Fourth senate district of Brooklyn, who crawled from a sick bed and made a sixty-mile railroad journey to do it, so weak and distressed in mind and body that he seemed on the verge of utter collapse, and by a new senator, William C. Wallace of Niagara Falls, who was elected at a special election in the campaign preceding which the governor himself toured the district, speaking in behalf of his election.

Nothing was lacking to make the occasion dramatic. Up to the very last moment the opposition to the bills nursed diminishing hope. Rumors flew thick and fast that Foelker had collapsed; that some other senator who formerly voted for the bills had been induced to "switch."

There was even the report of a desperate attempt to prevent Foelker's presence at the critical moment. Every step of his progress from his house to his seat in the senate chamber was guarded zealously, but nothing of the kind was attempted. He came up one of the back elevators in the capitol and made his way through waiting and mostly sympathetic crowds to a seat in the closely packed chamber, where the battle, the issue of which, as it proved, was in his hands, was to be fought.

Senator Foelker's appearance in the chamber was greeted with a din of handclapping, which was suppressed by Lieutenant Governor Chanler in the chair, who threatened to have the floor and galleries cleared.

Governor Hughes recorded his appreciation of Senator Foelker's action in a letter to the senator in which he says: "Your courageous performance of duty at so grave a risk deserves the highest praise and will long be pointed to as a fine illustration of fidelity and patriotic devotion to the interests of the state."

There was no surprise in the vote of Wallace, who from the outset had been definitely pledged to the support of the governor's recommendation in this matter. Every other senator, including Foelker, voted as he did when the bills were before the regular session in April, and they passed by the precise constitutional majority of 26 to 25—not one vote too many or too few.

The bills passed in no way affect the state racing commission in particular or horse racing in general. They relate solely to the penalties for gambling, pool selling and bookmaking, which, as before, are declared by the law to be "a public nuisance."

Gambling Fraternity May Fight

New York, June 12.—Relative complacency has followed the consternation thrown into the camp of the race track owners, horsemen and bookmakers, by the passage and the signing by Governor Hughes of the anti-race track gambling bills, and the sentiment of the followers of the turf seems to be that racing will be continued.

It is said by a person high in racing authority that the fight will be continued to the bitter end and that a legal test of the constitutionality of the election of Senator Wallace will be made. The intention now is to have the bookmakers "weigh-in" today as usual and, if interference is offered by the arrest of any one of them, to seek a writ from the supreme court in order that a test of the new law may be had.

The feeling is general that, while the passage of the bills may affect the attendance at the race courses and lessen the betting end of the game, racing by no means is dead.

Senator Under the Knife

She had repented her revolutionary ideas and committed suicide probably to escape the vengeance of the terrorists.

WORMS IN CHILDREN

6 YEARS SUFFERING RELIEVED IN 8 HOURS

DANVILLE.

DR. TRUE, DEAR SIR:—One of my boys had been troubled for about six years with cramp in the stomach, and suspecting that it might be brought on by worms, we gave him different medicines, but without effect. Last January he had a more severe attack than usual, and hearing of the almost miraculous effects of your Elixir, we gave him about a teaspoonful, and in about eight hours it brought from him a living creature about eighteen inches in length. He has had no return of them since, and is now very hearty. G. W. VICKERY.

Thousands of people have worms and don't know it, yet the symptoms are easily recognized. Even though worms might not be present this extraordinary remedy will effect wonderful changes in the run-down system. It is a great stomach and liver tonic and regulator.

Worms in adults and children can be readily detected from the following symptoms: Indigestion; a variable appetite; offensive breath and foul tongue; eyes heavy and dull; itching of the nose; short, dry cough; grinding of the teeth; starting during sleep; slow fever and often, in children, convulsions and bed-wetting; looseness; hard, swelled bowels. No matter how pronounced or how light the symptoms, will restore the patient to normal health again.

DR. TRUE'S ELIXIR

TURNER, ME.

DR. J. F. TRUE, DEAR SIR:—Having used your Elixir in my family for many years, after having satisfied myself of its superior merits, I recommended it to my neighbors, who now very generally use it. I consider it the very best medicine now in use, especially for children.

Very truly yours, JOB PRINCE.

NEW GLOUCESTER, MASS.

DR. TRUE, DEAR SIR:—The Elixir I purchased of you cured my boy, who had been troubled with worms ever since he was a child. He had tried many other medicines, and I had employed physicians until I found it of no use. I despaired of his being restored to health till I heard of your Elixir, which, I am happy to say, effected a speedy cure.

Very truly yours, W. G. COOMBS.

Dr. True's Elixir is sold by druggists everywhere at 25c, 50c and $1.00 per bottle. A booklet entitled "Children and Their Diseases" will be sent free by simply addressing Dr. J. F. True & Co., Auburn, Me. We have a special treatment for tape-worm. Send for free book.

DELEGATES FOR TAFT

Managers Claim That Temporary Rollcall Will Show 554

COMMITTEE'S PROMPT WORK

But Few Contests Remain to Be Settled--Knox and Foraker In the Fight to the Finish--Complaint of Manager of Cannon's Campaign

Chicago, June 12.—The Republican national committee has reached Texas in the alphabetical list of states in deciding contests for seats on the temporary rollcall of the national convention, which meets on June 16. The work yesterday settled cases involving two delegations at large and twenty-one district delegations, a total of fifty delegates. Of these, Taft is almost certain of forty-nine and may have fifty.

When the committee adjourned for the day, counting the number gained by Taft yesterday as fifty, his managers claimed a total number of delegates on the temporary rollcall actually instructed, and not including delegates for Taft either by endorsement or declaration, to be 554. According to estimates made by the allies the number is 539, this estimate being based upon the latest figures issued by the "allies."

South Carolina contests were the first called, they being from the First and the Fifth districts. Both of them were given to Taft.

The hearing of the contests from Tennessee occupied by far the greater part of the day. The fight here grew out of a factional struggle over local issues in Tennessee, all of the Hale element being instructed for Taft, and the majority of their opponents, who were dubbed the Oliver delegates, being also for the secretary of war. The result was that the Taft men were seated in all but the Eighth district, where the delegation was divided. The splitting of the delegation, however, is not likely to make any difference to Taft, inasmuch as none of the Oliver delegates were instructed for anybody else and the greater number of them had been directed to vote for him.

The hearing of the Texas cases came next and in these the contests over the seats of the delegates-at-large and from nine districts were consolidated. After a brief hearing the delegates from the faction headed by Cecil A. Lyon, the present national committeeman from that state, were seated. The "reorganized Republicans" were completely defeated, not receiving a single delegate.

The situation around the hotels was but little more active than on Wednesday, no entire delegation being as yet upon the ground. The most important arrival of the day was that of Wade Ellis, attorney general of Ohio, who brought with him a draft of the platform. He refused to discuss its provisions, but asserted that, in his opinion, it would be "the best platform that any political party has sanctioned in recent years."

Pennsylvania delegates announce that Senator Knox is in the fight to the finish and the bigger the fight the brighter they believe his chances. R. H. Stevenson of Ohio makes a similar announcement in behalf of Senator Foraker, asserting that he will not under any circumstances withdraw before the end of the voting.

Another statement emanated from Congressman McKinley, manager of the Cannon campaign, who was moved to speech by the results of the contests before the national committee. He advocated anew the reapportionment of delegates to the national conventions along the line of suggestions made by the allies several days ago. His statement said:

"The practice of permitting a score of men in each of the states to run the party simply to control southern patronage is wrong. The apparent determination of the national committee to seat nearly 200 delegates from states which furnish no electoral vote for the Republican party, and which even refuse to put up candidates for congress where conditions seem to make their election possible, brings forward the necessity of restricting the representation of the south as never before."

SAYS THE PARTY IS DEAD

Hill Scores Democrats In General and Bryan In Particular

New York, June 12.—David B. Hill, former United States senator and for a long time leader of the Democratic party in this state, sailed for Europe on the steamer Baltic. Discussing his retirement from active politics, Hill said:

"There is no Democratic party. When I met the late Governor Altgeld shortly before the first so-called Bryan convention, I told him that the policies which he represented would drive the Democratic party to hell. Then, when he begged for another try four years later, I said, 'You are most there—stop before you have absolutely ruined the party.'

"I admit that the Republican party is badly disorganized at the present time. Both parties are disorganized. There was an opportunity, but I fear that it has been overlooked.

"The key of this political campaign should be 'Taft, the candidate of political patronage.' What else is he? He is put before the people as a candidate by the 'power of political patronage.' Nothing else.

"Now both sides in the coming political struggle will have to go to the masses for their votes. They must draw from the masses and what better man could stand against the candidate representing the 'power of patronage' than John Johnson, who spent his boyhood days in a county poorhouse. Think of it! Torchlight processions with banners reading 'John Johnson, the poorhouse candidate!'

"The Democratic party never wanted Mr. Bryan. Mr. Bryan wanted the Democratic party. He forced himself on the party in 1896, and again on what was left of the party in 1900, and now in 1908 he calls himself the Democratic party and says: 'I have kept the faith.'

"Every time Bryan says 'I have kept the faith' it makes me smile. He has kept the faith indeed. He kept it out in Nebraska, his own state, which is now Republican to its political center."

A Prohibition View

Milwaukee, June 12.—Predicting great gains in the south, with possible victory in all southern prohibition states, State Chairman Wilson of Illinois told the Wisconsin state Prohibition convention here that the foundation of his expectation was the alleged opposition of W. J. Bryan to prohibition.

Lincoln, Neb., June 12.—Referring to a dispatch from Milwaukee concerning his attitude on prohibition, Mr. Bryan said that he did not regard the question as a national question. "While it is an issue in a number of states," he said, "I do not expect it to be made an issue by either the Republican or the Democratic national convention. I have made it a rule not to discuss questions outside the platform, because the candidate has no right to inject issues which his platform excludes."

New York Delegates Start

New York, June 12.—A special train left New York for Chicago today, carrying State Chairman Woodruff, Speaker Wadsworth and other delegates from this end of the state to the Republican national convention. The train is due at Chicago at noon tomorrow.

Would Have Judiciary Endorsed

New York, June 12.—At a meeting of the Union League club of this city a resolution was unanimously adopted urging the Republican national convention to incorporate in its platform an expression of confidence in the integrity of the federal and state judiciary.

Utah Delegates For Bryan

Salt Lake, June 12.—Utah added six delegates to the Bryan column today when the state Democratic convention met in the Salt Lake theatre.

Receiver Must Have Bank Stock

Morse with the defendant.

Apprentice Seamen Set Sail

Newport, R. I., June 12.—Six hundred apprentice seamen were transferred from the naval training station to the cruiser Prairie, which sailed today for Colon. From that port the apprentices will go overland to Panama and will go on board the cruiser Buffalo, which will transfer them to the battleships of the Atlantic fleet, now in Pacific waters.

Knocked Overboard and Drowned

Pawtucket, R. I., June 12.—While watching the men at work tunnelling in the Pawtucket river from the Main street bridge, William Cadden, aged 22, was struck by the swinging pail from a derrick and knocked headlong into the river, a distance of thirty feet, and drowned. Cadden was employed as a clerk in a hardware store.

Mulai Hafid Holds Fez

Fez, June 12.—Mulai Hafid, the usurping sultan, arrived here at the head of an army whose numbers cannot be estimated. He entered the city between two lines of soldiers, escorted by a bodyguard of 600 or more. He went straight to the sanctuary, into which he penetrated barefooted to offer up thanks.

Steel Combination In England

London, June 12.—According to The Iron and Steel Trades Journal, there has recently been effected a great combination in the British steel trade with a capital of $375,000,000. The main object of the combination, according to the Journal, is to secure control of the international export trade.

Court Spectators Disarmed

Houston, Tex., June 12.—Almost 100 pistols were taken from spectators and witnesses before they entered the courtroom here, where the trial of R. O. Kenly, on a charge of killing former County Attorney H. S. Robb, at Groveton last April, was called yesterday.

"CONTROL" MEASURE KILLED

Strenuous Efforts to Save It In Massachusetts Legislature Meet With Overwhelming Defeat In Final Test In Lower Branch

Boston, June 12.—The railroad regulation bill was killed in the Massachusetts house late yesterday afternoon by an overwhelming vote. The members who advocated the amendments which were adopted Wednesday, compelling the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company to sell its holdings of Boston and Maine stock before July 1, 1910, voted to kill the bill, together with those members who had opposed the amendments.

This condition of affairs resulted when it became known that the senate would not concur in the house amendment and that the bill would die between the two branches.

Strenuous efforts were made early in yesterday's debate to save the bill from defeat. The advocates of the original bill, as reported by the railroad committee, and which permitted the New Haven to hold the Boston and Maine stock until July 1, 1910, but with the right of voting vested in the railroad commission, moved to strike out the hostile amendments, but this failed.

Subsequently Acting Governor Draper advised, through Chairman Walker of the railroad committee, that sections 1 and 2 of the original bill, prohibiting the requisition of stock in domestic railroad companies without the consent of the legislature, and sections 6, 7 and 8, which provided the penalty clauses, ought to be saved for the rights of the commonwealth. A motion to this end was defeated.

A final action taken by the house, that of passing the bill to be engrossed, resulted in the defeat of the proposition by a vote of 151 to 37.

The killing of this bill means that there will be no railroad legislation this year affecting in any way the New Haven ownership of the 109,497 shares of Boston and Maine stock, and the matter of the unification of the two systems can be consummated unless action is taken by the courts of the commonwealth to prevent.

With the disposition of this legislation it is probable that the legislature will finish its business and be prorogued tomorrow.

Case For Courts to Consider

New Haven, June 12.—In railroad circles here the defeat of all legislation in Massachusetts relating to the Boston and Maine merger, as indicated in the lower house of the Massachusetts legislature, was not unlooked for, though it was expected to take the form of a disagreement between the house and the senate. The effect now, from the railroad point of view, is to transfer the whole matter to the state and federal courts.

Cannot Use Beer as Medicine

Pekin, Ills., June 12.—Dr. Roy Richards was fined $20 and costs here for violation of the "dry" ordinance of the village of Hopedale. The physician prescribed beer for Mrs. Greismer. She was not able to obtain the beverage because of the prohibition law. Richards ordered the beer from another city, receipted for the package and took it to the patient. Some neighbors filed a complaint. The doctor entered a plea of guilty.

Warships' Practice Cruise Abandoned

Entertainment At Quincy Home

The unfortunates at the Quincy Home were given a rare treat Thursday evening by the Philanthropic committee of the Quincy Women's club.

Usually the inmates of the home retire early, but this evening all sat up and enjoyed the entertainment which was one of pleasure to all.

Several of the members of the committee were present, and in addition were Overseer James H. Elcock, Mrs. Elcock and Miss Elcock and Miss Shea, sister of Mayor Shea.

The entertainment was by Charles H. Johnson, who gave his illustrated lecture on "Historic Quincy." Many of those present were familiar with many of the views shown, although they had not seen them for years. It, therefore, was a great treat for them.

In addition to the lecture, Albert Hayden sang a group of four songs. After the entertainment the superintendent and matron served ice cream and cake, and when at last the inmates retired to their rooms it was with light hearts full of gladness for the interest outsiders had taken in them.

False Alarm For Lost Child

The lost child call was sounded at 3.29 Thursday afternoon to summons aid to search for Vera Fruzzi, aged 7 years, of 85 Taber street, South Quincy. The little fellow left home at 8 o'clock that morning to go to school, but evidently played truant. The boy did not come home to dinner, and in the afternoon two other boys told his parents that they had left him at the reservoir. This frightened his parents, and they asked police assistance. All search for him was fruitless, and it was planned to drag the reservoir this morning for the body. But the lad came home sometime during the night. He crawled into the house and hid himself under the bed. Just as the searching party were about to start this morning he came from his hiding place and said he was hungry.

Out Gunning For His Wife

Charles Levangie of Braintree came to Quincy Thursday night with blood in his eyes and a revolver in his hand, looking for his wife Annie. They have not been living together.

Mrs. Levangie says that he has threatened her several times. Thursday night about 9 o'clock he went to the house on Grand View avenue where Mrs. Levangie is employed, and was discovered a little later trying to look in at the window.

Officer Reiley showed up about this time and took Levangie in charge. Then it was that the officer found that Levangie had a loaded revolver in his right hand. It is thought that he intended to use it on his wife had he met her.

In court he was find $25 for carrying a loaded revolver, and the revolver was ordered confiscated. He was unable to pay his fine.

Graduation at Quincy Mansion

Commencement week at the Quincy Mansion school was rounded out Thursday afternoon by the graduation exercises in Livermore hall. The platform was fragrant with great bunches of red roses, the class color, and the aisles were tied with lavender bows, the school color, designating the special places for teachers and guests.

Shortly after two, lavender and white cords were drawn length-wise down the aisles, and the processional "The Angel of Peace" was taken up by distant voices accompanied by violin and piano, and drew nearer and nearer until the line of juniors were within the hall. They continued to the front, where they faced the audience in two lines as the white-robed seniors made their entrance. The effect was most artistic.

Rev. J. Stanley Durkee, Ph. D., offered a prayer as soon as the school was seated, after which Miss Ruth Drake delivered the salutatory address.

An interesting paper on Old Time Methods of Travel was read by Miss Dorice Henderson and Miss Abby Day, a resident of Sioux City, Iowa, told about the Progress and Oportunity of the Middle West, where her grandfather was one of the pioneers.

Miss Edith Strauss who enjoyed the privilege of touring abroad in an automobile a few summers ago and seeking out famous chateaus told of her experiences in a pleasing letter which contained many interesting bits of old time history.

Miss Hazel Kramer spoke wholeheartedly on the abuse of child labor in the United States where children are born into gross conditions of servitude in mines where they wither and die like flowers shut off from the sunshine.

The finding and valuation of American pearls was pleasingly described by Miss Beulah Bennison of Muscatine, Iowa.

Miss Alice Keene read a paper, descriptive of her recent trip to Manila, which was full of bright thoughts and instructive bits of native personality.

A delightful variation in the program was a piano solo, caprice, Opus 95 (Raff) by Miss Alice Day who proved to be a master of her art and whose touch was firm and true. Her rendering of the difficult selection was splendid.

Miss Elizabeth Acheson of Washington, Penn., who has been fortunate enough to see the rare beauties of Hawaii, delivered a charming paper on "The Paradise of the Pacific." Miss Acheson has a voice of remarkable sweetness and her rendition of the soft dialect of the natives was perfect. The short story of her trip was distinctly and picturesquely told her elocutional ability aiding the natural beauty of her subject.

Much laughter was ocasioned by Miss Muriel Knight's paper on Current events which gave a brief history of the school year.

The vocal selections by the school were eloquent of the the best training and the melodious harmony was of the kind possible only in women's voices.

The Rev. Lawrence Phelps addressed the audience and school with genuine enthusiasm. His subject was taken from the school motto, "Esto quod esse videris." Be what you seen to be. As he personally addressed the seniors, they rose to their feet which was a mark of respect seldom seen in schools of today.

After the valedictory by Miss Katherine Silver, in which were appropriate leave-takings of teachers, classmates and school and which was creditable in all details. Mrs. Willard made a few remarks covering the school year.

Thih was followed by the presentation of diplomas.

A benediction closed the exercises.

The school alumni then gave a reception to the senior class which was duly admitted into the sisterhood. Westover and Foss catered. The annual alumni dance followed in the evening. Election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows: Miss Helen F. Loud, president; Miss Alta M. Shaw, vice president; Miss Amy Adams, secretary and treasurer.

In the graduating class were: Misses Elizabeth Scott Echeson, Beulah Nye Bennison, Abby Stone Day, Alice Heathcote Day, Ruth Bradley Drake, Dorice Winthrop Henderson, Alice Lovett Keene, Muriel Knight, Hazel Vera Kramer, Katherine Silver and Edith Clare Strauss.

Rev. Dr. John D. Pickles of Lynn, one of the best known Methodist clergymen in Massachusetts, passed away Thursday aged 65 years. Dr. Pickles was well known in this city, having at various times occupied the pulpits of Quincy churches.

The Gas company has nearly finished its work at the Neck. Nearly everyone has a gas stove and quite a few have had their houses piped for lights. The next thing the Houghs Neck Associates are going to do is to try and get a double track from Quincy to the Neck. HOPE is springing up daily in the breasts of thousands who have learned of the efficacy of ELBA HOME REMEDIES.
There are 34 of these preparations. Each one of them is good for a specific purpose. Each of them is the prescription of an eminent physician or specialist. For instance:
ELBA HOME REMEDY No. 29 for catarrh has been found invaluable as a cure for this insidious disease. The relief it gives is almost instantaneous. You need use it but a short time to be convinced that it will permanently eradicate this poison from your system. But it will not cure any other disease.
Mr. Fred H. Thompson of Savannah, Ga., writes the manufacturers:
"Have tried many remedies for catarrh, having suffered from this terrible disease for the past seven years. I finally tried your No. 29 and I am happy to say it has completely restored me to health."
Remember, all of the ELBA HOME REMEDIES are sold under our guarantee; your money back if they are not exactly as represented to be, or if you are dissatisfied with the result.

"Let thyself be in tune!
Life is so sweet, and goes so very soon!
Miss not a single change or charm it has—
Bend to it and dance with it as the grass
Plays with the sun in June.
So rare and brief a thing
For happiness was meant,
And all delight,
Time only for a song—
A smile—a blossoming,
With now and then an hour
For silence and content.
Live like the flower—
Under the sun by day,
The stars by night."

REOPENING OF THOMAS CRANE PUBLIC LIBRARY DOUBLED IN SIZE; MORE BEAUTIFUL THAN EVER

The addition to the Thomas Crane Public Library and the necessary changes incident thereto are practically completed and the library which has been closed for several weeks will again be thrown open to the public. By these changes the original plant has been practically doubled which means incidentally more money for its maintenance.

Constant changes and additions made to increase the usefulness or beauty of the interior of Crane Memorial Hall have kept the library closed a much longer time than was anticipated. It has now been decided to reopen however, Saturday June 20, whether the details and interior finishings are completed or not.

The new addition was made possible through the continued benevolence of the family of the late Thomas Crane. The refinishing of the furnishings in the original building were however done by order of the trustees.

The new addition which has been built on the Spear street front is 42 feet by 38 feet. The wing is constructed of the same material as the original building and the style of architecture has been maintained. The architect was William M. Akin of New York who was connected with the firm who made the original plans, his Boston representative being Arthur G. Everett. The builders were Norcross Bros. who also built the original building.

There have been other changes to the exterior of the building, the stained glass in the original building having been replaced with other glass so that better light might be given to the reading room. On the north side where there were originally four windows there are now ten. The north memorial window has been taken out and moved to the north gable, and the memorial to Benjamin F. Crane is now located in the northeast alcove.

The changes in the main building are very marked. Entering from Washington street one sees directly in front the main delivery desk, which is raised somewhat to bring it on a level with the floor of the addition. Back of this desk are steel doors leading into the new part in which the stack room is now located.

All of the book racks have been removed from this floor and from the alcoves. In their place are reading tables lighted by individual electric lights. The leather paper has been removed from the walls and refinished so that it looks as fresh as the day it was put in. The galleries will also be used for reading rooms as well as for the display of pictures of art. The walls here have been covered with red and gold Japanese leather paper, which gives a very pleasing effect. New electric chandeliers have also been put in. These are operated from a switch board on the wall back of the main delivery desk. The floors are covered with green colored cork carpets.

In the north east alcove the panels above, between the beams, have been removed and the space has been covered with leather paper. In this corner is located the card catalogue drawers. All of the furniture in this room has been refinished and improved. There is also in this reading room a large rack for newspapers and magazines.

In the basement beneath the original building is a large room which will be used as a work room. It is well lighted by numerous windows.

The addition is separated from the original building by steel doors, fitted with an automatic closing arrangement, making the stack room practically fire proof.

Entrance to the main stack room is from the rear of the delivery desk the floors of which are on a level. Here there is a corridor through the center on either sides of which are three stories of steel book racks the floors of each floor being of glass. This room is supported by four iron pillars. In this room there are upwards of 40,000 volumes each of which has been thoroughly cleaned by the vacuum process. On either side of the corridor is a book elevator running from the children's room in the basement to the top story. There is also a cork carpet on this floor.

There are also in this room two offices. One for the librarian and the other for the cataloguer. These offices are nicely furnished. It might also be added that an interior telephone system has been put in connecting all departments.

From this floor are two stairways leading to the children's department in the basement. There is also an entrance to this room from the Spear street front.

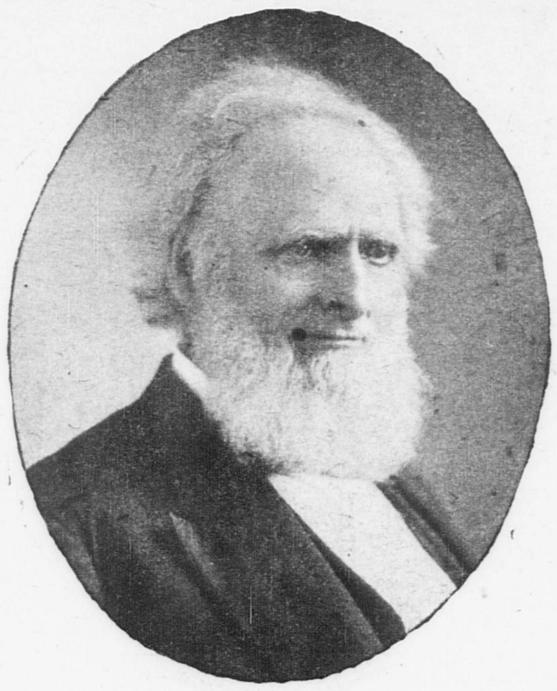

In the children's room there are ample reading tables and a delivery desk. Here all of the children's books will be kept, the capacity being 5,000 volumes. There are also the retiring rooms for the library officials and for the public.

On one side of the basement a new heating apparatus has been installed.

The bound newspapers which were formerly kept on the upper floor of the library are now located in the basement. The space they formerly occupied has also seen the hand of the remodeller. Here there has been built an office for the trustees which has been fitted with tables and an open fireplace.

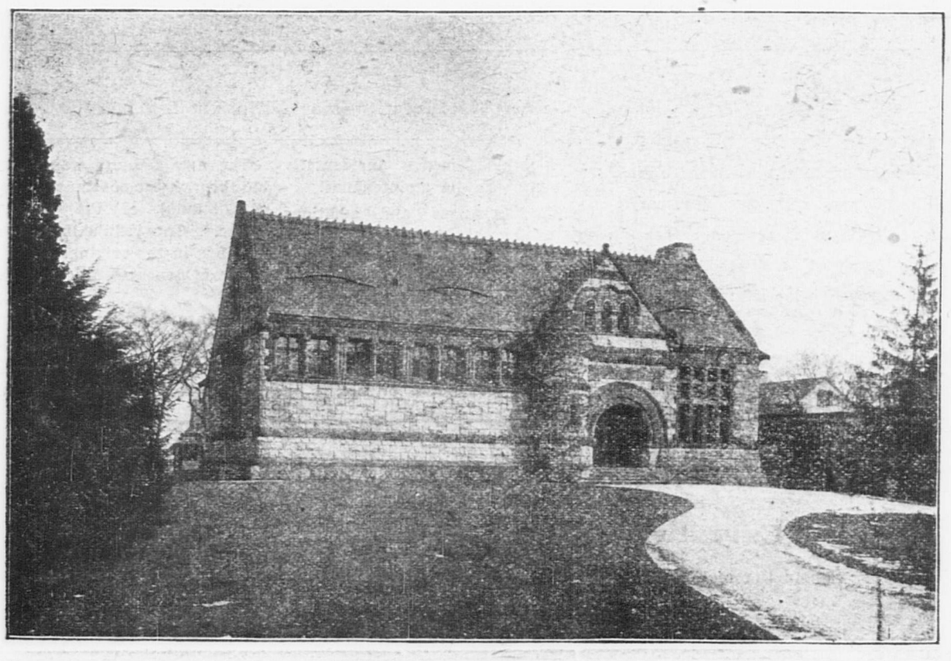

It is estimated that the changes that have been made will equal the cost of the original structure. Quincy can certainly be congratulated on having one of the handsomest as well as best appointed public libraries in the state.

Since 1876 up to 1907 there was no librarian appointed, but Miss Amelia L. Bumpus and Miss Alice G. White together fulfilled the duties of the position. In 1907 Miss Bumpus resigned and Miss White was elected librarian.

On Board of Trustees since 1871.

QUINCY'S BENEFACTOR.

Thomas Crane was born in Quincy Oct. 18, 1803, and died in New York April 1, 1875. He was styled a self-made son of New England. He was the third of six children of Thomas Crane and Sarah Baxter, his mother being the daughter of Daniel and Prudence Baxter of Quincy. His father died when he was but 15 years of age. At the age of 26 years he went to New York and was successful as a granite contractor and in real estate. The family have now expended considerable over $100,000 upon Crane Memorial Hall and grounds.

THE TRUSTEES.

Since its establishment in 1871 the public library of Quincy has been governed by trustees, six in number, who were elected under the town government, and are appointed by the Mayor under the city government.

During the 38 years there have been 27 trustees, City Clerk H. A. Keith being the only trustee who was on the original board, and who has served continuously since. ## Cardenio King, the Financial Promoter, Gives Himself Up

WENT ABROAD FOR "REST"

Incidentally He Has Been Writing a Book on Alleged Stock Market Knaveries--Bonds of $25,000 Exacted and Furnished

Boston, June 13.—A portly man, clad in a dark brown suit and a black derby hat of peculiar fashion entered the public room at police headquarters, and inquired for Superintendent of Police Pierce. Lieutenant Murphy, who was in charge, stated that the superintendent had not arrived and asked if his visitor would wait.

"I am Mr. King," was the grave response.

The police lieutenant was startled. Then he asked "Mr. King" to be seated and telephoned to Captain Dugan of the inspectors' department.

Thus did Cardenio F. King, the stock promoter who left Boston suddenly on Feb. 19, who was indicted by the grand jury in April on thirty-one charges of larceny involving $25,338.07 from John G. McCarthy and others, and who for the past four months has been sought more or less actively by the police of Boston, make a quiet, but none the less dramatic, return to the scene of his professional endeavors.

When Captain Dugan appeared he took King into custody, and detailed Inspectors McGarr and Armstrong to take charge of his case. King was booked as C. F. King, 60 Powell street, Brookline; profession, financial promoter. Then he awaited his counsel, Herbert L. Baker, who later was joined by G. P. Wardner, attorney for the trustees in bankruptcy.

King and the attorneys were given a small room in the bureau of criminal inspection, and there for the next two hours they were closeted.

King appeared quite at ease. It was noticeable that he had a good color, appeared in better physical condition than at the time of his departure, and that he had clipped close a moustache which was wont to droop over the corners of his mouth. Later he was visited by Daniel A. Holmes, formerly in King's employ, now a broker in the same building on his own account.

When Chief Inspector Watts appeared King was summoned to his office. To the chief King stated that he had been abroad, spending some time in Paris; that he had returned to this country on a French liner and had been in New York the past few days. Still later, in a long statement, typewritten and distributed to the reporters, King declared that he had gone away chiefly for rest and recreation and that he had almost completed a book detailing his life history, his financial career and exposing many alleged knaveries in the stock market world. He says he is back to fight. Later in the day King was photographed and his measurements and finger prints taken.

King was arraigned before Judge Pierce in the first session of the Suffolk county superior criminal court late in the afternoon, where he pleaded not guilty. In default of $25,000 bail King was committed to the Charles street jail, but was released later, bonds being furnished.

King appeared very much at ease during the brief proceedings in court, and did not indicate that his troubles rested heavily upon him.

To Bring Bailey From Honduras

Washington, June 13.—Secretary Root had a conference with counsel for the owners and underwriters of the steamer Goldsboro, on which F. G. Bailey is said to have gone to Honduras with a cargo of goods, which it is alleged he obtained fraudulently. Bailey is now in custody in Honduras. Lieutenant Berry of the New York police department was given proper credentials and will sail for Honduras next Thursday to bring Bailey to New York.

Anti-Gambling Law Violated

New York, June 13.—More than 15,000 persons journeyed down to the Gravesend race track yesterday to see the horses run and, if possible, to make a wager on their favorites. There was betting on every race, despite the fact that the new Agnew-Hart anti-gambling law was in force. Nine persons were taken into custody, charged with violating the new anti-gambling law. Each man was held in $500 bail for a hearing.

Great Suffragette Demonstration

London, June 13.—Ten thousand suffragettes from every part of the British Isles and from the colonies, the United States and several of the European countries, marched today from the Thames embankment to Albert hall, where they held a meeting. Features of the procession were 800 banners, symbolical of women's sphere and women famous in the world's history.

New Bedford Whaler Lost

San Francisco, June 13.—A private cable from Nome received in this city says that the whaling steamer William Baylis of New Bedford, Mass., has been lost in the icepack in Anadyr bay, Siberia. It is believed her crew was rescued by the whaler Bowhead and are now on board the steam whaler Jeanette.

By CLARISSA MACKIE.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

Elwood craned his neck as the train drew in at the little station. Yes, here was the low, red brick structure, from either end of which the road wound away between the young oaks, now showing a faint misty brown in the late April sunshine.

With a sudden impulse he arose and grasped his hat and grip. In another instant he stood before the station house, while the train screamed away through the wooded tunnel of oaks.

He looked around at the familiar scene, slightly bewildered at the result of his impulsive action. He had left New York with the intention of spending the week end with friends at Shrimp Cove, but the familiar scenes through which the train had sped and which marked milestones in his memory had roused within him depths of feeling that he thought could not now exist.

Evading the puzzled glance of the station agent, he turned down the right hand road. Ultimately it would take him to the village hostelry. Incidentally it would lead him over old paths and permit his fancy to revel in banished dreams.

He plodded through the thick yellow sand with eager eyes on the budding hedges. Gratefully he inhaled the delicate spring odors that seemed to emanate from the golden afternoon sunshine.

He paused, once beside a foaming spring where sweetflag was shooting green blades from the black, oozy mud, and again in the Honeyspot road, where arbutus clung to the steep banks and the pink pouch of the moccasin flower sprang from the lichened tree stumps. Each time he removed his hat and stood with painfully knitted brow and reflective eyes. Then he moved on.

The village hotel was under new management, and he passed unchallenged by old acquaintances. He strolled down the irregular street after the evening meal was over and in the spring twilight revisited old haunts and revived old memories until his mind was a chaos of rage with himself and grief for the unattainable.

The next morning when clamoring bells rang out from the white painted churches and the quiet streets were gay with the Easter finery of the village belles Elwood made his way to a quaint old edifice tucked away on the shore road, so that when he was seated in a familiar place he could see the white sails in the harbor and the thin drift of smoke from passing steamers on the sound.

The gathering congregation looked curiously at the dignified, middle aged stranger who sat in the old Elwood pew, but he maintained an attitude of motionless rigidity, with eyes fixed steadily on the rippling water beyond the window. He was listening with painful eagerness for a light step.

It came. He heard the swish of silk and the soft slip of her feet as she ascended the steps of the chancel and took her place among the assembled choir. In his eyes' mind he could see her, cool and pale, with flaxen hair and dark blue eyes.

There would be little change in her appearance after fifteen years. Her fair skin might have faded a little, and her slimness might have become angularity, but there would be no other visible alteration. Still, he could not look.

Two women rustled into the seat behind him and conversed in hissing whispers that reached his ear with annoying distinctness.

"Lucy Clifford's got on her blue foulard silk, ain't she?"

"Yes! I wonder if she's going to sing today?"

"I suppose so. Mr. Larkin said it would be the last year she could sing in the choir."

"Her voice is getting terrible thin, and once in awhile it gives out. She ain't sung for two or three weeks now. I guess she was saving it so's she could sing today."

"Lucy's getting to be a regular old maid. Now that she's left alone down to the old place, I guess she wishes she'd taken up with young Elwood after all."

"I hope her voice don't fail today," remarked one of the women as the low tones of the organ rumbled through the church.

Elwood turned his head. Yes; there she sat, her pale, pure profile outlined against the red and purple of the chancel window.

She looked as his memory had limned her save that she was not angular; she still retained her youthful slimness. There was a pathetic droop to her once proudly lifted head and a wistfulness in the full lidded eyes as she turned toward the congregation.

The organ ceased, the white robed minister entered and knelt in prayer, and then with a triumphant burst of music the choir arose and the notes of the anthem rang through the little church. Elwood pressed a hand across his stinging eyes as the familiar melody proceeded. It seemed but yesterday that he had stood beside Lucy Clifford in the choir and lifted his strong young voice in that same strain.

He heard the high notes of her thin soprano above the reedy tenor and the rumble of alto and bass, and there was an uncertain quality in it that caused his heart to beat a little faster in the fear that her voice might fail altogether. Anxiously he followed her through the anthem and sighed with relief when the final "Amen" died away in the rustle of the kneeling people.

The service proceeded as it had proceeded fifteen years ago. There was another minister and, save for Lucy Clifford, other voices in the choir. There were strangely familiar faces in the congregation, and his eyes eluded many a glance of recognition. It was enough for him that he could look upon Lucy Clifford's sweet face once again. In the morning he would go away.

When the long sermon was finished the organ commenced a well known prelude, two gray haired wardens creaked up the aisle and received the oaken contribution boxes, while the choir arose to sing the offertory.

"Christ the Lord is risen today. Al-le-lu-ia!"

That was Lucy's voice rising high above the other singers, and again Elwood felt that tender apprehension lest she should fail. When the second stanza was begun her tones were strained and tremulous.

"She's going to break down!" whispered one of the women in the seat behind him.

"Lo, our sun's eclipse is o'er"—

It had happened. With a discordant wail like the breaking of a violin string Lucy Clifford's voice died out. The startled choir paused for an instant, and then from the congregation burst a man's strong voice, "Al-le-lu-ia!"

To a triumphant conclusion he carried the fine old melody, his rich tenor supporting the wavering voices of the agitated choir. He had seen the white, frightened face of Lucy Clifford turned in his direction, and he threw all the vigor and force of his nature into the third stanza.

Almost unconsciously her tremulous voice took up the refrain, and once more their tones were united. It seemed as though her weak utterance rested on the assured strength of his, and he carried it up—up—to an exultant close until their voices blended in final joyous "Al-le-lu-ia!"

Lucy Clifford sank back in her seat with trembling hands and a flickering color in her pale cheeks. She did not glance at Allen Elwood. It was sufficient for her that he was present and that in the hour of her distress he had come to her rescue.

It was like him to have done that. It was strange that she had permitted that escapade of his youth to blind her to his many noble qualities. Well, it was too late now, but she could remember this day. It would be a pleasant memory to be stored away against a dreary future.

When the service was concluded, Lucy Clifford slipped through the side door into the churchyard and thence toward the opening in the stone wall that led to the homeward path across lots.

Elwood did not follow her. It would be of no use. He was too much of a black sheep. But when the dusk fell he walked slowly along the shore road until he came to the old Clifford place.

It was a long, low, brown house facing the harbor. Tall cherry trees overshadowed its gabled roof, and thick hedges of pungent box bordered the winding paths. A wind swept up from the bay, and a shower of blossoms fell about him. A whipporwill throbbed from the bough of an apple tree. It was like another night that was past.

There was a light step on the graveled path, a startled exclamation, and he was holding Lucy's unresisting hands in his own.

"I have come to ask your forgiveness, Lucy," he began tenderly.

"Nay," she murmured tremulously; "it is I who should ask yours for my narrow minded prejudices. But that is past—I—I tried to steel my heart and failed—and the years have been so long, Allen"— Her voice broke.

"I know," he said slowly, "but the years that are to come will be long and sweet, God willing!"

The whipporwill whirred away through the darkness; while again the cherry trees swayed in the breeze and sent a shower of bridal whiteness over the lovers at the gate.

Philosophy of Good Clothes.

Besides the sentimental and aesthetic reasons that exist for dressing well it seems there is a scientific one, if we accept the statement of a London medical man that a good suit of clothes acts as a tonic on the mind of the wearer, while the consciousness that one is not at one's best in appearance if wearing shabby or ill fitting clothes may be reckoned as one of life's real handicaps. In the moral support that smart clothing furnishes he thinks there is a source of mental strength and activity that aids one to center one's thoughts on the things that lead to success in one's trade and profession. To be shockingly attired and to be constantly conscious of the condition leads the mind into worrying ways that dissipate healthy energy.—Boston Transcript.

A Different Brand.

An eminent medical gentleman engaged a nurse, recently graduated, for a case of delirium tremens. The physician succeeded in quieting the patient and left some medicine, instructing the nurse to administer it to him if he "began to see snakes again." At the next call the physician found the patient again raving. To his puzzled inquiry the nurse replied that the man had been going on that way for several hours and that she had not given him any medicine.

"But didn't I tell you to give it to him if he began to see snakes again?" demanded the physician.

"But he didn't see snakes this time," replied the nurse confidently. "He saw red, white and blue turkeys with straw hats on."—Lippincott's Magazine.

This effort to place a ban on merry widow hats should be stopped. The hats are big enough now, without placing anything else on them.

Progress of the times is shown in the fact that when the Governor of North Carolina meets the governor of South Carolina the conversation is on how to save water.

The government is going to buy another 100,000 pounds of smoking tobacco for the men of the navy. The navy enjoys the smoke of battle and also the smoke of peace.

The railroads insist that they must raise rates or reduce wages and are afraid if they reduce wages the employes will strike. All of which goes to show that the consumer has no friends.

Secretary Metcalf declares that the battleships are in better condition than when they started on their long cruise. The trip appears to have improved everything except the livers of the navy critics.

Accident to The Dude Train

There was a narrow escape this morning from a serious accident near Wollaston to the inward Cape express known as "The Dude." The train passed through Quincy in the vicinity of 9 o'clock. Just after passing the Wollaston station one of the cylinder heads of the engine blew out. The air was filled with steam and pieces of broken iron were thrown about, but fortunately no one was injured. The train ran some distance before it was stopped. The broken cylinder was then disconnected, and the train pushed into Boston by a train which was following.

John Westgate, who ran the ill-fated Silver Lake train a number of years ago, was the engineer.

Takes Big Jump And Now Leads In Motor Boat Popularity Contest

A new leader and several new candidates today in the Motor Boat contest. Charles C. Foster, a prominent member of the Board of Trade, who needs a launch in connection with his duties as fish and game warden, has moved up from 15th place to first place, and leads Miss Matthews by over 100 votes. Five trial orders by his friends did the business. Other candidates also move up.

Blanks for placing trial orders for the Daily Ledger may be obtained at the office of publication, and will be mailed upon request. Each trial order gives a credit of 100 votes to your favorite candidate.

The standing of the candidates will be printed each day, all votes received previous to 9 A. M. being counted that day.

It is not necessary that candidates shall be members of a yacht club or any other club. Neither is the contest limited to men. Women as well as men may enter.

The prizes offered are valuable ones, there being others besides the motor boat which is offered as a first prize.

SCYTHE ACCIDENT.

Josephus Sampson, the Braintree grocer, an active citizen of seventy years, met with a bad accident Thursday noon just after dinner. With a sharp scythe he started for the morning field through the slaughter house and down six or eight steps. Near the top of the steps a board gave way throwing Mr. Sampson to the ground. He landed on the scythe cutting a deep gash over the right shoulder.

Recovering from the shock of the fall Mr. Sampson managed to get home and Doctors Sullivan and Brett were hastily called. They placed seven stitches in the wound. His loss of blood was slight but might have proved fatal for the cut was near a large artery.

A DAY'S OUTING.

Last Monday morning thirty members of the Ladies' Benevolent society of the Wollaston Congregational church, availed themselves of Mrs. E. S. Tenney's kind invitation to visit her Bungalow at North Scituate, for a day's outing. It was an ideal summer day and the trip by train through Weymouth, Hingham and Cohasset was greatly enjoyed, and later, when we arrived at our destination, and saw the panorama spread before us, of wood and sea and sky, we felt that it was not only a "delight to the eye," but "a rest to the weary soul." At twelve o'clock a delectable lunch was served which went "right to the spot." After that, the ladies chatted together on Mrs. Tenney's broad piazza. Some of the old settlers related pleasant reminiscences of Wollaston in its youth, while others walked about "taking in" the artistic points of our hostess pretty summer home. At half past three o'clock we started for home, well pleased with our outing and grateful to her whose kind thoughtfulness, had made such a delightful day possible.

One of the Party.

—Senator Fulton of Oregon started a boom in Chicago on Thursday for Senator Crane of Massachusetts for vice president. Fulton says Crane will run if nominated.

The Makaria As Special Guests

It was indeed a gay party from Quincy that saw the Cincinnati-Boston game yesterday through the courtesy of President Dovey and Mr. Jack Ganzel, captain and manager of the visiting team, and Charles W. Ganzel. The party, thirty in number, consisted of Mr. Ganzel, Mrs. Ganzel, Misses Sadie Pawsey, Mildred Rodgers, Maude Dyer, Elizabeth Ruxton, Agnes Souter, Gladys Ganzel, D. King, Harry Brooks, the entire Makaria Team and several others. They had excellent seats and cheered at every opportunity, especially for Manager Kelley and for Jack Ganzel. After the game the ladies all went to see "Uncle Jack" off and received a cordial invitation to see the Reds play when they return July 25. It was a glorious afternoon and it was voted by the ladies that Mr. Jack was the best ever.

HARD LOSERS.

Frank E. Hollis, the manager of the Braintree base ball club, is surprised that the Bigelows of Quincy should claim that the morning game of Memorial day ended in a dispute. The Braintrees claim the game 2 to 1. While Shay the Braintree catcher held the ball waiting for the Bigelow base runner, the latter run away out of the base line and was declared out by the umpire, making the third out. Manager Hollis says the Bigelows are hard losers indeed, and cannot be classed as a good sporting team. He would like to meet the Bigelows at Quincy with the same line-up on June 20, July 25, Aug. 1, Aug. 15, or Aug. 29.

Atlantics, 3; All Stars, 2.

The All Stars, a local team of Atlantic were defeated by the Atlantic team Friday afternoon by a score of 3 to 2. As the Atlantics are made up of semi-professional men the All Stars were much pleased with the result. Curley of the All Stars made several sensational plays at third. The Atlantics scored all their runs in the first inning and the All Stars in the second inning.

Granite Shipment.

Returns from the two shipping terminals for the month of May show that in spite of the strike a large amount of rough and finished granite was shipped. The total for the month was 12,766,296 pounds. Of this amount 7,583,065 pounds were forwarded from West Quincy and 5,183,231 pounds from Quincy Adams.

Happily I tried Cascarets, and today I am a well man. During the nine years before I used Cascarets I suffered untold misery with internal piles. Thanks to you I am free from all that this morning. # 704 ON FIRST BALLOT

Claim of Manager of Secretary Taft's Interests

CONTESTS ALL ADJUSTED

Allies Claim There Will Be No Nomination on First Ballot--The Hughes Boom Gets a Boost--Fairbanks May Be Nominated For Vice President

Chicago, June 13.—Late yesterday afternoon the Republican national committee completed the hearings of all contests submitted and turned its attention to other affairs. The committee had been in session for seven days of actual work and had decided contests involving 219 seats on the temporary rollcall.

As Taft had 387 instructed delegates before the national committee began the hearing of the contests, he will now have a total of 603 delegates instructed for him on the temporary rollcall, without taking into consideration any that have endorsed him or declared for him in any other manner.

Frank H. Hitchcock, who has charge of Secretary Taft's interests before the national committee, has issued a statement, claiming 704 votes for Taft on the first ballot. He makes his statement in comparison with one issued by him on May 16, after all of the delegates to the national convention had been elected. In that statement Hitchcock claimed 517 instructed delegates, which number he now reduces to 513.

He credits one to Foraker from Ohio and two to Foraker from Virginia, and does not claim for Taft the split delegation from the Eighth Tennessee district, involving the loss of another seat. By endorsement he claims thirty-six votes, the same figure given in his May statement, but by declaration he now claims 155 votes instead of thirty-one, as claimed in May. This makes a total of 704. He credits 227 instructed votes for other candidates and leaves forty-nine not accounted for in the columns of any of the candidates.

The only complete defeat sustained by the Taft delegates in the contests was in the Fifth Virginia district, where a Foraker delegation of two men was seated because a man was allowed to act as secretary of the district convention who had issued a call for a convention in his county "for white men only." It was believed by the members of the committee that if they allowed the delegates from the convention at which this man had acted as secretary to be seated in the national convention it would place the party in the light of approving a call issued to a portion of the voters. For this reason it was decided to seat the contesting Foraker delegates.

Outside of the conclusion of the contests before the national committee the most important development of the day was the issuance by the "allies" of a statement in which they declared their intention of "sticking to the finish," and in which they asserted that it was certain that there "would be no nomination on the first ballot."

The attitude of the "allies," as outlined in this statement, was greatly strengthened by the arrival during the day of Stewart L. Woodford of New York, who is in charge of the interests of Governor Hughes. One of the first things encountered by Woodford on his arrival in Chicago was the strong sentiment developing to couple the names of Taft and Hughes. This, however, Woodford met with the statement that the New York delegation would come here instructed to support Hughes for the presidency, and until the convention had made its choice there would be no consideration of Hughes' name for any place except at the head of the ticket.

When shown the authoritative statement made at Albany yesterday that the governor "cannot and will not under any circumstances accept a nomination for the vice presidency," Woodford said: "That is exactly what I expected. I have been attending national conventions since 1860, and I have never known a wise selection for the vice presidency to be made until after the candidate for president had been chosen."

Asked if Hughes' success in winning the contest over the race track bills had strengthened his candidacy, Woodford said: "It has proved that Hughes is a fighter and that he never quits."

Instead of continuing the discussion of the vice presidency, Woodford took up the availability for the presidency and said: "I know one thing, namely: If Hughes is nominated for the presidency he will be certain to carry New York. I don't say no one else can carry New York. But I do say that, with Hughes nominated, New York is certain and with some one else nominated New York is doubtful."

When the Taft strength was mentioned, Woodford paid a high tribute to the secretary of war, but maintained that Republican chances for success were greater with Hughes at the head of the ticket.

Active work on convention preliminaries will not be under full headway before tomorrow. Although delegates are constantly arriving, no state is as yet represented by its full strength. New York, Massachusetts, Maine and Missouri arrived today. On Sunday the California delegation will arrive and numerous other states from the west will have their complete quota on hand.

Speculation is busy with the vice presidential question. No one is able to arrive at a definite conclusion or to form a confident prediction as to the possible outcome. The only vice presidential candidate as yet on the ground is Hammond, who admits that he is "not exactly in the lead," but adds that he is satisfied with existing conditions and prospects.

Senator Hopkins of Illinois, who will be chairman of the committee on resolutions, has arrived with a boom for Fairbanks. I am for Fairbanks, if he will accept," said Hopkins. "He has made one of the best vice presidents the country has ever had and he has earned another nomination."

There is doubt whether the vice president will permit the use of his name, but it is strongly asserted that if he is nominated he will not decline. There are a number of men here from Indiana, all of whom express the opinion that the addition of the vice president's name to the ticket will add materially to its strength in the state.

The suggestion is freely made that in the event of the selection of Taft for first place the naming of the second man will be left to the "allies," and it also is generally believed that, all other things being equal, the choice should fall on a man from the east.

Another element believes that it will be of great benefit to the party at large if the vice presidential nomination is made the prize of a free fight on the floor of the convention. It has been long since a contest of that description has been witnessed in a Republican convention, and the advocates of this method of selection believe that it would tend greatly to heal some existing difficulties.

The president and the members of his cabinet are kept constantly informed by their friends of developments here. W. J. Lee, a veteran Washington telegrapher, who is now connected with the department of commerce and labor, has been selected for the delicate duty of wiring the news to them and is already on the ground for that purpose.

A Tribute to Cleveland

Salt Lake City, June 13.—After instructing six delegates to the Denver convention for W. J. Bryan, the Democrats of Utah instructed the chairman to mail this letter to Grover Cleveland:

"The Democrats of Utah, in convention assembled, remember gratefully your friendship for Utah while president. With just party pride we point to your services for the party and for the country. With apprehension we have learned of your recent illness; and, with one accord, we pray that your life may be prolonged for many years, that the country may be blessed with the wisdom of your counsel."

Conscience Fund Fattened

Washington, June 13.—Secretary Cortelyou has received in an envelope postmarked Jersey City a conscience contribution of $8000, which has been turned into the conscience fund of the treasury. In an unsigned letter, the sender says that many years ago he and another man took money belonging to the government and that this $8000 makes a total of $40,000, or four fold the amount originally taken by himself. This sum, he says, has been returned to the treasury from time to time, covering a period of several years.

Judge Wright's Distinction

Washington, June 13.—John V. Wright, the oldest living ex-member of congress, died at his home in this city. Although nearly 80 years of age, he had been regularly at his desk in the general land office until two months ago, when he had a stroke of paralysis. He held the unique distinction of making more treaties with the Indians than any other man. Judge Wright was born in Tennessee in 1828.

Editor Gets Two Years In Prison

San Juan, P. R., June 13.—Julio Aybar, the editor of a labor paper here, was sentenced to two years' penal servitude on two counts of libel, consisting of an attack made upon a judge. The article did not mention the judge by name, the town in which he lived or the court over which he presided. The judge, however, identified himself as the person against whom the attack was intended.

Police Inspector Goes to Prison

New Orleans, June 13.—Former Police Inspector Whitaker was sentenced to three months in prison and fined $100 for murderous assault. Resenting attacks on him in the editorial columns of a newspaper, Whitaker, while inspector of police, entered a newspaper building and fired two shots at Editor Levegue. Whitaker resigned his office shortly after the shooting.

Three Men Mysteriously Disappear

San Francisco, June 13.—Much anxiety is felt over the disappearance of three guests from one of the leading hotels in this city. They all disappeared about ten days ago, each one leaving baggage in the hotel more than sufficient to pay his bill. The police have been unable to find any trace of the men.

Building Inspector Suspended

Washington, June 13.—The collapse of an apartment house in this city, with two fatalities, regarding which President Roosevelt directed prosecution to the limit of the law, was followed by the suspension from office of Snowden Ashford, the district inspector of buildings, pending an investigation.

COBB HAS EYE ON BALL.

Detroit's Great Slugger Banging the Ball as Hard as Ever.

Ty Cobb, champion batsman of last season and right fielder of the Detroit team, is again demonstrating that he is the king pin sphere walloper of the American league. Cobb is now leading the select circle of swatters in Ban Johnson's dominion.

Last year, after the Tigers won the championship of their league, they were defeated in straight games by the Cubs for the world's championship honors. Cobb was a rank failure as a batsman in that series, and his slump was the talk of the baseball world. There has been much speculation as to whether he would round to his last summer's form in this year's race, and that much talked of question has been answered by Cobb himself.

The young right fielder of the Tigers will be even a stronger man this year than he was last, according to the wise men in baseball, for his experience last fall will be a good lesson to him, and also his experience all through a hard season like the Tigers went through with last year should fit him better for his work and help him make a finer record.

TENNEY STILL A HUSTLER.

Giants' First Baseman Fielding and Batting as Brilliantly as Ever.

Fred Tenney and Cy Seymour of the New York Nationals are having a great race for batting honors of the Giants this season. It has been nip and tuck between them since the season opened. At the present writing Tenney is leading his team mate by a small margin. Tenney is also playing as brilliant a fielding game at first for McGraw as he ever did for the Bostons.

This is Tenney's fourteenth year in the National league, thirteen of which were spent with the Boston Nationals.

He began his career at Brown university. He was at one time a catcher, and, in fact, it is said, he was signed by Boston as a catcher before his marvelous ability as a first baseman was discovered. Until the advent of Chase, Donohue and Chance, Tenney stood in a class by himself for six or seven years. He is a man of considerable culture. Tenney always has been a consistent hard hitter. He never hits lower than .280 and as a fielder is a marvel.

THAW CASE UP AGAIN

Argument as to Whether He Will Return to Matteawan

QUESTION IS NOT DECIDED

Prosecution Personally Has No Objection to Transfer to Some Other Institution--Thaw Receives Visi From Wife In Poughkeepsie Jail

New York, June 13.—Harry K. Thaw will remain in the Poughkeepsie jail pending an application of his counsel to the supreme court for a change of the order committing him to the state hospital for the insane at Matteawan. This decision was rendered by Justice Morschauser, who expressed the opinion that it was evident that strained relations existed between the head of the Matteawan institution and Thaw.

Franklin Bartlett and James G. Graham appeared for Thaw. Bartlett contended that Thaw could be legally transferred to any other state hospital for the insane, and in the argument for the transfer counsel asserted that Thaw would personally rather be in the Tombs or Poughkeepsie prison than in Matteawan.

District Attorney Jerome said that he personally had no objections to the transfer of Thaw to some other hospital if he were convinced that it was for Thaw's good and that there was no danger of his escape.

Justice Morschauser stated that he could not go back of Justice Dowling's order sending Thaw to Matteawan, but in view of the statements that Thaw might not recover there, because of the feeling he has toward the head of the institution, he would stay the execution of the order recommitting him until such time as Thaw's counsel could ask Dowling for a change of the original order.

Thaw Has Visit From Wife

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 13.—Harry Thaw's wife called on him in jail, and the two greeted each other like lovers who have been parted and made up again. Mrs. Thaw came alone and remained in earnest conversation with her husband for an hour, when luncheon was served. She went away at 1 o'clock, having passed two hours with Thaw.

To requests for an interview, Thaw complied by requesting his wife to make a statement which he would typewrite himself. He wrote out a paragraph to the effect that Mrs. Thaw preferred not to discuss her domestic affairs at this time.

To this was added two paragraphs of Mrs. Thaw's dictation, which read that it was not her fault that she was not called as a witness for Thaw, and that she thought Matteawan was the last place he should be sent to.

Seizure of Ammunition

New York, June 13.—Agents of the treasury department seized on board the steamer Seguranca 10,000 rounds of ammunition which were intended for shipment to Cuba. The seizure was made shortly before the hour that the vessel was to sail for Nassau, Havana and Santiago. The cartridges were packed in ten cases. What significance if any attaches to the seizure could not be learned.

Soldiers on Indians' Trail

Hermosillo, Mex., June 13.—Four thousand Mexican soldiers are in the country in hot pursuit of the Yaqui Indians. All negotiations looking toward the signing of the peace treaty were suddenly broken off Thursday. The Yaquis insisted on retaining their arms and ammunition after having acceeded to the other stipulations of the Mexican government. Hostilities were promptly resumed.

Warship Commander Dismissed

Portsmouth, June 13.—The naval courtmartial which investigated the loss of the British cruiser Gladiator, resulting from her collision with the American line steamer St. Paul, found that Captain Lumsden, commander of the cruiser, had hazarded his ship by default, though not by neglect. The court adjudges Lumsden to be reprimanded and dismissed from the ship.

Army Officer In Disgrace

Washington, June 13.—Assistant Surgeon Spear, tried by court martial on charges of forgery, theft, scandalous conduct, etc., was sentenced by the court to two years' imprisonment and dismissal from the service. As seven members of the court recommended clemency, President Roosevelt has reduced the prison term to one year and approved the verdict of dismissal.

Double Murder and Suicide

Denver, June 13.—In a jealous rage, Charles E. Byers shot and killed Mrs. May E. Boren, keeper of a rooming house, murdered Edward Smith and then killed himself. Byers and Smith were lodgers at the rooming house of Mrs. Boren. Byers made certain accusations against Mrs. Boren and Smith and was ordered from the house, and the shooting followed.

Morgan Coming For Brief Stay

New York, June 13.—J. P. Morgan, who has been abroad for some time, sailed for New York this morning on the steamer Mauretania. Morgan will come to New York to attend the wedding of a relative and will remain here about one week.

BILL CONSIDERED UNJUST

Acting Governor Vetoes Measure Favoring Spanish War Veterans

Boston, June 13.—Acting Governor Draper returned to the house of representatives without his approval the bill entitled "An act relative to employment in the public service of veterans of the war with Spain." The house immediately debated the question of passing the bill over the governor's veto, and a vote resulted 74 to 74, the bill failing to pass, a two thirds vote being required.

In the message accompanying his veto the acting governor explained at length his reasons for failing to approve the measure. He declared the bill tended to create a special class of citizens with injustice to an enormous majority of the laboring men of the commonwealth.

In the trade positions affected the total number of employes was 11,000, while last year the number of appointments made in the labor service in five different cities affected by the bill was 2005. The result of the act would, therefore, be practically to place all the vacancies that may occur in the hands of the Spanish war veterans, if they decide they want them, with the exception of the preference given Civil war veterans.

Acting Governor Draper pays a high tribute to the men who served in the Spanish war, but does not believe the thousands who would have gone to the war had they been needed should be excluded from the opportunity of securing employment in the positions considered by the bill.

Railroad Interests In Harmony

New Haven, June 13.—In regard to the reports of discord between President Tuttle of the Boston and Maine and the New York, New Haven and Hartford management over the proposed merger legislation in Massachusetts, it is stated authoritatively here that there has been no disagreement whatever and that both interests are in harmony. Both interests are reported as satisfied with the defeat of the measure.

New Hampshire Club Winds Up

Boston, June 13.—The New Hampshire club, organized about three years ago as a meeting place for New Hampshire men, has ended its existence, and the club furniture will be sold to meet the debts of the club. The club at one time had some 600 members. During the past winter many of the members dropped out, which necessitated the closing of the restaurant, which decreased the revenues.

Accident at Theatre Rehearsal

New Haven, June 13.—Ada Klein, a member of the Three Twins company, while rehearsing at a theatre here, sustained a dislocated shoulder and probably a fractured skull. Miss Klein, with five others, was strapped to a part of the scenery which was made to revolve, and the strap which held her broke, letting her fall to the stage, a distance of twenty feet.

Scuffled Over Revolver

North Attleboro, Mass., June 13.—Armand Ray, 17 years old, was shot and mortally wounded while scuffling for the possession of a revolver with his chum, Emil Dietsch. The bullet entered Ray's left eye and passed through the brain, coming out through the top of his head. Dietsch was placed under arrest.

Soldier Shot by Woman

Portland, Me., June 13.—Sergeant Le Blanc of the coast artillery was shot in the shoulder at Fort Preble, but the wound is not considered serious. Maggie S. Cain, a domestic, is charged with firing the shot. She made no resistance when arrested, claiming Le Blanc had wronged her.

Jury Convicts Standard Oil

Rochester, June 13.—Guilty, as charged in the indictment, was the verdict brought in by the federal court jury in the Standard Oil company case here. Counsel for the defense moved for a new trial, and it was arranged to have Judge Hazel hear argument on the motion July 7. The oil company was charged with accepting a concession from the field tariff on shipments of oil. The maximum fine on the forty counts would reach $800,000.

Germany Made No Protest

Berlin, June 13.—A most specific denial has been made by the foreign office of the report that Germany expressed in the strongest of terms to the St. Petersburg government her disapproval of a formal alliance being consummated between Great Britain, Russia and France, as a result of the recent meeting between King Edward and Emperor Nicholas at Reval.

Long Deliberation of Jury

Harrisburg, June 13.—The verdict of the jury in the capitol metallic furniture contract conspiracy case, if any is agreed upon, will be received by Judge Kunkel today. At 10:30 o'clock last night, after waiting since noon for a report from the jury room, the judge ordered the jury locked up.

Monitor Test Comes Today

Norfolk, June 13.—The United States monitor Florida and the torpedo boat Morris are anchored together on the bar in Hampton Roads, where the Morris will today fire a powerful American Whitehead torpedo into the Florida below the waterline armor.

Insurance Receiver Discharged

Richmond, June 13.—Declaring that its showing of assets and liabilities was satisfactory in law, Judge Scott dissolved the injunction against the Eureka Life Insurance company and discharged the receiver of that corporation.

Good Receipts Good Cooks

This department today is devoted to strawberries which are now in their prime. But first a reader of the Daily Ledger asks for a recipe for honeyed pineapple or quince.

STRAWBERRY SHORTCAKE.

The foundation for all rules for shortcake, says Alice E. Whittaker, is a biscuit dough to which is added more or less shortening. To serve four people sift two cups of flour with half a level teaspoon of salt and four teaspoon of baking powder. Rub in one-third cup of butter until like meal then mix with milk using three-quarters cup or a little more as the flour seems to need. Divide in two parts and put out to fit layer cake pans. Bake in a quick oven; lay one cake on a warm plate, spred lightly with butter and cover with prepared berries. Lay the other cake on, butter and cover with sugared whole berries or pile sweetened beaten cream over the top and garnish with berries.

STRAWBERRY ICE CREAM.

Mash enough ripe strawberries to measure two cups, add one and one-half cups of sugar and let stand an hour or until the sugar is melted. Now press through a strainer or sieve, take out the seeds, add two cups of thick cream and freeze.

SWEET STRAWBERRY CAKE.

Good Housekeeping for June gives this recipe: Cream one and one-half cups of sugar with onelhalf cup of butter, add one-half cup of milk, two and one-half cups of flour sifted with two teaspoons of baking powder, and two well-beaten eggs, reserving the white of one for frosting. Flavor with one teaspoon of vanila and bake in a long pan. Beat the white of an egg, add one cup of pulverized sugar, color with a litle strawberry juice, and spread over the top of the cake, dotting with fine large berries. Cut in squares and eat with a fork.

STRAWBERRY TIMBALS.

Make the little cases with timbal batter cooked on the molds in deep fat or buy the timbal cases of the confectioner. Fill with ripe strawberries rolled in sugar and serve as a first course at luncheon.

STRAWBERRY JAM.

Be sure to have firm berries that are ripe but not so ripe as to be softened in the least. Rinse and hull them and shake as dry as possible. Weigh the berries and for each pound allow three-quarters pound of fine granulated sugar. Have a preserving kettle with surface unbroken or scaled and turn in the berries. Scatter one-quarter of the sugar over and heat slowly. When the juices start add another quarter and the remainder at intervals. When all the sugar is melted boil 20 minutes by the clock stirring occasionally but without mashing the fruit. Cool a spoonful on a saucer and if the liquor is firm turn into pint jars and seal. If it does not seem firm then cook a little longer test again.

STRAWBERRIES AS A GARNISH.

Decoratively, there are few things so attractive as the fresh berries. Served about the base of varied moulded creams and puddings, rice, tapioca, cornstrach, sago, etc., they transform a plain dessert into a striking and most decorative sweet. For a commencement or wedding entertainment, where the table is set, a lovely centerpiece may be made as follows: Make a transparent jelly, using the directions that go with the gelatin you use. Have ready a plain oval mould. Pour a very thin layer of the liquid jelly in the bottom of the mould and let it harden; then arrange upon it fresh strawberries, with just a few of the leaves and tendrils attached to give an artistic effect. If you cannot get the real leaves and tendrils, use angelica, a vegetable product, which comes in long sticks. A quarter of a pound will go a long way. It may be cut into stripes, and these into triangular pieces simulating leaves. After arranging, fill the mould with the clear jelly, then set away in a cold place for several hours to harden. When turned out, the leaves and berries gleaming through the clear, transparent jelly produce a beautiful effect.

Itch cured in 30 minutes by Woolford's Sanitary Lotion. Never fails. Sold by C. D. Harlow & Co., Druggists.

Held as Suspicious Persons

Pittsburg, June 13.—Albert J. Walker, who claims to be employed by jewelers of Birmingham, Eng., and Ralph Wadman of Kingston, Jam., who were arrested here while riding about the city in an automobile disposing of diamonds, were committed to jail for ten days as suspicious persons to await the action of the foreign authorities, who have been notified. According to Captain of Detectives McGough, Walker offered him about $11,000 worth of diamonds if he would let him go.

Killed Himself While Under Bonds

Watertown, N. Y., June 13.—Charles B. McCormick, aged 38, an attorney and brother of Henry J. McCormick, now under arrest on charges of forgery involving alleged heavy embezzlements of railroad funds, jumped from the top of a five story office building to the pavement, dying two hours later. Charles McCormick was arrested Thursday night, charged with grand larceny with his brother. He was released on $7000 bail and June 22 was set for the hearing.

Gains In Business World

New York, June 13.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says that gains outnumber losses in reports of commercial and industrial activity, business being remarkably well maintained. Weather conditions were favorable for retail trade in seasonable merchandise at most leading centres, and crop reports were encouraging on the whole, despite excessive rains and floods in the southwest.

New Bridge For East River

New York, June 13.—The East river, which separates the borough of Manhattan from Brooklyn, was spanned by its fourth bridge when cables were put across it for the new Manhattan bridge. Four five-inch cables were laid across the river yesterday. These will support a temporary footbridge, upon which workmen will lay the big cables which support the great structure when completed.

The Observations In the Daily Walk

Miss Emily Gassett of the Tax Collector's office has been confined to her home for the past week by illness.

The power boat fleet is taking advantage of the tides which serve well this week, and many parties are out every evening.

June 17, at 3 P. M. the Quincy Yacht Club gives a race for class B. and C. of the sailing yachts, and a race for the launches.

Members of the Quincy Yacht Club should avail themselves of the opportunity to pass a pleasant hour at the Club house these fine moonlight evenings.

The launch owners are showing great interest in the new arrangement for handicapping, and promise to turn out in large numbers, for the six races scheduled by the Quincy club.

Colonel Henry L. Kincaide left today with the Massachusetts troops to attend the army manoeuvres at Pine Camp, New York. He has been assigned as State Inspector of the Sixth Massachusetts Infantry.

Sea Shore Lots.

Adams shore has long been recognized as a most attractive location for a summer home. There are now in this section 200 house lots. These are to be sold at auction next Wednesday, June 17. Teel's band of Boston will be present all day and furnish music. A fine appetizing lunch will be served at noon.

In addition to this a lot of land valued at $500 is to be given away free after the first 100 lots have been sold.

This section is piped for water and gas, is wired for electric lights and is within a few minutes' walk of the street cars. The auction will be held in a large tent should the day prove stormy.

Another Petitiom At Houghs Neck

A petition is being circulated in the Neck requesting the Mayor to divide the appropriation for the street lighting of Houghs Neck recently passed by the City Council and now in the hands of the Mayor, equally between the Quincp Electric Light and Power Company and the Citizens' Gas Company. The majority of the residents of Houghs Neck want gas, especially the winter residents. The signers of the electric petition are in a large part summer residents. The Houghs Neck Associates forwarded a petition to the Mayor ten days ago requesting that the money appropriated for street lights be expended for gas street lights.

Miss Liah Crozier of Bay View avenue will have a birthday party on Sunday at her home, many friends are expected from Dorchester, Roxbury and South Boston.

The Rev. Father Ronan of St. Peters church, Meeting House Hill, Dorchester, has opened his large summer house on Bay View avenue.

The residents of Great hill and the business people at the end of Sea street have sent a petition to the Old Colony Street railroad to have the cars run to the end of the line. For the past two weeks the cars stop at the top of the hill opposite Tessiers Drug store, making the people of the Great Mill walk considerable further. The tradesmen claim that practice of stopping the cars at Bay View avenue has damaged their business. The hill at the end of Set street is a very hard one for the cars to climb and it takes a good motorman to drive one of the large open cars up it. A track tester examined the rail on the incline on Friday.

George Tessier of Sea street has gone to Spartsenburg, Va. Mr. Tessier expects a position from the Southern Railroad as their Spartsenburg bank representative. His many friends wish him the best of success in his new undertaking.

The principal assessors have been at work at Houghs Neck for several days. They report a very large increase in valuation this year.

Councilman Michael T. Walsh is now a member of the Houghs Neck Associates.

The next meeting of the Houghs Neck Associates will be held June 24. After the business meeting a supper will be given to which the ladies will be invited.

It is rumored that John R. S. Ross will be the Houghs Neck candidate for the City Council next year. Mr. Ross is treasurer of the Houghs Neck Associates and is very popular not only in Houghs Neck but in nearly every section of the city. He is a member of the Quincy lodge of Elks Granite City Club, a shriner and is a member of many other organizations. He is the strongest man that Houghs Neck could put up. It looks like easy money for Ross next fall.

The Sea Street Dream has opened for the season. The best and latest moving pictures and illustrated songs, every night.

Caterina Bizzozero vs. Natale Bizzozero

To the Honorable the Justices of the Superior Court to be holden at Dedham within and for the County of Norfolk:

Respectfully libels and represents Caterina Bizzozero of Quincy in said County, that she was lawfully married to Natale Bizzozero formerly of Quincy, Massachusetts, now of parts unknown, at Quincy on the third day of July A. And your libellant further prays that the real and personal estate of the said libellee may be attached to the value of $10,000.00 in order to secure a suitable support and maintenance to your libellant and to such children as may be given to her care and custody.

AMUSEMENTS.

Keith's Theatre.

The annual visit to Keith's of those popular farceurs, John C. Rice and sally Cohen is always one of the events of the season, for they never fail to present a swiftly moving, sparklingly witty skit. Their vehicle this year, "A Bachelor's Wife," is one of the best they have ever played, the characters being particularly well suited to their individualities. A dancing act that has taken its place as one of the best ever seen in vaudeville is that done by the Six American Dancers, who have been one of the real genuine hits of the present vaudeville season.

Boston Theatre.

For next week's attraction at the Boston Theatre one of the greatest comedies ever written by an American will be presented. As a matter of fact "A Texas Steer" is a political satire and what is of particular interest in connection with it, Charles Hoyt, the author, was a Boston man , and acknoyledged to be the cleverest and most versatile playwright of his day. "A Texas Steer" was one of his very best. It satirized life in Washington. The story of the piece—and it had a story—centered around Maverick Brander, a Texan who was elected to Congress without his knowledge and who after arriving there, endeavored to break into Washington society. His efforts to do this, the people with whom he came in contact, every one representing a well known type in Washington—and all are brought together under the most natural circumstances, the bright lines making the piece one continuous laugh. But beneath it all there are touches of truth that strike home now just as forcibly as they did then.

Wonderland.

A new Maud has come to Wonderland, that immense recreation ground at Revere Beach and any person who thinks himself competent to ride her can make lots of money of he succeeds. Maud is the star card of Darling's famous dog, monkey and pony circus and the management offers a generous purse every day to be captured by any one who can stay on the back of the cantankerous beast for one full minute. The prize has never yet been won and it is the belief of those who have witnessed Maud's marvelous gyrations, while a person was attempting to control her, that the the money will go a-begging.

All New Paragon Opens June 13.

"All New Paragon"—that is what they are going to call the famous "Parke De Luxe" at Nantasket Beach when it opens for the season Saturday, June 13. Manager George A. Dodge who has been in charge ever since Paragon Park opened, four years ago, declares that this is going to be the park's "big year" and the shows are positively the best the "Parke De Luxe" has ever had.

In years past there has usually been but one big show at Paragon Park—the others have always been better than the average but there has usually been but one big feature. This year there will be five and every one a new show.

MEMORIAL SERVICES

Odd Fellows And Rebekahs Pay Tributes To Deceased

The annual memorial service of Mr. Wollaston lodge, I. O. O. F., was held Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the United Presbyterian church, Fort Square.

The lodge and members of the Manet Encampment and George L. Gill Rebekah lodge, with Edward L. Goodridge as marshal, marched from the hall in the Adams building to the church.

On the front of the altar were four wreaths in memory of the four brothers who died during the past year.

Music during the services was furnished by the choir of the Bethany church under the direction of Madam Beale Morey. The orders entered the church to the music of the "Dead March from Saul," and the exercises opened with an anthem "Blessed are the Dead" by the choir.

Rev. Edwin N. Hardy, D. D., read the scripture lesson from the ninetieth Psalm, and Miss Winifred White sang a solo, "There is an hour of Hallowed Peace."

Richard Bishop, chaplain of the lodge, gave the necrologic address. After referring to the general observance of Memorial day, when all the country mourns, he said Mt. Wollaston lodge had lost four brothers, viz:

Levi D. Berry who died Sept. 24, 1907, was born in Prospect, Me., but was a resident of Quincy for many years. He joined Mt. Wollaston lodge Nov. 7, 1893, and was an earnest and faithful worker.

Joseph M. Francis was born in England in 1845, and came to Quincy in 1879, joining Mt. Wollaston lodge in 1884. He died Oct. 21, 1907.

Frederick J. Fuller was born in Freedom, Me., Aug. 10, 1830, and came to Quincy in 1849; joined Mt. Wollaston lodge, Dec. 6, 1877, and died Nov. 14, 1907.

George Harris, who died in Charlestown Feb. 7, 1908, had no living relatives at the time of his death. During his last illness he was carefully looked after by brother Odd Fellows, who buried him at Quincy. He joined Mt. Wollaston lodge in 1884, and lived for a time in West Quincy.

James S. Whyte followed the address with a beautiful solo "Cross and Crown."

Miss Elvira Ewell, Noble Grand of George L. Gill Rebekah lodge, then gave a brief address, during which she said the lodge had lost one sister during the year, Mrs. Emma Leavitt, who joined the lodge Dec. 31, 1905, and died June 8, 1908.

A prayer by Rev. N. J. Sprout was followed by a selection "My Heavenly Home." by a quartette composed of Miss Winifred White, Miss M. Murphy, E. I. Beale and J. S. Whyte.

The address was delivered by Rev. A. M. Thompson, the pastor of the church, who took for his text the words found in the 14th chapter of Revelation 13th verse, "And I heard a voice from Heaven, saying unto me, blessed are the dead which die in the Lord."

The speaker said that he would not speak today as an Odd Fellow to Odd Fellows, but as a humble ambassador of the Lord Jesus Christ. Some of the best things in life sometimes comes to us in solitude. There are voices of temptation and of conscience. The voice of conscience is the nearest approach to God's voice. We are writing life's history every day. One day we will be called before the throne up yonder to read that history.

He then dwelt at length upon the importance of dying in the Lord. To those who died in the Lord will be the enlarging of years. Where you shall spend your future life depends on what you are here.

An anthem "The Gilden Threshold" by the choir was followed by the memorial hymn "Shall we meet," and benediction by the pastor.

Quincy Man Elected President

The annual meeting of the State branch of the international steam engineers was held Sunday at Hibernian hall, South Quincy, and was attended by 36 delegates representing 12 local unions.

The convention opened at 11 o'clock and at noon Caterer La Croix served a shore dinner. At the afternoon session William Brady of Worcester presided and made a short address. Other addresses were made by Mayor Shea, Representative R. P. Coombs and ex-Representative Edward J. Sandberg.

Arthur M. Huddle, a past president of the State branch and the present at which it was voted to endorse the state organizer, was presented with a gold watch and chain, the presentation speech being made by William Brady.

A business session was then held strike of the tobacco strippers of Boston. It was also voted to hold the next convention at Lowell Dec. 13.

E. M. McMann of Milford was elected a delegate to the National convention to be held in Philadelphia in September.

The election of officers resulted as follows:

President—Robert McVitie of Quincy.

Vice President—E. A. Bean of Brockton.

Secretary—William McAvoy of Milford.

Treasurer—Michael McNerney of Boston.

The newly elected officers were then installed by organizer Huddle.

Children's Sunday.

A very interesting children's day service was held at Bethany Congregational church Sunday morning in place of the regular preaching service, and there was a large attendance. It was a pretty scene when the children of the primary and kindergarten departments marched in, some taking places on the platform upon raised seats.

The program included choruses, responsive readings, songs, an address of welcome by Allan Gragg, recitations and exercises, and a brief address by Rev. Dr. Hardy, the pastor, who took a mirror as his subject.

Seven infant children were christened namely: Ruth Ellenor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick T. Jones of Newcomb square; George Franklin, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Lawrence; Isabella Cameron, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thompson B. Crane; Alfred Hanscome, son of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Bamford; Ethel Margaret, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Pierce; Frederick Albion, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Sproul.

Off for Chicago.

Arthur P. Russell of Wollaston accompanied the Republican delegation to the Chicago convention, which left Boston last Saturday. The Tenth Congressional district was represented by: H. Clifford Gallaher of Milton and A. T. Davison of Boston with Harrison H. Awood of Boston and Franklin L. Codman of Boston as alternates.

—The barn of Charles H. Hobart on Washington street, South Braintree, was destroyed by fire Saturday night. Loss $1,200. Cause unknown.

Reduction In Water Rates

Mayor Shea Also Expects Another Reduction On January 1

It was announced at City Hall this morning that a new schedule of water rates, especially those pertaining to meters, will go into effect July 1. At present the minimum rate for meters is $18 a year, and it is proposed to reduce this to $16 on July 1, and a further attempt to reduce the rate to $12 will be made Jan. 1. In speaking of the proposed reduction, Mayor Shea said this morning:

"The State law requires that a certain number of meters be set for each year and under the present rules of the Water department the minimum meter charge is $18. Under the new schedule the minimum charge will be $16 and it is hoped that a further reduction to $12 can be made by Jan. 1. Within 10 years all of the services in the city of Quincy will be metered and it is with this idea in view that the rates are being revised at the present time with a more definite and specific reduction to follow as soon as the date can be carefully prepared.

"It is manifestly unjust to put a meter in a house with one faucet and charge the owner thereof the present rate of $18 a year. I would like to call the attention of the citizens at large to the waste of water at the present time, and to ask them to cooperate with the department in trying to check it. More water is wasted than is used, and it is here that a material reduction can be made if the waste can be stopped.

"The waste comes from three main causes; leaky mains, leaky house services and the careless use of water in letting it run where unnecessary. The Water department is trying to stop the former, and I would ask that means be taken to stop the latter waste which is especially noticeable during the middle of the winter, and during the hottest summer weather.

"I believe that each water user should pay for what he gets, but the change from one to a measured rate the present one to a measured rate cannot be made at one step without doing injustice to some takers. To guess at the proper meter charge is no better than establishing an arbitrary fixture rate, and it is with this idea in mind that the present and future provisions will be made. A welcome change will be the charge per 100 cubic feet instead of 1000 gallons."

THE MERGER BATTLE

Railroad People Expect a New Legal Issue Will Be Raised

SUIT FILED BY BAY STATE

A Claim That Questions Involved Are Beyond Jurisdiction of Massachusetts and Relate to Interstate Affairs --Going to High Courts

New Haven, June 15.—In railroad quarters here it is ascertained that the bill in equity filed by Attorney General Malone of Massachusetts against the holding by the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company of 110,000 shares of Boston and Maine stock involves an entirely new suit and with some new and important questions involved.

From the railroad viewpoint the case of the holding of the Boston and Maine stock by the New England Navigation company is apparently a very different case from the holding of the Massachusetts trolleys in the case already decided by the Massachusetts supreme court.

The New England Navigation company is distinctly a Connecticut corporation and in that sense beyond the jurisdiction of Massachusetts, under the law of that state, which provides that no railroad corporation shall directly or indirectly hold stock or bonds of any other corporation.

It is likely that the defendant company will claim that to forbid the navigation company to hold Boston and Maine stock is tantamount to forbidding the New Haven company to hold navigation stock. Thus a new legal issue will probably be raised.

The new bill in equity apparently raises an interstate question directly, and in case of a decision adverse to the New Haven company it is practically sure to be appealed to the United States courts. They are both to be sharply distinguished from the federal suit brought under the anti-trust act of 1890, in which the governments holds that the New Haven's buying up of lines has been in the restraint of trade.

A Profitable Experiment

Washington, June 15.—That the test made on the monitor Florida in Hampton Roads with a Whitehead torpedo was highly satisfactory and will repay the government a hundred-fold is the opinion expressed by Secretaries Metcalf and Taft, who witnessed the test. "The charge of guncotton was greater in the torpedo used than in the ordinary Whitehead," said Metcalf, "and yet the damage done was confined to the bulkhead selected for the experiment. The vital parts of the vessel and the armor plate elsewhere were not affected."

Bonaparte to Stay In Cabinet

Washington, June 15.—"The president and Attorney General Bonaparte intend to go out of office on March 4, and Mr. Bonaparte has just as little idea as the president of going out sooner." This statement was made at the White House in reply to rumors that there existed a serious difference between the president and his attorney general that would probably lead to Bonaparte's leaving the cabinet very soon after the presidential election.

May Be Murder and Suicide

New York, June 15.—John J. Lynott, a Brooklyn contractor, 48 years of age, summoned to the door of his house late last night, was shot and probably fatally wounded there by the visitor, said to be his nephew, Thomas Lynott, aged 24. The younger man then turned his revolver on himself, inflicting a probably fatal wound in the head. The cause of the shooting is unknown.

Belgium Stops Track Gambling

Verviers, Belgium, June 15.—The courts here have put a ban on gambling at the race tracks. The Paris mutual betting system has been condemned as gambling in a case that came up before one of the courts for trial and the directors of a local race course were heavily fined. The decision has caused a sensation, as it threatens the existence of racing in Belgium.

Death Prediction Fails

Passaic, N. J., June 15.—Mrs. Anna Kiselcia, who had predicted that she would die at 6 o'clock Sunday morning, still lives. With the passing of the hour which she had declared would be her last on earth, the woman became sullen and defiant and absolutely refused to take food, which had to be forced down her throat.

American Wins Great Race

Paris, June 15.—W. K. Vanderbilt's bay colt Northeast won the Grand Prix de Paris, the blue ribbon event of the French turf, which this year was worth about $72,000. Fully 150,000 persons witnessed the race, which marked the close of the Paris season.

Crazy Man's Awful Deed

Peabody, Kan., June 15.—Frank Good, aged 27, cut the throats of his three children and his own throat with a pocket knife on his father's farm. All are dead. He was insanely despondent over the death of his wife.

The Weather Forecast

Almanac, Tuesday, June 15.
Sun rises—4:07; sets—7:23.
Moon rises—9:44 p. m.
High water—12:15 a. m.; 12:45 p. m.
There will be showers in New England; cooler in west and south portions.

Hoyle.

Hoyle was not really the inventor of whist, although often so stated to be, but he was the first who introduced scientific whist to the public. A recent authority says that very little is known of Hoyle's personal history except that he was a barrister by profession and held the post of registrar of the prerogative in Ireland. He was born in 1670 and died in Cavendish square in 1767 at the advanced age of ninety-seven years. He received the sum of £1,000 from his publisher for his treatise on whist, which ran through five editions in one year and was extensively pirated. Hoyle is said to have given lessons in whist at a guinea a lesson. One of his great points was the calculation of probabilities at various stages of the rubber. This at first was deemed so important in guiding players that a famous mathematician used to frequent the coffee houses (the old substitute for the modern clubs) and give his opinion on the state of the odds at any stage in a game of whist in return for a small fee from the players.—Glasgow Times.

Crossing the Ocean.

The following bits of conversation may be heard several thousand times each day:

"I think those people down in the steerage have a much better time than we do. But don't they look just like so many animals?"

"Don't those clouds over there look just like land?"

"Somebody said we aren't far from an iceberg, but I don't know whether it's so or not. You hear so many false reports on shipboard."

"Have you met the captain yet? I hope you didn't ask him any foolsh questions, poor man!"

"No; I haven't seen a whale yet, but there were lots of porpoises around the ship today."

"Who is that man? I haven't seen him before. He must have come on board during the night." (Always funny.)

"Did the postman bring you anything this morning?" (Sure of a howl.)

"Is this your first trip to Europe? My, but you have a treat in store!"—Princeton Tiger.

As Arranged For Older Children.

Miss Mary was the possessor of a diminutive and immature specimen of the Ovis aires, a wool bearing and ruminant quadruped, whose flesh is highly esteemed by persons to whose gustatory organs its flavor is agreeable.

The shaggy and agglomerated filaments constituting in their collective capacity its natural outer covering, integument or garment presented to the vision a surface absolutely etiolated and albified and rivaling in immaculateness the lustrous mantle of crystallized vapor that commonly characterizes the winter landscape.

And to whatsoever locality, contiguous or remote, whither Mary's vagrant fancy, the call of duty or, perchance, the parental mandate impelled her, when not otherwise engaged, to betake herself, this juvenescent representative of the genus Ovis aires, with a fidelity remarkable in one so immature and inexperienced, could be counted upon with absolute and entire certainty to accompany her.—Chicago Tribune.

Fortune For Forgers.

The last person to suffer death for forgery in London was a Thomas Maynard, who was executed on Dec. 31, 1829. It was not, however, until 1832 that the death penalty for the crime was replaced by transportation, though even then an exception was made in the case of forging or altering a will. This exception was not removed from the statute book until 1837. In the days of good Queen Bess a forger of deeds was very severely dealt with. He had to stand in the pillory; his ears were cut off, his nose slit, and he was branded with hot irons. If he survived these ordeals he was doomed to imprisonment for the rest of his days, and everything he possessed in the world was forfeited to the crown. Surely death would have been far more merciful.

Waifs Who Became Famous.

The list of waifs who have become famous, says the Delineator, is a long one. It includes Sir Henry Stanley, Queen Catherine the Good, Alexander Hamilton, Rosa Bonheur, Edgar Allan Poe, Rachel, Leonardo da Vinci and dates back as far as Moses. All these were homeless children—children who if left to their fate would undoubtedly have drifted into evil ways. Instead they have lived to add glory to their names and have contributed to the knowledge of the world at large through the fruits of their genius.

Smartness.

Do not be "smart." Whenever you see any of your mates showing signs of "smartness" in his work, his talk or his play take him by the hand, or both hands, or by the back of the neck, if necessary, and lovingly, playfully, but firmly, lead him to a knowledge of higher and more interesting things. In these words of Mr. Kipling is presented the gospel of real life, of common sense and of universal experience.—New York Outlook.

Disease and Remedies.

It is almost a truism among physicians that the intractability of a disease may be measured by the number of "infallible" remedies for it which from time to time have been recommended.—London Times.

Sociologist Defined.

"Uncle Henry, what is a sociologist?"

"A sociologist, my boy, is a person who can inspect a garbage can and find enough material in it for a long lecture on the needs of society."—Chicago Tribune.

"Blind Tom" Is Dead

New York, June 15.—"Blind Tom," famous negro musician, marvel of three generations of playgoers, died at Hoboken, N. J., where he had been living for years in retirement and subsisting on charity. Thomas Wiggins is the name given in his burial certificate, but the surname was one which the famous pianist adopted. He was born a slave near Columbus, Ga., about 1850. Tom was born entirely blind and more than half idiotic. In 1861 he became so proficient on the piano forte that he was exhibited as a phenomenon and later was widely heard in the United States and Europe.

An Awe-Inspiring Eruption

Auckland, N. Z., June 15.—Advices received here state that for three nights there was a remarkable volcanic outburst on Savaii, the largest of the Samoan islands. The first eruption was followed by a great flow of lava, it being estimated at nearly 3000 tons a minute. Soon there was an almost continuous sheet of lava, eight miles wide and from six inches to six feet deep, flowing down the mountainside. It destroyed many native houses on its way, dropping into the ocean and causing an immense uprising of steam.

Colorado Delegates For Bryan

Glenwood, Springs, Col., June 15.—The real interest in the Democratic state convention today to select ten delegates to the national convention at Denver centers in the fight of the contesting delegations from Denver. The adoption of resolutions binding Colorado's delegation to vote for Bryan for the presidential nomination is a foregone conclusion.

Bomb Failed to Kill

Honolulu, June 15.—An attempt to assassinate Chief of Detectives Taylor and his wife was made, a dynamite bomb being exploded outside the window of their bedroom. Neither Taylor nor his wife was hurt. There is no clue to the perpetrators of the outrage. Taylor's life has often been threatened by Chinese gamblers.

Cruiser Had a Hard Trip

Port Townsend, Wash., June 15.—Captain Underwood of the U. S. S. Colorado reports that the cruiser was delayed off Dungeness Spit by fog and is anchored in twenty-two fathoms of water. The vessel had an extremely hard trip north from California, but she is not aground, as was reported.

Bailey's Recovery Will Be Slow

Gompers Has a Bad Leg

NEWS IN BRIEF

James W. McVicar, a fireman on the revenue cutter Mohawk, was drowned while bathing in Buzzard's bay, Mass.

John Szarek, aged 18, was drowned while bathing in Swan's pond at Weare, Mass.

George Siler, 62 years old, a writer on boxing, died at Chicago of heart disease. Siler was a lightweight boxer in his younger days. He then became a referee and adjudicated many of the famous fights of the prize ring.

Did You EVER THINK of That?

IT WILL HELP QUINCY!
IT WILL HELP YOU!

Don't You Like This Town?

You live here. Your business interests are here. Your home is here.

You are reading a Mail Order Catalogue. That indicates that you are not spending your money in this town. You are spending it with strangers in a big city. That city has no use for this town except to get your money.

This town has use for your money. If spent here, your money will help to build up the town. It will help to build up your own business.

In the long run more of your money will come back to you if you spend it at home than if you send it to Chicago or some other large city. You spend a dollar with Smith, up the street. Smith spends it with Brown, around the corner. Brown is just as likely to spend it with you as with anybody else. Did you ever think of that?

All of us have to spend money. There is an art in spending it where it will do the most good. If spent so that it will circulate around this town and community, it will help this town and community. You belong to this town and community. Therefore it will help you. Isn't that good logic?

Suppose you think it over next time you pick up the Mail Order Catalogue.

SLUGGED WITH SLUNGSHOT

Sheriff May Not Recover From Assault Made by Prisoner

Dover, Me., June 15.—Sheriff James M. Knowles of Piscataquis county was making a round of the jail late at night when one of the prisoners, Willie Green, felled him with a slungshot as he was passing Green's cell. The action of another prisoner, Harry Levenseller, a trusty, in running to the sheriff's aid promptly, is believed to have prevented an attempted jail delivery.

Green rained four blows with the slungshot upon the sheriff's head, and only desisted when Levenseller appeared and drew the unconscious form of the official out of range of the prisoner's blows. Green was reaching through the bars of the cell and, according to a confession which he is said to have made, his plan was to rifle the pockets of the sheriff after stunning him and to secure his keys and effect the escape not only of himself, but of other prisoners. Green said that several other prisoners were in the conspiracy and that he had been delegated to "fix the sheriff."

A physician who happened to be in the jail in attendance upon a sick prisoner hastened to the assistance of Knowles as soon as he heard the commotion caused by the assault. The sheriff was found to be suffering from a fracture of the skull. His condition is regarded as dangerous.

Green is 17 years old and was being held for the grand jury on charges of breaking and entering and larceny. He will be arraigned in the district court on a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon.

Ten Thousand at Communion

Boston, June 15.—More than 10,000 followers of Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy were in attendance at the two communion services held yesterday at the First Church of Christ, Scientist. But for the announcement that went forth to the effect that those who lived at any great distance from the mother church were not expected to attend the annual services probably more than 30,000 Christian Scientists would have been in attendance.

Suicide In Police Station

Biddeford, Me., June 15.—James Collier, aged 48, cook on a schooner, committed suicide in the police station here by hanging himself by his suspenders to the bars of his cell after he had been arrested for intoxication. Collier's wife said that he had been despondent over the recent death of his child, and that this, coupled with the feeling of shame over his arrest, led to his suicide.

The Morris' Speedy Trip

Newport, R. I., June 15.—The torpedo boat Morris, which took part in the naval tests in connection with the monitor Florida, made the run of 380 miles from Norfolk to the torpedo station here in less than twenty-four hours, including a stop of one hour to repair a pump and easing down to clean fires. This is the record run of small torpedo boats between the two points.

Bicyclist Fatally Injured

Boston, June 15.—Albert P. Carver, while riding a bicycle in Brookline, was struck by an automobile owned by Robert F. Herrick, a banker. He cannot recover.

Fatal Collision of Car and Wagon

PROPERTY PROTECTION.

There is a Massachusetts law which says: "Whoever wantonly injures, defaces or destroys a shrub or plant or an object or fixture of ornament or utility in a public way or place or any enclosure shall forfeit not less than five nor more than $100." In spite of all the laws, there is constantly going on a system of stealing and mischief, which sometimes become so serious that the owners wonder what they can do to protect their flowers and fruit from those children, over whom parents seem to have little control. Many times in the past have citizens become discouraged in the attempt to beautify the grounds about their homes, because of the lawlessness displayed. He hesitates to back up a complaint by action and the publicity gained by appearing in court as complainant against a child is most undesirable, no matter how much incensed he may be over the property taken or the ruin wrought.

It would seem that if possible, parents should be awakened to their own responsibility in the matter and restrict the actions of their children. This might prove less humiliating than allowing the law to take its course.

DIRECTORS OF CORPORATIONS.

Thomas A. Watson, the founder of the Fore River plant and prominently identified years ago with various reform movements on Monday advocated before the Boston C. L. U. as a solution of the trust problem, that the interests of the public and the employes of a concern should be represented on the board of directors of large corporations.

He said in part:

"Government interference with corporation industries in the future is sure to be much larger than in the past. The socialists advocate with almost religious fervor the ownership and operation by all the people of all the means of production and distribution.

"The fundamental defect at the present time in public work is that it does not have the stimulus of the efforts of the private owner. I am convinced that the selfish interest of the owner must be retained and used for the benefit of the people.

"The second view of the course to take is that of legal regulation. This is shown in such laws as that providing for meat inspectors, the pure food law, and the laws relating to railroads.

"A continuance of the present efforts will result in a state of war between our government and the corporation. Some other plan must be found. I believe I have such a plan.

"If for instance, a corporation is run by eight directors, have two selected by the proper person or persons to represent the public and two directors elected from among the employes by the employes.

"There the three great interests vitally concerned in the operation of every industry, the general public, the workmen and the capitalist. The full harmony of these three interests has never been accomplished in any industry.

"You have looked out for your interests as the employer has looked out for his. In your strife for your own interests you have never hesitated to disorganize industries. You have raised wages and shortened hours, but the question always comes to mind whether you have not also rasied living expenses to correspond.

"If we do not have a better way we will have state ownership of railroads, for which burden we are now unprepared."—Boston Evening Record.

FIRST MASS

Celebrated at St. Johns Church By Rev. D. C. Cary Newly Ordained

Rev. Daniel C. Carey, C. S. P., who was ordained in New York on Saturday by Archbishop Farley, celebrated his first mass Sunday morning at St. John's church in the presence of a large congregation of friends and parishioners.

Rev. Michael J. Carey, C. S. P., of San Francisco, a brother of the young priest, was present and acted as deacon at the mass.

Tolemn high mass was celebrated at 10.30, with Rev. D. C. Carey as celebrant, Rev. Michael J. Carey as deacon, Rev. James Cronin, C. S. P., of East Boston as sub deacon, and Rev. William L. Sullivan C. S. P., also a Quincy boy, as master of ceremonies. Seated within the sanctuary was Rev. John J. Coan and Rev. Julian E. Johnstone.

The musical part of the mass wa rendered by the regular choir, under the direction of Miss Mary McConarty. At the offertory Thomas R. Donovan sang "Jesavit Dominus, Tu es Sacerdos in Aeternum."

The sermon was preached by Rev. Michael J. Carey, who dwelt upon the sacred calling of the priesthood.

Rev. Fr. Carey received his early education at the Washington school and at the Adams Academy, from which he was graduated in 1899. That year he won the Adams gold medal.

He will remain in Quincy a few weeks before going to the Paulist summer home at Lake George, N. Y., It is not known where he will be stationed, as he is a member of the Missionary community.

GRADE CROSSINGS HEARING.

Friday morning at 10.15 in the Town hall a public hearing was held before the special grade crossings commissioners, Messrs. Bates, Slocum and Wellman, when plans were presented for the abolition of School, Elm, River and Union street crossings.

Mr. O. C. Mellen, counsel for the town ,said the committee were prepared to present plans without estimates of cost and advised that an adjourned hearing be held in September.

Civil Engineer H. L. White presented first the plan for the Union street bridge which passed without discussion. Then he posted plans for School, Elm and River streets one showing location of bridges, tracks and depot, the other elevations.

His plans were the same as presented before the public meeting in Cochato hall, with the stations located near School street. The details of the plans were given in full and then many citizens who patronize the Braintree station including members of the committee spoke strongly against the committee's plans.

Ex-Governor Bates, chairman, then called for other plans and Mr. Prescott's plan which was presented at the public meeting and reproduced in the Observer was posted. Mr. Prescott gave his reasons for moving the main tracks east and keeping the depots near the present location.

Selectman R. Allen Gage did not have Mr. Nolte's plan to present but said that he was requested to speak for the Braintree people in favor of keeping the depots near the present location.

The committee were severely criticized by several gentlemen present for not presenting plans as requested at the public meeting in Cochato hall.

It was finally agreed that the meeting stand adjourned until Wednesday, Sept. 16th, and the chairman stated that probably that will be the final meeting.

Just Jotted Down By Ledger Men

Before the service at First church Sunday morning, the two children of Mr. and Mrs. Mark L. Reed, Jr., of Woodward avenue, were christened by Rev. E. C. Butler, pastor of the church.

Among the thirty-four children dedicated by Rev. G. G. Hamilton at the Children's day service at the Everett Universalist church on Sunday, was Mary Polk, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert J. Polk of Wollaston.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar S. Barker of Newtonville are receiving the congratulations of their Quincy friends, a little daughter being welcomed to their home on May 26th. Mrs. Barker will be remembered as Annie Eaton, daughter of Mrs. William N. Eaton.

Rev. Julian E. Johnstone will deliver the baccalaureate sermon at the Immaculate Conception church before the graduating class of Boston college on Sunday, June 21. Rev. Fr. Johnstone was graduated from this college in the class of '91.

The corrected summary of the race of the South Boston Yacht club as given out by the judges, gives the race in the Cape cat class to the Iris. The summary given out on the day of the race gave it to the Busy Bee on time allowance.

BRAINTREE.

A little daughter came to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hixon of Monatiquot avenue extension last Friday.

Carl Bangs of Pond street, who has just graduated from the M. I. T., Boston, is receiving the hearty congratulations of his hosts of friends. He has accepted a position at the University of Vermont, at Burlington, Vermont, and will assume his duties in September.

The photographs taken of the members of the Antietam Camp S. of V. on Memorial day by Mr. Charles Newhall are considered very good by those interested.

It is said that Isadore Berger will inherit a large sum from an aunt who died last March. He has two brother who are also heirs. His friends wish him good luck and congratulate him on his prospect of a third of $75,000, as the estate is estimated at that sum.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Ingalls of Brunswick, Maine, have been guests this week of Mr. and Mrs. John Sullivan of Washington street. Friends of earlier days hope that "Ben" will not forget to call upon them before he returns to the Pine Tree state.

Woman's Relief Corps 94 will exemplify their ritualistic work in the Town hall, Friday, June 19 at 1.30 P. M. The president requests a good attendance not only ,at the regular business meeting on next Monday evening ,but also at the rehearsal at 1.30 P. M. Tuesday, June 16.

There will be a band concert in South Braintree this evening. The band will be located on the balcony of the Tracey building and a jolly concert is anticipated.

The many friends of Dr. William Gallagher, head-master of Thayer academy are sorry to hear of his attack of appendicitis. He was operated upon at the Boothby hospital, Boston, on Thursday and is reported comfortable as could be expected. He will be missed at the academy during the closing exercises.

Mr. L. A. Homes, who recently bought the land and barn on Middle street owned by Benjamin Kirton, intends to build a new house on the cellar where the old house was burned some years ago. The people of Middle street will be glad to see a new house go up on this charming spot.

For many years the townspeople of Braintree, and the visiting public have been told the hour by the clock on the First church steeple. Owing to its sightly position the clock can be seen for a long distance, and many have been benefited. Incorrect time is an annoyance, but correct time is of great value. The clock is badly in need of repairs and there is no fund from which to draw to pay for them. As the public is benefited it is the opinion of the church assessors that it will respond to this appeal. The repairs will cost about $80. Subscriptions of any amount to defer the expense will be gratefully received by Will W. Mayhew, 30 Myrtle street, Walter O. Hastings, 37 Maple street, and W. E. Sheldon, 106 Hollis avenue.

HIGHER TAXES

Large Increase In State Tax Will Contribute To Big Tax Rate

Quincy's assessment for State tax will be $43,065 this year against $31,320 last year. The increase in recent years is almost alarming as will be seen below:

|---|---|
| 1902 | $10,155 |
| 1903 | 16,925 |
| 1904 | 18,050 |
| 1905 | 28,880 |
| 1906 | 25,270 |
| 1907 | 31,320 |
| 1908 | 43,065 |

Only 18 cities and towns of Massachusetts have a larger assessed valuation than Quincy, viz: Boston, Worcester, Cambridge, Brookline, Springfield, Fall River, Lowell, Newton, New Bedford, Lynn, Somerville, Lawrence, Holyoke, Brockton, Malden, Salem, Haverhill, and Fitchburg.

The cities in the same class as Quincy in valuation are shown below, where the State tax ranges between $30,000 and $50,000. Quincy is leaving some of the older cities behind, having a larger valuation than Chelsea, Beverly, Waltham, Milton, Taunton, Everett, Gloucester, Medford and Pittsfield:

| | 1907 | 1908. |
|---|---|---|
| Pittsfield, | $22,769 | $31,295 |
| Medford, | 25,320 | 34,815 |
| Gloucester, | 25,480 | 35,035 |
| Everett, | 27,040 | 37,180 |
| Taunton, | 27,880 | 38,335 |
| Milton, | 28,360 | 38,895 |
| Waltham, | 28,400 | 39,050 |
| Chelsea, | 30,920 | 42,515 |
| Quincy, | 31,320 | 43,065 |
| Fitchburg, | 32,000 | 44,000 |
| Haverhill, | 33,520 | 46,090 |

With a larger State tax, larger County tax, larger Metropolitan assesments, a heavier maturing city debt, and larger appropriations for city purposes, the prospects are good for a $20 tax rate in Quincy this year.

About Good Things.

Fourteen years ago few people in the world knew of such a preparation as a Powder for the Feet. Today after the genuine merit of Allen's Foot-Ease has been told year after year by one gratified person to another, there are millions who would as soon go without a dentifrice as without Allen's Foot-Ease. It is cleanly, wholesome, healing, antiseptic powder to be shaken into the shoes, which has given rest and comfort to tired and aching feet in all parts of the world. It cures while you walk. Over 30,000 testimonials of cures of smarting, swollen, perspiring feet. It prevents friction and wear of the stockings and will save in your stocking bill ten times its cost each year. Imitations pay the dealer a larger profit, otherwise you would never be offered a substitute when you ask for Allen's Foot-Ease, the original powder for the feet.

Flavoring Tobacco.

Nearly all tobaccos are doctored in various ways in order to suit the tastes of different consumers. Each manufacturer—even in Havana—has his own secret methods, handed down from father to son, which are regarded as perfectly legitimate and necessary in the preparation of the soothing weed. Saltpeter is added to the tobacco to make it burn well, licorice, honey, molasses and maple sugar to give sweetness to it for the special benefit of chewers and rum to make it keep well and preserve its properties. Nearly every plant which will afford a perfume is used in the preparation of what are known as "fancy" tobaccos. But it is not true, as some suppose, that opium and deleterious drugs are employed, save in a few brands of imported Turkish and Egyptian cigarettes. Among the flavors used are coffee, tea, valerian, lemon, orange, geranium, sassafras, thyme, anise, mint and cinnamon. Gum and glycerin are occasionally employed to bind the tobacco particles so that they shall not crumble into dust. The various ingredients are made into a kind of sauce, into which the tobacco leaves are dipped or with which they are sprinkled.—London Answers.

The Proper Adjective.

At the close of a revival service in Philadelphia the minister of the church went down the aisle, according to his custom, to greet the strangers in the congregation. "I don't think you are a member of our church," said he to one as he warmly shook his hand. "No, sir," replied the stranger. "Well, you will not think me unduly curious if I ask to what denomination you belong?" asked the minister. "I suppose," responded the other, "I'm really what you might call a submerged Presbyterian." "A submerged Presbyterian?" exclaimed the minister. "I should be glad if you would explain." "Well, I was brought up a Presbyterian, my wife is a Methodist, my eldest daughter is a Baptist, my son is the organist at a Unitarian church, my second daughter sings in an Episcopal choir, and my youngest goes to a Congregational Sunday school." "But," said the minister, aghast, "you contribute doubtless to some church?" "Yes; I contribute to all of them," was the answer. "That's what submerges me."

Crows and Strings.

It was proved centuries ago that a crow can count up to three and no more. I met a farmer once who said that his corn crop had not railed in twenty years owing to his habit of stringing his field. He explained: "No crow will enter an angle formed by two strings stretched on poles. I illustrated this to some friends several years ago by sowing a small field in corn for fodder, protecting it by a zigzag string running from one end to the other. Within the angles formed by the string not a blade of the young crop was touched, but close without them, at each end, the whole crop was demolished. A crow is a very wise fool, and this is an effective and cheap way of circumventing him."—New York Press.

Sign Language on the Curb.

Any one would imagine all the curb brokers in Broad street were mutes. They use the sign language down there now to convey quotations and sales to their office boys and clerks who sit in the windows of the offices to catch the quotations. As a matter of fact, some of the brokers use the deaf and dumb alphabet; others use a distinct signaling code of their own, known only to the one single house and its representative. Even this, however, has to be changed now and then. The brokers possess a nimble wit, and they soon learn the secret signs of their competitors.—New York Cor. Pittsburg Dispatch.

The Safest Way.

"My friends dragged me into this wretched affair," shiveringly said the first duelist to his adversary as the seconds approached with the deadly weapons. "I never pulled the trigger of a pistol in my life, so if I hit you it will be an accident."

"Nor is this awful duel to my liking," whined the challenger, white to the gills. "Like you, a pistol is a strange article to my hands, and if I shoot you it will be with a stray shot."

"Then, for heaven's sake," exclaimed the first duelist, with a ray of hope, "let's aim carefully at each other or one of us may get hit!"—Kansas City Newsbook.

Selwyn's Curious Taste.

George Selwyn had a strange but not uncommon passion for seeing dead bodies, especially those of his friends. He would go any distance to gratify this pursuit. Lord Holland was laid up very ill at Holland House shortly before his death. George Selwyn sent to ask how he was and whether he would like to see him. Lord Holland answered: "Oh, by all means! If I'm alive tomorrow I shall be delighted to see George, and I know that if I am dead he will be delighted to see me!"

Went a Shade Better.

"You—you are temperamentally impossible," roared the first angry man.

"And you," replied the second, getting red in the face, "are temperamentally inconceivable."—Philadelphia Ledger.

And Expensive.

"Surely she must have some favorite flower?"

"No; I don't think so. Anything will please her—that is, anything that's out of season."—Kansas City Journal.

No two persons are ever more confidential and cordial than when they are censuring a third.—Jean Paul Richter.

BIG CAINS

And a New Leader in the Motor Boat Popularity Contest

Capt. Foster made another big gain today in the Motor Boat popularity contest, but "Bill" Field with the support of both the Wollaston and Squantum Yacht clubs added an even thousand, and is the new leader. He is over 200 ahead of Capt. Foster and the Houghs Neck candidates are being left behind.

Several of the other candidates sent in a few votes and are moving up, but they need a few "trial orders" to give them a boost. There are also a few new candidates today. It is not too late to enter the race, as a new candidate could easily take the lead tomorrow. The motor boat is worth $250.

Blanks for placing trial orders for the Daily Ledger may be obtained at the office of publication, and will be mailed upon request. Each trial order gives a credit of 100 votes to your favorite candidate.

The standing of the candidates will be printed each day, all votes received previous to 9 A. M. being counted that day.

It is not necessary that candidates shall be members of a yacht club or any other club. Neither is the contest limited to men. Women as well as men may enter.

The prizes offered are valuable ones, there being others besides the motor boat which is offered as a first prize.

The standing today at 9 A. M. was:

Survival of the Fittest.

Much has been said and written about the strenuous life, and not a little about the simple life. It is, however, an undisputed fact that the American people, as a whole, have drifted away from the simple mode of living and travel the pace that kills.

We may or may not owe our phenomenal growth and development as a nation to this change, but granting that we do, the question arises—has it been worth the cost? Human life is more valuable than any earthly asset, and should have every possible safeguard thrown around it. In the mad rush for wealth, discretion has been thrown to the winds, with the result that the path of American progress has been strewn with human wrecks. Yet the stampede continues. The race is to the strong. Those who fall by the way are the only ones who are forced to realize the price paid for the nation's progress.

One of the heaviest items of cost is the weakened and degenerate condition of the stomach of the average American. What has become of the robust and sturdy manhood of our forefathers? Where are the strong, well-developed women of our earlier days? The percentage of vigorous men and women is steadily growing less. What is the cause? There is but one answer—the mode of living. Irregularity of meals, neglect of nature's calls, late hours, loss of rest, worry, hurry, hustle and bustle, have brought about this condition.

It has remained for a young Ohio man, Mr. L. T. Cooper, to call attention to this evil, and the wisdom of his logic has met with popular endorsement throughout the country. Mr. Cooper has advanced the theory that the stomach is responsible for the majority of illnesses common to the American people. He claims that the stomach governs the entire body, and that when the stomach fails to perform its functions properly, the system is weakened and run-down and unable to resist disease. To fortify yourself against disease and enjoy good health, you must look to your stomach, first, last, and all the time.

Reasoning from cause to effect, Mr. Cooper has also provided a remedy. He claims that it is only necessary to restore the stomach to a normal condition in order to enjoy good health, and with this end in view he has placed within the reach of every sufferer his new preparation, called Cooper's New Discovery, which is the best stomach tonic and blood purifier on the market. Prepared with great care from selected herbs, roots, barks and berries, known for their efficacy in all stomach ailments, it has a very big demand wherever its merits have become known.

CITY OF PRESIDENTS

Old historic Quincy settled in 1625 has much of interest to visitors. When Braintree was incorporated in 1640, the territory now known as Quincy, was a part. In 1792 Quincy became an independent town, and in 1888 was incorporated as a city.

Quincy was named in honor of Col. John Quincy, descendant in the third generation from Edmund, 2d, who settled in Quincy, in 1634; grandfather of Abigail (Smith) Adams, the wife and mother of a President of the United States.

The city includes Wollaston, Atlantic, Quincy Point, South Quincy, West Quincy, Montclair, Norfolk Downs, Wollaston Park, Squantum, Houghs Neck, Adams Shore, Germantown and Quincy Neck, comprising in all over 16 square miles, of which 2,530 acres are in public parks.

Colonel John S. Mosby of Cavalry Fame—The Largest Clock In the Whole World.

Congressman Sabath's Anti-dowry Idea—Colonel William F. Stewart's Case—John K. Tener.

JOHN S. MOSBY.

COLONEL JOHN S. MOSBY, the famous Confederate cavalry leader who is now a member of the department of justice at Washington, was reminded of the strenuous days of his career as a warrior when he went under the surgeon's knife a short time ago in a Washington hospital. The operation caused anxiety among some of his friends in view of his age, seventy-four years. Others, more hopeful, recalled his experience of ten years ago. At that time he was thrown from a buggy at Charlottesville, Va., where he had gone to witness the performance of a play written by his son. His life was for a time despaired of, but when his former followers celebrated their annual reunion a few months later at the Eutaw House, in Baltimore, he sent them an encouraging message from San Francisco, where he had gone to practice law. It was on that occasion that a speaker who had served under General Stuart and had left the regular command to join Mosby's men spoke of the veteran as a daredevil who would "rank in history with men like Sumter, Pickens and Marion. Hancock would not accept his sword in surrender, but would have treated him as an outlaw, but Grant recognized him as a soldier."

The Colgate clock in Jersey City, the largest in the world, which was started by the mayor of Jersey City with appropriate ceremonies on May 25, faces New York from the Jersey shore and is visible for many miles. It is a wonderful piece of mechanism, and its regulation involves some interesting problems. Heretofore the Westminster dials on the parliament buildings in London have held the record as to size abroad. They have diameters of twenty-two and a half feet and an area of 398 feet each. In this country the Philadelphia city hall clock has dials measuring twenty-five feet across, the area of each dial being 490 square feet. The Colgate clock has dials each of which is thirty-eight feet across, and the area of each is 1,134 feet. The minute hand is twenty feet long and with its counterpoise weighs nearly a third of a ton. The ponderous weight that moves the mechanism tips the scales at just a ton, and the whole clock weighs approximately six tons. Across the dial of the clock twenty men could stand shoulder to shoulder. The timepiece is lighted at night, and each hand is outlined with incandescent lamps. Brilliant red lights mark each numeral, and an incandescent lamp indicates each minute mark. The latter are twenty-four inches apart, and as the tip of the hour hand must travel two feet every minute it journeys about half a mile every day. The size of the hour hand may be gauged by comparing its height in the picture with the figure of a man at the right.

The Rev. John Long, pastor of the Parkside Presbyterian church, Brooklyn borough, New York city, is a pronounced advocate of socialism. A Christian socialist brotherhood is one of the features of his church, and he has inaugurated what he terms "a series of new style revival meetings." As to the question of his orthodoxy the Rev. Mr. Long recently said:

"Orthodoxy in the Presbyterian church is a theological term. It has nothing to do with sociology. As a Presbyterian minister I am free to preach any sociology I please short of plural marriage. As to the coming meetings, I wish to say that the Christian church in the times of the apostles cared little for creeds and less for ritual."

John K. Tener, who has been nominated for congress by the Republicans of the Twenty-fourth Pennsylvania district to succeed Ernest F. Acheson, was famous twenty years ago as a National league baseball pitcher. He is now a millionaire banker of Charleroi, Pa., and is grand exalted ruler of the Elks of North America. In the late eighties Mr. Tener was a pitcher for the Pittsburg National team and later for that of Chicago, and when A. G. Spalding took the All American team on a trip around the world Tener went along as one of the pitchers. Later on he helped form the ill fated Brotherhood, and when it collapsed gave up baseball and, settling at Charleroi, made a fortune in coal lands.

JOHN K. TENER.

It seems the resolution introduced in congress by Representative Sabath of Illinois proposing to put a tax on titled foreigners coming over here for wives, or, rather, on the dowries they take out of the country, has created some alarm abroad, where the idea has been taken quite seriously by the press. It is expected that there will be hustling among the impoverished scions of princely houses and the inheritors of much incumbered dukedoms to get over here and pick out their wives before any such law takes effect. A London publication says:

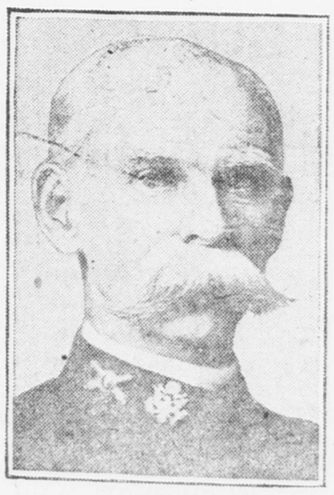

The fact that during the past generation foreign noblemen who have married American women have caused $225,000,000 of American money to go out of the country has suggested the possibility to Mr. Adolph J. Sabath, a member of the United States congress, of introducing a bill imposing a tax of 25 per cent on all dowries, gifts, settlements or advances of money or property in consideration of marriages of citizens of the United States to foreigners. Mr. Sabath was born in Bohemia in 1866, and when he was fifteen he emigrated alone to the United States and settled in Chicago, where his total capital was less than $2.50. He obtained work as a watch boy in a merchant's establishment and after working hours attended the public night school. In 1887 he embarked in the real estate business and two years later commenced reading law. In 1892 he was admitted to the bar.

ADOLPH J. SABATH.

It is an unusual controversy that has arisen over the case of Colonel William F. Stewart, who was "banished" to Fort Grant, Ariz. The reason assigned for exiling the colonel to a desert fort was his alleged "contentiousness and impertinence" and his liability to get into quarrels and stir up trouble. He has found a champion in Senator Isidor Rayner of Maryland, who says that legal proceedings will be brought to compel the secretary of war to grant Colonel Stewart a court of inquiry under the articles of war. The senator declares he will follow the case up until President Roosevelt is forced to grant a court martial or until, dying in his "prison," Stewart, as a martyr, shall arouse the people of the country to take vengeance.

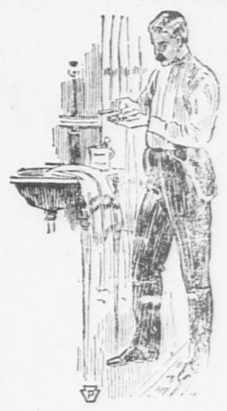

Colonel Stewart's retirement from the army was demanded by President Roosevelt on the ground that "his irritability made his continuance in the army impossible." On his refusing to retire he was sent to the post in Arizona called Fort Grant, a post where there is no command except a servant, a caretaker and a few government mules. Colonel Stewart was born in Rhode Island in 1849, entered the United States army in 1866 and graduated from the artillery school in 1871, since which time he has commanded artillery posts in different parts of the country.

Orderly and Businesslike Convention Promised at Chicago

MANY HOTEL ROOMS VACANT

Headquarters of Presidential Candidates Full of Activity--Cannon Unexpectedly Appears to Fight Against "Anti-Injunction" Plank In Platform--Resolutions Committee Likely to Have Tenacious and Prolonged Contest--Vice Presidency Promises to Keep Convention on Edge of Expectancy Until Final Ballot Is Taken

Chicago, June 15.—With flags flying, bands playing and crowds surging, the usual Sunday calm of Chicago gave way to the many noisy demonstrations which usher in a national political convention. State delegations and marching clubs reached the city throughout the day, and there was an incessant din from brass bands and marching men, and consequent enthusiasm.

The broad lake front, along which the headquarters of candidates and state delegations are situated, was besieged by the incoming throngs, which choked the hotel lobbies, overflowed into the streets and mingled with the groups of curious onlookers on the broad plaza fronting Lake Michigan.

But, despite the inrush of strangers, there was an undercurrent of feeling that the multitude was not as great and the enthusiasm not as feverish and overwhelming as in times past. It was observed that some of the arriving state delegations were stripped to a strict business basis of delegates and alternates, without the usual quota of strong-lunged shouters.

This brought about cancellations of hotel rooms in goodly numbers until some of the large hotels threatened legal proceedings for this unexpected diminution of revenue. But to the veterans of convention battles this decrease of lung power among the arrivals presages the more orderly and businesslike kind of convention often wished during the tumultous proceedings of bygone years.

Inrush of Delegates

Although many important conferences were held during the day on candidates and platform, the chief interest continued to center on the arriving delegations with their distinguished personnel and the noisy demonstration which greeted them.

The Californians came at noon, headed by M. H. De Young, chairman of the delegation. With them were the delegates from Oregon and also the men from Idaho. The Pennsylvanians were reinforced by two more detachments, one with bands and banners and 200 marchers, and another with Congressman Dalzell, who hails from the heart of the steel region, and is counted upon to see that tariff revision does not trench too strongly on the traditions of protection. The Hawaiian delegates, six in all, brought their wives.

When the Massachusetts delegation arrived there was widespread regret that the veteran figure of Massachusetts' public life, ex-Governor Long, was not among the number, having turned over his place as delegate-at-large to an alternate. Long took an independent part in having the Massachusetts men come uninstructed, and this had held out a prospect of interesting developments when Massachusetts made her choice for president and vice president.

The delegations of Iowa, Montana, Virginia, Maine, Vermont, New Hampshire and New Mexico, in whole or in part, were among those to arrive during Sunday.

The coming of the California delegation usually been accompanied by the display of some of her choicest vintage and her fruits, but this year the traditional policy was not observed, to the regret of many. Among the other prominent arrivals were Senator Carter of Montana and Governor Stuart of Pennsylvania. Seth Low of New York arrived today just as the New York delegation begun to hold its first caucus, which may throw some light on the vice presidential situation.

Ragtime at Sacred Concert

The headquarters of the presidential candidates were full of activity throughout the day. From the veranda of the Cannon headquarters a band performed a "sacred concert," with occasional lapses into the enlivening strains of "Hail Columbia" and much ragtime.

The Taft headquarters had the usual throng of visitors, but the formal opening was still deferred until the arrival of the Ohio delegation. The Fairbanks headquarters were radiant with flowers and filled with women who accompanied the Indiana party. The Knox headquarters had its full share of excitement, with two bands and two marching clubs.

Among the interesting groups to visit the headquarters was a band of Sioux Indians from the Pine Ridge agency, who had come on under the care of an agent to see the choice of a "great father."

But while these scenes were going on before the eyes of all, the more important work of preparation on candidates and platform was being gone over at private conferences in the upper chambers of the hotels, where few were admitted and little was made known. One of the chief conferences of the day was upon the platform, and while this was rather informal, it brought about the clear understanding that the document, as already drafted in accordance with the views of the president and Taft, would go before the convention in substantially its present form.

A considerable representation of the ways and means committee of the house of representatives is likely to be on the platform committee, including Chairman Payne of New York, Mr. Dalzell of Pennsylvania and Senator Hopkins. This strong tariff element in the platform committee will probably bring about some consideration of the details of when the work of tariff revision will be taken up by congress, but it is not likely to vary the plans already matured for conservative revision.

The financial plank is also considered outside the bounds of serious controversy and the main provisions subject to revision are those relating to the "anti-injunction" plank urged by Mr. Gompers and that relating to railroad regulation. It is now generally conceded that Hopkins will be chairman of the platform committee, the only doubt being as to whether the Illinois delegation will select him as a member of that committee. But the sentiment in the delegation is that the choice which will be made will fall upon Hopkins.

Contest Over the Platform

Pressure for platform modification has increased to such an extent that the Taft forces plainly foresee a contest in the resolutions committee of the convention which promises to be both tenacious and prolonged. This pressure so far has only increased the determination of those directing the Taft movement to assume a more unyielding attitude. "If we are to have Taft for the candidate, we are going to have a Taft platform" is the ultimatum.

This Taft platform, as is well known, has been written. It is in the custody of Wade H. Ellis, attorney general of Ohio, who has taken up his quarters for the convention at the Auditorium Annex. Every plank of this platform is declared to have received the most detailed and weighty attention, and the prediction is made that every plank will remain in the document in the form in which it is now expressed, with some possible changes in verbiage.

However stern may be the declaration against modification, there is not the slightest disposition to refuse to listen to those who want revision, and this has been the task of Ellis. Incidentally, also, it may be stated that both President Roosevelt and Secretary Taft have been kept informed minutely as to the developments.

Uncle Joe Shows Up

Something of a sensation was caused last night by the unexpected arrival in Chicago of Speaker Cannon. He came from Danville, going to the Union League club, where he was soon in conference with some of the most prominent leaders of congress.

It soon developed that Cannon's coming was in connection with the platform and that a very brisk contest on some of the planks was in prospect. When Cannon was here a few days ago he learned in a general way the main features of the existing draft, and did not feel that they presented any serious obstacles. However, the arrival of some of the congressional leaders developed the fact that the so-called "anti-injunction" plank contained certain features which were regarded as quite opposed to the declaration made at a recent caucus of the Republican members of the house upon that subject.

Early Sunday Cannon was called on the long distance telephone and the platform situation was discussed with him. The speaker finally decided to come to Chicago and to go over the platform field in person.

Meantime Cannon and his congressional lieutenants are thoroughly going over the platform plank concerning the restriction of injunctions. It is not only Cannon's personal view that an anti-ijunction plank such as is proposed would be unnecessary and unwise, but as speaker of the house he feels that the formal action of the Republican membership, taken only a few weeks ago and strongly expressive of opposition to such legislation, should receive serious consideration before such a plank is finally introduced into the pronouncement of the party to the country.

Some of the congressional leaders have pointed out that such a plank would create a singular diversity of official representation, the Republican membership of the house formally declaring against such legislation and the Republican platform formally declaring in favor of it. It is this apparent conflict which the speaker desires to reconcile as a means of party unity and success.

Dolliver Boom Grows

The vice presidential contest continues to be the most enlivening feature of the preliminary work, and the delegates are as much in doubt now as at any time since the contest began. The Dolliver movement appears to be making the greatest advance, and this gave rise to reports that the Dolliver movement is now assured of success. The friends of other candidates are far from admitting this, and have begun maturing plans for decisive action.

A call for a caucus for the New York delegation was issued for today. This is expected to develop the strength of the various New York names, Sherman, Woodruff, Cortelyou, and possibly Low. Informal canvasses appear to make Woodruff the favorite numerically in his own division. But the outside influences, including that of the congressional element from many parts of the country, is strong upon the New Yorkers to make Representative Sherman their choice.

The availability of Seth Low appeals to the New York delegates-at-large, owing to his position as trustee of the Tuskegee negro institute and his recent work at the head of the civic organization in seeking to reconcile the issues between labor and capital. But outside of the delegates-at-large, Low has not developed any noticeable strength.

The various other vice presidential candidates continue to be urged with varying degrees of enthusiasm and the uncertainty brings forth a list of new names which is constantly growing.

A Roosevelt Boom

A small meeting which, its participants claim, will be followed today by a much larger gathering, was held last night to arrange to present the name of President Roosevelt as a candidate for the presidency.

It was stated that on the arrival of the Georgia and West Virginia delegations a complete campaign will be arranged. One of the Georgia delegates, it is said, will bring with him a petition bearing 60,000 and 70,000 signatures from men in the south urging that President Roosevelt accept a second elective term. The entire move is said by the men actively participating to be favored by the "allies," who believe that no nomination will be made on the first ballot.

Three Important Assignments

It is announced at the Taft headquarters that Senator Warner of Missouri will be chosen chairman of the convention committee to make notification to the presidential nominee of his selection by the convention; that Governor Hill of Maine is preferred to head the convention committee on permanent organization, and that Senator Fulton of Oregon is being very favorably considered for the chairmanship of the credentials committee.

These selections depend, of course, upon the success of the Taft forces in organizing the convention, and are regarded as indicating the confidence felt in that quarter that their strength predominates.

The selection of Warner to head the notification committee is regarded as of more than passing political importance. The senator is a Civil war veteran and a past commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, and he represents a doubtful state. He is a close personal friend and admirer of Taft and should the convention nominate Taft the address apprising him of the fact would undoubtedly contain expressions intended to clear the atmosphere of any clouds which may have been in the horizon since the secretary's Memorial day address at Grant's tomb in New York.

Ordinarily this appointment would go to the permanent chairman of the convention—Senator Lodge—who is slated for the honor, but because of a contemplated visit to Europe he will be unable to accommodate himself to the demands of the notification committee.

The intended compliment to Hill emphasizes the appreciation felt towards what is regarded as an original Taft state. Hill's work during the contest hearings by the national committee was most efficient and earnest, and his bearing and personality is said to have won for him many friends. His ability to head the important committee of permanent organizations is conceded.

The credentials committee chairmanship is a matter requiring and receiving most careful consideration. Fulton's availability is recognized from many points of view. He is not only entirely familiar with each of the contested cases before the national committee, but he heads a delegation which comes to the convention without a single contest. Besides this, his appointment would be extending to the northwest one of the delicate compliments of the convention.

Booming Hitchcock For Chairman

Letters urging Secretary Taft to appoint Frank H. Hitchcock as manager of his campaign for election, in the event of his nomination for the presidency by the Republican convention, were mailed yesterday more than half of the members of the present national committee.

The expressions favorable to the selection of Hitchcock were made in response to an intimation from Washington that advice would be acceptable on the question of selecting a chairman for the next national committee.

That there is opposition to the appointment of Hitchcock as chairman of the national committee is conceded by his friends. The name of Senator Crane is heard frequently in connection with the chairmanship, and there are a few members of the committee who are seeking to have Chairman New retained in the position. The selection, however, has been thought to rest between Hitchcock and Arthur I. Vorys, who has been identified with Taft's campaign ever since he first announced his candidacy.

Before deciding to send letters to Taft urging the designation of Hitchcock as his choice for the chairmanship, members of the committee who were favorable to the selection of Hitchcock as chairman held a conference. First it was proposed that the members again join in an appeal to the secretary on behalf of Hitchcock. This was opposed because it seemed contrary to the wishes of Hitchcock, as expressed by him when he upset such a plan several days ago. It was suggested that members individually send letters to Taft, each reciting the reasons that particularly appealed to him for the selection of Hitchcock. This plan was adopted.

Wednesday, the Seventeenth of June, will be observed as a holiday by the Daily Ledger, no paper being issued on that date. See paper of Thursday for all the holiday news.

The Observations In the Daily Walk

The new timetable of the N. Y., N. H. appears in this issue.

The popularity contest for the $250 Motor Boat is getting interesting.

Eight pages again tomorrow but no issue of the Daily Ledger on Wednesday, the Seventeenth of June.

One of the prettiest drives about Quincy is over the boulevard on the shore of Quincy bay from the National Sailors' Home to Atlantic.

A regular meeting of the City Council will be held tonight. Attempts will probably be made to pass more permits to transport liquor.

A lot of land valued at $500 will be given away free at the auction sale of desirable house lots on Adams shore the Seventeenth of June.

Through street cars between Neponset and Nantasket beach were run on Sunday for the first time this season. The regular line will not go into service until June 22.

The Squantum Yacht club held an enjoyable social dance at the club house Saturday night. William A. Field, Benjamin C. Sargeant and Alexander Tobin had the affair in charge and fifty couples participated.

The Hemlocks of Quincy defeated a strong pick up team Saturday by a score of 21 to 7. This was the fifth straight game won by the Hemlocks, who desire games with any 16 year old teams in Quincy, having uniforms. Address, Fred Allicon, South Walnut street.

It was the privilege of Representative R. P. Coombs of this city on the closing day of the Legistature last Saturday to offer a set of resolutions in appreciation of the services of Chaplain Daniel W. Waldron and also to present him a silk umbrella in behalf of the members of the House. It was a merry session the last day.

TODAY'S COURT.

Roseo H. Prior, Jr., was fined $20, and Clifford A. Howe $15, for exceeding the automobile speed limit at Milton.

Edward E. Wood was sent to the State farm for drunkenness at Weymouth.

James F. Atchinson was fined $5 for drunkenness at Quincy.

Makaria 7—Oxford Club 2.

At the park on Saturday Makaria defeated the Oxfords of Lynn by the score of 7 to 2. It was a fast game Makaria holding the visitors down well. The visitors were able to score but twice and then on errors, while Makaria bunched their hits and scored in four innings.

Michael pitched an excellent game getting 10 strike-outs and only passed one man, he being hit. Bill Troupe led the batting for Makaria, getting 2 hits while Smith was close behind with a dandy home run in the 5th.

For the visitors, Donovan pitched a strong game, but lacked support at the critical times. Donahue and Welch put up a strong game at short and third base and each landed a hit.

Government Men Play Ball.

In a very exciting game at Ward Two playgrouds Saturday afternoon, the Construction team easily defeated the Engineers by the score of 14 to 4. The features of the game were the support given the Construction men by their excellent battery Horigan and Kelly, and the impartial decisions of umpire Blake. Foss did great work in the field and at the bat for the Engineers.

The Arawak Led the Fleet

A light breeze greeted the Capt cat class of the Quincy Yacht club Saturday afternoon, and for this reason the race was not as scrappy as usual. The Iris which has given all the boats in this class a hard fight could not find all the air she wanted, and dropped to fourth place five minutes behind the Arawak, which is more of a light air beat.

The fleet of nine boats got away at 255, and sailed twice around a triangular course. The Arawak soon forced herself into the lead and led the fleet over the course finishing with a lead of three minutes actual time over the Busy Bee, the second boat in. The summary:

Newsy Budget From Shipyard

Tuesday, June 23, is the date now set by the government for the preliminary trial of the scout cruiser Salem built at Quincy. It will be conducted over the Rockland, Me., course.

What to buy for the scout ship Salem is now a problem before Salemites, says the Lynn Item. It is probable that the special commission, which has charge of funds for a gift, will decide upon a silver service, because not ony other gift seems to satisfy. The navy men do not want a ship's bell, nor a pianola, nor a library. No other gift than a silver service has been suggested to the satisfaction of popular opinion. If the committee decides upon a silver service it will have to raise about $2500. It now has only raised $1000. .

A Saturday dispatch from Bath to the Herald says: Fire destroyed the boiler and coppersmith shops of the Bath Iron Works this afternoon, and a storage building in which were kept many old patterns, while the big machine shop was threatened, and vessels at the wharves in the immediate vicinity had to be removed to the middle of the Kennebec river to get away from the flames. The loss is $80,000. The fire sprung up suddenly and raged for two hours, when it died out as suddenly as it commenced for lack of more material to burn. Its origin is a mystery, for on Saturday afternoon the works are closed during the summer months, and it had been several hours since any of the workmen had been in the plant. Whether a charred match, burning waste, a smouldering wad of pipe tobacco or spontaneous combustion caused it, the fire officials are unable to determine; but as everything was dry as tinder the building went up like a puff from a pipe.

Costly Jar of the Subway.

The tuppenny tube, London's subway, once set fire to a house in a manner so extraordinary as to merit attention. In a mansion beneath which runs the subterranean railway one of the bedroom fireplaces was fitted with a blower—a sheet of iron inside the grate which can be raised or lowered to regulate the draft. The blower rested on a series of iron notches. One afternoon a servant kindled a fire in the grate and when it was well alight raised the blower, so that the coal would burn but slowly, and so left it while she went downstairs. Presently, deep in the clay beneath the foundations of the house, a train rushed along. The vibrations from its passing were sufficient to jar the blower from the notches on which the servant had left it. It dropped down. The draft increased; the fire raged madly. The flames were enough to set the chimney on fire, burning soot set the water tank on the roof alight, and there resulted a considerable conflagration.—Pittsburg Post.

A Girl and a Snake.

It is a matter of fact that men have greater fear of serpents than have women. During a visit to friends in the country I was crossing a stretch of meadow in the company of my hostess' daughter, a sprightly girl of seventeen, when a black snake crossed the path ten feet in front of us. I caught my companion by the sleeve, but she wrenched herself loose, gathered her skirts about her knees, gave a running jump and landed squarely upon the back of the reptile. His snakeship thrashed the grass and the girl's ankles with equal futility. As soon as she could disengage one foot she planted it upon the serpent's head. In the absence of club or stones I was compelled to stand and witness a scene that to me was terrifying, but to the girl furnished supreme enjoyment. Years afterward when I read Haggard's description of Jess' fight with the kangaroo I understood the kind of entertainment that my young companion had provided for me.—Brooklyn Eagle.

There's a Hare In the Moon.

Equally famous with the man in the moon and the woman in the moon is the hare in the moon, says Garrett P. Serviss in his "Astronomy With the Naked Eye." The original is a Buddhist legend. The god Sakkria, disguised as a Brahman, pretended to be starving and went to the animals for help. The monkey got him a bunch of mangoes; the coot picked up a fisherman's neglected string for him; the fox stole him a pot of milk. At last the god approached the hare. "I have nothing but grass," said the hare, "and you can't eat that." "But your flesh is good," suggested the pretended Brahman. The hare assented. "Then," said the Brahman, "I'll kindle a fire at the foot of this rock, and you jump off into it. That'll save me the trouble of killing you." The hare assented again, but as he leaped from the rock the god caught him in his arms and then drew his figure in the moon as a perpetual reminder of the excellence of self sacrifice.

Cerebral Embolism.

Cerebral embolism, or the occlusion or plugging of an artery in the brain, causes sudden death. Growths or vegetations form on the valves of the heart. While attached they are harmless, but the instant one, large or small, becomes loosened and enters the rapid arterial current a very perilous condition obtains. The embolus, or plug, enters a vessel that becomes narrower and narrower and at last it is arrested and occludes or plugs the artery, thereby cutting off the blood supply. The force of the blood current back of the embolus keeps it at the seat of arrest. In brain cases the middle cerebral artery, at the base of the brain, is affected. Once lodged unconsciousness follows and soon death. Some of the symptoms resemble those of a true cerebral hemorrhage or apoplexy.—New York Herald.

A Quaint English Ceremony.

On the last day of each October the city solicitor of London, with an assistant, attends upon the royal remembrancer, when by proclamation "the tenants and occupiers of a piece of waste ground called the moors, in the county of Salop," are commanded to "come forth and do your service upon pain and peril that shall fall thereon." The solicitor chops in halves two fagots, one with a hatchet and the other with a billhook. Afterward comes the summons to the tenants, etc., of "a certain tenement with a forge" in the Strand and the payment of six horseshoes, with sixty-one shoe nails, by the solicitor. This forge has long ceased to be, and the same shoes and nails are used year after year, the shoes being at least two centuries old.

Spell This.

Some of you who think you are well up in spelling just try to spell the words in this little sentence:

"It is agreeable to witness the unparalleled ecstasy of two harassed peddlers endeavoring to gauge the symmetry of two peeled pears."

Read it over to your friends and see how many of them can spell every word correctly. The sentence contains some of the real puzzlers of the spelling book.

Too Good a Chance to Miss.

He (indignantly)—They have put us in a back pew this morning. Why, I wonder? She (calmly)—They probably noticed that I wore a dowdy hat and that I shouldn't care to have it seen!

There is a saying that people are as "homely as a mud fence." Did any one ever see a mud fence or know if there is such a thing?—Atchison Globe.

GAS OR ELECTRICS

Great Rivalry For Lighting The Streets of Houghs Neck

There is a hard fight between the Gas company and the Electric company for the contract for the street lighting of Houghs Neck. The Houghs Neck Associates circulated a petition two weeks ago requesting the Mayor to use the appropriation for street lighting for gas exclusively. The Electric Light company have had a man out with a petition requesting the Mayor to divide the money equally between the Gas company and the Electric company. The Electric petition was signed by about seventy-five taxpayers. The Associates petition was signed by over one hundred and fifty not all taxpayers.

As soon as some signers of the electric petition heard of the Associate's petition, and the facts, they circulated a request reading as follows: "We the undersigned, under a misrepresentation of facts signed your petition. We hereby request you to erase our names from said petition.

The facts of the case are. The Houghs Neck Associates early in January appointed a gas committee to see the officers of the Consolidated Gas Company, and find out if it was possible to get gas at Houghs Neck. After considerable work on the part of the gas committee, President Richards promised to bring the matter to the immediate attention of the board of directors.

Two days after the matter was put before the directors of the Gas company, the gas committee had a meeting with President Richards. Mr. Richards made the following statement: The Gas company have no intention of putting gas at Houghs Neck for two or three years. But the people of Houghs Neck seem to want it, so I will make this proposition. The cost of installing gas at Houghs Neck will be $50,000, we would have to get $3,000 a year, which is 6 per cent on money invested. Now, the Gas Company will assume $2,000 of that if the Houghs Neck people will assume the balance of $1,000 for two years. If the amount of gas consumed at Houghs Neck in one year amounts to over $3,000 there will be no liability, but if the consumation of gas falls below $3,000 the Houghs Neckers will be liable for the difference between the amount consumed above $2,000 and $3,000.

This offer was quickly accepted by the gas committee, and an agreement was drawn up and signed by one hundred members of the Associates. Each signer assumming a liablity of ten dollars for two years. The gas was then installed.

An order was then put into the Council through Councilman Gelott, asking for an appropriation of $850 for street light at HHoughs Neck. The finance committee cut the order to $500 which was passed, the Mayor promising to give $250 more.

The liablity assumed by 100 signers of the gas agreement was wiped out by this appropriation, providing that the money was spent for gas street lights. The Mayor has power to use this money for gas or electric lights or both. This puts the Mayor in a bad position. He must either please the Houghs Neckers or please the Electric company and there will be 200 voters at Houghs Neck next election.

SHIPYARD WATER

Movement to Increase Contract Price Is Defeated

A number of important matters came before the City Council on Monday evening, some of which caused a sharp debate. This was particularly true on a resolve offered by Councilman Abele, requesting the Commissioner to cancel the agreement with the Fore River Ship building Co., in regard to rates paid by it for water, and that hereafter no water be sold to anyone for less than 12 cents per thoucand gallons. The resolution failed to pass.

Councilman Cherrington was the only absent member.

SEWER ORDER

Is Passed Appropriating $30,000 For Extensions

* * * * * * * * * * * * * *

COMMON VICTUALLERS.

The Committee on Licenses reported orders granting licenses as common victuallers.

Councilman Bryant questioned the Committee on Licenses about the qualification of some of the parties granted licenses at Houghs Neck, and moved to have some of them laid on the table. The motion was lost, however, and the orders were adopted.

NEW SEWERS.

The Committee on Ordinances reported correctly engrossed the order appropriating $30,000 for main and lateral sewers.

Councilman Whiton asked of the Board of Health where the proposed sewers were going.

Dr. Burke, secretary of the Board, did not know.

Councilman Whiton then questioned the Commissioners who replied they were going in various parts of the city where the Board of Health had recommended sewers be built.

Mayor Shea said the location of sewers was an engineering problem. To reach certain sections it was sometimes necessary to build sewers where there were no houses.

The order was passed, Councilman Whiton voting no.

The Finance Committee reported on the following matters:

An order appropriating $8.08 to pay the Tax Collector for taxes of J. H. Dinegan sold the city. Adopted.

An order appropriating $14.21 to refund George A. Richards for tax title illegally sold. Adopted.

An amendment and ought to pass on the order appropriating $50 for a fire alarm box on Rogers street. The amendment charged the amount to the Excess and Deficiency fund. Adopted.

Leave to withdraw on the petition of Thomas H. Fahey, for refund of taxes, as the opinion of the City Solicitor was that it would be illegal to do so. Accepted.

The committee on Streets reported an order granting the New England Telephone Co., attachments on Grand View and South Central avenues and Old Colony street. Ordered to a second reading.

EXPRESS LICENSE.

Upon motion of Councilman Ferguson the application of David J. Evans to transport liquor was taken from the table. He then offered an order.

Upon motion of Councilman Bryant it was referred to the Committee on Licenses.

NEW BOX.

Councilman Walsh offered an order for a fire alarm box on the corner of Farnum and Edison streets. Referred to Executive Department.

Several Petitions From Different Parts of City Presented

* * * * * * * * * * * * * *

WATER CONTRACT.

Councilman Abele offered an order that the Commissioner of Public Works be directed to cancel the agreement with the Fore River Ship Building Co., as to Water rates, and that hereafter no agreement for less than 12 cents per 1000 gallons be made.

Councilman Bryant raised the point of order that the order was not in form. The Council could not order the executive. He asked the City Solicitor for his opinion.

City Colicitor McAnarney ruled that the Council could not order the executive.

The chair ruled the order illegal.

Councilman Abele changed the order to a resolve, and that the Commissioner be requested.

Councilman Bryant raised a point of order that the water rates were an executive act. You can not request the Commissioner but may request the Mayor.

In reply to a question, City Solicitor McAnarney said as a matter of law the resolution had no effect, but the Council could pass any resolve it liked.

The chair ruled the point not well taken.

Councilman Abele said, as a matter of fact, the city has been selling water ever since the gentleman from Ward Five was Mayor, for less than cost.

Councilman Bryant—He has no right to say that water is sold less than cost.

President Hobbs said it was a matter of argument.

Councilman Abele—The letter from the Commissioner in answer to an order offered by himself shows the Fore River is paying but 8 cents per 1000 gallons. We should encourage manufacturies but should not sell for less than cost. From figures obtained from the City Auditor the water costs the city 11 1-2 cents. It was not right to charge this company 8 cents and the ordinary consumer 30 cents.

Councilman Bryant hoped the Council would not put itself on record by passing such a foolish thing as this. He has not figured it out right. In the first place the State charges the city 4 1-2 cents per 1000 gallons to which 1 cent is added for maintenance making the cost 5 1-2 cents. The City made $2500 out of the Fore River people for water last year.

Councilman Abele—The gentlemen ignores certain items, such as maintenance, interest, etc. We should get 12 cents to come out square. We gave the Fore River $3,600 last year.

In reply to a question Commissioner Bainbridge said the water costs 4 1-2 cents per 1000 gallons and 1 to which 1 cent is added for maintenance making the cost 5 1-2 cents.The an expense. They are to pay for the plant and not for the water.

Councilman Hogan did not think we should vote to cancel the contract. We should favor large corporations.

Councilman Abele—If we can sell water to the Fore River for 8 cents, we should sell to other consumers for less than 30 cents.

The resolution was then defeated.

FARRINGTON STREET.

Councilman Broughton offered an order for $3,000 for rebuilding Farrington street. Referred to Committee on streets.

$2,000 FOR SIDEWALKS.

Councilman Teasdale offered an order appropriating $2,000 for permanent sidewalks. Referred to Committee on Streets.

UNPAID TAXES.

Councilman Moir offered an order that the City Auditor furnish the Council with a list of all persons who had not paid their real estate tax of 1906, and the amount due on each. Adopted.

MORE LIGHT.

Councilman Moir offered orders for lights on Hollis avenue, Holmes street and the Neponset bridge. Referred to Executive.

REFUND OF TAXES.

Councilman McGilvray presented a petition of Thomas H. Fahey for refund of taxes, and offered an order refunding him taxes amounting to $35, for taxes paid in 1902, 1903, 1904, 1905 and 1906. Referred to Finance Committee.

NO VACATION YET.

Councilman Bryant moved to suspend Rule 1.

Motion lost, 3 voting yes and 10 no.

Adjourned at 9.30 until July 6.

AERIAL LADDER TEST

Proved Fatal to One Man and May Result In Death of Another

Haverhill, Mass., June 16.—The collapse of a ladder on an aerial truck during a fire department test last night caused the instant death of one fireman, Alvano L. Brackley, and the injury of three others, one of whom, Neal Owens, is in a critical condition. The men are call members of the fire department, belonging to Hose company No. 1.

A test of the aerial truck was held in Railroad square, the ladder of the truck being sent up in front of the Gardner building, a large factory structure. After the hose had been connected to the hydrant four members of the hose company were ordered up the ladder. These were Brackley, Owens, Edward Tilton and Charles R. Dunn, Brackley being the topmost man, at a height of sixty-five feet above the pavement.

The ladder suddenly swayed and then broke at a point about six feet above the truss work which supported it at the bottom. All the men fell with the ladder, Brackley and Owens, who were nearest the top, striking heavily on the pavement. Brackley's skull was fractured and Owens is suffering from injuries which may prove fatal. Tilton and Dunn were badly bruised and shaken, Dunn suffering also the loss of some teeth.

Brackley was a carpenter, 42 years of age, and leaves a widow and four children. His daughter, aged 15, and a son, aged 10, were among the crowd of people who witnessed the fall of the ladder. Owens is employed as a leather worker. He has a wife and one child.

Old Timbers Gave Way

York, Me., June 16.—With over 600 persons crowded within the old First Congregational church during the graduating exercises of the York high school, several of the ancient timbers in the rear of the building broke, letting the floor down fully four inches. There was no sign of a panic. The First Congregational church is one of the oldest in the country, and the timbers, rotted with age, gave way under the unusual strain.

Crosby was on his way to work as usual, going over the same route that he had travelled for years.

Costly Blaze on Farm

M'CLOSKEY'S WOES.

St. Louis Nationals Badly In Need of Seasoned Players.

HAS GOOD PITCHERS GALORE

Willing to Trade Any One of Them For Crack Infielder or Outfielder to Steady His Team—Tried to Get Lobert, the Reds' Infielder.

Manager John McCloskey of the St. Louis Nationals is having his troubles. Many of the Mound City critics are prone to deride Mack, all because his "kid" team is not playing first class ball.

The great trouble with McCloskey has been that his infielders are too young. He is suffering from too many "kids." Mack would give some of his seasoned pitchers if he could get a seasoned man of thirty for his infield. Where will he get the infielders? Echo answers, "Where?" But with a couple of clinking pitchers to trade in the National league a man should be able to do some business. Every team, save Chicago, wants pitchers. McCloskey needs a good shortstop to steady his team. But where can he get a shortstop? How many of them are there in the National league? Pittsburg would not part with Wagner under any consideration. Philadelphia would not let Doolin go. Tinker is not obtainable. The others—Dahlen, Bridwell, Hulswitt, Lewis—would not be of any use to strengthen the team or to run an infield. For a shortstop McCloskey is up against it.

McCloskey also needs an outfielder of the Fielder Jones or Fred Clarke sort. Even a man like Davy Jones of the Detroits, with leading qualities, would be a treasure to McCloskey. He could trade a pitcher for such a man. But where is the man in the National league? Arthur Hoffman of the Chicago Cubs would do in either position. McCloskey can afford to give up a great pitcher like Karger for Hoffman. But, then, the Cubs do not need Karger. They do need Hoffman. So what can you do? For another good man he could give up another good pitcher. But where is the man?

With his great pitching staff, with the weakness of pitchers of all other clubs save Chicago, McCloskey might be able to do something in the way of trade. Yet could he get Arthur Devlin for Karger or Joe Tinker for Raymond or for Karger? McGraw's pitching staff at present is very weak. Yet would he trade Devlin for the best pitcher in the league? Hardly. Devlin is all McGraw has to trade. Pittsburg has not much in the pitching line. Yet would Clarke trade Wagner or Leach for the best of McCloskey's twirlers?

Philadelphia's pitching staff is not very strong. But Murray probably would deride the offer of Karger for Sherwood Magee.

The Bostons have not any infielders or outfielders to trade that would help Mack any. Hans Lobert of Cincinnati, whom Mack tried to get exchanged for McGlynn and Beebe, would have strengthened the team, but still Mack should have a veteran to steady the out and in field.

Pitchers are said to be 65 per cent of a baseball team's strength. Eighty per cent of a perfect team would win the championship. If McCloskey could add 25 per cent more strength to his team he would probably have nearly a pennant winner. He cannot even get 15 per cent, which would give him a position in the first division.

In other words, outside of his team pitchers, McCloskey has a weak team, which, it must be admitted, is hard luck.

YALE TO HAVE FINE CREW.

This Year's Boat Will Be Handled by Eight Strong Oarsmen.

Rowing affairs at Yale are now assuming definite shape both as regards the varsity boat and the freshmen squad.

What is practically a varsity eight has been picked, and its form is such that veteran oarsmen predict a stronger crew than the blue has had for several years. The crew is rowing as follows: Stroke, Griswold; 7, Captain Ide; 6, Howe; 5, Dunkle; 4, Hunt; 3, Rice; 2, Peyton; bow, Auchincloss.

Of the crew Griswold stroked and Peyton rowed in the varsity four, and Ide, Howe, Rice and Auchincloss were in last year's eight, while Peyton was a promising substitute.

No chance to gauge the crew's mettle will come until the New London races, as the crews for the steward's races at Philadelphia were composed of substitutes.

The freshmen squad has been weeded to two boats, and the final selection promises the best freshman crew Yale has had in years.

Genuine Redskin Battery.

In Louis Leroy and John Meyers the St. Paul club of the American association has the only genuine Indian battery in organized baseball. Both are college graduates. Leroy is a crafty pitcher. After playing with the Newark club he was with the New York Americans for a time. Manager Griffith sold his release to the St. Paul club. He went through the Carlisle Indian school.

Big Chief Meyers played with the Butte team of the Northwestern league last season. Before that he was with the Harrisburg and Lancaster teams of the Tristate league. Tim Flood, now the manager of the St. Paul club, was a Tristate player in 1906 and, knowing Meyers' ability, signed him for St. Paul.

YOU COULD See This CITY GROW

If Your Dollar Circulated in Quincy.

Why Do Country Boys Flock to Big Cities?

Most small towns are short of young men. As a rule there are plenty of agreeable girls who would not object to matrimony; there are plenty of old people and enough babies to go around. But the boy—oh, where is he?

The boy, the young man, has gone to the city, where he imagines there are opportunities. To him the old home town is dull and stupid. He sees no future for himself there. Both for social and financial considerations he rushes off to the great city. Very frequently he finds that he is lonesomer there than at home—nearly always so; and even more frequently he finds that riches do not grow on ten story walls.

BUT STILL HE GOES TO THE CITY.

In going there the boy simply follows his daddy's dollars. For years his daddy and his mother and his big sister and his Aunt Mary Ann have been mailing their money to the big city for Mail Order bargains.

Result: Home merchants don't thrive, grass grows in the streets, no jobs are to be had, no opening for a new business, and the young man goes to the city because it is a place where people have traded at home and built up their own community and provided opportunities for outsiders as well as for themselves.

IF YOU WANT TO KEEP YOUR BOY AT HOME BUILD UP YOUR TOWN SO THAT HE CAN BUILD UP HIS CAREER AMONG HIS HOME FOLKS.

PLANS WELL MAPPED

Stampede Alone Can Upset the Republican Convention

HINDS TO COACH BURROWS

Expert Parliamentarian Depended Upon to Weather Any Storm--Vice Presidential Situation Continues to Maintain Its Puzzling Position--Administration Wants Iowa Man For the Office--Principal Planks of Platform Given Out--No Evidence of Making Notable Changes, Despite Opposition--Claim of Promoters of Roosevelt Boom

Chicago, June 16.—Chicago is on the tiptoe of anticipation, with final preparations well matured for candidates and platform, except the ever doubtful vice presidency. The full force of the invading army is now here, leaders and followers, delegates and rank and file, marching clubs and glee clubs, bands and drum corps. The last of the state delegations, from the far south, came in last night.

The plans of the leaders are well laid, probably with greater precision than has ever been known before a national convention has met, and unless the unexpected happens, or the spectre of a stampede rises from its grave, the convention of 1908 will establish a record for the methodical execution of well-established plans.

Today will see the convention assembled within the vast Coliseum building, with the first flow of convention eloquence from the veteran senatorial orator, Julius C. Burrows, and the first opportunity to greet the name of Roosevelt, Taft, Knox or some other favorite with an ear-splitting and sight-bewildering demonstration.

In view of the reports that Burrows' speech omits a tribute to President Roosevelt, it is being conjectured that the senator will depart from the prepared text, but whether he does or not, the pent up enthusiasm is sure to find expression in a vociferous demonstration.

With Burrows arrived Asher C. Hinds, the expert parliamentarian of congress, who will stand at Burrows' elbow to weather any storm that may blow. Hinds was with Speaker Reed during the turbulent days of his iron rule, then with Speaker Henderson, and is now with Cannon. His genius is for immediately solving the knottiest parliamentary tangle, and should the unexpected stampede show its head, Hinds will be relied upon to throw against it the full force of precedent and established procedure.

After the preliminary gathering of today there will be a period of suspense for practically two days, during which the committees will meet and the organization be perfected, so that the actual nomination of president is not likely to occur before Thursday.

Vice Presidential Situation

Among the most important state caucuses were those of Ohio, New York, Indiana and Iowa, as each state has some bearing on the perplexing question of the vice presidency. Each of these gatherings brought forth the odd negative conclusion of declaring not to be in favor of any candidate for the vice presidency—Ohio because the Taft leaders do not wish to be in the attitude of dictating, New York because advocacy of Sherman or Low or any other New Yorker might impugn the loyalty to Governor Hughes, Iowa because the state wants Dolliver to remain where he is in the senate and thus avoid a hari-kari of state politics, and Indiana because long distance persuasion has not induced Mr. Fairbanks to change his attitude towards the first and second places on the ticket.

Other state caucuses were equally fruitless in solving the vice presidential mystery, which deepens as the ballot approaches, until it really seems that the prize may be thrown in the arena of the convention for a nerve-racking struggle.

The Dolliver movement experienced varying fortunes. Early yesterday it was reported that the White House favored an Iowan, either Dolliver or Governor Cummins, which sent the Dolliver stock up with a bound. But this was offset by the action of the Ohio managers, who are supposed to reflect Taft's wishes, informally declaring that the Taft forces are scrupulously avoiding the support of any vice presidential candidate. Moreover, Chairman Perkins of the Iowa delegation and Congressman Hepburn of Iowa called on Chairman Herrick of the Ohio forces and told him positively that Dolliver could not and would not be a candidate. This brought the Dolliver stock down again.

The movement for Sherman or some other New York man is similarly checked by the decision of the state not to present a candidate for second place until Governor Hughes' name is eliminated for first place, either by the ballots or by his withdrawal. Congressman Parsons of New York, in a telegram sent to the governor, sought to draw his attention to the opportuneness of a withdrawal, but Hughes declined to alter his attitude in any manner.

Although it seems practically settled that either Fairbanks or Sherman of New York will get second place, the loyal workers and managers of the various other second place candidates are still sticking to their ships.

From Guild to Fairbanks

A break in the Massachusetts delegation from Guild as a candidate for vice president is threatened, led by W. O. Faxon of the Twelfth district and supported by a number of other delegates. Faxon said that he found scarcely any sentiment among the other states in favor of Guild and thought that it would be a mistake to place him before the convention with so little support. The Guild defection is said to be in the interest of Fairbanks.

Senator Lodge headed the Massachusetts delegation in a formal embassy to the Michigan and California headquarters in the interest of Governor Guild's candidacy for the vice presidency. Lodge made a formal request for the support of Michigan for Guild. He and his colleagues received a cordial welcome, but were informed that Michigan had as yet come to no conclusion on the subject of the vice presidency and was not in a position at this time to commit herself. Proceeding then to the California headquarters, Lodge made a similar request in behalf of the Massachusetts favorite son, but again met with a courteous rebuff.

Administration Planks

The five most important planks of the Republican platform, formulated by President Roosevelt and Secretary Taft and drafted by Wade H. Ellis, are hereby given. They are the planks on trusts, anti-injunction, railroad rate, tariff revision and currency. The trust plank is as follows:

"The Republican party passed the Sherman anti-trust law over Democratic opposition and enforced it after Democratic dereliction. It has been a wholesome instrument for good in the hands of a wise and fearless administration. But experience has shown that its effectiveness can be strengthened and its real objects better attained by such amendments as will give to the federal government greater supervision and control over and secure greater publicity in the management of that class of interstate corporations having power and opportunity to effect monopolies, and at the same time will not interfere with the existence of associations among business men, farmers and wage earners so long as their conduct or operation results in a positive benefit to the public."

The currency plank contains this language:

"The Republican party approves the Aldrich-Vreeland currency bill, but only as an emergency measure. We declare for a thorough and new system of currency laws that will be in accord with the needs of the times, and which will be more adaptable to the demands of business and more elastic in its character as a circulating medium."

Plank Regarding Railroads

The exact text of the plank of the platform approved by President Roosevelt and Secretary Taft relating to railroads is as follows:

"We approve the enactment of a railroad rate law and a vigorous enforcement of the present administration of the statutes against rebates and discrimination, as a result of which the advantages formerly possessed by the large over the small shipper have substantially disappeared. In his connection we commend the appropriation of $350,000 by the present congress in order to enable the interstate commerce commission to thoroughly investigate and give publicity to the accounts of railroads.

"We believe, however, that the interstate commerce law should be further amended so as to give railroads the right to make and publish traffic agreements, subject to the approval of the commission, but maintaining always the principle of competition between naturally competing lines and avoiding the common control of such lines by any means whatsoever; and we specially favor the enactment of such legislation as will provide for federal restriction against the over-issue of stocks and bonds by interstate carriers."

Tariff and Anti-Injunction

More or less serious inaccuracy has characterized the reputed textual publications of the plank relating to the tariff. The exact text of that plank, as well as of the plank concerning anti-injunction legislation, follows:

"The Republican party declares unequivocally for a revision of the tariff by a special session of congress immediately following the inauguration of the next president, and commends the steps already taken to this end in the work assigned to the appropriate committees of the two houses which are now investigating the operation and effect of existing schedules.

"In all tariff legislation the principle of protection is best maintained by the imposition of such duties as will equal the difference between the cost of production at home and abroad, together with a reasonable profit to American industries, and the benefits that follow are best secured by the establishment of maximum and minimum rates which shall be applied automatically to the trade of other countries in accordance with their treatment of our trade. The minimum should represent the normal measure of protection required for the benefit of our own industries.

"The aim and purpose of the Republican policy is not only to preserve, without excessive duties, that security against foreign competition to which American manufacturers, farmers and producers are entitled, but also to maintain the high standard of living of the wage earners of this country, who are the most direct beneficiaries of the protective system.

"Between the United States and the Philippines we believe in a free interchange of products, with such limitations as to sugar and tobacco as will avoid injury to domestic interests.

"We declare for such an amendment of the statutes of procedure in the federal courts with respect to the use of the writ of injunction as will on the one hand prevent the summary issue of such orders without proper consideration, and on the other will preserve undiminished the power of the courts to enforce their process, to the end that justice may be done at all times and to all parties."

Reconstructing the Platform

Speaker Cannon remained in Chicago all day, and, although keeping away from the noisy centers of convention enthusiasm, he took a most active part in the conferences on the platform. His unexpected advent here for the express purpose of having a voice in the document which may shape future legislation had led to renewed consideration of some of the details of planks, notably those on injunction and on trusts. The speaker was closeted with Senator Hopkins, prospective chairman of the platform committee, for over an hour, and then Hopkins was closeted with Wade Ellis, custodian of the platform, and Senator Long of Kansas and Frank B. Kellogg of Minnesota, the only ones to whom copies have been entrusted.

Mr. Cannon's friends believe the injunction and trust planks will be modified, if not eliminated, but the custodian of the draft has given no evidence of making any notable changes. The feature of the trust plank which is said to have attracted the speaker's solicitude is one in which inferentially would except certain organizations, including labor and farming organizations, from the operation of the law, although such exemptions in a general law are said to have been pronounced unconstitutional by the supreme court of Illinois some fifteen years ago.

Says Roosevelt Boom is Growing

The promoters of the "Roosevelt boom" movement now claim that they have secured the services of a delegate "from a state other than Alabama that will be reached early in the roll-call" to present the president's name to the convention. Former Representative Phillips of Newcastle, Pa., declares that Roosevelt's name unquestionably will be sprung in the convention, but he declines to give the delegate's name or the state which he represents in part. These facts, he says, will remain secrets until the candidates are placed in nomination.

The Roosevelt boomers are counting on a stampede of Taft delegates to the president if they can get the latter's name before the convention in a forceful manner. The opinion is expressed by Phillips that the boom which he is engineering for Roosevelt is growing.

Just after the caucus of the Massachusetts delegates had adjourned yesterday a boy came to the door with a bundle of pamphlets. On the outside they bore a picture of President Roosevelt and a significant line, "He can break the solid south."

"What shall I do with these?" asked the doorkeeper. "Give 'em away?"

"Not on your life!" said the messenger. "There's one for each delegate, and you want to be sure they get them."

On the border of each pamphlet there was the name of one of the Massachusetts delegates. The messenger refused to tell where he came from, but it was evident from the number of other bundles of the pamphlets he had that someone is making a thorough attempt to stampede the convention.

Herrick May Succeed New

The name of ex-Governor Herrick of Ohio is the latest one to be brought forth for chairman of the national committee to manage the coming campaign. It has been received with much favor, owing to Herrick's close relationship with Taft. However, it is understood that the national committee will defer the selection of a chairman until there is opportunity to confer in person with the nominee.

If given an opportunity to do so, the committee friends of Chairman New will urge his re-election as chairman. They realize that the selection must lie with the nominee of the convention, and so far New has refused to permit them to present his claims.

DOLLIVER OR CUMMINS

Choice of the Administration For Taft's Running Mate

Washington, June 16.—The shift of the administration to the candidacy of either Senator Dolliver of Iowa or Governor Cummins of that state for the nomination for the vice presidency is regarded as the outcome of developments during the last couple of days which have indicated that Representative Sherman of New York would probably get the support of that state for second place on the ticket. It is believed that if Mr. Cortelyou had developed strength in New York state sufficient to get the support of the delegation, the announcement made in favor of Dolliver and Cummins would not have been forthcoming.

Sherman is regarded by the administration as rather too much of a conservative to take second place on the ticket, and also is looked upon as lacking ability to carry on a whirlwind campaign which the vice presidential nominee will probably be expected to do. There are many in favor of Taft remaining at his home in Ohio to receive delegations and to perhaps make short speeches of welcome to them.

There are many dangers awaiting the presidential nominee as a result of a momentary mistake of judgment in making long political speeches which would be a part of a general stumping campaign. For that reason many of those who are interested in Taft's candidacy will not wish to see him make a tour of the country.

But in the case of the vice presidential nominee just the opposite view prevails. Either Dolliver or Cummins is looked upon as an ideal campaigner. They are both advanced in political views and would readily, it is declared, meet the approval of the great west and Pacific coast states. They are both ready talkers and are familiar with what are known as the Roosevelt policies, both of them having been particularly energetic in co-operating in carrying them out. It is believed that on the stump either of them would be able to fully satisfy the campaign managers by calling forth enthusiasm for the Republican ticket. At least, such may authoritatively be stated to be the administration view.

Cummins' Wishes Not Known

Des Moines, June 16.—Iowa Populists, in state convention, endorsed the record of Governor Cummins. The resolutions adopted include a plan that is strong in praise of Cummins and his successful fight for the 2-cent fare and other legislation in Iowa, and it calls on the people of the state to join in support of him.

Pops Endorse Cummins

Des Moines, June 16.—Governor Cummins could not be seen in regard to the dispatch from Chicago saying that he was the choice of the president and Secretary Taft for second place on the ticket in case Dolliver did not accept. It is believed by his friends, however, that he may accept the nomination if tendered him.

Wilson as Bryan's Mate

Washington, June 16.—William J. Bryan looks with favor on the idea of having President Woodrow Wilson of Princeton named for vice president on the Democratic ticket. This is the talk here emanating from friends of Bryan. So far as known, Wilson and his friends have not been consulted. Bryan looks on Wilson as a tariff expert who would be of strength to the ticket through speeches he would make on that subject, and also as a man whom eastern Democrats would like.

President After Mad Dogs

Washington, June 16.—President Roosevelt has taken a hand in the movement to check the epidemic of rabies in Washington. This epidemic has become serious. President Roosevelt has called on the district commissioners to advise him what precautionary measures have been taken. Dr. Melvin of the bureau of animal industry says there is but one solution—muzzling of all licensed dogs and putting unlicensed ones to death. President Roosevelt may direct the commissioners to issue a muzzling order.

Bids For Army Supplies

New York, June 16.—Bids for $1,500,000 worth of supplies for the United States army were opened at the army building here. The successful bidders will supply the army with what is probably the largest quantity of supplies ever purchased by it at one time under peace conditions. Practically everything that army men need in the way of clothing and supplies is to be purchased.

Louisiana Will Remain "Wet"

Baton Rouge, La., June 16.—Louisiana will not become a prohibition state during the term of the present assembly. This was decided by the house of representatives when that body indefinitely postponed consideration of the bill providing for a referendum on state-wide prohibition. The action of the house means complete defeat for the bill in both branches of the assembly.

Serious Flood Conditions

Kansas City, June 16.—Flood conditions are more serious in Kansas City now than at any time since the present rise of the Kaw and Missouri rivers began. Armourdale and the west bottoms are a vast lake. The Union station is still above the flood level, although the railroad tracks on the west approach of the station are under water.

Stories of Uprising Discredited

Havana, June 16.—The publication in the Havana papers of dispatches from New York and Mexico to the effect that preparations are being made for an insurrection in Cuba excite much comment, but little credence is given to the reports. The palace is without any information that would indicate an uprising of any kind.

Buildings Swept Into River

Shreveport, La., June 16.—The levee built at a great expense a few years ago at Taylortown gave way, flooding a large section of rich farming country and ruining all growing crops. It is believed that all laborers on the levee escaped. Several buildings have been swept into the river.

Pflug to Retire From Politics

New York, June 16.—State Senator Pflug of Kings county, one of the Democratic senators who voted against the anti-race track gambling bill, has forwarded his resignation as district leader to Senator McCarren and stated his determination to give up politics.

Fourth of July Parade with Prizes

July Fourth will be properly observed in Atlantic this year and another meeting for the formation of plans was held in the engine house on Monday night.

The parade will be open to all who wish to feature and competent judges will award suitable prizes.

It might be added that everything is being done for the amusement of the young people and a timely warning ought to be given to the bonfire enthusiasts to keep their hands within the limit of the resident's generosity. One year a man on Henry street had ashes dumped over his lawn and his ash barrel stolen; another builder had stakes for his new house quietly removed. This spirit tempers the good nature of those who otherwise would be willing to give toward the fun. Let the boys take what is given them for their bonfire and let the resident's property alone.

The total percentage will be divided by the number of starts, and to be eligible to championship a yacht must start in at least five races.

"Capt." Foster Puts on Steam And Passes "Bill" Field

"Capt." Foster says he has a double-headed as well as "Bill" Field, and he will show the Wollaston boy how to sail a Motor Boat. He is a member of the Board of Trade as well as the Quincy Yacht club, and it may be these two organizations against the Wollaston and Squantum Yacht Clubs.

But the Houghs Neck candidates are not to be pushed aside so easily, and it is said they will show their hand again on Thursday. Several trial orders for the Daily Ledger have been signed, but have not been forwarded to the Contest Editor.

Several candidates make gains today by the use of coupons cut from the Daily Ledger. Those who place trial orders get these coupons in addition to the 100 votes. No votes can be transferred from one candidate to another, as that would be unfair.

Blanks for placing trial orders for the Daily Ledger may be obtained at the office of publication, and will be mailed upon request. Each trial order gives a credit of 100 votes to your favorite candidate.

The standing of the candidates will be printed each day, all votes received previous to 9 A. M. being counted that day.

It is not necessary that candidates shall be members of a yacht club or any other club. Neither is the contest limited to men. Women as well as men may enter.

The prizes offered are valuable ones, there being others besides the motor boat which is offered as a first prize.

The standing today at 9 A. M. was:

Thayer Academy Alumni Association

The biennial meeting of the Alumni Association was held at Thayer Academy, Saturday afternoon and evening, June 13. Prof. and Mrs. Charles A. Pitkin, Mrs. William Gallagher, Prof. J. B. Sewell and Mr. and Mrs. Asa P. French received the graduates upon the lawn in front of the girls' gymnasium. Following the reception salads, ice cream, sherbet, cake and coffee were served under the trees.

Hon. Asa P. French, as president, presided over the business meeting, held in the gymnasium, in a most interesting manner. The committee on the contemplated Sewell scholarship reported good progress, over one thousand dollars being pledged. Miss Thompson spoke delightfully of her travels in Greece. Miss Annie Ellis, class 1901 and Miss Helen Drinkwater 1905, gave solos and a duet accompanied by Mrs. J. H. Hunt.

The following officers were elected:

President, Everett S. Litchfield.

Vice President, Miss Emma L. French.

Secretary, Herbert L. French.

Treasurer, William W. Gallagher.

Executive committee, the above named and Miss Helen Bates, Mrs. C. Frederick Howe and Mr. George E. Sampson.

Edison Park Assault Case

Arthur C. and Kenneth C. Hale of Edison Park were summoned into court today by Inspector McKay for assault on Albert G. Graff.

The assault is alleged to have taken place last Saturday and was brought about by the attentions of Graff to the mother of the Hale boys.

Monday, according to the story told in court this morning, Graff and Mrs. Hale journeyed to Providence and were married.

Satisfaction was acknowledged in court and the case dismissed.

West Quincy Train Service

West Quincy people do not like the new N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. timetable. The theatre train which formerly left West Quincy at 7.16 P. M. now leaves at 7.21, arriving in Boston at 7.50, giving but ten minutes to reach theatres.

West Quincy people who formerly took the 10.27 train from Boston for Quincy, arriving in time to catch the last street car for West Quincy, find the new 10.40 train too late to connect with the West Quincy car.

Another thing West Quincy people would like is a late street car for West Quincy leaving City Square after the arrival of the last train from Boston at 11.49.

Houghs Neck By the Seaside

The building fund of the Houghs Neck Associates was increased considerably Monday night by the benefit entertainment held at the Palms on Sea street. Two performances were given and at each the big play house was packed. The program included moving pictures and illustrated songs.

After the show a business meeting was called. Henry W. French, chairman of the meeting, reported that the committee on street lights would make their report at the next regular meeting.

A motion was made giving the secretary a monthly salary.

A. F. Baird chairman of the ways and means committee said: "The ways and means committee is the most important committee the Associates have. The object of that committee is to raise funds for a permanent home. At present we have no regular place of meeting. We have to depend on the charity of the business people for a meeting place. I think that is a shame that an association of nearly 200 members has no meeting place. Mr. Cook without anyone asking him, offered the use of his theatre free gratis for tonight. By his kindness we have raised a good sum. Harry S. Brown has offered us the free use of his large summer ball room on June 29. This offer includes lights, music and attendants. Now I want every member to be at the dance that night and want them to bring their friends. Every nickel taken in at the door means a nickel more towards the fund.

I will fight every effort made to take away any money from this fund unless to be used for the purpose of getting more for this fund. There are only ten members on the ways and means committee. I don't think that is enough. At the next meeting of this association I want fifty members to volunteer to help us. Men that are willing to devote their time. The committee hold meetings Monday and Wednesday nights each week in Brown's bowling alleys. If any one has any suggestion that will help us to get money, the committee will be glad to listen to them. I expect to raise at least $500 by the first of October.

Captain O. G. Fosdick made a motion that a rising vote of thanks be extended to Charles Cook for his kindness to the associates.

The meeting was adjourned to June 25.

There will be dancing Tuesday evening, afternoon and evening June 17 and every night through the summer at Pandora Hall, Winchester's orchestra, J. A. Graham manager.

PLUNGED FROM PIER

Brake on Swiftly Moving Automobile Failed to Work

MACHINE TURNED TURTLE

Carried Four Persons to Bottom of River and to Death--Chaffeur Arrested After Swimming to Safety--One Life Saved by Jumping

New York, June 16.—Four persons were drowned last night when an automobile carrying a pleasure party of six, becoming unmanageable, shot at wild speed down West Fifty-Sixth street and catapulted from an open pier into the North river. The automobile turned over in its plunge from the pier and held its four victims fast in their seats.

The dead are Adeline Berdon, aged 19; Mrs. Rose Coleman, 23; John Coleman, 27, and Virginia Knight, 8 years old.

John Bauer, the chauffeur, was carried into the river by the automobile, but managed to free himself and swim to safety. John Nolan, one of the party, leaped from the machine just as it was tearing wildly for the end of the dock. Bauer was taken into custody by the police.

After taking his employer home last night Bauer decided to invite a few friends for a pleasure ride. With the party Bauer sent the machine down Fifty-Sixth street at fair speed, intending to run out on the dock and stop. The brake failed to work and the machine began to skid. Down on the dock it flew, and Nolan jumped from the machine just as it went over the end of the pier.

The four victims were dragged helplessly down by the overturned machine, and though two young men who were standing on the dock at the time made repeated efforts to rescue the drowning persons by diving for them, they were unable to do so. The body of Mrs. Coleman was recovered shortly before midnight.

After swimming to the pier Bauer went to the relatives of the four drowned persons and notified them of the accident. He then surrendered himself to the police. When the news of the accident spread through the neighborhood a crowd of more than 4000 persons gathered at the pier, and the police reserves had to be called to drive them back.

Later one of the divers brought the body of Miss Berdon to the surface and reported that there was no one else in the auto. An anchor chain was attached to the machine, which was hoisted to the dock. The body of Coleman was found wedged under the seat of the tonneau, but the body of the Knight girl was not recovered.

Carried Off on Liner

New York, June 16.—A wireless message from Captain Roberts of the steamer New York, which left here Saturday for Southampton, announces that Miss Marion R. Hilford is aboard without funds or change of clothing. Officials on the American line pier are uncertain as to whether Miss Hilford purposely secreted herself aboard or was accidentally carried off while seeing friends away. She cannot possibly get back before July 1.

Uniform Health Regulations

New York, June 16.—An important conference was held at Ellis island to arrange a plan whereby a uniform system of disease diagnosis will be put into operation, thus making it impossible for an immigrant who has failed to enter at any port to be entered elsewhere after an examination. Many times an immigrant has entered by way of Montreal, Boston and other ports, after having failed to enter at New York.

Admits Killi g His Wife

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 16.—Edward W. Schirmann, who is charged with killing his wife in Danbury, Conn., was arrested by the Danbury authorities in Stormville. Schirmann, according to the police, confessed that he killed the woman and said that he was jealous of her. He expressed regret that he had not kept his revolver and declared that if he had it now he would kill himself.

Mimic War Is On

New York, June 16.—Six thousand regulars and National Guardsmen are on duty in the forts of New York harbor preparing a naval attack from either the sea or sound approaches to New York. The forts are closed to visitors and the men are being drilled in the handling of the guns and in tactics for coast defense work that are kept as secret as possible.

Shooter Under Heavy Bail

Boston, June 16.—Bail was fixed at $45,000 by Judge Clary in the case of Gaetano Natoli, charged with assault with a loaded revolver with intent to kill three men in Maverick square, and the hearing was put over until next Saturday. Natoli had pleaded not guilty to the charge.

Saving the Company.

By CARLETON HAZZARD.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

After a long line of incompetent stenographers Bradley congratulated himself when Alice Fuller took her place at the typewriter desk, and as though by magic the crooked places were made straight.

So quietly did the girl slip into the routine of the office and so unostentatiously did she accomplish results that Arthur Bradley did not realize all that she was doing. He had only the pleasant feeling that at last the office was running straight, and, manlike, he took the credit to himself.

It had been a struggle to get the office going at all, for the firm was in opposition to the trust, and everything possible was done to break up the newly established branch office.

More than once Bradley had narrowly escaped some trap laid for him, but for every blow struck at him he gave back as good. The letters from the home office were encouraging and intimated that if he would round out the first year there would be an increase of salary as well as the present of a block of stock.

The biggest feather in his cap was when the home office turned over to him the task of securing a contract for some $2,000,000 worth of material.

"Such big contracts are usually handled from the home office," he explained to Alice Fuller as he gave her the letter with instructions to place it in the private letter file in the safe. "If they turn this matter over to me it is a sign that they have faith in my judgment. It's going to be a ticklish matter to figure on all that material at a price that will be low enough to capture the contract and still give us as much of a profit as possible."

"They probably realize that you are close to the contract, and they know that they can trust you," answered Alice. "It shows that this branch is becoming important."

She went quietly about her work, but there was a happy light in her eyes, for she was as much pleased at this sign of confidence as was Bradley himself.

Alice was not a girl of impulses, but she had come to have more than a liking for Bradley, and she took a pride in his success.

The week that followed was a busy one. Bradley figured far into the night on the problems of cost, and each morning he gave to Alice the results of his work, to be tabulated on the machine and filed in the safe until the figures should be complete. It was weary work with all the specifications and blanks, but at last the estimate was complete, and Bradley took it on to New York in person for the approval of the home office.

He was jubilant on his return. The president of the company had congratulated him on the excellence of his work and had hinted that the new London office might be opened soon with Bradley in charge.

But the jubilation was short lived, for two days later a long letter came from the New York office instructing the branch to alter the estimates in accordance with a set of figures some 10 per cent in advance of the original estimate.

"Here's a job for you," growled Bradley as he took the paper to Alice's desk. "I'll have to do as the home office says, but it's throwing away the contract and my chance of promotion."

"Are you certain that it is the order of the New York office?" asked Alice as she took up the sheets. "You know that this contract will mean a great deal to the trust if they are able to take it away from us. It means a great deal more to us to retain it."

"That's just it," complained Bradley. "They know that if we lose this contract we lose our fight for an independent existence and shall have to sell out to the trust at their own price. If we get it, it will mean that we can beat them and hold our own. Yet they raise my figures."

"And it would be worth a great effort to beat us," went on Alice. "Suppose that the trust people had some one planted in the home office who could copy the figures and send them to the trust officers. Suppose, too, that they supplied the people with our letter heads and envelopes. We would be unsuspicious and change the bid in accordance with instructions, only to find out that we had been duped after the bids had been opened and the contract awarded to the trust. I think you will find that they have bid only slightly lower than this, but much higher than your original figures."

"That's possible," admitted Bradley. "I'll wire the home office and find out."

"And warn the traitor in the office that his plans have been discovered?" reminded Alice. "They will then bid below your figures and get the contract anyway. It would be best to hold on and take chances by yourself. It will be the only way to hold the contract."

"If I only could be sure," exclaimed Bradley. "But I can't act on mere guesswork."

"This is something more than guesswork," insisted Alice. "In the first place, this letter is mailed from the Madison square station. That is in the building in which the trust has its main office. Our letters all come from the Wall street station, four or five miles away and nearest our office. They are using the same make of typewriter President Hammond's stenographer uses, but it is not the same machine. On the letters from our office there is a piece broken from the cross of every 't.'"

"I think you are right!" cried Bradley as he compared two letters. "We'll pop in the original estimate, and when they come to open the bids out our trust friends will have a dozen fits."

"But answer this letter and say that changes have been made in the bid in accordance with instructions and that the bid has been submitted," directed Alice. "Then the traitor will not become alarmed and notify the trust to put in the lower bid."

"You're the general," cried Bradley admiringly. "I am only the second in command until this is straightened out. Do just as you please."

That evening a letter went to the home office reporting that the changes had been made as directed, but Bradley personally took to the office of the contracting company the original bid.

Two days later a long telegram arrived from the head office demanding the explanation of the changes to which Bradley made reference. It was Alice who wrote the telegram in reply, explaining what those changes were, and who wrote the second message declaring it to be impossible to alter the bid to the old figures, as they directed by wire.

The next morning President Hammond stamped into the office shortly after Bradley had come in.

"I came out on the fast train to see what it all means," he cried. "You have ruined the company by letting yourself be fooled in this fashion."

For reply Bradley brought out the letter he had received. It startled Hammond, for beyond question it was on the paper of the company and not on a cheap imitation. He sighed as he laid it down.

"I suppose that you cannot be blamed," he said dispiritedly, "but it means that the company is smashed by a trick of the trust."

"Not yet," declared Bradley, with a laugh. "Miss Fuller's quick eyes saw through the trick. We took a chance and put in the original bid. I think you will find that we are the lowest bidders, for the trust felt safe in keeping up their bid."

"If we win, you can have the London office next month," declared Hammond.

"Excuse me a moment," said Bradley as he slipped out to the outer office.

"It's a go," he announced beamingly. "Miss Fuller says that she will come—as Mrs. Bradley."

"Rather sudden?" asked Hammond.

"It's sudden only in the recent realization that I have loved her ever since she came into the office," explained Bradley. "It took this crisis to force the fact home."

Alice looked in at the doorway.

"The Wallington people telephone that your estimate has won the contract," she reported demurely, and to her great embarrassment Bradley kissed her under the approving eyes of the president of the company.

"We've tricked the tricky trust," he cried, "and we're going to London on our honeymoon."

"On my yacht," added the president. "We can't do too much for the girl whose clever brain saved the company. You're a lucky man, Bradley."

"Don't I know it?" cried Bradley. "I knew it first."

Lungs and Long Life.

One of the most remarkable cases of longevity on record was that of an Englishman born in 1483, whose delicate appearance made all the doctors give him up when he was in the cradle. His chest was so narrow, says the report, that he seemed to have difficulty in breathing. Well, this young moribund, condemned by the doctors to die in short order, died in 1651 at the age of 169. He saw the reign of ten kings. Secundi Hango, consul of Venice at Smyrna, measured only fifty-seven centimeters around the chest, and one of his lungs was diseased. Nevertheless he lived to the age of 115 years. He was married five times and had forty-nine children. When he was 100 years old he got his wisdom teeth. When he was 110 his hair turned black again. At 112 his eyebrows and his beard turned black.

Lucky In One Way.

"The late Valerian Gribayedoff," said a Chicago art editor, "was one of the first American newspaper sketch artists. On that account he leaves behind him a famous name. As Gribayedoff said himself the last time I visited him in Paris, his fame was due not to his great artistic skill, but to his luck in coming first. And he added, with a laugh, that it was always lucky to come early and avoid the rush, instancing the case of a restaurant on the Boule Mich, in the Latin quarter, where a young poet had a large tureen of soup spilled over his coat one evening. The waiter, in response to the savage outcries of the poet, said good naturedly:

"'Oh, well, you needn't alarm yourself, sir. There's no harm done. Our soup never stains after half past 7.'"

All In Red.

The playwrights over their supper of lobster boasted. "I," said the greatest of them, with a complacent glance at the two pure pearls in his shirt front, "decree the color of every actress' frock."

"That is carrying the regard for detail too far," said a playwright who had failed.

"Not a bit of it," said the other. "If I didn't decide on the color of the dresses the stage manager would. Why, that must always be done. Otherwise, in their overmastering desire to draw all eyes to themselves, every actress would wear bright red. In my first play the frocks were forgotten in the general excitement, and at the first dress rehearsal all six actresses came on in the discovery scene in scarlet gowns."—New York Press.

COST OF THE FOURTH

Heavy Price We Pay In Celebrating Independence Day.

MANY KILLED AND INJURED.

Mrs. Isaac L. Rice Tells What the Noisy Fourth Cost In Five Years In Life and Human Usefulness—Believes Observance of Nation's Birthday Possible Without Danger or Noise.

Mrs. Isaac L. Rice, leader of the anti-noise crusade in New York city, who makes out a strong case against "our barbarous Fourth" in her destructive and constructive discussion of the national holiday's abuse and possibilities in the Century Magazine for June, says:

"The fitting celebration of Independence day is a question on which patriotic Americans are separated into two widely divergent parties, one claiming that it ought to be observed as noisily as possible, the other believing that our national birthday is too glorious an occasion to be marred by din and disorder. Of course we know that even among those who favor a boisterous observance there are many who cannot tolerate it themselves and escape to the country in order to avoid the tortures of the 'awful Fourth,' just as we know that a large proportion of the noise makers, including the small boy and the big boy, too, is heedless, if not ignorant, of all that our holiday stands for and thinks of it only as a time when clamor may reign unrestrained.

"The figures which indicate the price that we pay for each of our yearly celebrations are so appalling that one would suppose a knowledge of them would be the most powerful deterrent to our annual massacre. This, unfortunately, is not the case. For the past five years the Journal of the American Medical Association has endeavored to collect statistics setting forth what the celebration of the Fourth costs in life and human usefulness, and, although these are admittedly incomplete—compiled as they are almost entirely from newspaper reports instead of from records of hospitals, dispensaries and physicians—they form the gravest possible arraignment of the recklessness which is willing to pay such a price for a 'olly day.' They show that during the celebration of five national birthdays, from 1903 to 1907 inclusive, 1,153 persons were killed and 22,520 were injured! Of the injured, 80 suffered total and 389 partial blindness, 380 persons lost arms, legs or hands, and 1,670 lost one or more fingers. But these figures, startling as they are, convey only a faint idea of the suffering, both physical and mental, which went to swell the total cost of these five holidays. In this we must also include the weeks and often months of anguish of the injured, the suspense of entire families while the fate of some loved one hung in the balance, the horror of a future of sightless years, the pinching poverty now the lot of many because of the death or maiming of the breadwinner."

Mrs. Rice follows her condemnation of present deadly conditions with a plea and suggestions for a wiser celebration of our country's national birthday.

"I sincerely believe," she says, "that our national birthday can be observed with heartfelt patriotic rejoicing and yet without the slightest danger to life or limb, without any nerve racking noise or display of hoodlumism and without any of the extravagant outlay which has characterized our former celebrations. Flags can float, national music be played and sung in places now given over solely to the deafening din of cannon firecrackers, the Declaration of Independence be read at all of our public buildings, where inspiring addresses may also be made and street displays, such as processions with floats, beautiful as well as instructive, furnish delightful object lessons of the greatest events in our history. Then, at night, we may have illuminations, both private and municipal, and displays of fireworks in open places, where the exhibitions can be conducted by experienced men, thus avoiding all danger of the shocking accidents which now sadden our celebration.

"Let us on this day forget the noise of battle and the passions of international strife and remember only the wonderful spirit of sacrifice and patriotism and brotherhood which animated our Revolutionary heroes. Let us who know what the day means endeavor to make it both memorable and illuminating to those who do not by opening the hearts of the children, of the poor and ignorant, of the distressed and disheartened alien within our gates, to at least a partial significance of what we honor in our glorious festival.

"Let us enter personally into the work, giving tender endeavor as well as means, to the task of making the occasion the happiest of all the year to the ignorant and the wretched. Let us give them a day of liberty in the country or in the parks, where they will see our beautiful flag floating everywhere about them and where their untrained ears will become accustomed to the ringing rhythm of our national melodies. Let us give them mementos of the Fourth such as flags and pictures of our heroes and of those whom we love as well as honor. There let them listen to the story of the birth of our republic and have it told simply and, if necessary, in their own tongues, so that all can feel how great were those who made the country free and how wonderful is the boon of liberty now extended to the oppressed of other countries."

CARE OF METAL PIECES.

How to Clean Brasses, Bronzes and Wrought Iron.

To clean brasses quickly and economically, rub them well with vinegar and salt or oxalic acid and salt. Wash immediately after the rubbing, and polish with tripoli and sweet oil. Unless the acid is washed off the thing will tarnish so quickly that its last estate will be worse than its first. Copper kettles and saucepans, brass and irons, fenders, candlesticks and trays are best cleaned with vinegar and salt. Cooking vessels in constant use need only to be well washed afterward. Things for show, even pots and pans, need the oil polishing, which gives a deep rich yellow luster, good for six months.

Oxalic acid and salt is the thing for furniture brasses. If it touches the wood around it, it only improves the tone. Wipe the brasses well with a wet cloth, and polish thoroughly with oil and tripoli. Sometimes powdered rottenstone does better than tripoli. Rub after using either with a dry cloth or leather until there is no trace of oil. No matter what sort of brass is to be cleaned, it must first be freed completely from grease, caked dirt and grime. Wash with strong ammonia suds, rinse and dry before beginning with the acid and salt.

The best treatment for wrought iron or wrought steel, which both have a knack of growing gray and lusterless, is to first wash it very clean with a stiff brush and ammonia soapsuds, rinse well, dry—by heat if possible—then oil plentifully with sweet oil, and dust thickly with powdered quicklime. Let the lime stay on two days, then brush it off with a clean very stiff brush. Polish with a softer brush and rub with cloths until the luster comes out. This ought to give the color of iron in daily use, which is nearly the most beautiful in the whole range of metals. By leaving the lime on iron and steel may be kept from rust almost indefinitely.

Before wetting any sort of bric-a-brac, and especially bronzes, remove all the dust possible. The less dust water finds about fine lines and crannies the less it can leave there. After dusting wash well in strong white soapsuds and ammonia, rinse clean, polish with just a suspicion of oil and rottenstone, and rub off afterward every trace of the oil. Never let acid touch a bronze surface unless one wishes to eat and pit it for antique effects.

How to Make Short Cakes.

Put a scant two pounds of butter in a basin, warm by setting the saucepan in hot water, then beat to a cream with a wooden spoon. Add slowly twenty ounces sifted crushed loaf sugar, stirring well to obtain a white appearance. Add a little lemon peel cut fine, a spoonful or two of milk and stir in flour to make a short paste, taking care not to have it too stiff. Divide into pieces (this quantity will make about sixteen) and work out each piece with the hand into flat, round cakes about a quarter of an inch in thickness and as nearly as possible the same size. Pinch the edges all around with the finger and thumb. Cut a small round out of the center, sprinkle a few carraway comfits on top and bake on flat tins covered with paper from three-quarters of an hour to an hour. They should be a pale golden color when done. The pieces will need to be parted again with a knife, as they join in the baking.

How to Destroy Pests on Plants.

The aphis and other insect pests which are so troublesome on pot plants can be put to utter rout by the following simple plan, says Suburban Life: Place the infested plants in any large wooden or tin box that is provided with a tight fitting lid, as, for instance, a common tin wash boiler. Put a live coal or two on a flower pot saucer in the bottom of the box and sprinkle some finely cut tobacco on the coals. Shut the lid quickly and securely, so as to retain all the fumes of the burning tobacco. Leave plants for fifteen minutes, and every insect will be dead. Care must be taken not to burn too much tobacco or the heat will injure the plants.

How to Make Shampoo Soap.

Put a teacupful of water into a saucepan, and into this cut up an inch cube of castile soap. Place on the stove and let simmer, not boil, for an hour. Remove from the fire, add one tablespoonful of ammonia and set away until cooled and jellied. Take the white of one egg, beat stiffly and whip into the soap jelly. Use at once if desired. It will keep nicely in a cool place. This leaves the hair soft and fluffy and not sticky, as is usual with hard water.

How to Make a Cheap Filter.

The most impure water may be purified by filtering through charcoal. Take a large flowerpot, put a piece of sponge or clean moss over the hole in the bottom and fill three-quarters full of equal parts clean sand and charcoal. Over this lay a linen cloth large enough to hang over sides of the pot. Pour the water into the cloth, and it will come out pure.

How to Make Eyebrows Grow.

Pure alcohol rubbed into the eyebrows with the finger tips is an excellent tonic. A French tonic for stimulating the eyebrows which has excellent effects is made of ten grains of red vaseline and ten centigrams of boric acid.

How to Freshen a Veil.

If the stiffness is out of your veil and it is still good wrap it around a pasteboard roll, stretching full width, and steam. Let it dry on the roll, and it will be good as new.

Olympic Laurels.

The Great Games In the Stadium at London In July—Commemoration Medals—American Team and Its Prospects.

IN the athletic world no event can compare in interest this year with the Olympic games which are to be held in London in July. From nearly all the countries of the globe amateurs representing the muscle and endurance and skill of their respective nations will gather at the British capital to battle for the world supremacy in the way the Greeks did in the days of their pristine vigor. When the Olympic games were established, some hundreds of years before the Christian era, the Greeks thought themselves the only people worth taking into consideration and other nations only "barbarians." Since that time a good many other nations have come to count for something, but the Greeks are still in many respects a great nation, as those who attended the Olympic games held at Athens in 1906 discovered.

The United States will send a splendid team to contest with the other athletes in the various events of this year's games. It will be made up largely of men from the colleges, in this respect being different from the team sent to Greece two years ago, for then the games were held at a time which made it difficult if not impossible for college men to compete. July is a month when they can easily take part, being right in the middle of the usual college vacation. The games form part of the Anglo-French exposition which is being held in London this summer and are to take place in a great stadium which has been erected for the purpose and which cost $300,000. It will hold 70,000 people and will be opened by King Edward VII. on July 13. The games begin the next day and continue until July 25. There will be 105 events, the most popular of which will be the twenty-five mile Marathon race, which is to start in the king's palace at Windsor and end at the stadium. There would be 25,640 entries in the games if all the countries entitled to representation in each event sent men to fill the allotted places. Of course they will not. Nevertheless the contestants will form a very large and distinguished looking lot of men. Great Britain will spend a great deal of money in entertaining the visitors. The medals alone will cost $12,500. They are now on exhibition at the London Royal academy and are the work of the noted sculptor Bertram Mackennal. The prize medals are struck in gold, silver and bronze for first, second and third prizes respectively and the commemoration medals in silver and bronze. The inscription on the obverse commemoration medal gives the name of Elis, where the ancient Greeks held their games and the places at which they have been held since their revival in 1896. The design represents a Greek runner returning home from victory. The reverse of each medal, designed for use on the occasion of the London Olympiad only, is a beautiful figure of Fame, typifying the modern revival of the games. On this side are the words, "In Commemoration of the Olympic Games Held In London, 1908."

It is fortunate that the American Olympic committee has been able to secure the cream of the college talent for the London meet, for it will make it certain that America will have even a stronger team than was sent to Athens two years ago. It will be particularly strong in field events. Star athletes will be furnished from all parts of the United States, and there is every reason to hope that they will bring back laurels of which their countrymen may well be proud.

A Knotty Point.

"Mister," said Broncho Bob as the traveling man got off the railway train, "are you a lawyer?

"No."

"Do you think there's a lawyer on board?"

"I don't think so. What is the trouble?"

"Well, Crimson Gulch has been puttin' on some style lately, and it's gettin' us plumb confused. What we want to find out is whether it's legal to lynch a man for stealin' an automobile the same as for stealin' a hoss."—Washington Star.

The Romance of Buried Pictures.

A romantic story of a picture purchased at a London auction which on expert examination proved to be painted over a Rembrandt worth £8,600 is curiously reminiscent of the discovery of a Correggio under similar circumstances. A good many years ago two picture restorers, Lovera and Hunterspergh, bought at an art sale in Rome a number of old pictures in order to provide themselves with canvases for repainting. In the division of the spoils Hunterspergh received an indifferent picture of flowers, on which he painted a study of a head. This picture he offered to Lovera, who on close examination found that the new ground sealed off and that underneath were traces of a figure painted in a style that denoted the hand of a master. Replacing the scales and concealing his discovery, he purchased the picture for little more than the value of the canvas. Removing the two grounds, he disclosed an exceedingly clever painting by Correggio, which he sold to the Earl of Bristol for £1,500.—Dundee Advertiser.

Dogs of Luxury.

The appearance of little dogs as objects of luxury goes back to the most ancient times. Documents are not wanting that go to show that Greek and Roman women had little dogs which were idolized by their mistresses. Even men, particularly among foreigners, were not ashamed to walk the streets of Rome with pet dogs under their arms. Speaking of this subject, Plutarch relates that Julius Caesar, seeing one day in Rome some strangers thus loaded with their dogs, asked them ironically whether the women of their country did not bear children. Tertia, the daughter of Lucius Aurelius Paulus, was so fond of her dog that in the moment of bidding farewell to her father, who was about to leave his country and his family to wage war against Perseus, king of Macedonia, she frankly admitted that the sadness imprinted on her face was due to the death of her pet dog Persa. In Europe the greyhounds were the first favorites of women during the middle ages.—Boston Post.

Too Much of a Good Thing.

George Marshall, a philanthropist who always kept a sharp lookout never to be wasteful, decided to go for a week's camping, taking as his guests some ragged street urchins. One morning he used the bits of meat left from the evening before and made hash for breakfast. There was some left over, which he concluded to reheat and serve again at noon.

"Johnnie, will you have some hash?" he asked one lad.

"Bet your life," replied the lad, who was constitutionally hungry.

"Peter, pass your plate for some hash"—to another freckled nosed lad.

"Not if I knows it," was the unexpected reply.

"I thought you liked hash from the way you ate it this morning," replied Mr. Marshall.

"I did like it for breakfast," said the lad, "but none of yer review of reviews for me for dinner."—Lippincott's Magazine.

Sided With Father.

"There is a little chap in our town," said the suburbanite, "whose father and mother have words quite frequently, and have them loud enough to be heard by the neighbors. The burden of their recriminations when audible is, on the wife's part, that she ever lowered the Hicks family sufficiently to marry a Stubbs, and on his part that he ever honored the Hicks family by allying it with the house of Stubbs.

"One day last summer the young son of the house went fishing. He had barely got his line into the brook when he heard his mother calling him.

"'There it is,' said he disgustedly; 'the minute the Stubbses begin to fish the Hickses begin to holler.'"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Lesson In Thrift.

A lesson in thrift is found in the advice given by Congressman John E. Andrus to a young man for whom he had secured a minor appointment in the capitol at Washington. Meeting the young fellow in the capitol, he placed a hand on his shoulder and remarked:

"William, you are just beginning your life. Let me give you a bit of sound advice: When you leave your boarding house in the morning never take more than 30 cents in your pockets, enough perhaps for your luncheon and for car fare. You will then not be tempted to spend more than you can afford."—Yonkers Statesman.

Unchanging Man.

Mortal man offers but little difference in spite of the diversity of race and climate, and in analyzing the Egyptian we almost find ourselves reproduced. Intellectual man also manifests a singular identity of aspiration and belief from the Nile to the Ganges and from the Eurotas to the Arno.—Mercure de France.

Some Grains of Luck.

"Is your husband having any luck at the race track?"

"Some luck," answered young Mrs. Torkins. "He hasn't caught cold nor had his pockets picked."—Washington Star.

A True Patriot.

"Johnny, what's a patriot?"

"A boy who'd radder miss seein' de game dan go in on a ball knocked over de fence by de visitin' team."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Not Entirely One.

"And so they were made one."

"Oh, I don't know. I believe she still has a mind of her own."

IF MOTHERS ONLY KNEW

When children are cross, irritable and peevish it does not signify that they have bad tempers; it shows that there is something wrong with the child which it is not able to explain, and which the mother—If She Only Knew—could easily and quickly cure. Mothers, study your child's symptoms; if cross, peevish, nervous, grits the teeth, wets the bed, picks the nose, has variable appetite or bowels, suffers with wind-colic or headache, is irritable and restless, has furred tongue or offensive breath, you may be sure that child is troubled with worms, which cause nearly all the ills of childhood.

Don't delay—disease comes suddenly—a few doses of the wonderful old-time remedy—will give your children that vigorous health which is so important to their future happiness. Dr. True's Elixir expels the worms, if there are any—if not it acts as a gentle laxative and tonic. It cleans out all waste matter from the stomach and bowels, tones and strengthens the entire system of adults as well as children. Dr. True's Elixir is a safe, pure, vegetable tonic and has been the standard household remedy for fifty-five long years.

DR. TRUE'S ELIXIR

Sold by all druggists, 35c., 50c., $1.00.
Write for free book, "Children and their Diseases."

Encampment Odd Fellows' Outing

Manet, Mt. Washington, and Natick encampments, I. O. O. F., held an outing at Cochituate lake on the holiday. The encampments assembled at Park square, Boston, and took the one o'clock car for Chestnut hill, where a special car was in waiting to convey them to the lake. After arriving, a line was formed and they marched to Patriarch Ferguson's camp which is situated on the border of the lake. After general hand shaking and greetings of the patriarchs a lunch was served by a well known caterer of Natick.

Then the sports were in order. The first was a ball game between Manet encampment of Quincy and Natick encampment of Natick, Manet winning by a score of 7 to 1.

The other sports were: Fat men's race, walking race, running broad jump, and several other. There were prizes for each event.

At six o'clock supper was served, to which all did justice. After supper P. C. P. Edward L. Goodridge was asked to stand up, and Grand Instructor Johnson, in a few chosen remarks, presented him in behalf of his associates in Manet Encampment with a large and very handsome medal which had the emblems of the order on it and the following inscription on the back of it: "Presented to Edward L. Goodridge by his friends and associates of Manet Encampment at Natick, on June 17, 1908.

Patriarch Goodridge responded and thanked the patriarchs for their beautiful gift. Then the patriarchs made a round up of the several camps, and roped in several victims and returned to headquarters where the entertainment included singing, speeches, dancing, recitations and refreshments.

The patriarchs then held a meeting and it was voted to make this gathering a yearly event, and Thomas Milne was elected as chairman of the permanent organization.

The patriarchs then marched to the special car which left at 9.30 P. M., arriving home at 11.30. Several small tokens were presented to members on the homeward trip in remembrance of this grand outing, voted the best of all.

Enjoyable Outing.

Special mention should be made of the singing of the club, which was grand, as they drove along the route.

The party arrived home at 9.45 A. M., all very tired but happy in the thoughts that they had spent a most enjoyable day, one that will long remain in their memory.

Brilliant Wedding At Wollaston

The beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Porter Waterhouse on Lincoln avenue, Wollaston, was aglow with light and color on Tuesday evening for the wedding of their daughter, Gertrude Tobey, and Mr. Earle Granville Newman of Arkansas City, Kansas. Palms and peonies were everywhere, and made an effective back-ground.

Rev. Daniel Munro Wilson of the Unitarian church at Northfield, formerly of Quincy, solemnized the marriage at eight o'clock. The maid of honor was Miss Katharine Sibley of Wollaston, and the best man Dr. L. D. Mitchell of Arkansas City. There were no bridesmaids. The ushers were Harold D. Waterhouse of Norfolk Downs, brother of the bride, George D. Follett of Quincy, Baxter Hayward and Frank Hayward of Braintree, cousins of the bride, and James S. Whiting of Wollaston.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, and looked charming in her bridal robe of heavy handmade silk lace on cream satin with panels of embroidery on satin. The veil reached only to the waist and she carried a large shower bouquet of lilies of the valley. Miss Sibley wore a white flowered batiste, trimmed with duchess lace over pink silk. She was the recipient of some beautiful duchess and rose point lace from the bride, brought from Europe, as was also the bride's gown which was designed and made in one of the fashion centres.

Following the ceremony a large reception was held, the bride's parents and the groom's parents Mr. and Mrs. Albert Newman, assisting. Through the evening Grey's orchestra played continuously.

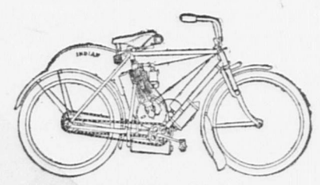

A wedding supper was served of salads and ices. There was a display of beautiful gifts, consisting of quantities of silver, cut glass, pictures, and ornaments as well as substantial checks.

Amid confetti and good wishes Mr. and Mrs. Newman left for a few weeks' fishing trip in Northern Maine, after which they go to Arkansas City, Kansas, where they will make their home. The bride has always been a resident of Wollaston and is a great favorite. She will be greatly missed, and the good wishes of hosts of friends will follow her to her new home and life in the west.

Holiday Wedding At Atlantic

A home wedding that was pretty and simple in all details took place in Atlantic on Wednesday, June 17, when Miss Ethel Gertrude Hill daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George William Hill of 80 Walker street, was united in marriage to Mr. Robert Henry Cook, son of Mrs. Anna F. Cook of Athol, Mass. The ceremony was at high noon, the Rev. Henry A. Coolidge, pastor of Memorial Congregational church, officiating.

The wedding march was played by Mrs. James H. Toas of Riverside, R. I., cousin of the bride, and the young couple entered unattended. Miss Hill wore a travelling suit of light tan French voile over silk with a pale blue picture hat with plumes. She looked extremely attractive.

After the ceremony, a reception was held. Mr. and Mrs. Cook were assisted in receiving by the bride's father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. George Hill and the groom's mother and sister, Mrs. Anna Cook and Miss Emily M. Cook.

Mr. Walter Hill of Atlantic, brother of the bride, was head usher and was aided in his duties by Mr. Harry E. Shannon of Winthrop and Mr. Fred L. Searle of Athol. The ices were served by five young women: Miss Bertha H. Crafts of Somerville, Miss Helen L. Coombs of Boston, Miss Irene J. Griffin of Hyde Park, Miss Bertha Miles of Atlantic, and Miss Florence M. Hill, sister of the bride. Gifts to the ushers were gold stick pins and the young women who served were remembered with gold collar pins.

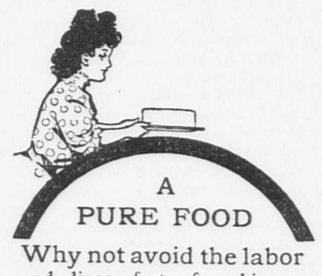

The decorations were mostly in pink and green, roses and trailing vines intermingling artistically through the rooms and forming an arch beneath which the bridal couple stood.

There was a great deal of fun and confetti before Mr. and Mrs. Cook were able to escape and good wishes followed them in showers of the pretty sticky bits of colored paper.

After a trip through New York state and suburbs, Mr. and Mrs. Cook will make their home in Somerville.

Guests were present from Quincy, Boston, Cambridge, Athol, Providence and Bath.

Breaks Forth In a Remarkable Demonstration at Chicago

LASTS FORTY-FIVE MINUTES

Lodge's Reference to Roosevelt Sets Convention Afire--Some Feared That Stampede Was Imminent, but Big Guns Had Matters Well In Hand --Seven Hundred Delegates Now In Taft Column and "Allies" Give Up Fight--No Change In Basis of Representation--Modification of Injunction Plank--Vice Presidential Tangle Not Yet Straightened Out

Chicago, June 18.—The second day of the Republican national convention brought the long expected Roosevelt yell, a whirlwind of enthusiasm which raged within the vast amphitheatre of the Coliseum for fully forty-five minutes and for a time presenting to the timid the spectre of a Roosevelt stampede.

This demonstration was decidedly the feature of a day otherwise notable by a stirring speech from Permanent Chairman Lodge, for much practical procedure in placing the convention on a smooth running basis, and for the final defeat of the plan to reduce the representation of southern states at future national conventions.

Probably the most important act of the day was the adoption of the report of the committee on credentials, seating the Taft delegations practically in toto. If there had been any lingering doubt of the Taft strength it disappeared before this decisive action, which in effect placed upwards of 700 delegates in the Taft column.

Next in importance and most remarkable was the final acceptance of this result by the "allies" without the formality of a dissenting minority report and without carrying the question to the floor of the convention for the open fight which had been long threatened.

Instead of this, all further opposition seemed to crumble; those who had promised trouble quietly accepted the inevitable, and thus the path was cleared for the fulfillment of plans already well matured for the nomination of the head of the ticket. The "favorite sons" still have, however, their bands of steadfast supporters, who will show their loyalty when the first ballot is taken.

Enthusiasm Breaks Loose

The presentation of the report on permanent organization was the signal for Senator Burrows to yield his place as temporary chairman and to escort to the platform Senator Lodge of Massachusetts.

"The fevered fancy of an uneasy dream" was his indictment hurled at the visionary policies of opposition parties. The applause had hardly died away when Lodge launched his sentence which electrified the assemblage into its first real demonstration of wild enthusiasm.

"The president," exclaimed Lodge, "is the most abused and most popular man in the United States today." This was the long awaited signal. Instantly a shout broke from the galleries and was echoed back from the floor, at first only a tempest of detached yells and catcalls and shouts of "Teddy," but gradually gathering force and volume until it swelled to a whirlwind of sound and motion as delegates and spectators arose en masse, mounting chairs, waving banners, hats, handkerchiefs, flags, newspapers, anything which could be seized upon to add turbulence to the scene.

Amid the tumult the band struck up, but the crash of the brasses and drums was completely lost in the babel of sound which welled up from 14,000 throats.

"Four, Four, Four Years More"

For the first minute, Lodge stood waiting to proceed, occasionally raising his hand for silence, only to awaken a defiant yell twice louder than before. Five minutes passed, and instead of abating, the uproar was increasing. The sergeant-at-arms moved up a chair for the presiding officer, and Lodge sank back to await a lull in the storm.

Five minutes—ten minutes—fifteen minutes. There was no lull; no abatement. A hoarse roar had taken the place of the detached yells. "Four, four four years more," came in a deafening chorus from the full sweep of the gallery, as if preconcerted, each "four, four," exploding like a boom of heavy artillery.

Fifteen minutes—twenty minutes—twenty-five minutes. Now delegates were joining in the outbreak. Some had mounted chairs and were gesticulating madly. One delegate far to the left had torn off his coat and was whipping it wildly about his head. Texas and Kentucky appeared to be the centre of the agitation on the floor. New York viewed the storm with calm and so did Ohio, except, strangely, one of the lonesome Foraker delegates, Judge Shoup, who, mounted on a chair, kept both arms in motion with a waving flag and a newspaper and his voice joining in the general pandemonium.

Thirty minutes—thirty-five minutes—forty minutes—forty-five minutes.

A full three-quarters of an hour had passed in this bewildering confusion of sight and sound. For a time fear was felt by some that a stampede was imminent. But the political generals were glad to give the pent-up enthusiasm of the multitude this outlet of expression, and at no time was there the slightest apprehension among them that the well-devised plans would miscarry through some overpowering movement.

A Decidedly Close Contest

With the subsidence of the Roosevelt storm, Lodge completed his stirring speech, and then the convention turned to the reports of the other committees. That on rules and order of business brought a majority report against the resolution offered by Mr. Burke of Pennsylvania reducing the representation of states to a basis of the Republican vote cast by those states. Burke presented a minority report in which seventeen of the states concurred.

A sharp contest occurred on this question, bringing for the first time before the convention some of its best known orators. The resolution was finally defeated, by the close vote of 506 against 471, a margin of 17 votes in a total of 977, three delegates being absent. The change of a single state might have altered the entire result. Although defeated, Burke said the result had shown a tremendous growth of sentiment in favor of this restricted representation, and that in his opinion the future success of the plan appeared beyond doubt.

The final details of the platform are being arranged by the platform committee, and this accomplished the convention will be equipped today to make its declaration of policy and proceed to the selection of candidates. The adoption of the platform will be followed by the speeches placing in nomination the candidates for president.

Injunction Plank Modified

A modified injunction plank was agreed to by the sub-committee on resolutions late last night which completed the platform and the full committee was immediately called into session to consider the document as perfected.

The injunction plank asserts that the Republican party always has and always will uphold the processes and proceedings of the courts and has absolute faith in their integrity and uprightness. Nevertheless, it believes that the injunction practice should be so modified as to provide that only where irreparable damage to property is imminent, the courts may grant injunctions without notice. It is also specified that in cases where notice is given the time shall be seven days.

The modified injunction plank is believed to be acceptable to many more members of the committee than the original draft. No mention is made in the platform of statehood for Arizona and New Mexico. The Michigan delegation instructed Representative Fordney on the committee to vote against any injunction plank.

At midnight the full committee on resolutions had agreed to accept all the planks of the platform as recommended by the sub-committee, with the exception of those relating to injunctions, to the civil rights of the negro race, the Panama canal, postal savings banks, the tariff and immigration. These were reserved because of the desire on the part of members of the full committe to discuss at some length each of the reserved provisions. The other planks were accepted after brief and formal discussion.

It was understood that the injunction plank would receive especial consideration, and many members evinced a disposition to oppose it, notwithstanding the provision was agreed to by all the members of the sub-committee, including Messrs. Crane, Payne, Dalzell and Clark, who had hitherto opposed it.

This morning it was announced that the committee had agreed to the tariff, the Philippines tariff, the currency, the trust and postal savings banks planks.

Must Be to Taft's Liking

"If the Republican convention deliberately refuses to adopt a platform on which Secretary Taft feels he can make a winning race, the Republican convention will have to nominate a man who needs no platform to win."

While this statement is not being put forward as an actual ultimatum, it is the principal weapon which the advocates of an injunction plank in the platform are using to compel the committee on resolutions and the convention itself to make such a declaration. It is their last resort, and the momentous import of the alternative implied presents more strikingly than could anything else the desperate straits to which the supporters of an injunction declaration have been driven by the persistent fight that has been made against it.

The statement quoted was made by a member of the sub-committee which is preparing the platform who is friendly to both President Roosevelt and Secretary Taft. It was the result of a careful analysis of the situation made after twenty-four hours of almost continuous service in the committee room, and undoubtedly presented his view of the situation. Proceeding, he said:

"It is preposterous to ask Secretary Taft to make the race for the presidency on a platform which is not to his liking, and especially in view of the fact that it is generally known that he has been giving much attention to the framing of the party's declaration of principles and policies. To do so would be to place him in the attitude in which Mr. Cleveland was placed when he was compelled in 1892 to repudiate his party's tariff plank, and it is doubtful whether he would want to make the race under such conditions. It should also be borne in mind that the question of injunction touches the labor class, an element which he has been accused of antagonizing, and it is the very opposite of fair dealing to undertake to compel him to go before the country on a platform which affords no assurance to this class of his friendly feeling towards them."

Gompers Talks to Sub-Committee

"If you outlaw our movement and make it impossible, and destroy the incentive for men to belong to labor organizations, you will find the expression of discontent take some other form, and you will have to deal with that."

Such was the warning given by President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor to the sub-committee of thirteen of the committee on resolutions. Gompers had laid before the body a series of planks dealing with labor problems which he said the union workers of the country would desire to see incorporated in the Republican platform.

Cheers Heard In White House

It is said that President Roosevelt himself was an actual listener to the wild demonstrations of enthusiasm which greeted his name in the convention. Remarkable as this may seem, it is accounted for by the following circumstances:

Hanging ten feet above the heads of the delegates and immediately in front of the platform are four black disks, looped by wires and joined by a small central cable leading from the hall. Many have wondered at these discs, believing them to be a part of the system for electrical display. As a matter of fact they are a combination of telephone and phonograph, taking up the proceedings as they occur and transmitting each swell of oratory and each throb of enthusiastic applause.

According to the reports, one of the wires was cut into the White House early yesterday afternoon and the president in person, with the receiver to his ear, caught the words of Lodge as he electrified the vast assemblage and the echoing shouts which ebbed and flowed for full forty-five minutes. It is said moreover that the president, pleased with the demonstration, made his feelings known to some of the leaders here, and then, contented with the outcome, went out to drive.

Many Speeches Cut Out

An agreement has been reached by representatives of all the candidates by which the nominating and seconding speeches for president will be materially curtailed. This agreement is that only one nominating and one seconding speech shall be made for each candidate, and that the long list of seconding speeches which have been heretofore announced will be abandoned.

The speeches for Secretary Taft will be by Theodore E. Burton of Cleveland, placing the secretary in nomination, and George A. Knight of California, seconding the nomination. The speakers who have relinquished the hohor of seconding the nomination are Senators Dolliver of Iowa, Burkett of Nebraska, Borah of Idaho, Williams of Oregon and Henry L. Johnson of Georgia.

A similar curtailment occurs in the long list of seconding speakers of the other candidates, but the exact list of those who retire from the oratorical arena has not been definitely arranged. This determination was reached because the proceedings were promising to be greatly prolonged by the large number of speeches.

Senator Foraker will be placed in nomination for president by C. B. McCoy of Ohio, and the nomination will be seconded by W. O. Emery of Georgia.

THE VICE PRESIDENCY

Opinion Is That It Will Go Either to Fairbanks or Cummins

The promulgation of a letter from Vice President Fairbanks reiterating his "irrevocable determination" not to again be a candidate for the office he now holds, is the most important development in connection with the vice presidential nomination.

The vice president's letter is not different from various expressions made in a less formal manner by him in the past few days, and while it was accepted seriously and he was given full credit for sincerity, it did not have much effect in changing the determination of his admirers to press his nomination in the event of the naming of Secretary Taft for the first position. It is confidently asserted that he would not decline a unanimous nomination.

Lafayette Young, delegate-at-large from Iowa, received a telegram from Secretary Loeb which stated that President Roosevelt had not expressed a desire to see Governor Cummins' name on the ticket or that of any other particular person. Loeb's telegram was a response to a telegram from Young in which the latter asked for an explanation of the president's attitude on the vice presidential nomination.

Guild Still In the Race

It is said that a telegram to Edward Glines, who is regarded as Governor Guild's personal representative in the Massachusetts delegation, expressed the governor's intention to stand by his vice presidential boom until the last gun was fired. The lines having been drawn substantially between east and west in the situation, and New York being practically out of it, it has become an interesting question whether the east can unite upon any man who can rally also support from the west and south. In this connection the names of Governor Guild and Ex-Governor Murphy of New Jersey are most frequently mentioned.

The tendency, however, is plainly toward the selection of a western man, and the names in the forefront are those of Fairbanks of Indiana and Cummins of Iowa, with Fairbanks apparently in the lead.

The California delegation has decided unanimously to cast its vote for George A. Knight of San Francisco for vice president. Other western states are expected to line up for Knight. The Californians also count upon the support of a number of southern delegations for Knight in return for the vote of that state in opposition to the Burke resolution.

Well Posted at Washington

Washington, June 18.—With every incident in the great gathering at Chicago flashed to them on direct wires, President Roosevelt and Secretary Taft kept in constant touch with the Republican national convention, had a brief conference and each wound up the afternoon by driving into the suburbs while the convention was still in session. All day long the wires brought news of what was transpiring in the convention.

Disinclined to Pay Interest

Washington, June 18.—The treasury department has received from the Chemical National bank of New York, which is a temporary government depository, its entire deposit of public funds, amounting to $1,028,000, with the explanation that the bank does not pay interest to depositors and as it would be required to pay interest at the rate of 1 percent per annum under the terms of the new currency act and the regulations of the secretary of the treasury, the officers of the bank decided not to make an exception in favor of the government. The American Exchange National bank of New York and a regular government depository also surrendered $230,000.

Murdered by Robbers

Geneva, N. Y., June 18.—Lying in a pool of blood with his skull crushed, "Bill" Loomis, aged 65, was found murdered in his shanty near the Empire Coke company's plant at Border City, just outside Geneva. Loomis kept a saloon in his little shack. His body was found behind the bar. He was evidently killed by a blow on the head. Loomis lived alone in his shack and was known far and wide in this community. His watch and money are missing.

Further Victory For Mrs. Hartje

Pittsburg, June 18.—Mrs. Mary S. Hartje, wife of Augustus Hartje, the millionaire paper manufacturer, whose unsuccessful divorce litigation against his wife has been widely published, won another victory when by a decision of Judge Fraser she was awarded $5000 a year alimony, $26,750 for court expenses and $7,000 for attorneys' fees. Her claim for expenses and counsel fees were but slightly reduced by the court.

Steamer Destroyed by Fire

St. John, June 18.—Steamer Aberdeen was destroyed by fire while tied up near Cole's island in the St. John river and her crew of nine men had a narrow escape from death. Most of the crew were asleep below when people on shore returning from a dance discovered the flames and aroused those on board the vessel. These had barely time to reach shore. The crew saved none of their effects.

Death of Congressman Wiley

Hot Springs, Va., June 18.—Representative A. A. Wiley of Alabama, who served in Cuba as General Lawton's chief of staff and civil governor of the eastern province, and was a member of the last four congresses, died at a hotel here. He was 50 years old. He suffered with inflammatory rheumatism and general physical breakdown and during the last of his illness became irrational.

Insanity Plea In Farmer Case

Watertown, N. Y., June 18.—Dr. Royal Amadon, formerly a noted insanity expert, but now retired, testified in the trial of Mary Farmer, charged with the murder of Mrs. Sarah Brennan, that Mrs. Farmer was insane. Her family physician also testified to the same effect. The defense rested and the prosecution opened in rebuttal, attacking Mrs. Farmer's plea of insanity.

No European Innovations

Fez, Morocco, June 18.—Mulai Hafid was united in marriage to one of his cousins, a daughter of Mulai Ismail. At the conclusion of this ceremony the usurping sultan announced his cabinet. At the same time Hafid issued orders that no European innovations were to be tolerated. This means the exclusion of automobiles.

Police to Do Cowboy Act

San Francisco, June 18.—"Automobile roping" is officially established by an order just issued by Chief of Police Biggy requiring all mounted patrolmen to have their lariats in order. They are instructed to use them in lassoing chauffeurs who break the speed law and do not respond to the order "halt."

Burglar Shot by Editor

Salisbury, N. C., June 18.—Frank Smith, a negro ex-convict, was shot and mortally wounded by W. H. Stewart, a newspaper editor, who surprised him at an attempt at burglary in the editor's home. The negro escaped, but was found later at his home with a bullet in his stomach.

Troops Ordered to Panama

Washington, June 18.—By direction of the president 800 additional officers and enlisted men of the marine corps are to be sent to the Isthmus of Panama in anticipation of the coming elections there. They will leave on the battleships New Hampshire and Idaho next Saturday.

BLIND TOM'S DEBUT.

How the Negro Musical Prodigy Was Discovered.

WONDERS OF HIS MEMORY.

Played a Mazurka Just as He Had Heard It Played Twenty-eight Years Before—Sample of His Great Strength—Remarkable Imitator.

Over fifty years ago a little blind negro baby wandered from his mother's cabin and in the dark of the night climbed upon the piano stool in the parlor of the aristocratic old slave holder General James N. Bethune of Georgia. He ran his baby fingers over the keys, and the household was aroused by music so sweet and delicate that it seemed like fairy music—and that was his debut. The little "nigger" was the greatest colored musical prodigy the world has ever known. He was Thomas Wiggins, known as "Blind Tom," the famous negro pianist, who recently died at Hoboken, N. J.

Tom was born a slave on General Bethune's plantation and was looked upon as an incumbrance which must be fed and clothed simply because it would have been inhuman to make way with him. He was about four years old when the daughters of General Bethune were given a new piano. One of the daughters played a sweet, plaintive little melody upon the new instrument, and it was that melody the blind baby reproduced and improved upon that night. After that the little negro was brought in as a curiosity to play for and amuse the general's guests. When he was six years old the general's son, John G. Bethune, arranged a tour for Tom and continued as his manager for many years. After his death his widow kept the negro before the public.

After his musical gift Tom's memory was the most wonderful thing about him. He could play more than 5,000 compositions. Once he heard a piece he would repeat it exactly. Mrs. Bethune used to tell of an incident which shows how retentive his memory was. A stock actor in Denver met Blind Tom in 1894 and asked him if he ever met his father, Theodore M. Browne. Tom replied at once, "I met Theodore M. Browne (he always repeated names) in St. Louis in 1866." Mrs. Bethune then asked him what Mr. Browne played for him, and the negro replied, "He played a little mazurka of his own." "Play it," said Mrs. Bethune, and the blind musician played it just as he had heard it twenty-eight years before.

This way of remembering people he met was unique. When first presented to a person he wished to remember, he asked him or her to speak plainly. Then he placed his finger on the back of his or her neck and smelled it. After this he never forgot that individual, seeming to associate the sound of the voice with the name and the smell. He could hear a sermon and repeat most of it after he returned from the church and, furthermore, mimic the preacher.

Blind Tom was practically an imbecile. His amusements were very odd. He was particularly fond of dancing. He would stand on one foot and with the other leg put out at right angles would spin around and around with marvelous rapidity. He spun round like a dancing dervish. This he kept up for several minutes. Another favorite trick of his was to lean over the foot of the bed and bump his head on the springs.

Tom was very powerful, and as an example of his strength a story is told of him at Williamsport, Pa. He was staying at the City hotel. Some friends of Dr. Eubank, who was with Tom for many years, asked some gentlemen to drive with them. Before leaving Tom, Dr. Eubank wanted to make him comfortable and explained to him how to regulate the register. He said:

"Tom, if the room gets too hot, just turn this knob to the right."

"Yes, sir," said Tom.

"And if it gets cold turn it to the left."

"Yes, sir."

"Now, let me see you do it. If it gets too hot, what would you do?"

Tom took hold of the knob with both his hands, but instead of turning it to the right he pulled the register out of the wall. Tom thought it was a good joke and danced about the room, clapping his hands.

In early childhood he imitated the cries of farm animals, the call of birds and the sound of the wind and rain for the amusement of General Bethune's household. By night he would steal into the house of his master to imitate in undertones on the piano the pieces he had heard others play during the day. He had the power of being most marvelously imitative. During his public appearances he frequently played one melody with his right hand and another with his left, singing or whistling a third, as frequently the classic compositions of Bach, Chopin and Mendelsshon as "Yankee Doodle," "Sailor's Hornpipe" or other pieces of that class. On occasions he played pieces with his back turned to the piano. He could imitate the sounds of other musical instruments and deliver connected addresses in foreign languages without understanding a word he uttered.

The eccentricities of Blind Tom on the stage pleased audiences as much as his playing. He always referred to himself in the third person and would announce his pieces by saying, "Tom will now play a beautiful piece he heard recently." He frequently jumped about wildly and started the applause himself when he finished a number.

INSULT TO FLAG AVENGED.

Man Who Tore It Down Is Compelled to Climb Pole and Restore It.

Arrested by an Irish policeman who had seen him tear down an American flag which had been flying from a staff in the front yard of a Frenchman in Hoboken, N. J., Thomas Taylor was compelled to climb to the top of the forty foot staff and put the flag back where he had found it.

Several dozen men and boys, part of them of German, French, Irish, Polish and English parentage, witnessed the punishment of Taylor, who said he was an American citizen.

HE SCALED THE POLE.

It was early in the day when Taylor cut the ropes attached to a large American flag belonging to Emile Le Fevre at 219 Bloomfield street. Policeman O'Donohue caught him and took him to the court of Recorder Stanton. Taylor said he lived at 110 Monroe street. His only excuse for having torn down the flag was that he disliked seeing it at 3 o'clock in the morning.

"You'll climb to the top of that flagpole and put back that flag," said the recorder. "There is nothing the matter with the American flag at any hour of the day, and the reason I have insisted upon this public punishment for you is that I want to set an example for the benefit of any person who may feel disposed to hold from the flag the respect which is its due."

Escorted by several dozen men and boys, Taylor went with two policemen to Le Fevre's front yard. Gathering the flag under one arm and holding a hammer, he scaled the pole with difficulty and, amid the cheers of the crowd, nailed the flag back in the position in which he had found it. There was a great deal of cosmopolitan rejoicing.

By the time Taylor had climbed to the top of the pole and slid down again there was very little disrespect for the flag left in the neighborhood.—New York Herald.

CAPTURED A FLEET ON FOOT.

Remarkable Achievement of Five Revolutionary Heroes.

When Savannah was invested by the American army Captain French, with a small body of British regulars and five small vessels, was stationed twenty miles up the river, and the proximity of the American force made him nervous. Colonel John White of the Georgia line wanted to capture this detachment, but no soldiers could be spared by the American general for the undertaking. Now, the colonel was a determined and masterful man and resolved to make the venture on his own account. He persuaded his three orderlies and Captain Ethholm to aid him.

At the fall of night they built a great many fires in the woods near the British post, arranged so as to give the impression of a hostile camp of large force. Then the colonel and his four friends, "imitating the manner of the staff, rode with haste in various directions, giving orders in a loud voice. French became satisfied that a large body of the enemy were upon him, and, being summoned by Colonel White, he surrendered his detachment, the crews of five vessels and 130 stands of arms."

Colonel White pretended that he must keep back his troops, as Tory outrages had infuriated them and indiscriminate slaughter might take place. He took the parole of the British captain and soldiers not again to serve, gave them three guides, his orderlies, to escort them to safe quarters and hurried them away before daybreak lest the fury of his pretended soldiers should fall upon them.—L. T. Sprague in Outlook.

Jefferson on Newspapers.

In a letter to Edward Carrington, dated Paris, Jan. 16, 1787, Thomas Jefferson said: "The basis of our government being the opinion of the people, the very first object should be to keep that right, and were it left to me to decide whether we should have a government without newspapers or newspapers without a government I should not hesitate a moment to prefer the latter. But I should mean that every man should receive those papers and be capable of reading them."

Carlyle's Prophecy.

Borne over the Atlantic to the closing ear of Louis, king by the grace of God, what sounds are these, muffled, ominous, new in our centuries? Boston harbor is black with unexpected tea; behold a Peunsylvanian congress gather, and ere long, on Bunker Hill, democracy announcing in rifle volleys, death winged, under her star banner, to the tune of "Yankee Doodle," that she is born, and, whirlwind-like, will envelop the whole world.—Thomas Carlyle.

A Poet's Glimpse of the Future.

New states, with starry emblems, one by one
Come stealing through the future's twilight dim,
Like orbs of evening from its dusky sky,
To take their place at last with those who tread
Their high, unwearied and unwearying round
Before the golden gates and battlements
Of paradise. The harp of Liberty
Shall sound amain till Death himself expire,
Till God has made us free immortally
And Time is dust upon his broken lyre!

Will Shake Massachusetts.

Frank S. Pilsner, who hails from Boothbay Harbor, Me., left his native hearth Wednesday and came to Boston in his automobile. After arriving in the Bay State he filled up with red liquor and when he struck Milton he was well under its influence. He tried to do the circus act in the streets including running over stone walls. The Milton police took him in charge and in court he contributed $35. As he left the court he remarked that he would shake Massachusetts hereafter.

MANY GAINS

Greatest Spurt By "Bill" Field Who Is Again At Top in Contest

Several gains were made all along the line in the Motor Boat popularity contest, and there are a dozen new candidates for the prize, which is valued at $250. Some of the new candidates are young ladies.

"Bill" Field has accepted the challenge of Capt. Foster and says be can increase his speed if necessary. The young lady from Houghs Neck has added a couple of hundred and says she has many more. No candidates passed the 100 mark today but several are getting close. It is the coupons from the Daily Ledger that will soon begin to count as about 2000 are being printed each day. They are already in demand.

Blanks for placing trial orders for the Daily Ledger may be obtained at the office of publication, and will be mailed upon request. Each trial order gives a credit of 100 votes to your favorite candidate.

The standing of the candidates will be printed each day, all votes received previous to 9 A. M. being counted that day.

It is not necessary that candidates shall be members of a yacht club or any other club. Neither is the contest limited to men. Women as well as men may enter.

The prizes offered are valuable ones, there being others besides the motor boat which is offered as a first prize.

The standing today at 9 A. M. was:

WOODWARD GRADUATION

All Parts of The City Were Represented in Class of 1908

A class of 29 Quincy born young ladies was graduated on Wednesday evening from the Woodward Institute. As usual the hall was filled, considerable space being necessary for the 130 members of the school who were present.

The motto "Learn nor Account the Pang" was displayed in large white letters over the platform. The wall back of the platform was banked with green, which also encircled the picture of Dr. Ebenezer Woodward, the benefactor of the school. Along the front of the platform was a border of daisies, the floral effect being very pretty.

Music was a feature of the evening, three Southern melodies being sung by the school under the direction of Mr. John D. Buckingham. The selections were the old favorites "Old Black Joe," "The Old Kentucky Home" and "Way Down South in Dixie."

Then came the march of the graduating class to the platform. They were escorted by two of the smallest members of the school, Miss Emily Dinegan and Miss Carmel Brogan. The interval was so long between their departure into the hallway and their appearance at the platform door that some thought they had gone home, but there was a transformation. Each graduate appeared with her arms filled with flowers. They were greeted with applause.

Dr. John M. Tyler was expected to make the address of the evening but was unavoidably absent.

Rev. Ellery C. Butler, the chairman of the Board of Directors of the school presented the diplomas individually, each young lady being applauded when her name was called. Mr. Butler addressed the class briefly. He first congratulated them on their successful work. He said it was not the aim of the school to impart little or much elucidation, but so to teach the pupils that they can learn anything easily, rapidly and accurately. You have acquired these faculties, now comes the commencement. You know how to study, and should always remember the efforts of your teachers in training you.

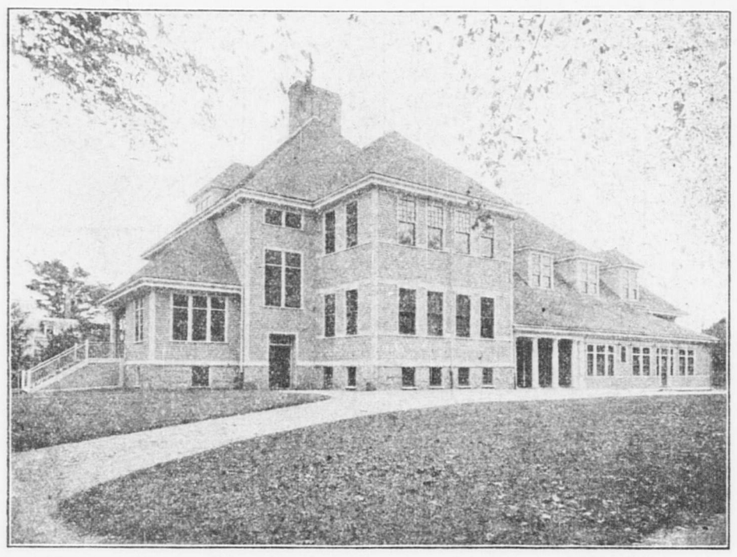

The class ode written by Miss Marion Estelle Johnson, was sung by that young lady as a solo, as follows:

We stand upon the crest of Youth
Beyond is Life.
We see not only Love and Truth
But Pain and Strife.
The clouds that hover near our view
To us are lined with silver hue.
The Onward path lies straight and true
'Neath Heaven's arch of bending blue,
And all is right, and all is right.

With glad sad hearts we greet this day—
Hail and good-bye!
A golden day upon Life's way—
Hail and good-bye—
How kindly here the years have flown.
What happy hours our hearts have known,
What friendships here have found their own.
O sad, sweet day!—in minor tone—
Hail and good-bye! Hail and good-bye!

The graduates were:

Helen Mildred Fitzgerald
Marion Estelle Johnson
Bertha Shirley Badger
Ruth Alden Bass
Irene Marion Bradbury
Margaret Patricia Brown
Mary Ellen Costa

A creditable exhibition of drawings and other works of art was displayed in one of the upper rooms, which all were invited to inspect.

This evening the Class of 1908 will give a reception at Woodward hall.

Day Camp For Tuberculosis

There is a large number of consumptives who cannot go away to sanatoria or leave for a more favorable climate; for various reasons, social, financial, and too often on account of the advanced stage of their disease, they must remain at home and do what they can to get well. Probably about 75 per cent of all consumptives are in this class. How to teach them to live in their own homes so that they are able to improve their own condition and do not infect others, is one of the most important problems which those interested in tuberculosis are trying to solve.

Various methods are being used to do this. Tuberculosis classes, where patients meet in small groups once a week and are there given detailed instructions as to how to live, are springing up throughout the country. District Nursing Associations are furnishing invaluable aid to dispensaries and hospital out-patient departments, by seeing that instructions given by the physicians are carried out at home. In many instances, however, the home conditions are such that it is very hard, indeed often impossible, for the patient to meet the conditions which he is told are necessary if he is to get well.

To get fresh air during the night is not so difficult even in crowded tenement districts. Balconies, roofs, back yards, rooms with two or more windows, can be used for sleeping purposes without much hardship. During the day it is different. There are frequent meals to get, rooms must be kept warm for the sake of others, and there is always work to be done, and children to be cared for.

It is to obviate these difficulties that the "day camp" is intended. A "day camp" is a place centrally located, if possible, or if not, within easy access from the crowded parts of the city, where patients can go in the morning, spend the day amid cheerful and wholesome surroundings, and then return to their homes at night. The "camp" may be on the outskirts of the city as it is in Boston, connected with the hospital grounds as in Lowell, or consist of a discarded ferry-boat moored on the Hudson River, as is the case in New York.

The "day camp idea" originated in Germany. Steam and electric car lines have made special rates for carrying patients to and from the camp. Nearly every German city now has its "day camp" for adults or "forest schools" for children, as a necessary adjunct to its tuberculosis campaign.

In this country the first day camp was established in 1905 in Boston by the Boston Association for the Relief and Control of Tuberculosis. A site was secured on the top of a hill, in an apple orchard, on the outskirts of the city. A lean-to was built with a stove, sink, etc., where simple meals were cooked. There was one large tent with tables and benches, serving as a dining room, and on rainy days as a lounging place for patients. There were two or three small tents for examination purposes and for the doctors, nurses, etc. There were steamer chairs in abundance. The entire outfit cost about $1,500. The average daily attendance was about 60 for the first year and 75 to 80 after this. A physician gave his services and in addition there was a matron, a nurse, and one or two attendants.

To this camp on Parker Hill every morning from early May till late November patients came from Boston and its suburbs. On arrival each patient was examined, given a sputum cup or bundle of paper napkins, assigned to a steamer chair or allowed a little exercise, as the doctor thought best. Lunches of milk, cocoa, bread and butter, etc., were served in the middle of the forenoon and afternoon, and a substantial meal was given in the middle of the day. Careful record was kept of weight and temperature, and regular physical examinations were made. Almost every patient gained weight; every one who attended the camp learned how to live and carried home to his family and friends lessons in fresh air and cleanliness.

After the first cost, the cost per day per patient was about 65 cents the first year and in later years was reduced to about 50 cents. During the winter, when the camp is closed, patients are taken care of in the various clinics and tuberculosis classes, and followed up in their homes by district nurses, etc. As mentioned above, New York has utilized an old ferry boat for a camp, where patients arrive in the morning and spend the day in the fresh, salt air from off the harbor. After the initial outlay, the cost is not great; results are certainly most satisfactory.

Day camps are growing up all over Massachusetts. Towns and cities are coming to realize that here is a method, cheap, practical and efficient, for doing good work among the tuberculous poor. Holyoke, Springfield lowell, Newton, Cambridge and other places have each a day camp run under the auspices of the local anti-tuberculosis association and in conjunction with a tuberculosis class, clinic or nursing association. The day camp idea is no longer an experiment, but one which has shown itself to be worthy of the most cordial support and cooperation of the upblic.

Information in regard to the best methods for forming such camps, and in regard to tents, shacks and other details of management and construction will be gladly furnished at the office of the Massachusetts Commission on Hospitals for Consumptives, 309 Ford Building, Boston.

Selectman Fell Into Auto Trap

The chairman of the board of Selectmen of Wareham, who has been a terror to automobile speeders, fell into a trap himself at Milton on Tuesday, and his experience cost him ten plunks.

It seems that he purchased a new automobile in Boston but not having received his license numbers could not run it himself but got a driver from the firm where he purchased the car to run it out for him.

On the way through the Blue Hills the driver let her out and was going at a 35 mile per hour clip when Officer Davis held them up. In court Wednesday morning the driver, who gave the name of William E. C. Warr, paid a fine of $10, and the laugh is now on the chairman of the board of selectmen who probably furnished the ten.

Adams Shore Sale.

There was a good attendance Wednesday at the all-day land sale at Adams shore. A large tent had been erected on the premises so that in case of rain the people could get under cover. At noon time an appetizing lunch was served in the large tent. As an extra inducement a number of valuable gifts were destributed among those present. A number of desirable lots were sold at prices ranging from 6 to 8 cents per foot.

REFUGE FOR INSANE.

Great Institution to Be Built at New York.

MOVE TO PREVENT LUNACY.

Psychiatric School to Be Established For Relief of Those Fearing Madness—Effort to Make the Metropolis Center of World's Knowledge of Insanity.

Construction work on a reception hospital for suspected cases of insanity on Manhattan Island is to be begun the present year, according to Dr. Albert Warren Ferris, president of the New York state lunacy commission. Not only is there to be provided an immense institution where those who fear they are losing their minds may go without legal commitment for observation and treatment, but if the plans of Dr. Ferris are carried out there will be established pathological and psychiatric laboratories and schools with supplies of clinical material that will make New York, and not Vienna, the center of the world's sources of knowledge of insanity.

Fundamental to the plan of the new institution is the idea about to be put in practice at the Poughkeepsie hospital of providing a place where the fears of any one who suspects himself of incipient madness may be lulled or confirmed. Provision is to be made for about 250 patients of this class, who will be free to place themselves voluntarily under observation at any time at the expense of the state.

In addition to this, however, it is proposed to move from Ward's island the state pathological laboratory under the direction of Dr. Adolph Meyer, who will be at the head of the new institution, and to establish in connection with it a psychiatric school, the first of its kind in America, where instruction in the latest advances of the scientific knowledge of insanity in all its forms will be provided for the medical profession of the country.

"We shall certainly begin work on the new building during the present calendar year," said Dr. Ferris to a New York Herald reporter. "We have a site under lease from the city at the foot of East Seventy-third street, and as soon as the new building is completed we will be able to do in New York what the other state hospitals are already making preparations to do—to take under observation and care cases that have not developed into insanity and may never so develop.

"What we want to accomplish is to prevent insanity. So far as curing insanity goes, the state of New York is doing as much as is done anywhere, but there are hundreds of cases in our asylums that ought never to have got there—cases that would not have become insane if there had been any way of placing them under observation without a legal declaration of insanity.

"I have been working toward this plan for several years. Not only is it a good thing from the humanitarian point of view, but financially it will save money for the state. It certainly will be better to spend a few hundred dollars in curing a person who might have become insane than to have him become an inmate of an asylum and cost several thousand dollars before he dies, to say nothing of the economic loss of his services.

"Beyond all this we are planning a great campaign of education on the subject of insanity. The public generally has a wrong idea of the subject. The mediaeval superstitions concerning the madman still linger. We hope to make the public realize in time that insanity is simply a disease like any other disease and that if taken in time it can often be cured.

"At the same time we hope in this new institution to make such progress in the study of insanity and its cures as to make New York the world center for that work. We will be equipped with the most complete laboratories under the charge of the most skillful investigators, and for clinical material we shall arrange to have the most interesting, baffling and typical cases from all the fifteen state hospitals brought to New York for study. All of the physicians connected with the state hospitals will be required to spend a certain amount of time each year in study in the clinical school and laboratories, and quarters will be provided for them on the grounds while they are here. The medical profession generally will be welcomed to our clinics, lectures and demonstrations, and the result, I hope, will be a wider knowledge of the causes of insanity and consequent increase in the proportion of cures and a decrease in the prevalence of its various manifestations.

"Plans have already been made for the centering in New York of world statistics of insanity. The records of every case in the state and private hospitals of New York are at our command, and with them as a basis expert classification of symptoms, known causes and postmortem indications is expected to lead to wider knowledge of the causes that are are still obscure and the detection of symptoms that are not now generally recognized as indicating mental disorder.

"It is entirely conceivable that in the course of time insanity may be stamped out as effectually as other diseases that were once the scourge of the race have been placed under control."

What DO YOU DO for Quincy?

A Little Wad of Common Sense.

A New Aid Fable.

This is not a George Ade fable, though it may sling some slang. It is a Home Aid fable.

Once there was a Geezer, who sat around and cut Kindling too small for Cook Stove purposes. He Whittled against Time and Flabbergasted against his Town. The town was No Good, he said—strictly on the Blink. Yes, it was N. G. Why, hadn't he lived Here since '84 and found that the Place was Punky? Sure, Mike!

Look at that town over in the next County. Grown like Jonah's Gourd. Must be a Jonah here. We've grown some, but I don't see that we're knocking any particularly Big Persimmons. That's the way this Gazaboo knocked his town.

One day a Sarcastic Stranger floated into the Town that was Knocked from the burg that had Blossomed like Jonah's Gourd. He Heard some of the Flabbergasting and Dropped to the situation.

"Look here, you," he remarked to the citizen who was Handing Out the Knocks. "What do you do for this town? Are you doing your part to put this Burg on the Upgrade? What's that hefty Bunch of literature sticking out of your Clothes?"

"That's a Mail Order Catalogue from Chicago—a town that is a town," replied the Geezer.

"So I thought," said the Impertment Arrival. "Now let me hand you out a nice little Wad of common sense. For the past ten years you have been sending your money to the Chicago Mail Order houses instead of spending it among your home merchants. What would have happened to Chicago fifty years ago if all the First Settlers had shipped their Loose Coin to New York on catalogue inducements? Why, you'd have to use a sand dredger now to find the Original Site of Chicago. Now, in the Burg from which I have just Blown in we got over all this Bum Business years ago. We passed Resolutions that we would trade at home and help our own town to Spread out so that you could Sight it on the map without using Opera Glasses. But you and a Bunch of other folks in this town have wasted your Substance in Riotous Expenditures in Chicago by mail and let the sheriff hang out the 'Nothing Doing' sign in front of some of your own town's mercantile Emporiums. Look at our Town and then look at yours. What makes the Difference?"

Whereupon the Whittling Gazaboo threw a few well chosen Thoughts into his mental makeup and went down to the village store to Annex a linen collar in place of the Paper Circles which he had bought from Chicago at Two Bits a Box.

MORAL: If you want your town to grow, patronize home enterprises.

SAVED FIVE BOYS' LIVES

Heroic Deed of Boston Man Was Witnessed by a Great Crowd

Boston, June 18.—Five small boys who had been thrown into the Charles river by the overturning of a boat, were rescued last night by James T. McCauley after a hard struggle. McCauley was on a car passing over Harvard bridge when he saw the boat overturn. He immediately jumped from the car and, throwing off his hat and coat, leaped into the water after the boys.

McCauley got four of them while they were still struggling and put them safely in boats which were near the scene. The fifth boy, Clyde Rayfuse, went to the bottom, and McCauley had to dive twice before he brought him to the surface. Rayfuse was revived and taken to the city hospital, where he remained last night.

The other boys, all of whom were sent to their homes, were Ernest Rayfuse, 9 years old, Clyde Rayfuse; Alfred Totten, 7; Fred Frink, 8, and Colin McKenzie, 5 years old.

The rescue was sensational in the extreme, and McCauley's brave act was loudly applauded and cheered by a throng of spectators on the bridge and along the banks of the Charles. McCauley lives in South Boston.

MADE FALSE ENTRIES

Other Alleged Misdeeds by Heads of a National Bank

ABOUT $1,250,000 MISAPPLIED

Over $1,000,000 Said to Have Been Wrongfully Used by Curtis and Morse In Purchase of Ice Securities Stock For Their Bank

New York, June 18.—The federal grand jury has found a third indictment against Alfred H. Curtis, president, and Charles A. Morse, vice president of the National Bank of North America, charging them with making false entries in reports to the comptroller of the currency and the misapplication of funds for speculative purposes amounting to about $1,250,000.

Shortly after the indictments had been returned Morse and Curtis appeared before Judge Hough in the United States circuit court and entered tentative pleas of not guilty. The defendants, whose trial on the previous indictments in connection with the bank's affairs has been set for the October term of the federal court, were given until July 1 to withdraw their pleas or demur to the indictments.

The third indictment charges that Morse and Curtis made false entries in twenty-one reports to the comptroller of the currency during the years 1906 and 1907, and accuses them of the wilful misapplication of the moneys, funds and credits of the National Bank of North America during the same period.

The false entries charged in the indictment consist of an alleged failure to include in the assets of the National Bank of North America stock of the American Ice Securities company, Consolidated Steamship lines, as well as stock in the National Bank of North America, owned by the bank and purchased for it by Morse, and the alleged failure to report among the liabilities of the bank money borrowed by the bank from the Mercantile National and New Amsterdam National banks and the Knickerbocker Trust company, amounting to over $520,000.

The last twenty counts of the indictment charge Morse and Curtis with misapplying funds of the National Bank of North America to the amount of $1,250,000. Of this amount over $1,000,000 is charged to have been misapplied by Morse and Curtis in the purchase for the bank of stock of the American Ice Securities company at an alleged fictitious value.

The last six counts of the indictment charge the misapplication of funds of the bank to the amount of $250,000 in discounting invalid, unsecured and uncollectable notes, and in crediting the proceeds of such discounts to Morse's account, which he subsequently withdrew from the bank.

Charles W. Morse last night declared that he had applied to the comptroller of the currency at Washington for a list of the depositors of the National Bank of North America, as he desired to arrange matters with the depositors that they might secure their deposits. The application was refused, said Morse, and he was informed that claims could be settled by giving the receiver the amount of money sufficient to pay the depositors' claims.

Test of the Eight-Hour Law

Milwaukee, June 18.—For violating the eight-hour law, the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railroad company must pay to the state a fine of $1000 and $50 additional costs, according to the judgment entered by Judge Tarrent. The action involves the working overtime of a telegrapher at a way station. The case will now be appealed to the state supreme court and then taken to the United States courts as a test case.

Three Blackmailers Laid Out

New Orleans, June 18.—A blackmailing tragedy, with the unusual sequel that of the four blackmailers three were killed and one wounded, while the intended victims escaped without a scratch, was enacted in the residence of Pietro Giacona, a wealthy wine merchant. Giacona is 61 years old, and how he and his son, Carrada, managed to kill three armed and desperate men is not yet clear to the police.

Anarchist Publications Barred

Washington, June 18.—All publications having anarchistic tendencies will hereafter find it practically impossible to make use of the United States mails for their distribution. ## A LOVELORN PRINCE.

The Scion of French Nobility Who Wooed and Won Mme. Anna Gould.

Prince Helie de Sagan did not enjoy his recent visit to this country extremely because of the profuse attentions of the newspaper men and photographers. Nevertheless he seems to have succeeded in the main object of his trip, which was to secure the hand of Mme. Anna Gould, a daughter of the late Jay Gould and formerly the wife of Count Boni de Castellane. According to some authorities, the prince and Mme. Gould played a neat trick on the reporters and camera men by getting married secretly about midnight in Hoboken, N. J., just prior to their departure from America by separate steamers for their respective homes in France. It was a justice of the peace, according to this story, who tied the knot binding together a scion of the ancient French nobility and a daughter of the house of Gould. At any rate, as if to make assurance doubly sure, there is to be a wedding in France by a Protestant minister, a marriage by a Roman Catholic priest being out of the question because of Mme. Gould having secured a divorce from her former husband and remarriage in such a case not being permitted by the Roman Catholic church. June 14 has been set as the date of the civil and religious ceremonies, and it is said that the parties to the contract will each remain in absolute control of their respective fortunes.

Prince Helie de Sagan is famous as a duelist and as a swell. The accompanying portrait is from a snapshot, which gives a good idea of his jauntiness of appearance.

A HAPPY MOTHER.

The Crown Princess Cecelie of Germany and Her Baby Boy.

The Crown Princess Cecelie of Germany is a happy mother, for she has presented her young and handsome husband, the future ruler of the German empire, Crown Prince William, with two sons. Prince Wilhelm, the eldest, and Prince Louis Ferdinand, who is now the baby of the family, make a pair of youngsters of whom any princely papa might be proud. The Germans, who love domesticity, are fond of their future ruler and his beautiful wife and appreciate the sincere devotion of each to the other, for there is no doubt of the deep affection existing between the noble couple. It was a case of real love, and the crown prince is said to have declared if he could not marry the fair princess of Mecklenburg to whom he paid court he would marry no one. Happily his royal sire interposed no strong objections, and the wedding will long be remembered.

LAYING OF PATTERNS.

How to Save Material In Cutting Women's Garments.

There are few women who know how to lay the pattern and cut the garment so as to use no more of the material than is absolutely necessary. When placing your pattern on the goods remember to arrange it so that two thicknesses of the material may be cut at the same time. This can be done by folding the material in the center. Do this with all parts of the pattern except those marked for cutting on the lengthwise fold, in which case fold the long way of the goods and cut double.

Follow the perforations in your pattern as directed. Pin each pattern piece carefully and closely with fine small pins to keep the paper smooth and the material even.

Now place a weight on the sections as you cut them to keep them from slipping off the table or pushing away from the shears. Cut all edges evenly with the scissors.

It takes but little more time to cut a clean, smooth, even edge than a rough and ragged one, and it means a great saving of time when it comes to basting and fitting the garment. It is easier to baste a straight seam when the edge is straight, and a straight basted seam means less trouble when fitting.

Notch the material exactly as the pattern is notched before you remove the pins which hold the pattern and material together. With tailor's chalk mark all the holes in the pattern and three-eighths of an inch from all edges to give a straight seam line.

If it is not suitable to use chalk on the goods a fine white basting thread may be used. While the pattern is still on the goods mark with a basting thread the sewing line for tucks, plaits or trimming of any kind.

Before cutting out plaids study the arrangement of the lines, stripes and figures, for often there are right and left sides to plaids, or four stripes alternating with five, for instance. In figured materials of any kind slip the pieces up and down until you bring the figures in the correct position. This may result in a slight waste of material, but if these directions are not followed the effect is apt to be anything but pleasing.

How to Prepare a Hotbed.

A hotbed should always be placed in a sheltered position and if posssible should face south or east.

On cold nights protection must be given by board shutters, straw mats or old pieces of carpet or burlap. On very bitter nights old newspapers can be put around the edges of the frames under the carpet.

Watering should only be done in the morning after the bed has warmed up somewhat, and then only on bright days. Watering at night loses too much heat and creates dampness that is apt to result in mildew or fungous growths.

If the plants are not to be drawn and spindly ventilation is necessary. It is a good plan to raise the sash whenever the outside temperature has raised that in the beds to 60 or 70 degrees.

The beds should be covered early in the afternoon. On mild days or when the temperature outside is above 40 degrees the sash can be removed entirely for a short time in the middle of the day.

How to Relieve a Headache.

"Whenever you suffer from a terrible headache, if you are where you can procure some fresh horseradish leaves the pain can be relieved in a few minutes," says Joe Stoddard of Brunswick, Ga. "Just take the horseradish leaves and pound them until the juice begins to ooze out. Bind them to the forehead, and in a few minutes relief will come. The leaves will burn like fire for a minute or two, but will gradually lessen in sting until they ease the pain and make the patient drop off into a restful sleep. For years we have used this remedy in my family and found it to be indispensable."

How to Water Plants.

In watering plants it would be well to bear in mind that a simple method by which you can tell whether a plant is dry or not is to tap on the side of the pot with your knuckles, and if it has a ringing sound it is an indication that water is needed and therefore must be given a good soaking. The best time for watering is in the morning, but on no account should a plant be allowed to suffer for the want of water, no matter what time of the day its need is discerned.

How to Cure a Bruise.

If olive oil is liberally applied, without rubbing, in the treatment of contusions where there is an extensive discoloration of the skin the discoloration will quickly disappear. The oil may be soaked in absorbent cotton and then applied. If the skin is broken a little boric acid should be applied over the abrasion. A bruise which is treated in this manner will soon disappear, especially if warm olive oil is applied.

How to Extract a Caught Leg.

If a baby or a child gets its leg caught in an uncovered iron pipe and you can't get the hand down to take it out, get a long poker, bend it a little at the end and let it down the side of the hole. Then place the bent part under the foot and raise gently. This often has saved the breaking and bruising of a limb.

How to Make Raw Beef Sandwiches.

To make raw beef sandwiches grate the round steak. This makes a paste, which is seasoned only with salt. This mixture may then be spread either on very thin bread or on salted crackers, as one chooses. They may be eaten at any time during the day.

Copeland Club Win.

At the field day of the St. Mary's Guild, held at the Ward Four playground on June 17, the baseball game furnished the most interesting portion of the entertainment for the day. The opposing teams were the Copeland Club and the West End Club. After an exciting contest, lasting ten innings, the Copeland aggregation were the winners.

The game was a neck-and-neck race for nine innings, both teams showing some fast base ball. In the last half of the tenth inning, with Desmond on third base, Elcock connected for a pretty single, scoring the Copeland twirler, and winning the game.

The best work of the afternoon was furnished for Copeland by Desmond and Sullivan, and for the West Ends, by Patterson and Canavan. The score was as follows:

Quincy High Defeated.

Quincy High and the England High school of Lynn met at Merrymount park on the morning of the holiday, and the visitors had the game well in hand from the start. The hopes of the friends of the Quincy boys were aroused at different times particularly in the sixth inning when the home team filled the bases before any one was out; but a double play followed and only one score resulted. In another inning with the bases full, a Quincy man closed the inning by striking out. The rally in the last inning came too late.

Married Men Win.

In an interesting game at Taylor Terrace Park on June 17, the married Men of Norfolk Downs defeated the Taylor Terrace A. C. by the score of 8 to 4. Stevens, captain of the Deweys last year, played with the Married Men, also Flynn formerly of Cincinatti. The features of the game were the batting of Poland, Welch, and Stevens. Welch pitched a fine game, getting 10 strikeouts.

Newsy Budget From Shipyard

The scout cruiser Salem leaves the Fore River on Saturday for Rockland, Me., for her official trials, the standardization test taking place June 23. In her trial trips off Provincetown four sets of propellers were tried, but those made by the Fore River Co. were considered better than those of the German and Scotch types. With the Fore River type the Salem made nearly two knots more than the contract speed.

The Birmingham, built at Quincy, has sailed from Guantanamo for Boston.

The Des Moines, built at Quincy, is now at Guantanamo.

There never has been a fatality at any of the launchings at the Fore River plant, but other yards are not as successful. A Buffalo dispatch of Tuesday, says, one man was killed, one fatally injured and another badly hurt at the launching of a small river steamer from Squaw island into Niagara river this afternoon. The men stood amidships when the boat was started down the ways instead of forward or aft in a safe position. When the boat struck the water the three men were hurled head foremost into the hold.

NORFOLK SS. SUPERIOR COURT.

To the Honorable the Justices of the Superior Court to be holden at Dedham within and for the County of Norfolk:

Respectfully libels and represents Caterina Bizzozero of Quincy in said County, that she was lawfully married to Natale Bizzozero formerly of Quincy, Massachusetts, now of parts unknown, at Quincy on the third day of July A. D. 1899 and thereafterwards your libellant and the said Natale Bizzozero lived together as husband and wife in this Commonwealth, to wit, at said Quincy, at East Lyme, Connecticut, and afterwards at said Quincy and there have been born to them the following children, Iride aged 16, Antenore aged 14, Norma aged 12 and Elvira aged 10, of whom the said Natale is the father; that your libellant has always been faithful to her marriage vows and obligations but the said Natale Bizzozero being wholly regardless of the same at said Quincy on THURSDAY the nineteenth day of March A. D. 1908, and on the twenty-first day of March A. D. 1908, and on numerous other occasions before said dates has been guilty of gross and confirmed habits of intoxication caused by the voluntary and excessive use of intoxicating liquor.

Wherefore your libellant prays that a divorce from the bonds of matrimony may be decreed between your libellant and the said Natale Bizzozero, and that the libellant may have the care and custody of the said minor children, Iride, Antenore, Norma and Elvira.

And your libellant further says that she is without adequate means or funds for maintaining this libel, or of support for herself and their four children now in her custody and that said Natale has failed and refused to pay for maintaining said libel or to furnish the necessaries of life or to give any assistance in the support of your libellant and his minor children, although well able to do so.

Wherefore your libellant prays that the said Natale Bizzozero may be ordered to pay into the court for the use of your libellant during the pendency of the libel, an amount which may enable her to maintain the libel although exceeding the taxable costs and may be required to pay to your libellant alimony during the pendency of the libel and such sums as your Honors may consider expedient and necessary for the benefit and support of your libellant and the said four children.

And your libellant further prays that the real and personal estate of the said libellee may be attached to the value of $10,000.00 in order to secure a suitable support and maintenance to your libellant and to such children as may be given to her care and custody.

Dated the 19th day of May 1908.

Dr. William Everett Bunker Hill Orator

Hon. William Everett's address was the feature of the eighty-fifth annual meeting of the Bunker Hill Monument Association, held at the Hotel Vendome on the morning of the Seventeenth of June, says the Transcript. It was a splendid appreciation of Pitt, Burke, Fox and other friends of the Colonists, and was based on Sir George Trevelyan's story of the American Revolution. Notwithstanding the fact that Dr. Everett apologized for reading his address, acting on his physician's advice, his delivery did not lack vigor. His quotations from the speeches and writings of the statesmen mentioned were delivered with dramatic fire and intensity. At the conclusion of the reading Dr. Everett received loud and long-continued applause. Rev. Edward Everett Hale, D. D., who occupied a seat in the front row, grasped him by the hand and congratulated him warmly.

In opening his address, Dr. Everett declared that the history of the American Revolution was a part of the history of England, which was then our own country. He had always felt it to be a serious defect in many of our national historians that they had not laid sufficient emphasis on the history of the mother country. They had dealt with certain portions of the history of England, but they had failed to comprehend two things: First, that until American independence was fairly acknowledged by treaty, American history was largely a part of English history, and up to 1776, wholly so, and not properly to be understood by anyone who tried to keep them apart. But more than that, the history of England was in itself and for its own sake, an object of study of the very highest value. To study it as many Americans did, very much as they studied the history of Spain, because Columbus sailed under the protection of the queen of Castile, showed a culpable ignorance of what any plan of modern culture ought to attain.

George Trevelyn wrote the history of England as a part of our history. His writing was impartial; but, though impartial, it was distinctly not neutral. He was as entirely convinced of the justice of the American cause as were ever Marshall and Bancroft; he was as sure that the English ministry pursued a tyrannical course as were Burke and Fox. But he spared not a single weakness in the Revolutionists. The only prominent character whom he handles with gloves is Charles Lee.

Dr. Everett declared that any American in this year, 1908, who thinks he knows the history of the War of the Revolution and yet admits that he has not read Trevelyan's book convicts himself of inexcusable ignorance. Considering Trevelyan never set foot on our continent, and did not, until he was thirty years old, turn his attention to our story in any intelligent way, his success has been remarkable.

Dr. Everett declared that a very instructive chapter in Treveljan's book is what the author says about the royalists— that they took no very active part in aiding the colonists. The most remarkable services the author had rendered our history was in bringing out the truth which is ignored by too many persons—namely, the relations of our Wigs, as the Revolutionary party here was known, to the Wigs of England. The usual story had been that we began in 1775 to fight an entire foreign people called British (why not English?), whose king tried to subdue us, and that after three years we began to be helped by another foreign king called French. Trevelyan brought out, however, in the clearest way, that the Civil War was anything but a natural war; that it was essentially a war taken up against the judgment of the prime minister to please the king's idea of his own rights, which had been instilled into him by his mother; that the parliamentary majority which supported him was entirely venal, no true representatives of the people, and that the true Englishmen (the Whig party) were convined that the cause of American liberty was the cause of English liberty; that they felt that if the rights of America were crushed, the rights of England would speedily follow.

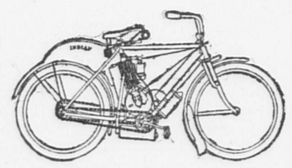

Dr. Everett closed with an earnest appeal to his hearers to be as grateful as they pleased to Franklin, Adams, Washington, Green and other colonists, but never to forget the two Pitts, Camden, Barry, Burke, Conway, Walpole, Fox.

The Republican Nominees for President and Vice President

Gov. Guild Placed in Nomination But Sherman Won on the First Ballot

Chicago, June 19—James S. Sherman of New York will be the running mate with William H. Taft of Ohio on the Republican National ticket next November.

Gov. Guild and other "favorite sons' were placed in nomination today for the Vice Presidency, but the New York congressman won on the first ballot.

The home of Candidate Sherman is at Utica, N. Y., being the representative from the 27th New York district. He was born in that State in 1855 and attended Hamilton college. He was graduated in 1878, and is a lawyer by profession.

Curtis Guild, Jr., was placed in nomination for the vice presidency by Senator Lodge, who said:

In behalf of Massachusetts I have the honor to present to this convention the governor of that state for nomination as your candidate for vice president. Born in Massachusetts, the descendant of Massachusetts ancestors, with the blood of Revolutionary soldiers in his veins, he was bred in her schools and graduated with honors from Harvard, the great university, coeval with the state itself. By inheritance and conviction alike, he was a Republican, and as soon as he was out of college he began to work for the party, and to do all in his power to promote its success and advance its principles. In the campaign of 1884, when there was a widespread revolt against the Republican candidate, he stood firm for his party and its principles and cheerfully encountered abuse and obloquy because he would not desert the cause to which he was devoted.

For years he served his party, putting at their disposal all his powers of eloquent speech in any state at any time. All this he did without thought of office or reward.

When the war with Spain broke upon the country he was first to offer his services and gave up his commission as a general of militia to take the position of adjutant in a regiment ordered to the front. Appointed later to the staff of General Lee, he served with distinction throughout the war, commended alike by his superior officers and by all with whom he was associated.

In recognition of his services President McKinley offered him a high place in one of our new possessions, which he declined. He continued, with unabated zeal, his work for the Republican party, and in 1900 he accompanied President Roosevelt in his great campaign of that year, speaking with him in every part of the country.

Six years ago he was nominated for lieutenant governor of Massachusetts. Three times elected to that office, he was promoted to the governorship of that state and three times elected by decisive majorities, and is now serving his last term.

Such is the record of the man I present to this convention, in the name of Massachusetts, for nomination as vice president. It is a record of distinguished service to his party and to the state, generously, ungrudgingly given. He has been an able and an honorable governor, devoting all his strength of body and mind to the advancement of Massachusetts. Liberal and progressive, his name is associated, not only with sound administration, but with the earnest advocacy of measures which would promote the welfare of the state, and which were in the interests of the broadest humanity. Of conspicuous ability, of remarkable eloquence in speech, of unblemished character, a lifelong and loyal Republican, he would bring to the service of the nation the same devotion to principle, the same zeal and energy, the same earnest faith in what he believes to be right, that he has for years given to Massachusetts and to the service of his party.

I have the honor, the great honor, to present to you for nomination the Hon. Curtis Guild of Massachusetts.

The nomination of Governor Guild for the vice presidency was seconded by Chase S. Osborn of Sault Ste Marie, Mich. He said:

The Republican nominee for vice president must be of presidential calibre. Every candidate before this convention for president would have made a good chief executive. This convention had to select the best man. It has done its work perfectly in this respect.

Every candidate for vice president before this convention would make a good vice president. It is the duty of this convention to select the best man —Governor Curtis Guild, Jr., of Massachusetts.

For his state he has fought disease in school and factory; he has done away with child labor at night and will abolish child labor altogether if given an opportunity. He has divorced the saloon from politics and the result is a reign of reason, with neither blue laws nor the lid off. Bucket shops have been driven out under his leadership and a banking law inaugurated so safe that not a failure occurred under it during last year's panic. Railroad and trolley consolidation destroying competition has been opposed by him and the highest courts sustained his position.

Governor Guild's political belief contains the high sentiment that neither race, color nor creed should give a man office or keep him from it.

He is a brigadier general in the state service; rose from lieutenant to colonel in the Spanish-American war; accomplished civic and sanitary reforms in Cuba; broke up the death-stalking fever camps in south Florida.

There is no twilight zone in Governor Guild's conscience where duty compromises with policy or right with wrong. He is just and kindly in dealing with labor and has its love, support and respect.

Governor Guild is a powerful and convincing orator and a tireless and fearless campaigner. He has transformed Massachusetts from forty thousand Democratic to one hundred thousand Republican.

The nation needs him: the Republican party must have him; President Taft cannot get along without him.

Massachusetts Republicans sift their public men finely and at the very forefront they have placed Governor Guild.

Nominate him and shouts of Republican victory will reverberate from Itasca to the Everglades; from the Penobscot to the Pecos; from Hell Gate to the Golden Gate.

Taft Is Choice of the Republican Party For President

IS NAMED ON FIRST BALLOT

Received Over Seven Hundred Votes, His Closest Competitor Being Knox, With Sixty-Eight--Nomination Made Unanimous by Representatives of Defeated Candidates--Three Votes Cast For Roosevelt, For Whom Another Great Demonstration Occurs--Platform Is Adopted After Long Wrangle--Active Propaganda In the Interest of Sherman For Vice President

Chicago, June 19.—For President of the United States, William H. Taft of Ohio. Taft on the first ballot; Taft by 702 votes; Taft by unanimous choice of the convention.

Such is the record of the culminating day of the Republican national convention of 1908, effected amid scenes of tumultous enthusiasm and after a nerve-racking continuous session lasting nearly eight hours. With president named and platform enunciated, there remains only the nomination for vice presidet to complete this momentous work. Last night the whole city was given over to wild exultation in honor of the new candidate whose name goes echoing through the country.

The picture within the walls of the vast amphitheatre as the presidential candidate was named was one truly grand. In front, to the right and left, below and above, the billowing sea of humanity, restless after hours of waiting and stirred from one emotion to another, was in a fever of expectancy for the culminating vote. The favorite sons of other states had been named, save Knox and La Follette, and now on the rollcall came Ohio.

As the Buckeye state was reached the tall, gaunt form of Theodore E. Burton, with student-like face and severe black clerical garb, advanced to the platform to nominate Ohio's candidate. He spoke fervently, with the singing voice of an evangelist, which went ringing through the great building.

Enthusiasm Breaks Loose

The close of his speech of nomination was the signal for loosing the long pent-up feeling of the Taft legions. Instantly the Ohio delegates were on their feet, other Taft states following, while the convention hosts in gallery and on floor broke into a mad demonstration. "Taft, Taft, W. H. Taft," came in a roar from the Ohioans.

Megaphones seemed to spring from concealed places and swell the Taft tumult into thunder. A huge blue silk banner, bearing the familiar features of the statesman-secretary, was swung before the delegates, awakening a fresh whirlwind of enthusiasm.

All semblance of order had been abandoned and the delegates' arena was a maelstrom of gesticulating men; the guidons of the states were snatched up by the Taft enthusiasts or borne under by the storm of disorder. The band was inaudible, a mere whisper above the deafening volume of sound. For ten, fifteen, twenty minutes, this uproar continued. It was a repetition of the scene of Wednesday when the name of Roosevelt threw the convention into a frenzy, repeated in intensity and almost in duration.

But there is a limit to the physical resources of throats and lungs. Relays had not been established and at last the tired voices died down to a hoarse shout and at last subsided.

This lull now gave the opportunity for a speech seconding Taft's nomination by George H. Knight of California, whose big, round face beamed forth on the sympathetic multitude, and whose splendid baritone voice welled forth like the tones of a great church organ. California's tribute to Taft was brief and fervid.

Ready For Balloting

Now there was another lull in the Taft movement, while the remaining candidates were placed in nomination. It was late in the afternoon before the convention, now literally sweltering from the intense heat and weary after nearly seven hours of continuous session, reached the end of the flood of eloquence and the decks were at last clear for the decisive act, the balloting.

But just as the last oratory, the seconding speech for La Follette, had died away, like a cyclone from a clear sky burst a La Follette demonstration which swept the convention from its very bearings. It was the same deafening wave of sound that had greeted Roosevelt Wednesday and Taft a little while before, intense and maddening, and with the vital ring of genuine enthusiasm. It seemed as though Wisconsin had suddenly peopled every foot of the galleries. The delegates sat calm and waiting, except the frantic Wisconsin men, but the convention for the time being was in the possession of the galleries.

Now a singular transformation occurred. Gradually the whirlwind veered from La Follette to Roosevelt. A banner bearing the Roosevelt portrait and waved from the gallery was the signal for the change, but in the confused babel of voices there was no distinguishing where the La Follette cheers ended and those for Roosevelt began.

Amid this pandemonium and with the galleries in full control, Chairman Lodge decided upon heroic action to again make the convention master of its affairs. He ordered the rollcall of states to begin for the vote on president. Such a call, under such circumstances of intense confusion, has probably never before occurred in the history of national conventions.

Cheers For Man Not a Candidate

The secretary was powerless to make his call of the states heard above the deafening clamor. Seizing a megaphone, he shouted the roll of states—Alabama, Arkansas—but his voice was swallowed up in the mad uproar. Gradually, however, the curiosity of the multitude conquered their enthusiasm and they lapsed into silence to hear the rollcall.

A ballot was taken to nominate a candidate for president while the convention was cheering frantically for a man whose name had not been presented to the convention. The votes were being counted for Taft while the people were shouting for Roosevelt. The delegates, however, cast their votes uninfluenced by the clamor of the crowd. More than this, the first states on the call, Alabama and Arkansas, had been relied upon by a few Roosevelt enthusiasts to start the stampede for the president, but they held by their instructions, while the stampede raged all about them.

A hush of expectancy hung over the assembly as the call proceeded. Hasty summaries showed that Taft was far in advance. When New York was reached the Taft column totalled 427. Ohio carried the Taft total to 511, or 20 more than enough to nominate. Still the call went on until the final result was announced by Chairman Lodge:

Announcement of the Vote

"For Theodore Roosevelt, 3 votes; for Joseph B. Foraker of Ohio, 16 votes; for Charles W. Fairbanks of Indiana, 40 votes; for Joseph G. Cannon of Illinois, 61 votes; for Robert La Follette of Wisconsin, 25 votes; for Charles E. Hughes of New York, 63 votes; for Philander C. Knox of Pennsylvania, 68 votes, and for William H. Taft of Ohio, 702 votes."

A great shout went up as Lodge concluded his announcement, and with one accord the cohorts of Cannon and Knox and Hughes and the other heroes joined in a common tribute for the candidate of the party.

Stewart L. Woodford, for Governor Hughes, leaping upon a chair, moved to make the nomination of Taft unanimous; Senator Penrose for Knox, Congressman Boutell for Cannon, and Henry of Georgia for Foraker, and Wisconsin for La Follette, seconded the movement for a unanimous vote to the candidate. The vote was given with a ringing cheer, and then, with shouts of exultation over the new candidate, the convention adjourned until today, when the nomination of vice president will be made.

The Platform Fight

Earlier in the day the battle over the platform had occupied the close attention of delegates and spectators. The platform as framed by the committee on resolutions was read by its chairman, Senator Hopkins of Illinois, while a minority report reflecting the views of the supporters of Senator La Follette was presented by Congressman Cooper of Wisconsin. It was on one hand the sledge hammer blows of Wisconsin men against combinations and monopoly, and on the other hand the warning of Hopkins against the "socialistic doctrines of Wisconsin." The platform was adopted by an overwhelming vote, after many separate planks in the Wisconsin plan had been buried under adverse votes.

The Platform

The platform as submitted to the convention by the resolutions committee was not materially changed from the tentative document as printed on Wednesday.

The platform as adopted declares President Roosevelt's administration an epoch in American history. He has bravely and impartially enforced the laws.

Declares unfaltering adherence to Roosevelt policies and pledges a continuance of them.

Equality of opportunity to all in the development and enjoyment of wealth.

Commends the passage of the emergency currency bill.

Declares for revision of the tariff immediately after the inauguration of the next president, maximum and minimum rate and the true principle of protection to rule.

Commits the party to the development of a permanent currency system, every dollar to be based upon and be as good as gold.

Literalization of the Sherman anti-trust law is urged.

Enactment of the railroad rate law is approved and congress praised for appropriating money for the better enforcement of the law.

Legislation favored that will prevent future over-issue of stocks and bonds by interstate carriers.

Pledges the Republican party to continued devotion to every cause that makes for safety and betterment of labor conditions and induces the greater happiness, well being and better citizenship of laboring men.

Authority and integrity of the courts is upheld, but belief is expressed that the issuance of the writ of injunction should be more accurately defined by statute, and no injunction, temporary or by restraining order, be issued without notice, except where irreparable injury would result from delay.

Equal justice to the rights of the negro asserted, and all devices that have as their object the disenfranchisement of the negro are condemned, and the enforcement in letter and spirit of the thirteenth, fourteenth and fifteenth amendments to the Constitution is urged.

Favors giving inhabitants of Porto Rico citizenship of the United States.

Immediate admission of New Mexico and Arizona as separate states in the Union recommended.

Declares that the differences between the Democracy and Republicans is fundamental and that the Democrats are incapable of government.

Candidates Nominated

It was not until four hours had been spent over the platform that the convention was ready to proceed with the nomination speeches for president. First came the nomination of Speaker Cannon by Representative Boutell of Illinois, seconded by Representative Fordney of Michigan, which awakened a welcoming yell for the "grand old man" of Illinois.

The nominating speech for Vice President Fairbanks by Governor Hanly of Indiana was made amid intense confusion and constant interruption. Smarting under these discourtesies toward the governor, Mayor Bookwalter of Indianapolis began his speech seconding the nomination of Fairbanks with a cutting allusion to the "steam roller" which was crushing out all opposition.

The convention gave enthusiastic welcome to the name of Hughes, as General Woodford presented the governor's candidacy in fervent words.

The name of Senator Foraker was placed in nomination by Judge McCoy of Ohio and seconded by a negro delegate from Georgia, W. O. Emery, the latter winning a true ovation as he closed the splendid tribute to Foraker in the name of two million black voters.

The call of Pennsylvania brought the Keystone delegation to their feet in a wild demonstration for Senator Knox and a little later Wisconsin followed with its enthusiastic tribute to Wisconsin's candidate, Senator La Follette. The speeches concluded, the time for balloting arrived, with the results already given.

SHERMAN LOOMS UP

New Yorkers Want Him Named as Taft's Running Mate

The presidential candidate will be permitted to name his running mate if he so desires. No sooner had the convention adjourned than Taft's supporters set to work to ascertain his wishes regarding a candidate for the vice presidency. They wired him direct and, pending his reply, refused to voice any opinion as to the probable outcome of the ballot. As the rule the Taft men manifest a willingness to abide by the secretary's wishes, but there are those among them who take the position that the delegates should be permitted to cast their votes according to their own desires.

For the first time there is an active propaganda in the interest of Congressman Sherman of New York. It is stated positively that he will have the support of the entire delegation from his own state, and it is stated by Chairman Woodruff that he will get Oklahoma solid and that he will have the votes from many other states, specifically Pennsylvania, Illinois, Michigan, Indiana, Colorado and many of the New England and other states.

New York to the Fore

New York state restored herself last night to the convention map, her position on which had previously been obscured by lack of harmony in the delegation. In a caucus it was unanimously voted to back with the whole state strength of seventy-eight votes the candidacy of Sherman. In accepting the caucus instructions to present Sherman's name in the convention, Chairman Woodruff said that if desired by New York, Colorado would therefore give way on the rollcall to New York, in order to get Sherman's name early before the delegation, that he had official assurances also of the support of a number of other states, especially including Michigan, Illinois, Pennsylvania, Indiana, Maine, Iowa and Idaho.

The men in the delegation who have been working since they arrived here, first to secure the undivided support of the delegates for the presidential candidacy of Governor Hughes, and then for a unanimous vote for Sherman, who has at all times been the personal choice of a majority of the delegation, failed in the first, but brilliantly succeeded in the second. The Hughes men were among the most enthusiastic in their support of Sherman in the caucus.

Iowa For Cummins

The Iowa delegation in caucus last night finally went on record for Governor Cummins as their candidate for Taft's running mate. The vote was unanimous. The firm stand taken by a majority of the delegation against Dolliver because of the political situation in Iowa, and Dolliver's own announcement that he did not desire the nomination, necessitated the meeting in order that a candidate might be determined on. Having in mind the understood preference of the administration for Governor Cummins, his name was fully discussed. In the event that Dolliver's name is presented by any other state, it is stated that the delegation has full authority to withdraw it.

There is still talk of the renomination of Vice President Fairbanks, but his stock has gone down before the frequently expressed opinion that the secretary would not give him the preference of his endorsement. There are those among Taft's friends who are willing to say that Fairbanks could do more for the ticket than anyone else and they contend for his nomination, even in the face of criticisms and differences of opinion. Those nearest to the secretary are, however, apparently not among those who hold this view.

A number of the Massachusetts men sought out the other New England delegations, urging concerted action in behalf of Guild. They met with some encouragement, but it is understood no actual promises were given. None of the New England states held meetings last night, although it was said that some of the states would seek to agree upon a candidate today.

Will Present Guild's Name

There is no intimation but that Massachusetts will present Governor Guild's name to the convention. Senator Lodge is slated to make the nominating speech and a member of the Michigan delegation, among whom Guild is popular, will second the nomination.

New Hampshire sentiment seems to tend toward Fairbanks, although none of the delegates will give any direct preference.

It is said that Vermont will vote for Sherman of New York.

Rhode Island is also inclined to favor a New York man for second place, and the consensus of opinion among the Connecticut party is in a similar vein.

Taft Resigns Secretaryship

Washington, June 19.—Secretary Taft's resignation as a cabinet officer was received by President Roosevelt today. It will take effect on July 1. "The president wants me to leave a clean slate for my successor," said the war secretary to newspaper men, "and it will take me at least ten days to settle all pending matters in the war department. I have no definite plans as to when I will leave Washington."

Roosevelt's Estimate of Taft

Washington, June 19.—Immediately upon receiving news of the nomination of Secretary Taft for the presidency, President Roosevelt said:

"I feel that the country is indeed to be congratulated upon the nomination of Mr. Taft. I have known him intimately for many years and I have a peculiar feeling for him, because throughout that time we have worked for the same object with the same purposes and ideals.

"I do not believe there can be found in the whole country a man so well fitted to be president. He is not only absolutely fearless, absolutely disinterested and upright, but he has the widest acquaintance with the nation's needs without and within and the broadest sympathies with all our citizens.

"He would be as emphatically a president of the plain people as Lincoln, yet not Lincoln himself would be freer from the least taint of demagogy, the least tendency to arouse or appeal to class hatred of any kind. He has a peculiar and intimate knowledge of and sympathy with the needs of all our people—of the farmer, of the wage worker, of the business man, of the property owner.

"No matter what a man's occupation or social position, no matter what his creed, his color or the section of the country from which he comes, if he is an honest, hard-working man, who tries to do his duty toward his neighbor and toward the country, he can rest assured that he will have in Mr. Taft the most upright of representatives and the most fearless of champions.

"Mr. Taft stands against privilege, and he stands pre-eminently for the broad principles of American citizenship, which lie at the foundation of our national well-being."

Taft Promised Support

Indianapolis, June 19.—Vice President Fairbanks at his home received the news of the nomination of Taft and also sent the following telegram:

"Accept my most cordial congratulations upon your nomination and best wishes for a successful administration."

Pittsburg, June 19.—Senator Knox sent the following telegram to Secretary Taft:

"I sincerely congratulate you on the result at Chicago. Pennsylvania, as usual, will lead the list of your enthusiastic supporters."

Chicago, June 19.—Speaker Cannon sent a message to Secretary Taft, as follows:

"You have been nominated as candidate for president by the Republican national convention. I heartily congratulate you. You will be elected by the people in November. Illinois will cast her electoral vote for you. Whatever I can do for your success and that of the party will be done."

Washington, June 19.—"Until the convention made a nomination every Republican had a right to have his choice," said Senator Foraker, but now it is no longer a question of men, but a question of party. In this way Secretary Taft becomes my candidate for the presidency and, while under all the circumstances I can probably do but little, yet I shall do all I can to help elect him. Republicans will now quit contending among themselves and turn all their guns on the common enemy."

Comment From Bryan Later

Lincoln, Neb., June 19.—William J. Bryan received news of the action of the Republican national convention at his home and evinced considerable interest in the result. He was especially interested in the vote for La Follette. He said he had no comment to make on the convention's work, but would soon prepare a statement of his views on the Republican platform.

Gratification In Philippines

Manila, June 19.—An Associated Press bulletin conveyed to the people of the Philippines the first news of the nomination of Secretary of War Taft for president. The news which was rapidly circulated early this morning in the newspaper extras was generally received with gratification. Scores of cablegrams of congratulation were started toward Washington.

CAUSE AND CURE OF APPENDICITIS

THE SIMPLE REMEDY THAT EFFECTS THE CURE

Professor Blanchard of the French Academy of Medicine has spent a great amount of time studying that dread disease—Appendicitis. In company with Professor Metchnikoff, he has carefully examined numerous cases, and both have reached the conclusion that the cure is not the knife. In more than forty cases the symptoms of Appendicitis disappeared after the patients had been treated for worms.

There are, no doubt, many persons suffering from worms who are erroneously attributing their trouble to some other cause. A few doses of Dr. True's Elixir are sufficient in most cases for the complete expulsion of the worms.

The presence of these parasites is easily recognized by the following symptoms:—Indigestion; foul tongue; offensive breath; variable appetite; hard and full belly with occasional gripings and pains about the navel; heavy, dull eyes; itching of the nose; short dry cough; grinding of the teeth; starting during sleep; slow and frequent fever; in children—convulsions and bed wetting.

Dr. True's Elixir will not only expel the worms, but will build up the whole system as well.

DR. TRUE'S ELIXIR THE OLD FAMILY REMEDY

TAFT IS VERY HAPPY

Suppressed Nervous Tension Relieved After Nomination

WIFE GREATLY INTERESTED

Situation In Secretary's Office Became Tense as He and His Friends Awaited Final Result of Balloting In the Convention

Washington, June 19.—"Words do not find themselves at a time like this. I do not deny that I am very happy."

This was the response of Secretary Taft to a request for an expression of his views on his nomination for the presidency. The sentences did not come easily. Throughout the afternoon preceding the announcement of his nomination the secretary had been laboring under suppressed nervous tension. The atmosphere of his office was electric with excitement.

Notwithstanding the great personal interest which he had in the proceedings at Chicago, Taft did not allow politics to interfere for a moment with his transaction of official business as secretary of war. In the intermission of the receipt of the bulletins from the convention the secretary disposed of several departmental questions, and when his nomination for the presidency was announced his desk practically was cleared of important official business.

Throughout the afternoon the private office of Secretary Taft and the offices of his private secretary, Frederick Carpenter, were thronged with members of his family, intimate personal and official friends and newspaper men.

Shortly before 12 o'clock Mrs. Taft arrived at the war department. She scanned carefully the bulletins which had been received from the convention, and distinctly manifested her pleasure at the result of the action of the convention regarding the platform. She is a close and accurate observer of things political, and is one of the best advisers the secretary has had throughout the preliminary campaign for the presidential nomination. She remained in the secretary's private office throughout the afternoon.

Secretary Taft had arranged to visit the war college with Secretary Root at 5 o'clock, but at the last moment he naturally concluded to await the result of the ballot which was about to be taken in Chicago. By this time the situation in the secretary's office had become tense. The door between Taft's private office and Carpenter's office was thrown wide open. In the former stood Taft, surrounded by members of his family and personal and political friends. In the outer room with Secretary Carpenter were thirty Washington correspondents, each hanging on every word that came from the telegraph instrument.

As the balloting began in the convention the atmosphere in the two rooms seemed to be surcharged with excitement. Scarcely a word was spoken. Men who are not ordinarily effected by the "nerves" hung over the instrument as if their lives depended upon the words which the stolid telegraph operator was ticking out on his typewriter.

Something went wrong with the official dispatches. The first announcement was that Massachusetts had cast thirty-two votes for Taft. Then the announcement from Michigan was received with its one vote for Cannon. At that moment Carpenter's telephone jingled and William Pannell, Taft's personal messenger, received a flash from The Associated Press that Taft had been nominated.

The information created a commotion. Mr. Williams had the convention hall on the long distance telephone, but on account of the confusion in the Coliseum was unable to confirm the news. A minute or so later another bulletin from The Associated Press, confirmatory of the first, was received, and was followed soon afterward by confirmations from other quarters. Scarcely had this news been received when over the official wire came the flash "Taft is nominated."

Mrs. Taft rose from her seat at the secretary's desk and turned to her husband, who was standing at her right. It was an eloquent handclasp they gave each other. Mrs. Taft was bubbling over with happiness. All evidence of the nervous strain which had been in her face during the entire afternoon had disappeared. The secretary himself laughed with the joy of a boy. Around both the Secretary and Mrs. Taft their friends crowded to offer their congratulations. It was a happy scene, the realization of months' labor and tribulation.

Secretary Root was the first cabinet officer to extend his congratulations on the nomination. He remarked facetiously to Taft, while the latter was shaking hands with some of his newspaper friends, that he probably would find it difficult to "shake these men either during his campaign or after his election." Taft responded that he had no idea of shaking them at any time.

MADE A FIERY BEACON

Hotel and Stables on Top of Mount Washington Burned

Gorham, N. H., June 19.—The Summit House, a hotel at the top of Mount Washington, known to thousands of summer tourists, was burned last night, together with a large stable nearby. Situated at an elevation of over 6000 feet above the sea level, the burning buildings presented a brilliant spectacle, which was visible for a score of miles in all directions.

The hotel had not been opened for the summer, but a portion of it is said to have been occupied by some workmen employed in repairing the Mount Washington railway. It is supposed that the fire started from an accidental cause.

The Summit House was a long wooden building of two and a half stories, situated at the terminus of the Mount Washington railway at the highest point of the mountain. It was built thirty-six years ago and had accommodations for 300 guests. Both the burned buildings were owned by the Boston and Maine Railroad company, and were leased by a Boston firm.

In addition to the Summit House was burned the printing office of the paper "Among the Clouds." A second stable and a stage office were also burned.

Only one building, the old Tip Top house, a stone and wood structure, now remains at the top of the mountain. The Tip Top house was to the west of the Summit House, and the flames were blown away from it toward the east. Both the Summit House and the stables were burned flat.

Fast Journey In Automobile

Boston, June 19.—C. W. Kelsey, driving a four-cylinder car, established a new record for automobiles for the run between Washington and this city. He left the capital at 2 o'clock Wednesday morning and reached Copley square at 6:15 o'clock last night, the actual running time being 28 hours and 15 minutes. Kelsey's car skidded and overturned down an embankment near New Haven, but the car and occupants were uninjured. A delay of four hours was caused by the mishap.

Soldiers Hurt In War Game

New York, June 19.—A bit of grim realism was thrown into the war game down at the Narrows when, through the premature explosion of a powder charge in a six-inch gun at Fort Wadsworth, three men were seriously injured, two of whom will die. Of the twenty men in the vicinity of the gun at the time of the accident several were thrown from their feet and slightly injured.

Ship and Crew Probably Lost

Norfolk, June 19.—The full rigged sailing ship Bungalere, which sailed from Norfolk for Honolulu Oct. 23 with a cargo of coal for the Atlantic fleet now in the Pacific ocean, is posted as overdue and missing and it is feared that she has been lost. She carried a crew of thirty men.

New Mill For Fall River

Fall River, Mass., June 19.—A new mill will be built by the Davis company here, to employ about 500 hands. The new plant will adjoin the present mill and will contain about 65,000 spindles, besides the other machinery. Work upon the new mill will start at once.

Death Sentence For Murderer

Little Valley, N. Y., June 19.—Pacy Hill was found guilty of murder in the first degree and sentenced to be executed in the week beginning July 26. Hill shot his cousin, Miss Chloe Hancock, at her home in Olean. Jealousy was the cause.

Army Officer Assassinated

D. A. R. Ladies Here on Visit

The members of John Adams chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, the oldest and wealthiest chapter in the State, is holding an outing in Quincy today as guests of Mrs. George H. Wilson, one of the members.

The ladies, some fifty in number, headed by Miss Floretta Vining the regent, arrived in Quincy at noon, and proceeded directly to Wilson's hall, where a lunch was served by Caterer La Croix.

A short business session followed at which Miss Vining presided. Miss Vining is the chapter's first regent, and has endeared herself to all the members by her earnest work in behalf of the chapter.

During the meeting Mrs. Martha Schuler read an interesting paper on "John Adams, the first Vice President and second President of the United States."

A feature not down on the regular program was the presentation to Mrs. John Roberts of a chapter bar and seven ancestral bars. The presentation speeech was made by Mrs. D. M. James, secretary of the chapter, and was in recognition of the work of Mrs. Roberts as chairman of the whist committee.

After the meeting the ladies went on a sight seeing trip, visiting the Adams shrine under the First church steps, the Dorothy Q. house, and other places of historic interest.

"BILL" FIELD

Takes Another Spurt and Opens up Gap Between Leaders

It looks now as if "Bill" Field would show "Capt." Foster how to sail that $250 Motor Boat which the Daily Ledger offers as a prize in the popularity contest. Today he has opened up the lead and has passed the 2,000 mark. Capt. Foster, however, made a good gain. On the other hand a Houghs Neck man is confident that the launch will go to Houghs Neck where some work is being done.

Other gains will be noted all along the line and there are at least ten new candidates. The Contest Editor was in doubt whether to rule out the "Launch Squash" or not, but decided that the boat would enter. Perhaps the owner would like something more speedy. Vote early and often.

Blanks for placing trial orders for the Daily Ledger may be obtained at the office of publication, and will be mailed upon request. Each trial order gives a credit of 100 votes to your favorite candidate.

The standing of the candidates will be printed each day, all votes received previous to 9 A. M. being counted that day.

It is not necessary that candidates shall be members of a yacht club or any other club. Neither is the contest limited to men. Women as well as men may enter.

The prizes offered are valuable ones, there being others besides the motor boat which is offered as a first prize.

The standing today at 9 A. M. was:

Pretty Wedding At West Quincy

A pretty wedding was solemnized Tuesday evening when Miss Agnes Taylor, daughter of Mrs. Jane Duncan, was united in marriage to Mr. Alexander Davison at the home of the bride's parents on Forest avenue. West Quincy.

The bride was becomingly gowned in a pearl grey silk trimmed with duchess lace and carried a bouquet of pink roses. The bride's sister, Mrs. May McKenzie was bridesmaid and looked very pretty gowned in cream colored lace over silk and carried a bouquet of pinks. The best man was Mr. Frank Duncan of Brookline. The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. N. Hardy of Bethany church.

An elaborate wedding supper was served. Music was furnished by Mrs. Lawrence Duncan and Mr. Davison, piano and violin. The house was beautifully decorated with potted plants and cut flowers. Beautiful presents were displayed in one of the side rooms.

Many relatives and friends were present to enjoy the evening's festivities and dancing was enjoyed by the younger people until a late hour, when all joined in singing "Auld Lang Syne" and wishing the bride and groom many happy years of married life.

Get After the Moths.

Commissioner Bainbridge requests all property owners to cooperate with the city in the suppression of the gypsy and brown tail moths. They may do this by turning the burlaps around their trees at least once a day, preferably in the morning and killing all caterpillars found. If this work is not done by property owners, city men will do it and a charge will be made for the work. There is need that the warfare against these moths be continued.

SAVED

Thousands of lives annually, of people who have learned of the efficacy of ELBA HOME REMEDIES. These preparations are not patent medicines. There are 34 of them, each one of which will cure some specific ill. The contents of each ELBA HOME REMEDY is printed plainly on the label. They are sold under our guarantee that they will do all that is claimed for them. Your money will be returned if you are not thoroughly satisfied that this is the case.

As an example ELBA HOME REMEDY No. 20, for Asthma, has been found most efficient. This is a disease that is most disagreeable and when permitted to run its course unchecked year after year, is apt to terminate in some dangerous and fatal malady.

We guarantee that ELBA HOME REMEDY No. 20 will opsitively cure asthma.

Mr. Fred C. Bowen, of Wilmington, Del., writes as follows:

"I believed I had exhausted the entire list of remedies knowtn to science for the cure of Asthma. The best result I had ever experienced was but a temporary relief until I took ELBA HOME REMEDIES No. 20. This gave me not only temporary relief, but gave it to me quickly and by persisting in its use, I have, I believe, effected a complete cure."

We will be glad to give you further particulars in regard to ELBA HOME REMEDIES if you will call on us.

Houghs Neck By the Seaside

The matter of street lights at Houghs Neck has been settled. Seventy lights in all will be installed in this section. Of this number 50 will be of what is known as the park gas light of 60 candle power, and 20 will be electric lights. In addition to this 10 gas lights will be installed in other parts of the city and 40 electric lights. By this plan each company receives a contract of 60 lights.

The Houghs Neck Associates dance scheduled for June 29th promises to be one of the biggest events of the season. The committee in charge are sparing no expense to make the affair a great success both socially and financially. A. F. Baird, the chairman of the way and means committee has received the following letter from H. S. Brown:

"Gentleman:—As a member of the Houghs Neck Associates and fully appreciating the good work done by our organization during the past year, and wishing to assist the association in acquiring and maintaining a headquarters where the general business may be more successfully conducted, I take pleasure in stating that on Monday evening, June 29, 1908, I will give the receipts of my dance hall to be devoted to a fund for such a purpose and would suggest that a committee be appointed at once with full powers to act to confer with me with the view of making this event a grand success both socially and financially. Awaiting your action regarding the matter and with best wishes for the continued success of the association."

The monthly supper of the Houghs Neck Associates will be held June 25 at the Great Hill house. The ladies have been invited this time.

New Car Service For West Quincy

Every 20 minutes is the schedule announced for the West Quincy line of electric cars, beginning Saturday, June 20, in place of the half-hourly service in vogue for several years. From 5.30 A. M. until 11.10 P. M., cars will leave City Square every 20 minutes for West Quincy and East Milton. The cars leave Quincy at 10, 30 and 50 minutes past the hour, and the return cars will leave East Milton at 15, 35 and 55 minutes past the hour.

On Sundays the service will be practically the same as week days, but the first car from Quincy to East Milton will be at 6.50 A. M., returning at 7.15 A. M.

Three cars an hour is an improvement which West Quincy people have long desired, and the street railway will undoubtedly carry many more passengers, as of late many have walked rather than wait 20 to 25 minutes. It means excellent service for West Quincy.

The Social Realm

The limit of life is brief;
'Tis the red in the red-rose leaf;
'Tis the gold in the sunset sky;
'Tis the flight of a bird on high.
Yet we may fill the space
With such an infinite grace
That the red will vein all time,
The gold through the ages shine,
And the bird fly swift and straight
To the lilies of God's own gate.

NOW ON OCEAN

Lives of Graduates Likened to Boats That are Travelling Down the River

The graduation exercises of the Quincy grammar schools were held Friday afternoon at High school hall. As usual the attendance was large and was only limited by the capacity of the hall. The weather conditions were decidedly better than in some years, for instead of being oppressively hot the hall was comfortable.

Music was a feature of the exercises and it was of very high order and greatly enjoyed. In addition to the choruses by the graduates there were selections for the piano, violin and cornet by Miss Minnie Louise Hilderbrand '09, Roger Edward Bates '10 and Max Olney Pinkham '07.

The exercises opened with the march of the graduates by schools, each carrying aloft its school banner. Each school as it marched in received its full share of applause. The program of the exercises was much the same as usual.

Superintendent Parlin in his introductory remarks gave some interesting statistics of this year's graduating classes. Of the total number, 396, there were 190 boys and 206 girls. The total was 39 less than last year or the same as in the year 1906. Of the total, 222 graduate without conditions and 361 receive certificates admitting to the High or Woodward school.

The number of years spent in school by the graduates was as follows:—2 six years; 17, seven years; 191, eight years; 117, nine years; 53, ten years and 16, eleven years. The average age spent in school, making no allowances for absence due from any cause, was 8 years and 8 months. The youngest graduate, a girl, was 11 years, 10 months old, and the oldest, also a girl, was 17 years, 9 months old.

Of the total, 2 were between 11 and 12 years of age; 47 between 12 and 13 years; 160 between 13 and 14 years; 126 between 14 and 15 years; 40 between 15 and 16 years; 19 between 16 and 17 years and 2 over 17 years, the average age of the class was 14 years and 1 month.

The address of the afternoon was by William C. Crawford master of the Washington school, Boston.

In opening his address Mr. Crawford said that he felt pleased to address an audience like that present. It was an honor to speak in Quincy whose name was synonymous of education, standing for all that is best in the way of education. He also congratulated the parents and city government in furnishing such schools.

He congratulated the boys and girls upon having the privilege of going to such schools and urged them as they had profited to show their gratitude and respect for the school officers and self-sacrificing parents. See to it that the boys and girls who follow you have as good if not better.

Your granite will continue to furnish material for buildings all over the country and your vessels will enter every port. Quincy is only a part of this great country that is worthy of your best efforts.

Continuing he likened the lives of the graduates to boats travelling down a river. All along the coast there are lights. Some shine out bright all the time, some are twinkling and then there are two together. These are for your guide as you go gliding down the smooth river.

But now you are approaching the ocean, and you feel the swell. That roar to the right and to the left means there are rocks ahead. Now you must be careful for there is no one to help you. Now you will know if you have profited by the wise lessons on the down path. You have a boat of good health, a mast of wisdom, a rudder of purpose and a lot of good lights.

It was particularly of these lights that he wished to speak. The first was the light of obedience. There was no such thing as chance or luck. Everything happens according to law. The business of your life is to discover these laws and obey them. Obedience in school fits you for life. If you have not had it your eight years means for the future hard work for the teachers and police.

Second, there is the light of honesty and truthfulness. These are twin lights. Be honest and truthful every day and every hour of your life. You do not deserve money until you have earned some. You have no right to capital until you have created one.

Third, there is the light of tact. This is a twinkling light. It means doing the right thing in the right place and in the right time. Business men want earnest boys and girls and not triflers. Be careful of other people feelings.

All of these lights are of no use unless you see them. It is for you to watch out and with them your voyage should be a prosperous one and in the end you will furl your sails in a safe harbor.

The presentation of diplomas to the graduates was one of the pretty incidents of the afternoon. Each school beginning with the Adams and ending with the Wollaston marching past the sub-committee of their school who presented the diplomas. Each pupil displayed the school colors and it was a proud army who were handed the certificates showing that they had graduated with honors from the grammar schools of Quincy.

Another pretty feature of the afternoon was the salute to the flag. It was given in unison and had a true ring to it that sent a thrill through the hearts of the hearers.

The exercises closed with the singing of America in which many of the audience joined.

The number of graduates by buildings is compared below with other years:

| | 1908. | 1907. | 1906. | 1905. | 1896. |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Adams | 41 | 42 | 38 | 36 | 41 |
| Coddington | 37 | 47 | 40 | 32 | 35 |
| Cranch | 44 | 41 | 36 | 29 | -- |
| Gridley Bryant | 23 | 28 | 31 | 33 | — |
| John Hancock | 23 | 29 | 22 | 28 | 24 |
| Lincoln | 24 | 34 | 27 | 43 | 25 |
| Massachusetts Fields | 31 | 41 | 33 | 43 | — |
| Quincy | 44 | 38 | 42 | 45 | 32 |
| Washington | 35 | 39 | 24 | 28 | 12 |

| Wollaston | 32 | 38 | 30 | 41 | 34 |
| | 396 | 435 | 396 | 430 | 256 |

The only buildings to graduate more than last year were the Cranch, Quincy and Willard.

ALL SHERMAN'S WAY

New Yorker Easily Wins Vice Presidential Nomination

OVER EIGHT HUNDRED VOTES

Only Halt Was When Guild and Murphy Were Placed In Nomination--Convention Finishes Its Work and Delegates Disperse

Chicago, June 20.—Taft and Sherman. This is the ticket of the Republican party flung to the breeze as the Republican national convention concluded with the nomination of James S. Sherman of New York for vice president amid a final roar of tumultuous demonstration.

Again the vast assembly was swept with wave on wave of wild exultant clamor, as the multitude, realizing that at last the work was done and the record made upon which the Republican party goes before the country, united in one last mighty outburst of enthusiastic tribute to the men who will bear forward the standard in the struggle now on hand.

CONGRESSMAN SHERMAN OF NEW YORK.

Another inspiring picture was presented as the convention named its candidate for vice president. The enormous throngs had waited through an hour of oratory, sweltering in the heat-laden atmosphere, packed into solid masses of humanity, with only here and there a few vacant spots in the remote galleries—the delegates in the broad arena below, the bright-hued lines of femininity in the circling galleries and over all the enveloping folds of "old glory."

From the outset it was distinctly a Sherman crowd, with galleries already trained into choruses of Sherman songs and an invading host of Sherman marchers, bearing a huge portrait of the New York candidate, starting the echoes ringing. Among the early arrivals on the floor was Speaker Cannon, a pillar of strength in the Sherman movement.

The nominating speeches for vice president began with a limit of ten minutes to each speaker. On the call of states, Delaware yielded to New York, and Timothy L. Woodruff mounted the platform for a glowing speech, placing in nomination Sherman as New York's choice for the vice presidency.

Now came a surprise, as the venerable Cannon emerged from the Illinois delegation and, stepping to the platform, was yielded unanimously consent to second the nomination of Sherman.

Such a picture of sturdy, homely, plain American citizenship as Cannon appeared, as he advanced before the throng which rose to do him homage, has seldom been seen before in a national convention. His serious face was beaded with sweat; his collar, melted to a rag, hung limp about his neck. His vest was thrown wide open, exposing a crumpled shirt, and the sleeves of his black alpaca coat curled up about his dangling cuffs to his elbows as his waving arms emphasized his ringing words for his colleague and friend—James S. Sherman of New York.

From the outbursts of enthusiasm which greeted every mention of Sherman's name it was plain that the mind of the convention had been made up and that the decision was only to be recorded. But for a moment there was a halt in the Sherman movement, as Senator Lodge, leaving the presiding officer's chair, advanced to nominate Governor Guild of Massachusetts for the vice presidency. Michigan, through Chase Osborn, added her voice for Guild, and New Jersey brought forward her favorite son in a speech by Thomas F. McCarter, nominating former Governor Murphy of New Jersey for second place on the ticket.

The steady advance of the Sherman movement now begun again, as state after state fell into line—North Carolina in a ringing speech from the floor by Harry Skinner, Oklahoma by D. T. Flynn, Pennsylvania by Congressman Olmstead, Tennessee by H. C. Evans, and Virginia by C. B. Slemp.

Now began the vote, taken amid confusion at first, which increased as the totals climbed upward to the nominating point. The result was never in doubt as the totals of states were heaped one by one upon another. There were scattering votes, but the great crowd of delegates swelled the total of Sherman until it touched 816. With keen appreciation of the effect of the climax, Chairman Lodge announced the result, reserving Sherman's sure total until the last.

"Vice President Fairbanks gets one vote; Governor Sheldon of Nebraska, 10 votes; Governor Guild of Massachusetts, 75 votes; Governor Murphy of New Jersey, 77 votes, and James S. Sherman of New York, 816 votes."

Again the flood of enthusiasm was let loose as floor and gallery joined in a pandemonium of demonstration for the nominee.

The nominations completed, final details were now quickly perfected—committees from the various states to wait upon the candidates for president and vice president and formally notify them of the action of the convention in nominating them; prospective meetings of the national committee to perfect plans for the coming campaign, and thanks and congratulations to the Chicagoans who have given a convention of such perfect equipment. And then, amid cheers still echoing and the inspiring strains of the national anthem, the national convention finally adjourned and the multitude dispersed.

Utica Proud of Sherman

Utica, N. Y., June 20.—The news of Sherman's nomination for vice president was received in this, his home city, with the ringing of bells, the firing of cannon and a general display of flags. Arrangements have been made for a demonstration in honor of Sherman on his return home. Telegrams of congratulation have been pouring in on the Sherman family.

Pleases Panama People

Panama, June 20.—The news of the nomination of Secretary of War Taft was welcomed by the people of Panama, who respect him highly. Domingo de Obaldia, formerly Panaman minister to the United States and now a candidate for the presidential nomination in this republic, and a number of his friends wired their congratulations to Taft.

As Viewed In London

London, June 20.—Most of the morning newspapers and the weeklies which are issued today print editorials on President Roosevelt's great triumph in securing the nomination of Secretary of War Taft for the presidency.

The Daily Chronicle says: "To save the life of his policy he loses his life as president. It is an interesting phenomenon in the working of the American constitution."

The Daily Graphic describes Taft as an "American Dauphin," adding: "There is something Napoleonic about this creation of new dynastic legitimacy under the shadow of the Stars and Stripes."

All of the newspapers pay tribute to Taft's great qualifications for the high office to which he has been nominated. The chief point of the Republican platform that is attracting attention here is the fiscal plank. The nation thinks it should lead to a reduction in the tariff in favor of free-trading Great Britain.

Two Fatalities In War Game

New York, June 20.—Two soldiers were claimed as victims in the mimic warfare down the bay when Private John Welsh, aged 25, and George Harvey, aged 22, members of the New York National Guard, died as a result of injuries received from a flare-back while swabbing a six-inch gun. Private McDowell, who was caught in the flare-back, is reported near death from his wounds. Harvey's skull was fractured and McDowell's right arm was blown off in the premature explosion of the charge of powder.

Reduction of Lumber Rates

Washington, June 20.—Sweeping reductions in lumber rates west of the Mississippi river and approximately 5 percent reduction in the advanced rates in the east, as well as other changes in the tariff, are ordered under decisions announced by the interstate commerce commission. The rulings involve the rates on lumber, shingles and other forest products.

Lightning, Wind and Rain

Justice Rogers sentenced Mrs. Farmer to be electrocuted during the week beginning Aug. 2. Mrs. Farmer is 29 years old. Her victim, Mrs. Brennan, who was 55 years of age, was her next-door neighbor and most intimate friend and the motive was to gain possession of the Brennan home, deeds of which Mrs. Farmer had forged in October. The crime was committed April 23. Mrs. Brennan was hacked to pieces with a hatchet and her body stuffed in a trunk, where it was found four days later.

At the time of the explosion Secretary Coleman of the club was collecting dues and had $1000 in front of him on a table. A man was seen to leave the house about the time of the explosion, but has not been caught.

Proclamation Didn't Come Off

Tangier, June 20.—A clever attempt made here to proclaim Mulai Hafid as sultan of Morocco was frustrated at the last moment. The formality of proclamation was to consist of the substituting of the name of the new sultan for that of the old in the ceremonial prayer for the ruler at the Friday service in the mosque. Mohammed El Torres, the ex-foreign minister, was apprised of the plot, had the chief movers arrested and surrounded the mosque with troops.

To Have Enormous Capital

London, June 20.—In spite of all denials, the Iron and Steel Trades Journal declares it has authority for stating that the formation of an international steel trust, in which American, German and Russian syndicates will unite with British steel interests, will be an accomplished fact in a few weeks. The headquarters of the new concern will be London and its capitalization will reach £150,000,000.

Defending Force Holds Its Own

Pine Camp, N. Y., June 20.—The Brown army, the defending force, held the bridge against the enemy, the Blue army, in the attack on Pine Camp. # WRIGHT FOR CABINET

Former Confederate Captain Will Be Next Secretary of War

IS A CHAMPION OF SOLDIERS

The President Thinks Him the Best Equipped Man in the Country For the Position--Declared to Be o Great Administrative Ability

Washington, June 20.—Secretary Taft is to be succeeded by Luke E. Wright of Tennessee.

The correspondence between the president and Secretary Taft relating to the latter's resignation is very brief. Taft simply said in his resignation: "I hereby tender my resignation as secretary of war to take effect June 30 next."

The president in his reply said: "Your resignation is hereby accepted, to take effect June 30."

The resignation was dated Thursday and the acceptance yesterday. It was stated at the White House that the president as recently as Thursday had given out a formal statement regarding his high esteem for Taft and it was not necessary to repeat what was then said. The statement given out at the White House concerning Wright's appointment said:

As Philippine commissioner and later as vice governor and governor, he won the affection and regard of the army to a high degree, and many of the most distinguished of the men who served in the army at the time he was in the Philippines have urged his appointment because they felt he was in a peculiar way their champion, and to a peculiar degree understood them and their needs.

This is especially true as regards the men who were Union veterans of the Civil war, for these grew to feel that he was always especially interested in their welfare. Moreover, his great administrative and legal ability both peculiarly fit him to deal with the problems in the Philippines, Panama and Cuba; for the work of the war department is such now that only a man with special fitness and unusual training is able to do justice to it.

Of all the men in the country, the president feels that Luke E. Wright is the man best equipped to take up the work of the department, which for the last seven years has been under the control first of Root and then of Taft.

As a young man he was a captain in the Confederate army. He is one of the leading lawyers not only of his state, but of the entire south. He has also been foremost in advocating and insisting upon fair treatment for the colored people. He first definitely established his reputation in the terrible days of the yellow fever epidemic at Memphis, when he practically made himself mayor of the town and took charge of all the relief measures, showing what may justly be called heroic devotion to duty and indifference to his own life, together with the masterful qualities of a successful administrator in a great crisis. He was himself struck down by the plague he was fighting, but lived to see it stamped out and himself to take part in introducing to Memphis the hygenic measures which have since made it one of the model health cities of the world.

He was appointed by President McKinley as one of the Philippine commission and enjoyed President McKinley's heartiest confidence, being selected as one of the southerners who were in sympathy with his administration. Under President Roosevelt he was promoted first to be vice governor and then governor of the Philippines and was afterward made the first ambassador to Japan. In all positions he served with signal fidelity and ability, and has been in hearty and outspoken agreement with the administration in all its main policies.

Guilty of Illegal Combination

New York, June 20.—Sentence will be imposed by Judge Hough of the United States circuit court next Monday upon twenty-three companies manufacturing wrapping paper for violating the Sherman anti-trust act by forming an illegal combination in restraint of trade, pleas of guilty having been recorded. The companies composed almost the entire membership of the Fibre and Manila association.

Insurance Securities Change Hands

Albany, June 20.—Under an order of the United States circuit court Superintendent Kelsey of the state insurance department turned over to receivers of the Mutual Reserve Life Insurance company securities of the company amounting to $200,300, which were held by the insurance department for the protection of the company's policyholders.

Coke Ovens to Fire Up

Connellsville, Pa., June 20.—It is announced by the W. J. Rainey interests that orders have been received for the firing of 1000 coke ovens which have been practically idle since December. This is the beginning, it is believed, of a general resumption in the coke region.

Ballot Wins Suburban Handicap

Sheepshead Bay, N. Y., June 20.—James R. Keene's Ballot easily won the $25,000 Suburban handicap, 1 1-4 miles, at Sheepshead bay, defeating probably the best field that has ever faced the starter for the great event. Ballot ran the distance in 2:03 flat.

His Glorious Fourth

By Nellie Cravey Gillmore

Copyrighted, 1907, by Mary McKeon.

THE runabout gave vent to a succession of despairing gasps, whined faintly and slid to a faltering standstill.

Aldrich surveyed the darkening sky with uneasy eyes, transferring them tentatively to the unsuspecting pink profile just above his left shoulder.

Dolly glanced up, interrogating his sudden silence, and encountered a decidedly anxious glance in return.

"Well, what is it?" she asked, trying hard to make her tone sound commonplace.

"I hate like the mischief to tell you, Miss Templeton, but as near as I can figure we are about nine miles from human habitation and the gasoline tank"— He paused dramatically.

"Oh, Jimmy!"

Dolly threw out her hands in a second of hysterical abandon. Then she laughed in a little way that seemed to cover up a sob.

"I'LL TAG IT, THAT'S ALL."

"I have often walked twelve," she announced presently in a highly cheerful voice, notwithstanding that the color had deserted her cheeks.

"But it is almost 7 o'clock, and I'm afraid"—

"Oh, it will be quite midnight before we can make it, I suppose," she broke in, with a shrug, "but as it is our only alternative I really don't see the sense of sitting here arguing."

Aldrich smiled and nodded. Fastening the brake, he sprang to the ground, and, going over to the other side, helped Dolly to alight.

For an instant they stood in the middle of the road facing each other.

"But what is to become of the machine?" she asked.

Aldrich dived into his pocket and brought forth a notebook and pencil.

"I'll tag it, that's all," he laughed, "trusting to the fates that it will not fall into hands piratical." He scribbled a line across one of the blanks and fastened it to the forward cushion.

Forty minutes of steady walking brought them a mile nearer home. With an unconcealed sigh of weariness Dolly flung herself down on a prostrate log, and Aldrich slipped into a seat beside her. His face indexed a variety of emotion. Hope, that had hitherto buoyed him above every difficulty, shriveled within him. She would never forgive this.

"Dolly," he began appealingly, "heaven knows I'd rather have lost my right hand than"—

She interrupted him with a little impatient gesture.

"Jimmy, please spare me. It's bad enough in all reason, but let us not add tragedy to a situation which is already melodramatic in the extreme."

Aldrich subsided under the snub, contemplating the toes of his boots in gloomy silence. Some minutes passed. The darkness yielded gradually to a splendor of gold light flung down from a cloudless sky by thousands of stars, and everywhere through the misty yellow innumerable dogwood blossoms shone solemnly like white crosses.

Suddenly Dolly started up and walked off down the road again, the other following gloomily.

"Miss Templeton," he began after a silence, "do you know why I asked you to come out with me this afternoon?"

She did not reply at once. The tone more than the words caused the blood to scorch her cheeks for an instant.

"Why," she returned after a little, "to celebrate our independence, of course, just as every one else is doing." She gave him an inscrutable little glance from the tail of her eye.

"I wanted to ask you a question," he announced gravely.

"Please," she began, walking faster, "couldn't we discuss"—

"Don't distress yourself," he interposed bitterly. "Three times is"—he looked at her resentfully—"quite sufficient to show a fellow how many different sorts of a fool he can make of himself. It is solely in the interest of friendship I wish to speak now."

Dolly frankly admitted to herself that friendship was even less interesting than the other thing. She bit her lips as she demanded petulantly, "Well, what is your question?"

"The other day," he replied quickly, "I heard that you were going to be married; that you were going to marry a poor man, after all. Also that you had made the statement with your own lips. Is it true?" The last words were uttered hoarsely, almost as a charge.

Dolly's white lids flickered as she looked up into his eyes.

"It is quite true," she answered unhesitatingly, the crimson playing all over her face.

Aldrich stopped short and faced her, compelling her glance to meet his in a suddenly masterful manner.

"Why?" he demanded passionately.

Dolly shrank away from him; his vehemence half frightened her.

"Because," she said proudly, "I love him."

Aldrich was silent for a moment, but his silence was more tense than words. He came close to her, so close that his hot breath stirred the hair about her temples.

"Once you refused me," he broke out savagely, "twice—three times! And I was a poor man."

Dolly flared up.

"Your inference is more than flattering!" she remarked, her eyes snapping.

"Your love would have been my strongest incentive toward success," he went on, ignoring her comment altogether. "I never intended that you should share a life of poverty. I had meant to work night and day, day and night, to give you everything that other women have."

She looked at him curiously, and a warm light sprang to her eyes, but she said nothing, and for several minutes they walked on in silence.

"I did not refuse you because you were poor," she observed presently, "and even had I done so it would have been more for your own sake than mine, Jimmy. One's ideas, however, become revolutionized sometimes," she added in a lower tone.

Suddenly, less than a quarter of a mile away, a thin streak of light shot skyward, then another and another, till the clouds were lurid with sparks and opalescent shafts of fire. The indistinct music of a band mingled vaguely with distant shouts of laughter, interspersed with fusillades of cannon crackers.

Dolly grabbed Aldrich's arm and pulled him to an abrupt standstill.

"Jimmy, the picnic!"

Dolly almost collapsed with joy. Aldrich breathed a mixture of relief and annoyance. "It looks that way," he said. He studied her a second with grave brows. "You tired of my company even sooner than I thought you would," he muttered jealously.

Dolly made no reply, but stooped carelessly and broke a spray of goldenrod nodding by the roadside and commenced to strip off the blossoms with a little preoccupied air.

Aldrich appeared to be pondering something. His next words came precipitately:

"I didn't tell you of my good luck, did I?" he asked.

"No," she said. Something in his manner caused her heart to sink unaccountably.

He turned to look into her eyes as he pursued with what unconcern he could muster:

"I'm going away. I've at last received that appointment, and it is now only a question of time before I shall begin to climb rapidly. Besides, it's best all round, I think."

"Going away!" Dolly stopped stock still. Her lips framed the words dully, the color fled from her cheeks, and the whole world looked drab. "When?" she continued after a pause, her face turned away.

"The sooner the better. Right off—tomorrow perhaps."

"Jimmy!"

He started and looked at her with eager eyes, the blood pulsing swiftly all through his veins.

"Don't go," she said, her voice choking in a little swift sob.

He placed himself in front of her and his hands on her shoulders.

"But you are going to be married," he insisted, "and it is no place for me. I—I couldn't endure it."

"But it is the only place for you. I want you to be there—at my wedding. If you refuse, I shall not get married at all, so there!"

"TO THE CHURCH," SHE SAID SOFTLY.

Aldrich caught her hands and held them in a determined grip. The wild hope that throbbed suddenly in his heart made him for the moment almost rough. "You can't play with me a moment longer," he breathed turbulently. "Who is this man?"

"The man—I—love."

"Who is he?" he repeated savagely.

"Don't! He is hurting my hands terribly, and"—

"Well?"

"Perhaps he doesn't know yet that I've accepted him. He has asked me only three times, and the last time I refused him. I"—

"Dolly, will you marry me?"

A flash of the old coquetry dominated her eyes for the second.

"But it is Independence day, Jimmy. If you should ask me tomorrow maybe"—

"I shall never ask you again. This is your last chance. We are almost at the picnic grounds. And now I happen to recall that there is a little church around the corner from here. Shall we go to the picnic and celebrate or to the church?"

Dolly turned suddenly and held out both hands.

"To the church," she said softly. "I am tired of independence anyway."

The Revolution's Darkest Hour.

Of Washington crossing the Delaware on Christmas night, 1776, a historian has written:

"That was the darkest hour of the Revolution. The American army was rapidly dwindling away, poverty was staring congress in the face, and the forces of the king, supplied with all necessary comforts, were flushed with victory. In those circumstances Washington executed a movement of the highest military skill. In the dead of a winter's night he transported his army, with its baggage and artillery, across the Delaware unperceived and almost in the presence of the enemy. From his position at Princeton he compelled the British to abandon their operations in New Jersey and withdraw to New York."

THE
Young Men's Christian Association
OF QUINCY, MASS.
(Legal Title—Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

OUR HOSPITAL

(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy)
INCORPORATED 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000 but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need will be most gratefully received.

The Secretary, TIMOTHY REED, Adams St Quincy, or the Treasurer, RICHARD D. CHASE, Savings Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

OPEN FOR INSPECTION

Quincy People Should Be Proud Of Thomas Crane Public Library

Today from 3 to 9 P. M. the people of Quincy have an opportunity to inspect the continued beneficence of the family of the late Thomas Crane in the enlargement of the Crane Memorial Hall, the home of the Thomas Crane Public Library. Few cities outside of Boston have such a large and artistic library building as Quincy, with beautiful and spacious grounds. The total cost of buildings and grounds has been in excess of $150,000.

THE LATE THOMAS CRANE.

The people of Quincy will be surprised to find how beautiful the interior of the library now is, and also the number of improvements installed.

Miss Alice G. White, the librarian, is a graduate of the Quincy High school, and took a special course of training in the Boston Public Library. She also worked with Charles Francis Adams, for 23 years the chairman of the board of trustees of the library, who did a great deal of personal work.

MISS ALICE G. WHITE,
The Librarian.

Inasmuch as the workmen have taken a much longer time than was expected to put the building in readiness for the public once more, the librarian has been enabled to put into operation with the re-opening of the library the new charging system in place of the old, or temporary slip system. It was not expected to do this before the autumn except in the children's room, and all the staff have been even more busily at work during the long weeks of having to deny the public access on account of the building's chaos and remodeling, than when it was open to the public. Besides the work which this has required, some 1500 volumes have been returned from the binder and gotten ready to go into circulation.

In the Browne or pocket charging system, no personal card is required. All those who have cards are kindly requested to bring them to the library.

A new registration will be started for the purpose of verifying addresses and that the list may show the actual users of the library, as "some are married, some are dead" in the nine years since the last registration. Each person is asked to remember his registration number, just as he remembers his telephone number or the number of his house; and on the usual call slip provided for the borrowers, to write his name and registration number. Patrons will confer a favor and facilitate the quick delivery of books and magazines if this is done at all times whether a books is chosen from the cases outside, or brought from the shelves by an attendant. Non-attention to this simple request will retard the delivery both for himself and others. Also if books or magazines are returned at the right of delivery desk immediately upon entering the library before others are selected, confusion and delay may be avoided. One other point for the convenience of the public besides the absence of the personal card is that the date stamped upon the little slip in the back of the book or upon the front of the unbound periodical will hereafter be the date due.

Patrons from the wards using the delivery baskets should fill out the call slips as before, being sure to put the registration number and name on the slip. These slips will be returned with the books in the baskets, being simply for identification in that case.

The circulating magazines are now placed in two periodical cases in front of the delivery desk, the current numbers being in sight above, and the back numbers in trays, below, as per label. It is hoped to have some magazines and more newspapers later for the reading room if the demand for the same warrants it and the funds can meet the demand. About twenty periodicals are all that are subscribed for in the library in Pittsfield, Mass., which the librarian recently visited, a library of 50,000 volumes in a city of 32,000 inhabitants, and those are used almost entirely in the reading room. In our own library nearly four times that number are subscribed for, and all freely borrowed for home use. Let some of our magazine readers think of how well served they are, after all, by comparison, even when they are disappointed at finding another of their number has gotten one of the two, three or four copies of the latest issue of a popular magazine. It is the librarian's ideal to combine both methods, and have a copy of each popular magazine and some newspapers to be read in the beautiful large reading room.

To the end that the room may be kept as quiet as possible for readers and students, patrons are asked to refrain from all conversation and unnecessary noise. The delivery desk being in the centre of the one hall is not a means toward that end, for always more or less noise and conversation must be attendant upon the work of delivering books. But even there, people are asked to be thoughtful and as quiet as may be.

During the summer months the main library will be open every day (Sundays and holidays excepted) from one o'clock until six, and on Wednesdays and Saturdays from ten o'clock in the morning, Saturday evenings at nine. The hours for the children's room are from one until six o'clock every day (Sundays and holidays excepted).

TAFT EMBARRASSED

Ohioans Want to Name Manager of Republican Campaign

SUGGEST VORYS OR HERRICK

Choice of Majority of Members of National Committee Is Hitchcock--Sub-Committee to Talk Matter Over With Presidential Candidate

Cincinnati, June 20.—Eight members of the Republican national committee arrived here this morning to confer with Secretary Taft concerning the election of a national chairman to manage the Republican campaign. The sub-committee was appointed at the suggestion of Taft, who is said to be somewhat embarrassed by appeals from his friends in Ohio for the appointment of Arthur I. Vorys or of Myron T. Herrick of this state, and by the demand made in a petition by a majority of the members of the national committee for the appointment of Frank H. Hitchcock.

The latter, because of his success in securing Taft delegates, is being strongly pushed by his friends, while those who are personally attached to Vorys intend to make every possible effort in his behalf. Congressman Sherman, who was nominated for vice president, arrived with the sub-committee.

The men who will confer with Taft on the chairmanship question are: Powell Clayton, Arkansas; Myron T. Herrick, Ohio; Frank B. Kellogg, Minnesota; Charles Nagel, Missouri; E. E. Hart, Iowa; Senator Borah, Idaho; E. C. Duncan, North Carolina, and Frank O. Lowden, Illinois.

The sub-committee was selected when the new national committee met for organization immediately after the adjournment of the convention. Friends of Hitchcock insist that more than half of the eight members will vote to elect him chairman, while the advocates of Vorys say that five members favor the election of the latter or of some man other than Hitchcock.

It is conceded, however, that the chairmanship depends absolutely upon the wishes of Taft, who has not publicly expressed any preference. Nevertheless, he has indicated that the question is one of practical politics and that no selection will be made for sentimental reasons.

Keen interest in the selection of a political manager for Secretary Taft is taken by Charles P. Taft and Henry W. Taft, brothers of the nominee. In view of the fact that Hitchcock and Vorys both have strong followings, an effort was made by Charles P. Taft to have both withdraw from the race. The suggestion that this course be taken, when made to Hitchcock, caused him to state that he had at no time been a candidate for the chairmanship and that he would not embarrass the secretary by asking for the place. Vorys would make no statement whatever, leaving his interests entirely with his friends.

Any choice Secretary Taft may express will be accepted. That he will indicate a preference for chairman and treasurer is not doubted, but it is likely that a meeting of the full committee will be called to fill these positions, in the event that Taft does not express a preference.

The secretaryship and the position of sergeant-at-arms were settled by the election of Elmer Dover of Ohio and W. F. Stone of Maryland to succeed themselves as secretary and sergeant-at-arms, respectively. Powell Clayton of Arkansas was chosen to act as chairman until a permanent official is named.

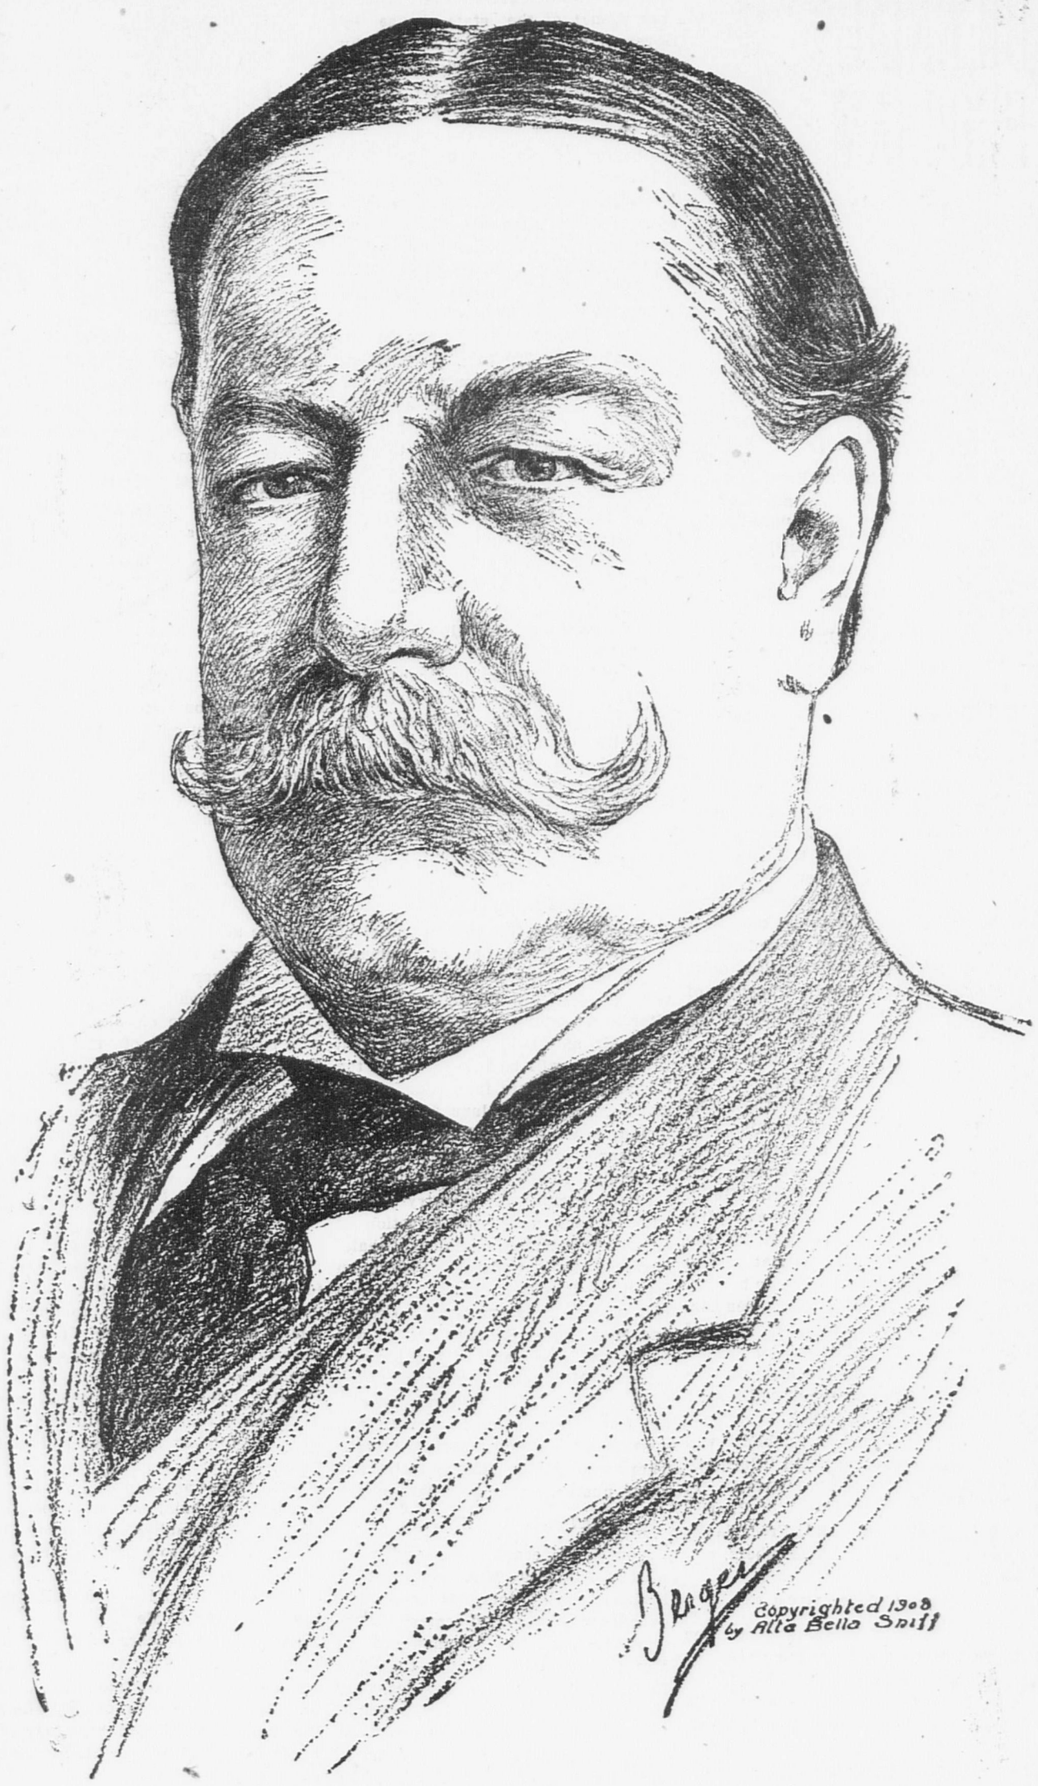

The motion to create the sub-committee was made by Myron T. Herrick. Before the sub-committee met at Chicago a score of the members of the national committee who are insistent that Hitchcock shall be appointed met in an adjoining room. They drew up a petition addressed to Secretary Taft, asking for the selection of Hitchcock. Twenty-four signatures were secured in the meeting and it was then circulated among other members who had been absent. Before the meeting of the sub-committee was held a majority of the national committee, it is asserted, had signed the petition, and the signatures did not include any members of the sub-committee appointed to confer with the secretary. This petition is intended by the friends of Hitchcock to augment the influence of individual letters mailed to the secretary several days ago.

Man at Pawtucket Shoots Two Policemen and a Watchman

Pawtucket, R. I., June 20.—Elmer West, a night watchman, was probably fatally shot last night and two policemen, Frank E. Butman, a regular, and William Gammell, a special officer, were wounded by bullets from a revolver in the hands of a man who attacked them on Pine street.

Gammell was walking along Pine street when he was approached by a man who pointed to a man and woman sitting in a doorway of the Pawtucket Manufacturing company's plant, declaring that the man in the doorway was trying to lead his sister astray. was trying to lead his sister astray.

The special officer advised the man to complain to a regular policeman, whereupon the man drew a revolver and fired, the bullet hitting Gammell in the left side of the neck. Butman heard the shot and, rushing up, received a bullet in the arm from the same revolver. Then West came out of the factory and was saluted with another bullet, which took effect in his abdomen.

Just as West fell Butman, recovering somewhat from the effect of his wound, seized the man with the revolver and, dragging him to a patrol box, held him until assistance arrived. At the police station the man declined to give any information about himself beyond saying that his name was Bailey. The injuries of Butman and Gammell are not regarded as serious.

The man and woman who were sitting in the doorway disappeared immediately after the shooting and the police were unable to obtain any clue to their whereabouts.

The defense of Rogers was that the process was never a success and was not used.

Life Sentence For Murder

ROLLER AFTER GOTCH

Seattle Physician on Trail of World's Champion Wrestler.

MAY MEET ON JUNE 20.

Gotch Says Doctor Is the Best Mat Artist in the United States Outside of Himself—Gave Him His Hardest Bout.

Frank A. Gotch, world's champion wrestler, according to his own statement, stands a possible chance to lose his title to Dr. Roller in a match which will be decided in Seattle, Wash., on June 20.

Gotch states it is his opinion that Dr. Roller is the best wrestler in the United States, of course barring himself. Gotch says that he thinks he will be able to defeat Roller, but that he expects one of the hardest tussles of his career. Gotch met Roller in a match in Seattle a year ago last fall. He was the American champion at that time and offered to throw Roller twice in an hour. When he reached Seattle, he asserts, he was not at his best, as he had been traveling all the previous night. His friends warned him that Roller was a hard man to beat, but he had heard the same thing on hundreds of occasions in other cities and merely laughed at their advice to be careful with Roller. Speaking of the match with Roller, Gotch said:

"When Roller entered the ring I was a bit surprised. He stood six-feet one inch and weighed close to 210 pounds. He was about twenty-five years of age and appeared a perfect athlete. I afterward learned that he played Rugby football at one of the eastern universities. Nevertheless I sized him up as a strong, big athlete and did not expect much trouble.

"I roughed it up with him hard for the first fifteen minutes. I found that he knew the game and was fast and strong. Nevertheless I thought I had him, so I slowed up for the next quarter of an hour so as to make a big spurt, during which I would sail in after him and toss him so hard and quickly that I would take all of the fight out of him for the second bout.

"To my surprise, Roller, when I slowed down, also started taking matters easy. When I rested up I went after Roller as hard as I ever went after any man. I was thunderstruck when I found that he not only came back on me strong, but fairly carried me about the mat by his rushes and hard work. He had me tired in a few minutes and; picking me up, slammed me down on my head. You bet I was scared. When I managed to get on my feet I ran and stalled about as I never did before or hope never to do again. To tell the truth, I was lucky to avoid being thrown, and the sound of the bell at the end of the hour was the most pleasant sound I believe I ever heard.

"Roller could make a lot of money if he would give up his practice at Seattle and take up wrestling as a business. He does not want to leave Seattle and is what might be considered an amateur at the game. He defeated Beel in two straight falls recently, and I think that Beel can defeat Charles Olsen. I rank the American wrestlers Roller, Beel and Olsen. Roller has a standing offer of $1,000 in a Seattle bank for a wrestling match with anybody. I am going after that $1,000, and, besides, I think we will get a big guarantee to wrestle on June 20."

DETROIT NOW GOING RIGHT.

Hugh Jennings Says Present Spurt Is Just What He Has Been Expecting.

Requested to give his opinion of the present spurt of the Tigers, Hughey Jennings has the following to say:

"While we are going at our best now, I feel no more confident than I did when we left Detroit. I was satisfied then that the boys would get going eventually, and they have apparently started. These victories, however, in Boston are no more than was to be expected. We've got to beat some of the clubs going badly and beat them good to maintain anything like a championship clip.

"The boys at that are going at their right clip now, you might say. Crawford has been hitting at his best, and Cobb, Rossman and the rest are maintaining a steady clip. Our pitchers were going bad at the start, and then the fielding went to the bad. They have been batting well all season. Now, with the pitchers still going good, the fielding coming strong and the hitting still increasing, there is no reason why we should not keep at it. My hope is to head the first division before the middle of June. It will be no easy matter, for New York, I figure, will be a hard club for us to beat, and Philadelphia is by no means weak, all reports to the contrary.

"We are going at our proper stride now, and, while I will not predict any pennant, the club that beats us will know it has been through a fight."

Miss Sutton to Stay Home.

Miss May Sutton, the champion of all the women champions at tennis, will not leave her southern California home this summer to defend her English, Welsh or American title: This athletic maiden intends to enjoy the breezes of the Pacific ocean for one full year at least.

The Absentminded Doctor.

"Yes, dear, my husband is a doctor and just the nicest, dearest fellow in the world, but so absentminded," she explained to her schoolgirl chum. "Just imagine—during the wedding ceremony, when the time came for him to place the ring on my finger, he felt of my pulse and solemnly asked me to show my tongue."

BE STRONG.

Be strong!
We are not here to play, to dream, to drift.
We have hard work to do and loads to lift.
Shun not the struggle; face it. 'Tis God's gift.

Be strong!
Say not the days are evil—who's to blame?—
And fold the hands and acquiesce—oh, shame!
Stand up, speak out, and bravely, in God's name.

Be strong!
It matters not how deep intrenched the wrong,
How hard the battle goes, the day how long.
Faint not, fight on! Tomorrow comes the song.

The Dog Wasn't Touched.

"Madam," said the conductor as he punched a ticket, "I am very sorry, but you can't have your dog in this car. It is against the rules."

"I shall hold him in my lap all the way," she replied, "and he will not disturb any one."

"That makes no difference," said the conductor. "Dogs must ride in the baggage car. I'll take and fasten him for you."

"Don't you touch my dog, sir!" exclaimed the young lady excitedly. "I will trust him to no one," and with indignant tread she marched to the baggage car, tied her dog and said: "Remember, please, I don't want a soul here to touch my dog or untie him. You understand?"

The baggage crew said they did.

As the train approached her station the young lady, hailing the conductor, asked, "Is my dog all right?"

"I don't know, miss," replied the conductor.

"Don't know?" she replied. "Why don't you know? It's your business to know. You haven't touched him or untied him?"

"No; we didn't touch or untie him, and that's just it. You tied him to a trunk checked for two stations back. The trunk had to be put off, and so we threw the dog off with the trunk!"—Ladies' Home Journal.

A Prophecy Fulfilled.

Rouelle, one of the early fathers of chemistry in France, drew crowds of enthusiastic students to his classroom. "Gentlemen," he said on one occasion, "you see the caldron on this brazier. If I were to cease stirring a single moment an explosion would ensue which would blow us all into the air."

In addressing the students Rouelle actually forgot to stir. There was a horrible crash, the windows blew out, and some of the walls went down, while several were blown bodily into the neighboring garden. No one was killed, and the only damage sustained by Rouelle himself was the loss of his wig.

An Ideal Sitter.

A Washington artist, while sketching in North Carolina, was one day in search of a suitable background of dark pines for a picture he had planned. At last he found the precise situation he was seeking, and, best of all, there chanced to be a pretty detail in the figure of an old colored woman in the foreground.

The artist asked the old woman to remain seated until he had sketched her. She assented with the greatest good nature, but in a few minutes asked how long the artist would be. "Oh, only about a quarter of an hour," he answered.

Three minutes or so later the old darky again inquired—this time with manifest anxiety—how long the operation of sketching would take.

"Not long," was the reassuring reply. "But why do you ask so anxiously?" "Oh, nuthin', sah," the old woman hastened to respond, "only I's sittin' on an ant hill, sah."—Judge's Library.

A Grand Ovation.

"I finished my peroration," said the conceited orator, "and stood there with the thunders of applause ringing in my ears. It was a grand ovation. The people crowded up to shake me by the hand and to touch my garments, so impressed and enthusiastic were they over by effort. I was gracious and shook hands with all who made the proffer to me. Finally one man, weeping because I had played so feelingly on the harp of his emotions, leaned forward to kiss my shoe.

"I drew back. 'Stop,' I said. 'I am but human.'"

The Champion Ham Eater.

Bandmaster Sousa says a southern negro is responsible for the following story:

"Down on our fahm we've got a man named Jim. Jim's de champion ham eater of all de country roun'. Unc' Henry hed cha'ge o' de fahm, an' when Unc' Henry tol' any of us to do anythin' we jus' done it, 'cause we had conf'dence in him.

"Folks come f'om all de country roun' jus' to see Jim eat ham, fo' de way he could tuck ham away was amazin'. Jim set by de fence one day a-eatin' one ham after another like ez ef dey was cakes or biscuits! 'Twas ez easy to him as pickin' teeth. He'd got down eight hams an' de ninth was a-follerin', but I reckon it wuz f'om a old hawg, for some gris'le got in his throat an' stopped his breath, so we wuz a-feared dat we wuz a-goin' to lose Jim.

"But up got Unc' Henry sort o' easy-like, an' he went over to de fence—dey was a lot o' slabs on top o' de fence—an' he tuk a slab an' he walk t'ward Jim, an' he sez, 'Jim, git down on all fours!' Right in front o' Jim was a big pile o' stones, but Jim had conf'dence in Unc' Henry, so he got down on all fours an' waited, an' de gris'le in his throat, why, dat waited too. Unc' Henry pahted Jim's coat-tails an' h'isted de slab an' give Jim a hit, an' Jim went head first on to dat pile o' stones. When he struck dem stones dat piece o' gris'le 'lowed it had bizness somewhar else. An' Jim riz up an hollered, 'Gimme anudder ham!'"

Art In Humble Things.

Two street sweepers were quarreling one day about their talent in street sweeping.

"Well, Bill," said one, "I admit that you can clean up the middle of a street all right, but you ain't capable of doing an ornamental piece of work, like sweeping around a trolley pole."

Why They Applauded.

A theatrical troupe after an unsuccessful tour finally arrived in a small New Jersey town. That night, though there was no furore or general uprising of the audience, there was enough hand clapping to arouse the troupe's dejected spirits. The leading man stepped to the footlights after the first act and bowed profoundly. Still the clapping continued.

When he went behind the scenes he saw an Irish stage hand laughing heartily. "Well, what do you think of that?" asked the actor, throwing out his chest.

"What d'ye mane?"

"Why, the hand clapping out there. They are giving me enough applause to show they appreciate me."

"Whoi, thot's not applause! That's the audience killin' mosquitoes."—Everybody's.

Couldn't Hit Her.

An Englishman was being shown Chicago by some friends who had been entertained by him in London. They couldn't interest him. He was bored at everything. Finally in desperation they took him to see a vaudeville show. The big act of the night was an "impalement" act, where a young woman stood against a board and a man threw knives at her, outlining her on the board.

The Englishman watched for a few minutes. Then he yawned and said: "Well, old chaps, let's be going. Deuced bore, I call it. 'E's thrown at her 'alf a dozen times and 'asn't 'it 'er once!"

The Vizier's List.

The sultan bade his grand vizier to prepare a list of all the fools in the kingdom. In due course the vizier brought his list of fools to the palace, and, lo, at the head of the list appeared the sultan himself.

"Why, O vizier, is my name at the head of your list of fools?"

"Sun of the universe, did you not but last week commission two entire strangers—Franks they represented themselves—to purchase six motor cars for you, and did these two strangers not depart with 100,000 sequins from the royal treasury?"

"Yes. What of it?"

"They will never return," said the vizier, "and therefore on my list"—

"But suppose they do return?"

"Then, sire, I will erase your name and place theirs in its place."

The Unwise Salesman.

A young fountain pen salesman, to his great joy, succeeded on his first trip in persuading a stationer to order 500 pens, but all of a sudden the stationer's manner changed to the young man.

"I countermand that order," he barked and hurried into his private office, slamming the door behind him.

Later in the day his bookkeeper said to this stationer:

"May I ask, sir, why you so suddenly countermanded your order for those fountain pens?"

"The young salesman," the other answered, "booked my order in lead pencil."

A Fortunate Young Man.

President Roosevelt met a well known young writer and asked abruptly, "Do you know Spanish?"

"No, Mr. President, I do not, I very much regret to say," was the reply.

"I am sorry to hear it," commented the chief magistrate, and the subject was dropped.

Deeply impressed with the idea that had he known Spanish he might have been appointed to a high office in the diplomatic corps, the young man set to work assiduously, dropping everything else, and soon acquired a proficiency in that language. He called at the White House and was cordially welcomed. In the course of conversation he said: "By the way, Mr. President, I know Spanish well. I both talk and read it with ease."

"Oh, you don't say so! Then you ought to be one of the happiest men in the world. You can read 'Don Quixote' in the original."

Professional Pride.

"Literary fame is not always highly regarded by the people," says William Dean Howells. "I remember when I was in San Remo some years ago seeing in a French newspaper this notice by a rat trap maker of Lyons:

"'To whom it may concern: M. Pierre Loti of Lyons, inventor of the automatic rat trap, begs to state that he is not the same person and that he has nothing in common with one Pierre Loti, a writer.'"

A NOTRE DAME LADY'S APPEAL.

To all knowing sufferers of rheumatism, whether muscular or of the joints, sciatica, lumbagos, backache, pains in the kidneys or neuralgia pains, to write to her for a home treatment which has repeatedly cured all of these tortures. She feels it her duty to send it to all sufferers FREE. You cure yourself at home as thousands will testify—no change of climate being necessary. This simple discovery banishes uric acid from the blood, loosens the stiffened joints, purifies the blood, and brightens the eyes, giving elasticity and tone to the whole system. # E. F. DREW DRAWS UP

Jumps From Number 28 To Number 4 In the Contest

The vote for E. F. Drew of Atlantic today shows how easy it is for a candidate near the bottom of the list to jump into prominence. Yesterday Mr. Drew had but 25 votes, but four trial orders and a bunch of coupons from the Daily Ledger has increased his total to 439, and he is now in fourth place.

J. E. Johnson of the Quincy Yacht club, is one of the promising new candidates. He resides in the Olive May cottage on Newton street, Houghs Neck, and is the only candidate from that neighborhood. He starts with 107.

There are rumors of new candidates who propose to start near the top. Some new candidates have started today in a modest way, while several candidates below the 100 mark have made good gains.

Blanks for placing trial orders for the Daily Ledger may be obtained at the office of publication, and will be mailed upon request. Each trial order gives a credit of 100 votes to your favorite candidate.

The standing of the candidates will be printed each day, all votes received previous to 9 A. M. being counted that day.

It is not necessary that candidates shall be members of a yacht club or any other club. Neither is the contest limited to men. Women as well as men may enter.

The prizes offered are valuable ones, there being others besides the motor boat which is offered as a first prize.

The standing today at 9 A. M. was:

Houghs Neck By the Seaside

The benefit dance of the Houghs Neck Associates certainly ought to be a grand success financially. The ways and means committee are doing a lot of advertising every post, barn and stone wall is being placarded with posters. The dance has been announcement at every amusement place on the beach. The time, June 29; the place, Brown's summer ball room, the girl,—your own or somebody else's.

A big touring car belonging to some one on Great hill will hurt somebody soon. Every night the car comes down Sea street and takes the corner of Sea street and Sea avenue at a very high rate of speed.

The Street department is at work on Sea street and is doing a pretty good job. The men have been two weeks at Houghs Neck trying to put some of the streets in condition.

Houghs Neck has a new candidate in the Motor Boat contest today.

There will be dancing Tuesday evening, afternoon and evening June 17 and every night through the summer at Pandora Hall, Winchester's orchestra, J. A. Graham manager.

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

Boston Theatre.

For the first week of vacation the management of the Boston theatre has provided a play that will appeal to all who look forward to enjoyment in the country. "Lover's Lane" one of the prettiest of Clyde Fitch's plays, snacks of country air and pictures in the most realistic manner life in a small village. The story is woven around a young, progressive minister whose ideas appear to be too far advanced for the community in which he lives. He has already caused some criticism by sheltering all sorts of people, when Mrs. Woodbridge, a divorced woman, arrives from New York under most unusual circumstances and he becomes interested. All sorts of complications arise until finally the climax is reached by the apeparance of a man and a woman in the town ,who come to the minister's house to be married. The ceremony is about to be performed, when the minister's sister and Mrs. Woodbridge are brought in as witnesses. The latter recognizes the would-be bridegroom as her husband. This brings a most interesting climax.

Keith's Theatre.

Elsie Gertrude Phelan, Boston's popular young composer and pianist, is to make her vaudeville debut at Keith's next week as the leading feature of a program that has been specially prepared in view of the convention of the Federation of Women's Clubs. Miss Phelan is to present a pianalogue made up of songs and instrumental pieces of her own composition, and seems bound to make a pronounced hit. "The Battle of Too-Soon" is the title of Gallagher and Barrett's decidedly novel and clever travesty skit, one of the best numbers now in vaudeville. J. K. Murray and Clara Lane are two names to conjure with when the theatre-going public of Boston and vicinity is concerned. These two great favorites are to present a pleasing operatic sketch.

OPEN RACE

Over 50 Boats In Eight Classes Of Wollaston Yacht Club

The first open race of the season of a local yacht club was held Saturday afternoon under the auspices of the Wollaston Yacht club and brought out a fleet of over fifty boats.

The wind was fresh from the northwest enabling the yachts to carry full sail and a pretty race resulted. Eight classes in all participated and they were sent away at intervals of five minutes, from the start at 2.40.

It was a pretty sight viewed from the broad piazzas of the clubhouse which were thronged with ladies and friends of the owners of contesting boats.

The greatest local interest perhaps was centered in class D the Cape cat boats, which has been given the name of the scrappy class of the bay. Nearly all of the entries in this class were local boats and their work was watched with interest from start to finish.

The boats in this class got away well bunched, the start being one of the prettiest of the season. The Iris of ex-Commodore F. F. Crane soon took the lead and was not headed at any time throughout the race. She finished with a lead of four minutes actual time over her nearest competitor the Arawak, and won on corrected time by three minutes and 18 seconds. Second money went to the Arawak and third position to the Almira. The Busy Bee which shows up well in a light breeze was at the foot of the list.

Other winners were Thialfi in Class C., Misteral in class A, Dorchen in class I, Winona in class B, Peter Pan in class S, Teaser in class X and Polly Wog in the Hingham one design class.

Cash prizes were given in each class and percentages counted in the Y. R. A. M. championship. As a whole the race was one of the most successful ever held in Quincy bay.

Annual Meeting Historical Society

The cottage of President John Adams, the birthplace of President John Quincy Adams, was opened on Saturday for the annual meeting of the Quincy Historical Society, which has its headquarters there. Curator King had several flags flying, and everything inside clean and attractive. Fred B. Rice, the vice president, presided in the absence of Brooks Adams, Esq., who is in England.

Secretary Emery L. Crane in his annual report said there were 156 members, a net gain of 27. Three open meetings were held during the year, with over 200 at each meeting. He suggested that a new method of giving out tickets be put in operation, say one to each member and extra ones upon request.

During the year the cottage had been open free for the field day of the Sons of the Revolution, the meeting of the Bay State Historical League and during Old Home Week.

Secretary Crane recommends a combination ticket at reduced price for the Birthplaces of the Presidents, the Adams Shrine and the Quincy house, that pilgrimages to Quincy may be more popular.

A tribute was made to the late James W. Rideout, the faithful caretaker, and Benjamin King, the new caretaker was complimented.

More meetings were recommended for the coming year, with papers by members.

The report of James L. Edwards, the treasurer, covered five years to June 1, 1908, during which time he had received $892.98 and expended $762.89, having a balance on hand of $130.09.

The following curators were elected: Brooks Adams, Emery L. Crane, James L. Edwards, Rev. E. N. Hardy, Ph. D., Geo. W. Morton, Wm. G. A. Pattee, Fred B. Rice and Harry L. Rice.

The curators later elected these offices:

President—Brooks Adams.
Vice President—Fred B. Rice.
Secretary—Emery L. Crane,
Treasurer—James L. Edwards.
Librarian, H. Houghton Schumacher.

After the meeting the president of the society entertained with ices, iced drinks, cake, sandwiches, etc., served by Miss Ada M. and Miss Belle Nightingale. Maddelena was the caterer. The meeting extended a vote of thanks to President Adams.

The hundreds of people who visited the enlarged library on Saturday afternoon and evening felt proud of it, and grateful to the family of the late Thomas Crane through whose continued generosity Quincy is being favored. The interior is now spacious, beautiful, artistic and up-to-date and it will always be a pleasure to show it to our guests.

What was formerly the first floor of the whole library is now thrown open to the public for a reading room, the books having been removed to the addition. In the alcoves are small tables, with individual electric lights, and many books of reference are nearby.

There is a memorial alcove in the easterly corner toward Spear street, where the memorial window is now located, and it may be seen by daylight to much better advantage. In this alcove is also a tablet to Mrs. Clarissa Starkey Crane, the widow of Thomas Crane, also large pictures of Albert Crane and the late Benjamin Franklin Crane, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Crane. In other parts of the library are other pictures. One of President John Quincy Adams by E. D. Marchant in 1843, and a new one of Miss Amelia L. Bumpus, for many years connected with the library.

The effect on entering the library is pleasing. The desk is now directly in front of the door. As one glances over the desk toward Spear street, the view is unobstructed and the window in the gable is beautiful by daylight.

The approach to the library in the evening was more attractive as the lights in the art gallery shone out, and people could be seen moving about. The library now has a splendid place in this gallery for exhibits, and there is now on exhibition "The Madonna in Art," including nearly 100 paintings from the Florentine school, Venetian school, Roman school, Flemish school, German and Modern German, Modern Italian, English, American and by other artists.

In the stack room there are three tiers of books and the space is so well utilized that at present there is room for thousands of additional volumes. There are at present 27,000 volumes.

The greatest innovation is the new children's room, which is entered from the Spear street front, and is directly beneath the stack room. It is adapted particularly for the children with low tables, low chairs, etc. And nearby are the juvenile books.

The librarian and the cataloguer also have private rooms in the addition, and a room has been provided on the top floor for the Board of Trustees, with large table, chairs, fireplace, closets, etc.

The library is now in charge of the following trustees: Rev. Ellery C. Butler, chairman; Harrison A. Keith, secretary; George W. Morton, Henry McGrath, Charles R. Safford and George F. Sawyer.

The librarian is Miss Alice G. White, and her assistants are, Mr. H. H. Schumacher, Miss Mabel S. Baxter. The cataloguer is Miss Cochran. The children's librarian, Miss Irene Hibbard.

The pages are: Carl Marsh, John Souter, William Staples, Charles P. Fox and Arthur Moorehouse, who on the opening date acted as ushers, and escorted the visitors about the library.

When all the electric lights are turned on at night the building is beautiful, and Quincy people who have not seen the library should take the first opportunity.

A larger meter will be installed so that when occasion requires all the electric lights may be used.

Vaudeville At S. Y. C. Smoker

Although the air was oppressively hot Saturday evening, it was fine and cool at the clubhouse of the Squantum yacht club, and the large number of yachtsmen and their friends present in no way felt the heat. The occasion of the gathering was the first smoker of the season. Commodore Bryant and his excellent entertainment committee had prepared a pleasing entertainment in the vaudeville line which was very popular.

Ed Kelly, the well known amusement bureau proprietor, furnished the stars for the occasion, bringing some of the best from the vaudeville circuit now in Boston.

Hindo Sam delighted and mystified the audience with his wonderful tricks where the quickness of the hand deceives the eye. He was followed by Irene Palmer the well known and popular vocalist who rendered her latest popular airs. Hiss Kittie Nelson, Miss Marie Ford and Miss Kittie Dixie followed. Each of these was an artist in their own particular way and were very entertaining.

The Visocchi Brothers with their organette also showed what a lot of music can be gotten out of these instruments in the hands of a professional.

Between the several numbers Miss Sadie Marnot the pianist played all of the popular airs, the jolly tars joining in the chorus. Another pleasing number was the clog dancing of Linn Cleaves a member of the club.

While the entertainment was in progress cigars were passed and a light lunch was served at its conclusion.

QUINCY SOAKED

Metropolitan Assessments Almost as Large As Brookline

Over one-half of the Metropolitan taxes are paid this year by the city of Boston, but the city of Quincy must contribute $90,576.01, requiring a tax levy of over $3.50 per $1000, the assessed valuation of Quincy being about $27,000,000. Although Brookline's valuation is over three times that of Quincy, her Metropolitan assessments are not a half larger, and it would require on her valuation a tax levy of only $1.50 per $1000. Another example of the inequality of the tax system. Brookline financiers took a hand in securing a favorable basis of apportionment.

In 1907 the Metropolitan assessments upon Quincy amounted to $92,291.07.

INTERESTED IN YALE

Secretary Taft Will Spend Next Few Days at New Haven

NEXT CAMPAIGN MANAGER

No Selection to Be Made Until Leading Republicans Are Consulted--Hitchcock Asked That He Be Not Considered, but May Be Chosen

New Haven, June 22.—Secretary of War Taft arrived here today, having left Cincinnati yesterday afternoon, accompanied by James L. Williams, Jr., of his political staff. He will remain at New Haven throughout the commencement exercises of Yale—his alma mater. He will attend a meeting of the Yale corporation today and expects to witness the Yale-Harvard boat race at New London on Thursday. He will not reach the national capital before next Saturday.

Only tentative plans thus far have been made by Taft for the summer months. He probably will go, accompanied by Mrs. Taft, to Hot Springs, Va., for three or four weeks, beginning early in July. It will be necessary for him to be in Cincinnati about July 20 to receive the formal notification of his nomination for the presidency. It is his intention now to pass three or four days there about that time and then return to Hot Springs for the remainder of his summer outing.

Practically no new facts have developed regarding the sub-committee's inaction Saturday on the question of the national chairmanship. While the discussion at the conference took a wide range, it can be stated authoritatively that few names of possible appointees were considered.

Secretary Taft on Saturday received telegrams from party leaders throughout the country urging him not to be hasty in deciding the chairmanship question. One of these messages came from Secretary of State Root, who pointed out the undesirability of undue haste and suggested the advisability of postponing action until the political atmosphere had cleared.

With this view Taft was in cordial agreement and it was on his suggestion that the committee determined to defer action until July 1. It can be reiterated that the proceedings of the committee constituted in no sense an elimination of any man who has been considered in connection with the chairmanship.

Frank H. Hitchcock, Taft's manager, is said to be as distinctly a factor in the chairmanship equation as he was prior to the meeting of the sub-committee. Shortly after the receipt of Hitchcock's telegram requesting that he be not considered in connection with the chairmanship on account of his health, Taft telegraphed Hitchcock, inquiring solicitiously about his condition. The secretary received a reply from Hitchcock Sunday, saying that he felt better, but was seriously in need of a rest.

Regarding the national chairmanship Taft merely said it had been decided to postpone action until those most interested could have opportunity to obtain a consensus of the opinion of Republican leaders throughout the country. He gave positive assurances that no man, even tentatively, yet had been selected for the position, and was equally positive that no determination of the matter could be reached before the meeting of the sub-committee on July 1 in Washington.

Accident to Taft Train

Dennison, O., June 22.—Secretary Taft had a narrow escape last night from being involved in a serious wreck on the flyer which was carrying him east. Traveling at the rate of fifty miles an hour, one of the piston rods on the locomotive broke, cracking the cylinder of the engine. Few of the passengers realized their narrow escape. The train proceeded after an hour's delay.

Taft Joined by Wife and Son

New York, June 22.—Mrs. William H. Taft, accompanied by her youngest son, Charles, left Washington on the midnight train for New York, where she joined the secretary this morning. Secretary Taft, with his wife and son, went direct to New Haven for the Yale commencement exercises and the reunion of the class of '78.

Sherman Stops at Cleveland

Cleveland, June 22.—Representative Sherman, Republican candidate for vice president, is a visitor in Cleveland, the guest of former Governor Herrick. Sherman will leave Cleveland tonight for Utica. He met a number of personal friends here.

Train Went Through Drawbridge

New York, June 22.—Jacob Klevenz, a church sexton, became enraged when his pleadings for a family reconciliation were unheeded and shot and probably fatally wounded his wife and then shot and killed himself in his home in Brooklyn.

HYSTERICS RESTORED SIGHT

Case Which Surprised Patient and Surgeons In Bellevue Hospital

New York, June 22.—James Cantillion of Marionette, Wis., who was totally blind, regained his sight at Bellevue hospital during a fit of hysterics which followed the surgeons' announcement to him that his case was considered hopeless and that he would probably remain blind for the remainder of his life.

Cantillion, who is a professional baseball player, a member of the Des Moines team and a brother of Joseph Cantillion, manager of the Washington American League team, had had to have his left eye removed as the result of an accident in Chicago several months ago. The sight of the other eye failed from sympathetic affection. He came to the Cornell university medical college for treatment and was preparing in Bellevue for an operation.

The surgeons decided that an operation would be useless, and so informed Cantillion, who thereupon became hysterical. Suddenly he cried out that he could see and tests showed that the sight of the right eye had been almost completely restored. The specialists now hope to complete the cure.

The hospital surgeons say that Cantillion's loss of sight was undoubtedly due to an affection of the nervous system, and that the hysterical attack he underwent is responsible for the restoration.

Hail Four Inches Deep

Prairie Du Chien, Wis., June 22.—A terrific rain, hail and windstorm, lasting forty minutes, literally ruined crops in a wide territory, unroofed buildings and demolished trees. Hail four inches deep was piled up on the sidewalks and trees two feet in diameter were twisted off. Washouts on the railroads are numerous. Two big tents in which the Chautauqua was being held at La Crosse were blown down, burying 1500 people underneath. No one, however, was seriously injured.

A Possible Bomb Explosion

Philadelphia, June 22.—Investigation into the cause of the explosion on board the Hamburg-American line steamer Arcadia, in which three persons were killed and a number injured on Saturday, strongly tend to substantiate the theory that the bursting of a bomb caused the damage. The belief is expressed that a bomb was put in the cargo of the Arcadia before she left Hamburg, with the idea of causing its destruction while in mid-ocean.

Woman Killed by Stray Bullet

New York, June 22.—Watching the passing crowds in the street below, Mrs. Tessie Volland, 25 years old, while leaning out the window of her home last night, was shot and instantly killed by a bullet fired from a revolver in a spirit of revelry from a crowd of men in the thoroughfare. ## A MONSTER MEETING

Half a Million Participate In Suffragette Demonstration

SPEAKERS ARE HANDICAPPED

Voices Practically Inaudible Because of Chaffing and Singing In Vicinity of Platforms--Pressure of Crowds Keep Ambulances Busy

London, June 22.—Favored by beautiful weather and again displaying totally unexpected genius for organization, the suffragettes' demonstration in Hyde Park yesterday was an unparalelled success. Encouraged by previous successes, the suffragettes planned the demonstration as a climax in the year's fight for women's suffrage. It is hardly too much to say that never was such a political demonstration seen in London before.

Fully half a million people assembled in and around Hyde Park as active or passive participants in the great meeting, while for two or three hours in the middle of the day the whole centre of the city was in a ferment. Various processions appeared, each about a mile in length, and the routes through which these passed were densely crowded with spectators.

The suffragettes from the provinces were met at the various railroad stations by delegations from the London organization, and these, forming themselves into line, marched from different points of the compass to Hyde Park. Arriving there, the leaders and speakers for the various sections had literally to fight their way to the platforms.

There were about twenty speakers in all and these harangued the masses on the right of women to vote and the necessity of forcing political movement to adopt a resolution on the question. These women's demonstrations are far more attractive from a spectacular point of view than those held by men.

Almost all of the suffragettes wore white dresses, with sashes of their colors, green, white and purple, inscribed "vote for women," and the scene as viewed among the platforms was quite a feast of color. There was much good-humored chaffing and the singing of songs in the vicinity of the platforms and on this account the speeches practically were inaudible.

The attitude of the onlookers was one of amused tolerance. Ambulances were kept busy dealing with cases of fainting and minor injuries, owing to the great pressure of the crowds, but no serious accidents occurred.

Considerable scuffling and rowdyism occurred around the platform occupied by Mrs. Parkhurst, the leader of the suffragettes, and it finally became so serious as to need reinforcements of police. Thirty persons were treated for slight injuries as a result of the crowding. Similar scenes were enacted around Mrs. Martel's platform, and owing to the general noisy interruptions few of the speakers were able to get a hearing.

Tried Murder and Suicide

Cleveland, June 22.—John Kelly, 75 years old, a retired contractor and real estate dealer, fatally wounded his wife, 73 years of age, the police assert, in their home. Kelly then tried to commit suicide by beating out his brains with a hatchet, the weapon used upon his wife. Mrs. Kelly has a fractured skull. Kelly will recover. A dispute regarding their savings account, it is said, started the quarrel of the couple.

Policeman Kills Dangerous Man

New York, June 22.—Garbed in woman's clothes, an unknown negro was shot and killed while attempting to escape after he had slit the throat of Patrolman George Thompson, who was making the arrest. Thompson had no idea that his prisoner was a man. After being slashed across the throat, Thompson fired three shots, one of which pierced the negro's brain. Thompson's injury was not serious.

Successful Flight of Airship

Milan, June 22.—Leon De La Grange, the French aeroplanist, continued his tests here yesterday. They were witnessed by 150,000 spectators, including Henry Farman, the English aeronaut, who is endeavoring to arrange a contest with De La Grange. He went around the course, traversing about three miles at a velocity of forty miles an hour. His machine was about twenty feet from the ground.

Plague at Port of Spain

Port of Spain, June 22.—Since June 15 there have been four new cases of plague here, resulting in three deaths. The fourth case is in the isolation hospital. The medical authorities expect to be able to eradicate the disease at an early date.

Many Deaths by Drowning

William Short, aged 18, was drowned at Spencer, Mass. He got beyond his depth while bathing and was seized with cramps.

While bathing in the Pawtuxet river at River Point, R. I., Angelo Laballa, aged 20, stepped into a deep hole and was drowned.

Backe Noosa, aged 20, was drowned in Allen's pond, Providence. Noosa could not swim and ventured into water beyond his depth.

TRANSPARENT FRAUD

Bryan Thus Characterizes the Anti-Injunction Plank

CRITICISM OF REPUBLICANS

Thinks Resolutions Committee "Buncoed by Some Trust Lawyer"--Dissects Much-Discussed Proposition and Comments at Length Upon It

Lincoln, Neb., June 22.—Following up an expression in criticism of the Republican national platform in general, W. J. Bryan last night gave out a statement in which he assails in particular the anti-injunction plank of the Chicago declaration. The statement says:

The anti-injunction plank of the Republican platform as finally adopted is a transparent fraud. It is possible that the members of the committee were buncoed by some trust lawyer—that is the only charitable view that can be taken of it. Those who advocated the plank claimed to be doing it as a concession to the wage earners, and yet if one will read the plank he will see that it is in fact an announcement that the Republican party is unalterably opposed to the laboring man's position. The plank reads as follows:

"'The Republican party will uphold at all times the authority and integrity of the courts, state and federal, and will ever insist that their power to enforce their processes and to protect life, liberty and property shall be preserved inviolate. We believe, however, that the rules of procedure in federal courts with respect to the issuance of a writ of injunction should be more accurately defined by the statute; that no injunction or temporary restraining order shall be issued without notice, except where irreparable injury would result from delay, in which case a speedy hearing thereafter shall be granted.'"

"It will be seen that the plank begins with an unnecessary eulogy of the courts. Nobody is opposed to upholding at all times the authority and integrity of the courts. Nobody is objecting to the enforcement of their processes or to their exercise of their powers to protect life, liberty and property. This part of the plank was written to give assurance to the people who are opposed to the laboring man's plea. And now let us proceed to that part of the plank which was intended as a sop to the laboring man. It says:

"'We believe, however, that the rules of procedure in the federal court with respect to the issuance of a writ of injunction should be more accurately defined by the statute.' (Just what that definition shall be is not stated).

"'That no injunction or temporary restraining order should be issued without notice, except where irreparable injury would result from delay, in which case a speedy hearing thereafter should be granted.' Note the words 'except where irreparable injury would result from delay' and compare this exception with the federal statute on the subject and you will find that under the law as it now exists the court is not empowered to grant a temporary restraining order except there appears to be danger of irreparable injury from delay. It will be seen that the men who wrote the injunction plank copied the statute almost word for word and made the exception as broad as the statute. If the convention had been frank in the statement of its position it would have quoted the present statute and said that it was in favor of enforcing the law just as it is.

"If the demand of the laboring man was unreasonable why did not the convention say so? Why did it resort to deception? The Republican party will find that an honest course would have been safer than the dishonest course pursued.

"Secretary Taft is known as the father of government by injunction and his speeches in Oklahoma last year gave conclusive proof of his adherence to the position taken by him on the bench. He is still in favor of the use of the writ of injunction in labor cases and he is opposed to trial by jury.

"In a speech delivered in New York last winter he said in response to questions that the law ought to be so amended as to give a hearing before the injunction was granted, and even consented that the hearing for contempt should be before a different judge from the one who granted the injunction. But when he came to prepare a plank for the convention he did not go so far as he went in his speech.

"The plank that went before the convention as his plank was so weak that it amounted to nothing, but it was even then too strong for the convention and the convention adopted a plank which not only does not grant any concessions to the laboring man, but really emphasizes the position taken by large corporation employers by hurling anathema at those who are suspected of a desire to modify the law relating to injunctions. This is the treatment received by the wage earners from the national convention of the Republican party. If this is the position of the party before the election, what reason has the laboring man to hope that the party will do better after election."

German Ahead of American

Paris, June 22.—A dispatch to The Matin from Irkutsk says that the American car in the New York-to-Paris race has crossed Lake Baikal and is expected to arrive there soon. The German car already is at Irkutsk.

CRASH OF TROLLEY CARS

Motorman Says He Was Forced to Run Without a Headlight

North Adams, Mass., June 22.—Two of eleven persons injured in a collision of two trolley cars at Williamstown are on the dangerous list at a hospital here and are not expected to live many hours. The others are expected to recover.

The dangerously injured are James A. Lee, motorman, one leg amputated and other fractured at knee, and badly injured about chest; Alec McLean, broken jaw and bad injuries about face and head.

Motorman Lee said that he was running his car without a headlight, and asserted that he had telephoned to the car barn, calling their attention to the fact. According to Lee, he was told there was not any headlight there which could be spared and he was to finish out his trip without one.

The only lights he had for a guide, said Lee, were those of a car ahead, and as it was so dark along the route that he could not make out the grades until he struck them, he was forced to regulate his rate of speed by the leading car. Suddenly the lights ahead disappeared. Lee, thinking that the car might have rounded a curve, was going at a good rate of speed in order to keep his leader within sight, when he struck a down grade and crashed suddenly into the car in front, which was motionless on the track with the trolley off and all lights out. Lee claims that the car did not have the regulation lights on the rear, which are independent of the electric current.

Both cars were crowded with people returning to the homes in Williamstown and North Adams. The forward car was telescoped. The passengers in each car all were more or less hurt. No responsibility for the accident has yet been fixed.

Leader In Tropical Fruit Trade

Boston, June 22.—Captain Lorenzo B. Baker, a pioneer in the tropical fruit trade and founder of the United Fruit company, died suddenly of heart failure last night. Baker returned from Jamaica two weeks ago, where, as one of the directors of the United Fruit company, he was manager of the Jamaica division. Baker was born in Wellfleet, Mass., in 1840 and had made his home there all his life. He became captain of a fisherman at 21 years. In 1870 he went to Jamaica and organized the Boston Fruit company.

Engineer Killed--Fireman Badly Hurt

Providence, June 22.—Engineer Buteau was killed and Fireman Schofield probably fatally injured by a rear-end collision of a passenger and a freight train in the northern part of the city. The bodies of the engineer and fireman were picked up beside the track, where they had jumped from the passenger engine after shutting off the steam and applying the brakes to the engine. Buteau died on the way to a hospital.

Insane Man Accidentally Strangled

Worcester, Mass., June 22.—Michael J. Mulcahey of Cambridge, aged 42, a violent patient at the Bloomingdale insane asylum in this city, was fastened into his bed by a sheet drawn tightly across his chest and knotted under the bed. Later he was found dead on the floor. He had apparently thrown himself out of bed and his head had become caught in the sheet so that he strangled to death.

Hot Sunday at Boston

Boston, June 22.—One death and a number of prostrations was the result of a very hot Sunday in Boston. A west wind tempered the atmosphere, however, and the day was not exceedingly uncomfortable. Edward Brown, aged 73, was overcome by the heat while attending services at St. Francis de Sales church, and did not recover from the effects.

Mimic War In Boston Bay

Boston, June 22.—When the garrison flags were hauled to the mastheads at Forts Warren, Banks, Heath, Andrews, Strong and Revere, in Boston harbor, the annual joint maneuvers of the coast artillery corps and the Ninth regiment, Massachusetts Volunteer militia, with the regular army, were officially begun.

Scout Cruiser to Be Tried Out

Rockland, Me., June 22.—The scout cruiser Salem, the third of the type built for the government, being a product of the Fore River yards at Quincy, Mass., has arrived here from Quincy to prepare for the first of her four official trials. The cruiser attained a speed of nearly twenty-six knots during the run from Quincy.

Fire Sweeps "Spotless Town"

Randolph, Mass., June 22.—A fire started out of doors by a woman to steep some tea destroyed five houses and burned over thirty acres of woodland in a section of the town known as "Spotless Town." The loss is not above $4000. The houses were mostly of the lightly constructed summer cottage style.

A Gubernatorial Aspirant

Barre, Vt., June 22.—Joseph H. Dunbar of North Hartland was nominated for governor at the state convention of the Socialist party held here. The Socialists polled 600 votes at the last election.

Standard Oil Again In Court

New York, June 22.—Hearings in the government's suit against the Standard Oil company were resumed today before Special Examiner Ferris. The hearings were suspended ten days ago to permit Frank B. Kellogg, the government counsel, to attend the Chicago convention. A number of prominent railroad men will be called as witnesses.

CLUBWOMEN GATHER

Visitors From Far and Near Are Guests of Boston People

Boston, June 22.—Club women from all parts of the country are pouring into this city to attend the ninth biennial session of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, which will occupy the attention of the guests for two weeks.

Sunday afternoon a special train of seven Pullman cars arrived from the west and delegates from Wisconsin, Illinois, Ohio, Texas and Missouri alighted. As the visitors walked up the long train shed they were greeted with a hearty hand-shake and a cheery word of welcome by members of the Massachusetts delegation, who were awaiting their arrival. The local club women were all attired in white muslin dresses, and their appearance was a refreshing sight to the tired westerners, after their long, hot, dusty ride. A delegation from California arrived this morning.

The work that is to be taken up by the convention is of vital interest to women. The uplifting and general welfare of humanity will be the keynote of thought in all of the addresses which are to be delivered, not only by the delegates, but by visitors from this country and abroad.

Died a Bachelor

Havoc by Electric Storm

Detroit, June 22.—Dispatches from southwestern Michigan points say that a terrific wind, rain and electrical storm passed over that section of the state. Several barns were fired by lightning and destroyed, together with some live stock.

Seven of the battleships are here and all of the auxiliaries are in this vicinity.

Eight Drownings at New York

New York, June 22.—The warm weather yesterday drove thousands to the beaches for relief, and as a result eight drownings were reported. It is believed that there were several others, but the police records simply state that they are missing.

A beautiful doe wandered into the Adams farm one day last week and went down to the shore near Al. Wil-Williams gunning stand. It has been many years since deer have ranged through Quincy's streets and farms.

The deer which has been seen several times lately on Adams street, was on Thayer street this morning. He reported to the probation officer who gave him further time in which to roam about.

A dog owned by L. H. Sturtevant fell into a catch basin on Adams street on Sunday. Thinking the animal had fallen into the sewer J. H. Emery telephoned the police. Supt. ## Houghs Neck By the Seaside

Sunday was without doubt the hottest day of the year. The crowd was late in arriving putting in appearance late in the afternoon. Both the beaches were crowded with bathers. The coolest spot in the Neck was on the lawn in front of the Great Hill house. The Nantasket boat did a rushing business all day.

The first annual shirt waist dancing party of the Mt. Pleasant Outing club will be held at Brown's summer ball room, Friday evening, July 17. A fine time is assured.

A week from tonight will be the benefit dance of the Houghs Neck Associates at Brown's summer ball room. It is up to the members to get busy and help swell the building fund.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lane entertained Mr. and Mrs. McLaughlin of Lowell on Sunday.

The monthly supper of the Houghs Neck Associates will be held at La-Brecque's Breat Hill house. The entire City Council have been invited also Representative Eugene N. Hultman.

Frank McCarty of Roxbury was the guest of Peter Ryan on Saturday and Sunday.

The Misses Connors of Great Hill entertained a few friends on Sunday.

William Haley of South Boston is playing the piano at the Sea Street Dream.

The Sandberg boys entertained friends on Sunday at their cottage on the water front.

Quincy Boys Score.

The Quincy Y. M. C. A. juniors scored eleven points at the annual interstate athletic contests for the associations of Massachusetts and Rhode Island at Riverside on Saturday.

The events in which the Quincy boys scored were:

Fifty yard dash, won by C. Holmes of Quincy; H. Trask of Quincy, third.

220 yard dash—C. Holmes was third.

W. Hall was second in the broad jump.

The honors went to the Newton Y. M. C. A. both for the seniors and the juniors.

Mrs. George L. Gill in his 89th year was the first person to visit Crane Memorial Hall on the hot Saturday afternoon.

The $250 Motor Boat offered as a prize in the Popularity Contest is a Dandy.

Promptly Challenged.

The finals in the tournament for doubles at the courts of the Quincy Tennis club were to have been played off Saturday between Henshaw and MacKenney and Nazro and Wendell. The latter pair did not appear however and the match went to Henshaw and MacKenney by default. They promptly challenged for the Quincy cup. The match will be played sometime in July.

Assault Charged.

Peter Gaccia was arrested by Officer Broberg Saturday night on a complaint for disturbing the peace and threatening to assault Vincenzo Dinta. The men were formerly in the fruit business together. Last week Dinta withdrew and started in alone. Saturday night they met and after some words it is alleged Gaccia drew a knife and chased Dinta.

Golf Champion.

Thomas R. Fuller of the Commonwealth club won the golf finals with Henry H. Wilder, the Harvard champion at the Wollaston links on Saturday, and is now the State champion at golf.

TRY THIS FOR DESSERT.

Dissolve one package of any flavored JELL-O in one pint of boiling water. When partly congealed, beat until light adding one cup whipped cream and six crushed maccaroons. Whip all together thoroughly and pour it into a mold or bowl. When cool, it will jellify and may be served with whipped cream or any good pudding sauce.

The JELL-O costs 10c. per package and can be obtained at any good grocer's.

Atlantics, 3; Makaria, 2.

In a hard fought game of 11 innings Atlantic won from Makaria on Saturday at Atlantic.

It was anybody's game until the 11th when Dan tried to break one of the windows in the office of the Neponset River Coal Co., fully 18 feet outside the flag. The umpire howled fair ball and the game was over.

In the third with two out, and McKenzie with two strikes, "Mac" laced out a beautiful one in left field scoring Curtis and Nicoll.

Both pitchers put up an excellent game, Dan plainly getting the best of the umpire's decisions. Michael had perfect control and fielded his position beautifully.

Married Men Win Again

On the afternoon of Saturday June 20, the fifth annual ball game between teams representing the married and single men of Court John Adams, No. 144, F. of A., was played on field at end of Liberty street South Quincy.

As the married men had won all the previous games, the single fellows have been preparing for this contest by practising regularly every night since the early part of the season, and from their remarks previous to the game played on Saturday, they were very confident that they were able to square up old accounts and administer a very liberal dose of whitewash to their married opponents.

The game started with the married men at the bat, with Williams and McLellan as the battery for the single men, and judging from the manner in which Williams started in, the married men had met their Waterloo.

After the first inning the married men got their eye on the ball and from that time on Williams was pounded unmercifully and as the large crowd present were entirely in sympathy with the married men, the advice tendered by the spectators to the single fellows was anything but encouraging, and the remarkable fielding of their opponents, killed all aspirations towards getting runs.

At the close of the fifth inning John Troupe endeavored to retrieve lost ground by going into the box for the single men, but before the end of the inning he was a sadder and wiser young man, but his experience did not daunt Peter L. Litchfield from trying his hand at the pitching game, but his efforts were futile and he is of the opinion that married men must have considerable practise, keeping their eyes on things which move rapidly through space and which must be impelled with far greater force than what he could concentrate in his pitching arm.

Bisson and Kavanagh were in the points for the married men, and they put up a great game; Kavanagh's clever throwing to second and Bisson's to first caught quite a few of the single men "asleep at the switch."

The clever game which the married men put up both in the field and at the bat made their opponents gasp with astonishment, and to make the matter worse the single men had invited a large number of their lady friends to see the drubbing which they had in store for their married rivals, but "The best laid schemes o' mice and men" etc. The score was, married men, 13; single men, 1.

The run getters were: For the married men,—Kavanagh, 3; Steinbrenner, 3; Russell, 2; Osborne, 2; Bisson, 1; Smith, 1; Shea, 1.

For the single men,—Williams 1.

One False Note At Public Library

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

In response to the invitation of the Trustees of the Public Library it was a great pleasure to visit the Crane Memorial Hall on Saturday and see the many improvements that have been made in the already beautiful building. But in the harmonious whole there seemed to me, and to many others, to be one false note which we caught when we stood before the portrait of Miss Amelia L. Bumpus. It is a beautiful picture, artistic and lifelike, and it was a gracious act to place it there, but her many old friends were surprised and pained to read the inscription below, where, between the name and dates including her long and faithful service, were the words "Assistant Librarian."

In all these long and toilsome years, if she was not "Librarian," who was? If she was only Assistant Librarian to whom was she an assistant? Will this inscription be allowed to stand? Will not the trustees of the Public Library see that Miss Bumpus receives the crown of honor which must rightly be hers for giving half her lifetime in service to the people of Quincy as "Librarian of the Public Library?

Wedding Anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Macdonald were very pleasantly surprised one evening last week when about seventy-five friends and relatives gathered at their home 13 Faxon avenue to help them celebrate the tenth anniversary of their marriage, it being also the birthday of Mrs. Macdonald. Red lights were burned on the lawn which was prettily decorated with Chinese lanterns, flags and so forth during the evening. Charles Barron, in behalf of brother Odd Fellows and friends, presented Mr. and Mrs. Macdonald with a handsome quartered oak buffet. Mrs. Rose Reed in behalf of whist friends presented a beautiful cake basket with silver standard. They were also remembered with gifts of china, tin, agate and money.

Ice cream, frozen pudding, cake, punch and cigars were served, and a very enjoyable evening was passed by all.

COST OF WATER

Enormous Profit By City But Still in Hole

Just a few pertinent questions on the water rates of Quincy:

Why is it,—if the Metropolitan water costs but five and one-half cents per 1000 gallons as the Commissioner says,—that houses with meters have to pay 26.6 cents per 1000 gallons under the new rates, if they go to or exceed the limit of 60,000 gallons annually?

Why is it that houses with meters, using but 40,000 gallons annually, have to pay 40 cents per 1000 gallons?

What incentive is there for a fully plumbed house to use less than 60,000 gallons when the minimum cost for such a house is $16?

When the city makes from 21 to 30, or 40 cents, per 1000 gallons, profit on water supplied to metered houses, why is it the revenue will not pay the total cost?

Can the city afford to sell water to the Fore River Shipbuilding Company at eight cents per 1000 gallons?

Does the Commissioner allow for leakage from mains and reservoirs when he estimates the cost of water at five and one-half cents per 1000 gallons?

Does he include the annual items for water maintenance, interest on water debt, the maturing water debt, the annual Metropolitan water assessment, etc?

Can Quincy afford to maintain a lower contact rate for water than Boston and other cities of the Metropolitan district?

Is it at all surprising that Quincy's per capita consumption of water is a little larger than some of the residential cities and towns of the district, when the Fore River Company alone uses over 8 gallons per capita daily; 89,773,908 gallons in the year 1907?

Why was it necessary in 1907, when the city was making such an enormous (?) profit on every 1000 gallons of water sold for the Assessors to raise by taxation the sum of $21,631.59 to help meet the Metropolitan assessment for water? This assessment required an increase of nearly $1 in the tax rate of 1907.

Quincy is much below the average of the Metropolitan district in per capita consumption of water, and Boston people use one-half more than Quincy people.

The largest consumption in Quincy during 1907 was in August with July next. In Boston the largest consumption was in the month of February, with January second and March third. In the district at large February, January and March were the heaviest months.

The per capita per day for Quincy, Boston and the district are given below:

| | Quincy, | Boston, | District. |
|---|---|---|---|
| January, | 97 | 174 | 146 |
| February, | 100 | 187 | 158 |
| March, | 99 | 167 | 139 |
| April, | 94 | 152 | 128 |
| May, | 98 | 151 | 127 |

Honor to Whom Honor Is Due

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

Within a few days, we, as well as many others have thought that Miss Bumpus whom we so long knew as the kind and able representative of our Public Library, was officially its librarian.

We are told that Charles Francis Adams of Lincoln was really the librarian, while as assistant, Miss Amelia L. Bumpus efficiently did the duty as working officer at the desk, all these past years until the present new regime came in.

For a long term of years, all of us who frequented our Public Library can recall the intelligence and impatient ministrations of Miss Bumpus at her work. To her at this time when an old-time library passes away and an existence of a new order begins, this humble tribute to a modest worker is offered. She will no longer be an active part in this precious legacy, the library, but the orderly ways for many years in which her work grew, and was carried on, attest to her worth and her work, and its value will not be forgotten by our citizens and her grateful friends.

Our duty now will be to conform to the new regulations made by the Trustees and librarian, to lend those who serve us within the library walls all the assistance we can by our good behavior, and finally to breathe a prayer for the welfare of the descendants of the good Thomas Crane, to whose generosity we are indebted for this munificent gift.

Passed Away in South.

Dr. C. R. Marstin was summoned last week to the bedside of his only sister at Griffin, Georgia, and the following item from the Daily News of that city shows that he arrived before her death on June 19:

With mother and brother holding each a hand, and grief stricken father at her bedside, the soul of Beatrice Isabel Marstin entered the rest of the paradise of God On Friday morning, June 19, 1908, near two o'clock. Suffering, long and bravely borne, had done its work and taught her gentle spirit the last lesson of Christian resignation, "Father, hold thou my hand."

She was born at Quincy, Mass., Jan. 29, 1888, daughter of Dr. C. M. and Mrs. Ellen M. Marstin, and an only son, Clayton, is now left to comfort them. They have our deepest sympathy.

The remains will be carried to Lowell, Mass., for interment and the funeral service was held Monday afternoon, June 22, at 4.30 at Mary Villa, their present home.

CANDIDATE SHERMAN

Taken Seriously Ill Today at Residence of Ex-Gov. Herrick

CONGRESSMAN SHERMAN OF NEW YORK.

Cleveland, Ohio, June 23—Congressman James S. Sherman, the recently nominated candidate of the Republican party for Vice President, who has been ill for two or three days at the residence of ex-Gov. Herrick in this city, was taken with a severe chill at 4.30 this morning. Physicians were called who decided that Mr. Sherman was suffering from gall stones. He was removed to a hospital where an operation will probably be performed today.

Houghs Neck By the Seaside

The second monthly supper and meeting of the Houghs Neck Associates will be held Wednesday evening at LaBrecque's Great Hill house. Matters of great importance will be brought before the meeting. If the night is a good one the supper will be served on the broad verandas.

Both the day and night officers have bicycles to cover their beats.

The large dance hall of Brown's will be taxed to the limit next Monday night when the Houghs Neck Associates hold their benefit dance. The regular evening prices will prevail.

The Higgins family of Everett are at the Bonnie Rag on Centre road.

Master Eugene LaBrecque arrived Saturday from college at Quebec de Levis, Canada. He was one of the honor pupils in his class.

Houghs Neck seems to have gone to sleep in the popularity contest. Their candidate Miss Matthews dropped from first place to third in the last week.

Miss Florence Brown is having a short vacation.

Thomas J. Dwyer has fitted up his office on Sea street very prettily.

A two months' trial order for the Ledger will help the Houghs Neck candidate.

The State inspector was at the beach on Monday and ordered the photographers to close Sunday. The penny vaudeville will have to get a Sunday license.

The street watering committee of Houghs Neck Associates have a man going round the beach collecting ten cents a week from each house holder. The money collected is to be used to hire a water wagon to water side streets.

Perry Farrington of Mears avenue entertained a few friends Sunday and Monday.

Assault Cases Are Continued

Albert Straite, Angelo Straite, Michela Straite, Francisco Pizzino, Antonio Ragazzi and Guiseppi LaRasso, the men who it is alleged made a murderous assault on Vincenzo Triviano at Braintree on Sunday, were arraigned in the district court this morning.

All of the men but one were arrested by Officer Matthews on Monday. Two of those arrested were found in Boston, and the others in Braintree. One of the men came into court this morning and gave himself up.

Troiano alleges that the men asked him for a drink, and when he gave it to them, they assaulted him with a hoe.

The defendants, however, claim that as they went by the man turned the hose on them.

The cases were continued until July 8 for a hearing.

Jumped from Car.

A young women named Cousins, employed as a maid in the family of Benjamin Johnson at Adams shore, jumped from a moving car Monday night and landed on her face in the dirt. The girl was on her way to Mr. Johnsons from City Square. As the car passed Palmer street she signaled for it to stop and then jumped. The car ran several feet before it came to a stop. A physician was summoned and the girl was removed to her home on Arthur street at West Quincy. Her face was scratched and she sustained some bruises, but fortunately escaped without any broken bones.

CRITICISMS BY BRYAN

Declared to Be Unworthy a Presidential Candidate

ELLIS ISSUES A STATEMENT

Says Anti-Injunction Plank In Republican Platform Frankly Shows the Party's Position and Warmly Defends It--As to Attacks on Judiciary

Columbus, O., June 23.—Attorney General Ellis of Ohio, who was a member of the committee on resolutions of the Republican national convention, in a statement issued last night, replies to criticisms of the platform made by W. J. Bryan. The attorney general's statement in part follows:

"The charge made by Mr. Bryan that the Republican declaration with respect to the use of the writ of injunction was designated to 'deceive the laboring man' is unworthy of a candidate for president, and the further charge that this plank merely declares the existing law and will give no relief in those cases in which there has been an abuse of discretion or the apprehension of it is unworthy of any lawyer who has examined this question.

"The anti-injunction resolution is a frank, clear statement of the Republican party's position on a question on which others have been attempting to deceive labor. The sole basis of any national complaint as to the issuance of injunctions in labor cases has been the use of the writ without notice and the long delays in some instances which have intervened before a hearing of the case.

"The present statute does not require any notice at all before the granting of a temporary order, and it is entirely within the discretion of the court to postpone, to any time the judge may see fit, the hearing upon the question of an injunction.

"The Republican plank simply declares that notice shall always be given unless an irreparable injury will result from delay, and in that case there shall be a speedy hearing provided. In other words, the platform declaration is designed to give assurance that what is now the general practice in the federal courts shall be made universal by statute, in order that hereafter no cause of complaint or misapprehension shall remain. This may not satisfy the extremists on either hand, but it was not expected to do it. It will meet the approval of every right-thinking man, whether an employer or an employe.

"Mr. Bryan objects further to the phrase in the injunction plank which proclaims confidence in the integrity of the courts. It is true, perhaps, that the convention which is yet to meet at Denver, rather than that which has just adjourned at Chicago, should express faith in the integrity of the courts; but, in view of the Democratic attack in 1896 and the fact that the same forces which then controlled that party are once again in supreme command, it would seem entirely appropriate for the Reublican party not only to remove any possible cause of complaint in the use of the writ of injunction, but to make it clear that it would resent again, as it did in 1896, any attempt to assail the judiciary.

"All that any one wants is that powers of the federal courts with respect to the use of injunction shall be accurately defined by statute, to the end that all occasions for complaint in labor cases, which happily have been rare in the past, shall disappear altogether in the future. The Republican plank points to a simple and straightforward way of achieving this purpose."

Job For Young Roosevelt

New York, June 23.—The Tribune today says that Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., it is understood, will have his first experience of actual manual work this summer as an employe of the United States Steel corporation under the direction of John C. Greenway, who was in the Rough Rider regiment in the Spanish war, and who is the superintendent of the western Mesaba department of the steel corporation's ore properties.

Oil For Fuel In Navy

Washington, June 23.—Oil-burning boilers are to be installed on the ten torpedo boat destroyers authorized by the last naval appropriation bill. These will be the first tests of oil-burning boilers in the American navy. The vessels will also be equipped with facilities for using coal as fuel in the event that the oil-burning boilers are not a success.

Americans to Keep Tabs

Panama, June 23.—The American commissioners left here for the principal towns of the republic today, to be present at the municipal elections, which take place next Sunday. At the election of presidential electors in the various towns the American government will be represented by specially appointed watchers.

Middies on Summer Cruise

Norfolk, June 23.—The Annapolis fleet of cruisers and monitors, having aboard the naval academy midshipmen on their regular summer cruise, passed out the Virginia Capes bound northward. The fleet is composed of the Hartford, the Olympia, the Chicago and the monitors Nevada and Arkansas.

When The Flag Is Passing By

By Henry Holcomb Bennett.

Hats off!
Along the street there comes
A blare of bugles, a ruffle of drums,
A flash of color beneath the sky.
Hats off!
The flag is passing by!

Blue and crimson and white it shines
Over the steel tipped, ordered lines.
Hats off!
The colors before us fly,
But more than the flag is passing by—

Sea fights and land fights, grim and great,
Fought to make and to save the state;
Weary marches and sinking ships;
Cheers of victory on dying lips;

Days of plenty and years of peace,
March of a strong land's swift increase;
Equal justice, right and law,
Stately honor and reverent awe;

Sign of a nation great and strong
To ward her people from foreign wrong.
Pride and glory and honor all
Live in the colors to stand or fall.

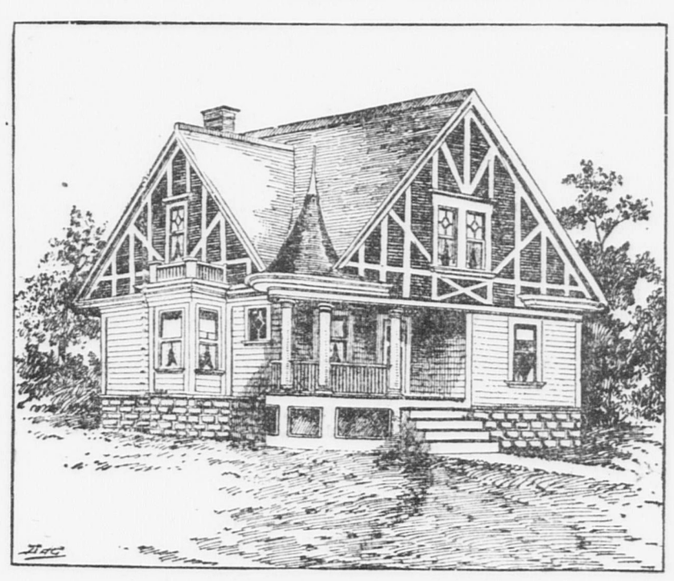

Hats off!
Along the street there comes
A blare of bugles, a ruffle of drums,
And loyal hearts are beating high.
Hats off!
The flag is passing by!

FIRST FLOOR PLAN. SECOND FLOOR PLAN.

A great deal of study was given in designing this well arranged cottage. Good circulation of air and free passage to all rooms from the hall are the features. Though the reception hall is of good size, no space is wasted in its arrangement. The bedroom and bathroom on the first floor should appeal to old people. The estimated cost, with full plumbing, mantels and grates, is $2,000.

Don't You Like This Town?

You live here. Your business interests are here. Your home is here.

You are reading a Mail Order Catalogue. That indicates that you are not spending your money in this town. You are spending it with strangers in a big city. That city has no use for this town except to get your money.

This town has use for your money. If spent here, your money will help to build up the town. It will help to build up your own business.

In the long run more of your money will come back to you if you spend it at home than if you send it to Chicago or some other large city. You spend a dollar with Smith, up the street. Smith spends it with Brown, around the corner. Brown is just as likely to spend it with you as with anybody else. Did you ever think of that?

All of us have to spend money. There is an art in spending it where it will do the most good. If spent so that it will circulate around this town and community, it will help this town and community. You belong to this town and community. Therefore it will help you. Isn't that good logic?

Suppose you think it over next time you pick up the Mail Order Catalogue.

Are not what you think they ought to be, you can make them the equal of Metropolitan stores if you give them your trade especially your CASH TRADE. It will furnish employment for more clerks; and proprietor and clerks will expend their money in QUINCY.

IF OUR DAILY PAPER

HEAD OF THE NATION

Taft Describes the Model Man For the Position

HARD WORK BEATS GENIUS

Must Be Free From Factional Control and Be Always Near the People In Thought--Roosevelt's Policies Should Be Carried Out

New York, June 23.—William H. Taft has written the following article on his conception of the presidency for the current issue of Collier's Weekly:

"In the four years that I have been a member of the cabinet, I have become familiar enough with the responsibilities and burdens of the presidency to know that no man can afford unduly to seek that great office. If he is attracted by honor and power alone, without the hope of being useful, he is unworthy of the honor and unfit for the use of the power. He must prefer for the sake of his own peace of mind never to be president to being a poor president.

"Confident that the platform on which he stands is for the best interests of the nation, he is untrue to himself and his supporters if he does not fight valiantly for election after he accepts the leadership. But, of course, he must draw the line at any compact which will not leave him free of promises and of the control of any faction.

"The president's duties, clearly outlined by the constitution, have grown broader in their interpretation with the growth of the country. He should be in the prime of years, health and vigor. The capacity for hard work is a better equipment than genius in mastering the essentials of all the departments of the government and undergoing the strain of countless interviews. He should look not only to those in office, but to those out of office, in all branches of private activity for information and opinion, in order that he may arrive at the truth when he is surrounded by the conflict of interests which come to him with the fair words of the special pleader.

"In many senses, though the most sought after, he is the loneliest man in the United States. Elected directly by the people their representative head, from them, in the sober thought of the majority, he will get his best counsel. They, as a whole, view public affairs unselfishly. Though indifference or pre-occupation with private affairs may keep them to attending primaries or scanning closely either candidate or measures, they can centre on the president as their instrument, the expression of their wishes.

"He should be always near the people in thought and as near them in person as his position will permit. In common with the people, he is human and he must ask their charity for his mistakes. When they have ceased to believe in his sincerity and unrightness of purpose, his is a cheerless task.

"Once convinced that he has divined and is carrying out their real wish, neither elated by any ephemeral outburst of applause nor diverted by any outburst of censure, he must proceed unwaveringly, always by lawful methods, to the accomplishment of the popular will.

"From Washington he may learn nobility, fortitude and forthrightness. Lincoln's life and speeches must be his source of inspiration when he is misunderstood and he has to say to himself 'patience and cheer.' It is easier since we had Lincoln than it was before to be a good president. He set a standard.

"It remained for Roosevelt to prove how the people will respond to a strong and true leadership when the hour has come for great reforms. The policies which he inaugurated must be continued and developed. They are right and they are the policies of the people. For that reason his successor may well disregard any charge of lack of originality if he does not make an entirely new program of his own.

"A president at this time has work before him clearly defined. The enforcement of the law, equally against high and low, the powerful and the weak, should be his first thought. The danger to our country from laxity or favoritism in this is the greatest one we have to face. The conservation of our national resources and their development for the use of all along the lines of equal opportunity, too, must command his immediate attention. It should be his aim to give high tone to his administration, as Mr. Roosevelt has, by surrounding himself with men of earnest, enthusiastic interest in the public weal, and of the cleanest, but most effective, methods."

Mad Dog Scare at Chicago

Chicago, June 23.—The hottest day of the year brought death and suffering to Chicago. Seven deaths were reported and heat prostrations were numerous. In addition, a mad dog scare spread through the city and the chief of police ordered his men to shoot all unmuzzled dogs. The thermometer reached 94 degrees.

Will Give Advice on Tariff

Omaha, June 23.—Colonel Lord, chief paymaster of the army for the department of the Missouri, whose headquarters are in Omaha, has been called to Washington to advise with the house committee on ways and means relative to revision of the tariff. Lord is an expert on tariff.

NINE NEGROES LYNCHED

Texas Mob's Revenge For the Killing of Two White Men

Houston, Tex., June 23.—Nine negroes met death at the hands of a mob at Hemphill. Both races secured arms and the tension is such that a race clash appears imminent.

The lynching followed the killing of two white men by negroes. Two weeks ago Hugh Dean and several other white men visited a negro church and schoolhouse where a dance was in progress, probably in quest of liquor, it being the custom of some of the negroes to sell whisky during the progress of such affairs. During the evening Dean was killed and six negroes were held for the killing. At the preliminary examination the evidence tended to show that the plot was formed at the dance to kill Dean.

Saturday last, Aaron M. Johnson, a farmer, was assassinated while seated at the dining table with his wife and child, the bullet being fired through a window. For this crime Perry Price, a negro, was arrested, and, it is stated, confessed, implicating Robert Wright, a relative of one of the negroes held for Dean's murder. Price declared he was offered $5 to kill Johnson.

Then followed the forming of the mob, the overpowering of the jailor at Hemphill and the lynching of the six negroes held for the murder of Dean. Five were hanged to the same tree, while another attempted to escape and was shot to death. Later in the night William McCoy, another negro, was shot and killed while standing at the gate of the Johnson home, and the bodies of two more negroes were found in the creek bottom. Price, who confessed to killing Johnson, and the man he implicated were taken to Beaumont for safe-keeping under guard of the military company of San Augustine.

Castro Defies the World

Paris, June 23.—The Matin this morning prints an interview which its Caracas correspondent has had with President Castro of Venezuela, in which the president explained that his policy was to fight foreign companies who monopolized the economic life of the country. Venezuela, continued the president, was on bad terms with all the powers. It was his work, in which he gloried. "I do not fear Europe," said Castro. "All the powers can coalesce, but Venezuela will remain impregnable while I live."

Ruin In Trail of Storm

Owatonna, Mich., June 23.—Clark's Grove and Ellendale, which were in the path of Saturday afternoon's storm, received a second visitation yesterday. At Clark's Grove an elevator was blown to pieces and twenty-seven barns were levelled. Many cattle and horses were killed. The loss about the town is estimated at $100,000. At Ellendale scarcely a frame building escaped damage. The crop loss in Steele county is $150,000.

Vindicated by Court Martial

Washington, June 23.—Paymaster Ryan of the Pacific fleet was acquitted by a court martial of the charge of drunkenness on duty, preferred by Rear Admiral Dayton, commanding the fleet. Dayton and Secretary Metcalf disapproved the finding, on the ground that it was not according to the evidence. The action of the court, however, is final, and Ryan has been restored to duty.

A Cure For Leprosy

New Orleans, June 23.—Six out of sixty-one lepers at the home maintained for their care by the state in Iberville parish have been cured during the last two years, according to the biennial report of the home. The cures are attributed to giving the lepers the same sanitary surroundings that the average person enjoys and an equal opportunity to receive first-class medical treatment.

Looking For Gold In the Congo

Brussels, June 23.—Letters received here from R. D. Mohun, the explorer and leader of the American expedition in the Congo, report that the party has reached its destination and has begun operations. The party will be engaged for a considerable length of time in prospecting for minerals, it being thought that extensive gold fields are to be found in that territory.

Cure More Dangerous Than Disease

Chicago, June 23.—Mrs. Louisa Thompson, 40 years old, a resident of Zion City, the town founded by the late John A. Dowie, died from starvation after a forty-day fast. She is said to have undertaken the ordeal in the belief that it would cure her of cancer. She and her husband are members of one of the numerous cults that exist in Zion City.

Eleven Miles In Airship

Milan, June 23.—Leon De La Grange, the French aeroplanist, surpassed all previous records by flying for sixteen minutes and thirty seconds. His machine was from ten to eighteen feet above the ground. De La Grange traversing in all a little more than eleven miles.

Killed by Hydrophobia

Pittsburg, June 23.—Bitten three months ago by a dog, Charles Walzer died from hydrophobia after suffering great agony since Sunday. His wife and two children were bitten by a pet cat which had been attacked by the dog and are being treated as a precautionary measure.

Fate and the ...Seashell.

By INA WRIGHT HANSON.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

Just before the lunch hour there had been great excitement around the casino at Santa Cruz. Jeannette Washburn had been last of the bathers to leave the surf and in her usual reckless manner had started to swim to the raft after she was tired enough to leave the water. She made the raft all right, but halfway back she went under.

Patricia, on the pleasure pier, had given the alarm, and two men put out in a boat. Before they bore their dripping burden up the pier steps a crowd had gathered from all directions. The beach policeman had come running to press them back and allow the men to hurry through with the half drowned girl.

Then the crowd dispersed, except Patricia, who had given the alarm. When one walks always with a crutch it is better not to walk in a crowd. So she waited till the pier was deserted and she had found that Jeannette would recover. Then she went home.

Usually Patricia's slow steps were not wearisome to her, for the beauty of the hills kept her company, the flowers along the way were her friends, and the voice of the ocean said to her many things, but today she saw neither hills nor flowers, and she heard nothing but her own heart's cry, "Ernest Wentworth loves Jeannette!"

She had heard it yesterday, and a glimpse of his white face in the crowd today confirmed the rumor that he was going to marry Jeannette Washburn. She had said it over and over in the night watches, waging war with her own eager heart and telling it to be ashamed for giving its love unasked.

When she saw Jeannette near to drowning she was wild to plunge in and swim out to her and save her, and not for Jeannette's own sake.

Even in her impulse she recognized her motive—not for Jeannette's sake, but for his. She would make the supremest sacrifice of her unrequited love, and she would do a heroic deed because of it. But even this was denied her.

"Everything is denied a cripple," she thought with unwonted bitterness as she reached her father's gate. "If I were like other girls he might have chosen me!"

Late in the afternoon, in the brief hours between dinner and the gay life of the evening, when she knew the casino would be almost deserted, she went back to sit on the steps and look silently seaward.

Away to the horizon were fishing boats and a pleasure yacht, its white sails gleaming silver in the sun. Nearer the shore showed the dark hulk of the buoy, and nearer still the sea birds diving and dipping.

All this was on the sea. On the sand was a lone figure, a woman in a faded green dress, its skirts held ungracefully up from the kelp as she walked the damp sands gathering seashells.

Patricia, watching her drearily, saw her pick up one, look at it carefully, then put it in her jacket pocket. The next she threw away, perhaps because of flaw or break or lack of luster.

"Dreaming?" said a voice very pleasant to Patricia's ears, and Wentworth sat down beside her.

It only made it the harder to have him kind to her. Did a crumb ever do a particle of good when one was starving for the whole loaf? Poor Patricia! Still, as he was there, and as he was not saying anything more, she must make talk. Any kind of talk was better than silence, so she spoke of what she had been thinking.

"Yonder is fate." She pointed to the shell gatherer. "Choosing, rejecting; blessing, cursing. Oh, poor little thrown away shells!"

She had tried to make her words sound light, but the man heard the note of pain. He bent toward her, and his voice was very kind.

"I have known you a year," he said, "and I never saw you morbid before. But you are morbid now. You are tired. The excitement this morning was too much for you."

"Yes," she acknowledged. "I was on the pleasure pier when Jeannette went down. I had a wild desire to plunge in and save her and have my picture in the paper afterward. I wanted to be the star of the matinee, you see, and this creation of board and pad would not let me."

She smiled whimsically down at the crutch and up at him. She was glad he could not read her thoughts. She would be very gay—if he did not stay too long.

Perhaps Wentworth could not read her thoughts, but he could see that her eyes were tired, and he looked at them and at the sweet, sensitive mouth in the way that a lover looks.

"Patricia, I know of a golden country in which lives a golden lady—not golden haired, for her hair is dark as yours, but having a heart of gold and a spirit of tried gold. Her eyes are dark, too—let me see how dark, Patricia."

The caress in his tones made her tremble. He meant only to be kind—if he could have known the anguish—but she raised her eyes obediently to his for an instant and smiled at him. She was a very brave Patricia, this crippled girl.

"Just as dark and beautiful as yours, Patricia. Well, this golden lady would have gone out into the great world to do lots of great things, but circumstances forced her to stay in her own domains. So, instead of being disconsolate because she could not do what she would do, she sang a little song of contentment, and one, heart sore and weary with much suffering of mind and body, heard it and sought out the way of peace. Know the little old bedridden woman down by the river, Patricia?"

Wentworth smiled at the girl's flushing cheeks and went on:

"Then I knew of a boy in this golden country whose body was crippled and whose mind was growing into a very unlovely state because of thwarted ambitions. To him the little lady showed the way into a land of high ideals and earnest endeavors. The boy is a good boy now and will make a great man some day.

"Then there are the children. Generally they are very much in the way when a fellow wants to talk to the golden lady. They bring her burnished poppies and treasures of seaweed. Why? Oh, nothing, only she mends dolls, binds up bruises on soft little hands and"—

Patricia raised her head in protest. It was fine of him to praise her, but she could not bear it. She must go.

His hand went out and stayed her, as she would have risen.

"Wait, dear, there is more. One day a man came riding down the country lane, and he saw the golden lady and wanted her. You wouldn't blame a man for craving the sunshine, would you, sweetheart?"

Patricia went white around the lips. "But I thought you were going to marry Jeannette Washburn!"

"My cousin is going to marry Jeannette Washburn, and I am going to marry you, I hope. Am I, Patricia?"

Fate in the green dress was coming toward them, and Patricia saw that her eyes were very kind. She threw down a shell and, passing them, went up the steps and through the casino.

"Get it for me, please, Ernest," she said.

And when he had given her the shell, iridescent and of pleasing form, but having a cruel break in its fluted edge, she touched it lightly to her lips and raised her happy face to her lover.

"Dear, blessed, discarded little shell!" she cried.

Even Freshmen Think.

The people who don't think for themselves are like sheep. The ram jumps over a certain stone in the wall, and all the sheep jump over the same stone. That may be the best place to get over the wall, but whether it is or not the sheep do it just the same. Initiative is a rare quality. Sheep haven't much initiative. To have initiative you must do your own thinking. At the law school of a big university years ago there occurred a striking example of initiative. One of the professors devised a system for improving the curriculum. He demonstrated that his method would double the efficiency of the instruction. He went over his plans exhaustively with his leading colleagues on the faculty. They all agreed that it was a great idea. Finally there was called a mass meeting of faculty and students for the purpose of presenting and indorsing the new system. The professor described before the meeting the many and great advantages of his scheme. When he sat down, as a matter of form the chairman called for remarks before taking a vote. A first year man whom no one knew got up and began very quietly to point out objections—serious objections. All eyes were turned upon this presumptuous upstart. What did he know about it? Not much, perhaps, but he knew enough to do his own thinking. When he had finished speaking the new system was voted down, never to be heard of again.—Appleton's Magazine.

Milton and "Paradise Regained."

After some common discourses had passed between us he (Milton) called for a manuscript of his, which, being brought, he delivered to me, bidding me take it home with me and read it at my leisure and when I had done so return it to him with my judgment. When I came home and had set myself to read it I found it was that excellent poem which he entitled "Paradise Lost."

After I had, with the best attention, read it through I made him another visit and returned to him his book. He asked me how I liked it and what I thought of it, which I modestly but freely told him, and after some further discourse about it I pleasantly said to him, "Thou hast said much here of paradise lost, but what hast thou to say of paradise found?"

He made no answer, but sat some time in a muse, then broke off that discourse and fell upon another subject, so when "Paradise Regained" was written Milton said in a pleasant tone, "That is owing to you, for you put it into my head by the question you put to me at Chalfont, which before I had not thought of."—"History of Thomas Ellwood."

The Mathematical Mind.

A literary worker who wished to do a large amount of reading by proxy advertised for an assistant capable of digesting the contents of a tremendous quantity of books in a very short while. While weighing each applicant's qualifications for rapid assimilative reading he inquired carefully into his mathematical acquirements. He finally chose the man who was most skillful at untangling arithmetical problems. "On the surface that seems an unnecessary accomplishment in this case," he said, "but experience has taught me that anybody who is expert in figures can read any kind of literature put before him with greater accuracy and speed than the person lacking in mathematical acumen."—New York Times.

In all the praise of the beautiful library building, the attendants, etc., a writer notes that no mention has been made of the services of the faithful janitor, Harrison G. O. Newcomb, who early and late is always at his post. Seldom is found a public building cleaner, free from dust, or better kept than the Thomas Crane Public library, thanks to Mr. Newcomb.

The senior class of Bridgewater Normal school gave a presentation of "As You Like It" on Friday, June 19. Quincy was well represented in the cast, Miss Olive Huston taking the part of Jacques, and Miss Teresa Keating the part of the Second Lord and also that of the Forester, the latter being a musicial part.

Thursday, June 25, will be the 40th anniversary of the dedication of the Soldiers' Monument at Mt. Wollaston cemetery in this city. Quincy was one of the first towns in the country to honor the soldier dead of the Civil war in this way.

—Sheriff Samuel H. Capen of Dedham will be chief marshal Wednesday in the parade of the Knights Templars at Hyde Park.

—The old Fairbanks house in Dedham, commencing this afternoon, will be open to the public from 1 to 6, until July 1.

W. P. Middleton Comes Into Prominence In the Contest

"Dr." W. P. Middleton of Quincy Point has sprung a surprise upon the candidates in the Motor Boat contest today by jumping in among the leaders He has 739 votes to his credit and is No. 3. He evidently has a large number of young people at work for him, who are not only collecting coupons but securing trial orders for the Daily Ledger for two months.

Several make gains of five, ten or twenty votes by the use of coupons but need a few trial orders to jump them up near the top.

Blanks for placing trial orders for the Daily Ledger may be obtained at the office of publication, and will be mailed upon request. Each trial order gives a credit of 100 votes to your favorite candidate.

The standing of the candidates will be printed each day, all votes received previous to 9 A. M. being counted that day.

It is not necessary that candidates shall be members of a yacht club or any other club. Neither is the contest limited to men. Women as well as men may enter.

The prizes offered are valuable ones, there being others besides the motor boat which is offered as a first prize.

The standing today at 9 A. M. was:

Will Earnestly Endeavor to Secure Taft's Election

TRIBUTE TO THE CANDIDATE

Better Equipped For Governing Free People Than Any Man Ever Called to That Task--Ticket Ratified by New York Republican Club

New York, June 23.—Worthy of note in itself as the first gathering of New York Republicans to ratify the ticket nominated by the national convention at Chicago last week, the ratification meeting held by the Republican club at its headquarters last night developed added interest by the presence of Governor Hughes, New York's candidate for the presidency at the convention.

As the principal speaker of the evening, Hughes took occasion to explain that he had not seen fit to consent to the withdrawal of his name from the convention's consideration when asked so do so by leading members of the delegation, because he believed it was the duty of the instructed delegates to obey the instructions of their constituents.

The nominations of Taft and Sherman and the party's national platform were endorsed in resolutions which pledged the club to vigorous and unreserved support of the ticket in the coming campaign, and Stewart L. Woodford, who placed Hughes in nomination at Chicago, in a speech which followed that of the governor, alluded to the latter's address as a "summary of Republican purpose and duty."

Governor Hughes in his speech said: "I am very glad of the opportunity to join with you in a tribute to a great leader, the nominee of a Republican convention, to whom we all pledge our most earnest support.

"The Republican party is never in want of a man able and equipped for his task, for the great task of governing a free people in a constitutional method. But there never has been a man called to that task with the equipment of William Howard Taft. That is the plain fact. His record may be examined with a microscope.

"He leads us at a time when such wise leadership is necessary. And it is because I believe that in the leader selected by the convention we not only have a man notably equipped, but we have a true and sympathetic friend of the people, a man who will devote his great abilities to the solution of the problems which confront us, a man who will be unreservedly a true American, yielding to none in his desire to preserve pure and uncorrupted the Constitution of the United States and the stream of authority undefiled, that I yield support and every earnest endeavor on my part to secure the election of William Howard Taft."

Where Pols Will Gather

Washington, June 23.—The Republican congressional committee has arranged to have a branch office in the St. James building, New York city, which, in fact, will practically be the headquarters of the committee, although technically the headquarters will remain in this city. The officers of the committee will spend most of their time in New York.

Won't Be a Running Mate

Wilmington, Del., June 23.—Judge Gray would not under any condition accept the Democratic nomination for vice president. A definite announcement to this effect was made by L. I. Handy, who will make the speech at Denver placing the judge in nomination for the presidency, which task he performed four years ago.

Will Second Bryan's Nomination

Richmond, June 23.—Governor Swanson has been invited by Mr. Bryan to second his nomination for president at the Denver convention. The invitation came by mail and Swanson at once replied that he would be very happy to perform that service for his former congressional colleague. Swanson is a delegate-at-large.

In Honor of Taft

Cincinnati, June 23.—A general holiday for the day when Mr. Taft will be formally notified of his nomination as Republican candidate for the presidency is planned by the local organizations. There will be a big parade and out-door demonstrations.

Supposed Work of Strangler

New York, June 23.—With a towel knotted securely around his neck and tied behind him, a man who had registered at the Hotel Empire as Jacob Prozello was found dead in his room. Declaring his belief that the man had been murdered, Coroner Harburger has ordered an autopsy.

Damage by Electrical Storm

Columbus, O., June 23.—One of the worst electrical storms in years passed over central Ohio and did much damage. Much stock is reported to have been killed by lightning and many farmhouses and outbuildings were struck by the lightning and burned.

City Official Accepted Bribe

Columbus, O., June 23.—Frederick J. Immel, who recently was ousted from membership of the Columbus board of public service, pleaded guilty to accepting a bribe when in office and was sentenced to four years in prison and to pay a fine of $1000.

LOYAL HARVARD ALUMNI

Twenty-Four Thousand Dollars Is Pledged For New Dental School

Boston, June 23.—At the dinner of the Harvard Dental Alumni association at Young's hotel last night $24,000 was pledged to finish the new Harvard Dental school which is to be erected in this city. Dr. Charles S. Brackett of Newport, R. I., in response to Dean Smith's appeal for funds, promised $10,000 on condition that a like sum be raised among the alumni present.

Great enthusiasm followed Dr. Brackett's remarks. Dr. William H. Potter at once pledged $2000, Dean Smith $1000, the class of 1898 $1000, and many the sum of $500 and $250.

Dr. W. E. Boardman, secretary of the alumni association, soon after giving $500 as his offering, had his lieutenants working and in a very short time Dean Smith was able to say to the gathering:

"I am proud of the alumni of Harvard Dental school, as I have always been; $24,000 has been given here tonight, which I believe to be the greatest gift ever offered by an alumni to its alma mater."

CLIMB FOR MISS PECK

Will Try Again to Scale Mount Huascaran, In Peru.

THIS TIME WITH EXPERT HELP

Woman Mountain Climber Will Start on Perilous Journey With Two Swiss Guides and a Native Scaler—Believes Peak Is Highest In America.

After a tedious rest of two years, with not a single adventure in them, the desire to fill her lungs with the rare atmosphere and to expose herself to the biting winds of the mountain top has again seized Miss Annie S. Peck, the champion woman mountain scaler. In the Clarendon hotel at New York the other night she announced that once more she will climb the frosty sides of Mount Huascaran, Peru, which she regards as the highest peak on the American continent. She failed to reach the top two years ago because she was handicapped by native guides, who drank all her alcohol when she was asleep and otherwise hampered her in her ascent. This time she is to have guides from Switzerland who have no taste for pure alcohol and who know what assistance a woman mountain scaler needs, says the New York Press. The man who is to furnish the guides has assured Miss Peck she need have no fear for her alcohol this time. It might be explained that the only use Miss Peck has for that liquid is for fuel wherewith to keep warm and cook on the mountains. One native guide she will take, but he will be in such a minority that the alcohol will undoubtedly hold out until the pinnacle of the mountain is reached.

Before next autumn Miss Peck hopes to stand on the topmost peak of Huascaran and look down upon all Peru and then come back and tell all about the sensation in magazines and lectures. None has yet reached the top of this formidable peak, so far as is known, and if Miss Peck succeeds she will indeed be the champion American mountain scaler, not barring even the men. Having done that, she will rest content unless perchance it should be discovered that Mount Huascaran is not the highest peak on the continent. Miss Peck will not rest until she has conquered any mountain that dares rear its head farther above the sea level than Huascaran.

Miss Peck and two Swiss guides will soon sail for Colon from New York city; thence she will cross the isthmus and go down the west coast until she reaches Samanco; then she will cross the Black range and rest for several days at a silver mine 12,000 feet above the sea level to let her lungs become accustomed to the altitude. When she has been there long enough to forget about the altitude she will descend to Yungay, which is at the foot of Huascaran. After increasing her equipment by one native guide she will begin the ascent.

"When I made the other attempt to climb Huascaran," said the climber the other night, "I took four guides and two tents. This time I will have only three guides, and I will take with me instruments to measure the cold, the moisture and the exact height of the mountain when I reach the top. I will also have a camera to take panoramic views of the surrounding country and lower peaks."

Miss Peck says she has a trained eye for measuring the height of mountains. When she makes a guess she finds it is pretty nearly correct, she says. She estimates Huascaran to be between 23,000 and 24,000 feet above the sea level. At any rate, she thinks it is so high that when she reaches the top she will have broken the world's record, now held by the Englishman W. W. Graham, who ascended to a height of 23,800 feet in the Himalayas many years ago. In her last attempt to reach the peak of Mount Huascaran she attained a height of 17,500 feet. At that time the mountain was seamed with dangerous crevasses.

"Of course the feat will be attended by great dangers," exclaimed Miss Peck. "We will have to wear masks to protect our faces from the weather and smoked glasses to protect our eyes from the bright sun. When we reach the ice and snow of the peak we will have to use ropes and ice axes; then I will chew quantities of the leaves from which cocaine is extracted. It acts as a stimulant on such a long tramp. The natives use it much as the Americans do tobacco. It is harmful as a habit, but a helpful stimulant when sparingly used."

Miss Peck has gone to Washington to make arrangements with federal officials for gathering information about the country and the mountain she is to climb.

A Flower Bed a Mile Long.

A mile long bed of rhododendrons in Central park, New York's most beautiful breathing spot, is the recent gift of Mrs. Russell Sage to the people of that city. It is estimated that the gift, which will be known as the Sage plantation, will by the time it is finished represent an outlay on the part of Mrs. Sage of at least $50,000. Mrs. Sage drives in the park a great deal and recently visited Park Commissioner Smith and offered to install the flowering shrubs in order to brighten up a stretch along the main east drive, of which she is particularly fond. The greater part of the thousands of plants which will go to make up the bed are of American growth, but more than 6,000 of them were imported from Belgium. Commissioner Smith says that the plantation will be, when completed, the finest of its kind in the world.

The Observations In the Daily Walk

The $250 Motor Boat offered as a prize in the Popularity Contest is a Dandy.

The resurfacing of Hancock street, City Square is a slow job but will be all right when completed.

The next grade crossing hearing in Quincy will be held Tuesday, July 7, in the Council chamber at City Hall.

Members of the City Council have received personal invitations to attend the monthly supper of the Houghs Neck Associates on Wednesday.

Mrs. Florence Loring of Willow street left Wollaston on Monday for St. John, N. B. Her son Lawrence accompanied her. They are returning next week.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Bartlett of Willow street are at Hanover, N. H., this week attending the commencement exercises of Dartmouth college.

The daily through street car service between Neponset and Nantasket beach went into effect Monday. The through cars leave Quincy for the beach at 5 and 35 minutes past the hour.

The Central station combination was called out on a still alarm at 9.15 Monday night for a slight fire on Presidents bridge. Last year this was almost a daily occurrence during the dry season.

The annual picnic under the auspices of the Grand lodge of Orangemen will be held at New Downer Landing on Saturday, July 11. Andrew Stewart of Quincy is judge of the committee on sports. The lodge will parade in City Square that morning.

Part of the Shakespeare club including Mrs. Pierce, Mrs. Hobbs, and Mrs. Splaine attended the open air play "A Midsummer Night's Dream" given by the Wellesley students last week Wednesday. The piece was beautifully portrayed in all details and was appreciated in all its details by the guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cook (nee Ethel Hill) have returned from their wedding trip through New York State and were in Atlantic Sunday as guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Hill of Walker street. Mr. and Mrs. Cook are at their new residence in Somerville this week where they will be at home to their friends after August first.

New Fall River Steamer.

The New England Navigation Company, operating the Fall River line, will place a new $2,000,000 steamer in commission, July 1, the Commonwealth built at New York.

With a commanding high bow and true sheer, curving gracefully two-thirds of her length the Commonwealth's broadside is a beautiful model. Her length over all is 456 ft.; breadth of hull, moulded, 55 ft.; breadth over guards, 96 ft.; depth of hull, 22 ft. She has sleeping accommodations for 2,000 persons.

The Commonwealth represents the highest achievement of decorative art placed in a steamboat interior. Every detail in the decoration and furnishing of the boat has been conceived by an artist. The steamer is a striking example of what taste and money can accomplish.

Like all steamers of the Fall River Line, the Commonwealth is built of steel. Seven bulkheads extend to the main deck and they contain no doors to be left open by carelessness. She has a double hull and the space between the bottoms is divided into a great many water-tight compartments. The safety of the steamer is thus assured in case of accident. There are also collision bulkheads at each side of the steamer at the guards and a bulkhead athwartship.

The Commonwealth will have a speed of twenty-two miles an hour. Her engine is of the double inclined compound type, with two high pressure cylinders ninety-six inches in diameter.

In the way of comforts and conveniences, no metropolitan hotel can offer more than the Commonwealth. The man who is particular about his appearance, has at his command, while speeding over the waters of Long Island Sound, the services of a valet, barber and bootblack. If he desires to write letters or attend to business matters there is a competent stenographer to assist him, and he may keep in close touch with his office by means of the wireless service.

Newsy Budget From Shipyard

The scout cruiser Salem, built at Quincy, is having the first of her government trials today off the coast of Maine.

The midshipmen from the Naval Academy at Annapolis will visit the Boston Navy Yard, the plant of the Fore River Shipbuilding Company at Quincy, and go as far north as the torpedo station, Bath, Me., on their annual practice cruise. This has been decided upon by Acting Secretary of the Navy Newberry and the route of the cruise has been amended to allow of the midshipmen making these stops. In order to enable the middies to comply with this latest idea of the naval officials the headquarters of the cruise has been transferred from Hampton Roads, Va., to New London, Ct. At this point the frills and exercises of the middies will be held. The cruise is to start about Wednesday, when the middies leave Hampton Roads.

A Washington dispatch to a Boston paper says: Oil burning boilers are to be installed on the 10 torpedo boat destroyers authorized by the last naval appropriation bill. This will be the first test of fuel oil burning boilers in the American navy. The vessels will also be equipped with facilities for using coal as fuel in the event that the oil burning boilers are not a success. These destroyers are to cost, exclusive of armament, $800,000 each. Their general outlines have been agreed upon and the specifications are in course of preparation. As soon as they are ready advertisements will be submitted drafting proposals for their construction.

A dispatch from San Francisco to the Boston Transcripe says: Assembling of the Atlantic fleet of sixteen warships and six auxiliaries in this harbor for the start on July 7 on the voyage around the world from San Francisco to Hampton Roads already has begun. Seven of the battleships, including the flagship of Rear Admiral Charles S. Sperry, the Connecticut, are here, and all of the auxiliaries are in this vicinity. Besides the Connecticut, the battleships in the harbor are the Louisiana, Ohio, Minnesota, Kansas, Vermont (built at Quincy) and Georgia. The West Virginia is at Mare Island.

Supplies are already being taken aboard the supply ship Culgoa and the refrigerator supply ship Glacier. The collier Ajax, the repair ship Panther, the hospital ship Relief and the despatch boat Yorktown are being put in readiness for the long voyage.

By July 3 at the latest all of the warships of the Atlantic fleet will be in this port, and the ships of the Pacific fleet also will be assembled here before that date, to remain until after the departure of the Atlantic fleet. The Virginia, which is now at Bremerton Navy Yard, will arrive here the latter part of the month. The New Jersey and Rhode Island (built at Quincy) and also the Nebraska are now at Bremerton and will arrive here together June 30. The Wisconsin, now on Puget Sound, is due the 26th, the Illinois the 24th, the Kearsarge the 23d and the Kentucky July 2. Either at Bremerton or the dry docks at Mare Island or Hunter's Point the battleships have been hauled out and cleaned or have yet to undergo that operation.

July 4 the combined fleets of the Atlantic and Pacific will take part in the celebration here, and three days later the battleships of the Atlantic fleet will depart for Honolulu, where they are scheduled to arrive July 14. The auxiliaries will have preceded them by one week and will have unloaded supplies for the fleet and steamed away from Honolulu before the battleships arrive.

President Roosevelt has written a letter to Lieutenant Commander Cone of the fleet of torpedo boat destroyers which sailed from the Atlantic to the Pacific, as follows:

"My dear Mr. Cone—A great deal of attention has been paid to the feat of our battleship fleet in encircling South America and getting to San Francisco, and it would be hard to too highly compliment the officers and enlisted men of that fleet for what they have done.

"Yet, if I should draw any distinction at all it would be in favor of your associates who have taken out the torpedo flotilla. Yours was even a more notable feat and every officer and every enlisted man in the torpedo flotilla has the right to feel that he has given distinguished service to the United States navy and therefore to the people of the United States, and I wish I could thank each of them personally. Will you have this letter read by the commanding officer of each torpedo boat to his officers and crew?"

Excursion Travel.

With the schools and colleges still open, and the long vacation a few weeks off, it is surprising the amount of excursion travel already experienced on all arms of the Eastern Steamship Company's service. Undoubtedly the hot wave, with its sweltering and enervating effects has had a stimulating influence on ocean travel, and the Eastern Steamship Lines are naturally among the first to feel this influence.

No one division appears to have been favored more than another, but all four, the Portland, International, Kennebec and Bangor Lines are sharing handsomely in the ever increasing patronage.

The Portland Division now has daily sailings (Sundays included), from both Boston and Portland, Union wharf and Franklin wharf respectively, the boats leaving at 7.00 P. M. on week days and 8.00 P. M. from Portland on Sundays.

The day trip to Portland every Monday on the International Division, leaving Union wharf (the Calvin Austin) at 9 A. M. for Portland, Eastport, Lubec and St. John, is undoubtedly one of the most delightful and exhilarating of the present offerings on the Eastern Steamship calendar. This same steamer makes another trip to St. John, every week, that of Friday, but does not stop at Portland. Another steamer, either of the new turbine steamships Governor Cobb of Camden, will be put in commission on this division a week from tomorrow, and on Monday, June 29th the Calvin Austin will begin making her direct trips, Boston to St. John every Monday and Thursday from Union wharf at 12 o'clock noon. The sailings of the Austin and Governor Cobb or Camden from Boston, will be made every Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 9 A. M.

The first signs of the summer's drift of vacation travel seaward to Bar Harbor are already in evidence. This means an ever increasing patronage on the Bangor Division which has daily sailings (Sundays excepted) from Foster's wharf, 5 P. M., for Rockland, Bangor, and all intervening points with direct connections at Rockland for Bluehill, Sedgwick and Bar Harbor.

On the Kennebec Division the present schedule calls for sailings every Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 6 P. M. from Union wharf.

FASTEST OF CLASS

Cruiser Salem Built At Quincy Makes Nearly Twenty Seven Knots

Almost 27 knots.

The scout cruiser Salem, built at Quincy and equipped with American turbine engines, achieved a great victory on Tuesday, when she dashed over a measured mile at a 26.8857 knot speed, thus taking away from the Chester, a sister ship, the honor of being the fastest vessel of her type.

Government officials all over the country have been watching this trial with unusual interest, and it is a source of gratification to know that the American Curtis turbine has triumphed over the English Parsons turbine.

In order to sustain her victory, however, the Salem must average better than 26.53 knots on her four-hour run today. That the Fore River shipbuilding company may acquire new and greater prestige, every effort will be made to have the Salem excel that stunt.

When the Salem went onto the course Tuesday morning she began her standardization test at a 12-knot speed, gradually increasing until the seventh lap, when she made the first of her five top-speed runs. On the ninth run she made the mile in 2m 13.9s, which was at the rate of 26,-8857 knots per hour.

Cheers broke forth and two brooms were nailed to the topmast head. The next fastest run was at the rate of 26.50 and the mean of the five highest runs was 25.954.

The Chester's best mile on standardization was 26.22 and the mean of her five fastest runs was 25.1. The Salem's displacement during trial was 3788 tons and her draft was 16 feet 9 3-4 inches. The estimated horse-power developed was about 20,000.

The ship stood the strain of the trial splendidly and was handled with much more ease than the Birmingham built at Quincy, which has reciprocating engines. It was possible to put the helm over 25 degrees without perceptible vibration. The test showed that the ship would make contract speed of 24 knots an hour on 348 revolutions of the propellers per minute. Her four hours' trial will be on this basis.

The anchor test was conducted in 30 fathoms of water. Two anchors on 105 fathoms of chain each were taken in at the rate of 35 fathoms per minute. The four-hour run commenced at 7 A. M. this morning, terminating near Boston light.

Tuesday's trial was under the supervision of the board of inspection, of which Rear Admiral Richardson Clover is chairman and Lieutenant Commander G. R. Evans is clerk; and of the engineering board, of which Capt. I. S. K. Reeves is chairman.

The Fore River Shipbuilding Company was represented by former Admiral Francis T. Bowles, president; F. O. Wellington, assistant general manager; Charles B. Edwards, chief engineer, and J. J. Crain, electrical engineer. The navigating officer was Capt. Edward Evans, and the engine room was in charge of James F. Paige.

Future officers of the Salem who are on board during the trials are: Capt. Albert L. Key, who is to command the craft; Lieutenant Commander Montgomery M. Taylor, executive officer; Lieutenant Commander Roscoe C. Bulmer, navigating officer; Lieut. Harry K. Cage, chief engineer; Capt. Albert Lenoir Key, the future commander, entered the naval service June 27, 1877, being appointed from his native state of Tennessee. He was formerly a naval aid to the President.

The Salem is practically completed as far as construction work is concerned, and will go into commission the latter part of next month. The cruiser was launched July 27, 1907. She measures 423 feet over all and has a displacement of 4640 tons. Her battery consists of two five-inch and six three-inch rapid fire guns and two submerged torpedo tubes.

June Wedding Dennehy--McCarthy

One of the prettiest of the late June weddings was that of Mr. Patrick Dennehy and Miss Minnie McCarthy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel McCarthy, a popular young lady of Wollaston, which was solemnized Tuesday evening at the parochial residence of St. John's church by the pastor, Rev. Fr. Coan.

The maid of honor was Miss Mildred A. Shea of Cambridge. Miss Gertrude Shea also of Cambridge was flower girl. Mr. Theophile E. Gagnon of Quincy was best man. The bride wore white lansdoune with Duchess lace, and carried a shower bouquet of lillies of the valley. The maid of honor wore a white embroidered dress, and carried sweet peas and maiden-hair fern. The flower girl wore a blue china silk and carried sweet peas.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents.

The wedding supper of salads and ices was served by Caterer La Croix.

Mr. and Mrs. Dennehy left amid a shower of confetti and good wishes for a short trip, returning from which they will reside at Hancock street, Wollaston.

"Trial order" blanks for the Daily Ledger will be sent on application at the Ledger office. The paper will be delivered in any part of Quincy, and the subscriber may cast 100 votes for any candidate in the Motor Boat popularity contest.

The annual convention of the American Institute of Instruction will be held at Burlington, Vt., July 7 to 9. At the morning session Tuesday July 9. Supt. Frank E. Parlin of the Quincy schools will give a paper on "The maintenance of an efficient teaching force."

CLEVELAND DEAD.

The Ex-President Passes Away Suddenly at Princetown

GROVER CLEVELAND.

Princetown, N. J., June 24—Ex-President Grover Cleveland, the 22d President of the United States died at his home today at 8.45. His death was the cause of heart failure and came very suddenly. He was believed yesterday to be on the road of recovery.

Cleveland served two terms as President, first from March 4, 1885, to March 4, 1889, and then after an interval of four years from March 4, 1893, to March 4, 1897, being followed by William McKinley and then by Theodore Roosevelt.

The Daily Ledger received the news of the death of Mr. Cleveland about 11 o'clock and promptly bulletined the news. The Daily Ledger then notified City Hall, and City Clerk Keith, in the absence of Mayor Shea, had the flag raised to half mast on the building.

He was born in Caldwell, N. J., March 18, 1837, and was the son of Rev. Richard F. Cleveland, a Presbyterian clergyman. He received a good academic education at Fayetteville near Syracuse, and in 1853 he went to New York and became a teacher for the blind.

In 1855 he became a clerk in a law office at Buffalo and was admitted to the bar in 1859. In 1863 he was appointed assistant district attorney for Erie county, which position he held for three years. In 1865 he became partner in the law firm of Isaac V. Vanderpod, and in 1869 a member of the firm of Lanning, Cleveland and Folsom.

He was for three years from 1870, sheriff of Erie county, and in 1881 was elected mayor of Buffalo by the largest majority ever given a candidate in that city up to that time.

In 1882 he was elected as Governor of New York, and in 1884 was first elected President. He was defeated for reelection by President Harrison in 1888.

Retiring from the presidential chair in 1889 he returned to New York and again took up the practice of his profession. In 1892 he was again nominated for President by the Democrats and was elected, defeating President Harrison.

He married Frances Folsom, a daughter of his former law partner, at the White House, June 2, 1886. They had five children, Ruth, Esther, Marion, Richard and Francis Grover, the first named dying several years ago.

At the close of his second administration he retired to Princeton, N. J. He has been a sufferer for a number of years by periodic attacks of sickness, usually in the summer season.

It was only yesterday that he was believed to be rallying and on the road to recovery, and last night Mrs. Cleveland overjoyed that her husband was recovering was planning for their summer recreation at Sandwich, N. H.

He took a little out of door exercise yesterday and retired at his usual hour. He died at 8.45 this morning. The end was sudden and came as a surprise after his long illness.

Women and Children Kil'ed In the Streets of Teh ran

TROOPS ATTACK PARLIAMENT

Legislators Had Refused to Hand Over Men Whose Arrest the Shah Had Ordered--General Unrest Breaks Into Open Revolt

Teheran, June 24.—After a bloody fight which was waged around the parliament building the city is comparatively quiet, although the Cossacks are camped in the streets and squares. Cossacks and soldiers yesterday surrounded the parliament and demanded that a number of persons whose arrest the shah had ordered be forthwith handed over to them.

Parliament refused to comply with this demand and shots were fired at the troops, several of the soldiers being killed. Orders were at once issued from military headquarters that the parliament buildings be bombarded, and the bombardment commenced soon after 10 o'clock. While this was in progress bombs were thrown from the parliament building and the mosque adjoining, disabling one of the guns and wounding the gunners.

Eventually the halls of parliament were cleared, but not before many persons were killed or wounded.

The artillery fired on the population at very short range, while from the roofs of the houses and the mosques the people replied with rifles and revolvers.

Women and children went down before the pitiless massacre. Terror-stricken, the people sought to leave the city, but were met on the outskirts and driven back into the narrow streets by hails of bullets. The artillery rained shells down on the people and they were slaughtered by hundreds. Many took refuge in cellars. To drive them out, buildings were fired.

The number of casualties is unknown, but it may be about 600. The parliament buildings are practically in ruins. The firing was confined to Parliament square, other parts of the city being comparatively quiet. Large numbers of leading nationalists, including priests and members of parliament, have been placed under arrest.

Ever since the present shah, Mohammed Ali Mirza, ascended the throne in January, 1907, Persia has been in a state of unrest, a smouldering fire which has been fanned from time to time into the flame of open revolt. The first step in the granting of constitutional government was taken by the present shah's father, an autocrat who had been deeply impressed with the democratic tendencies of the times.

With the accession of Ali Mirza great uncertainty was felt as to how he would deal with the reforms his father had instituted. At first all fears seemed to be groundless, for the shah promulgated a constitution which provides that the hereditary executive power shall be lodged in the family of the shah, who shall exercise it in association with his ministers, whom he may appoint and dismiss as he wishes.

The legislative power belongs exclusively to two assemblies, namely, the senate, composed of sixty members, thirty nominated by the government, and thirty elected by the people, and the chamber of deputies, which numbers 162 members.

The franchise belongs to citizens of 25 years of age belonging to certain classes, modelled on the ancient Austrian system of curias, or electoral wards. These classes include princes of the reigning family, priests and students of theology, members of the nobility, merchants, landed proprietors, farmers and artisans. The landed proprietors and farmers must possess at least $1000 in land, and the artisans must either be owners or renters of a shop.

With the election of the first parliament a struggle for the mastery began between the ruler and his legislature. The shah was supported by the Persian army and by the armed reactionaries, while the great body of citizens rallied to the defense of parliament. One of the chief complaints against Ali Mirza was the corrupt court which he maintained about himself, and the governors of reactionary tendency.

After a hard struggle the shah was forced to yield, and sacrificed his favorites, as it was thought. A short time since the ruler retired from the capital to his summer estate, from which he is now directing his forces against parliament.

Practical Victory For Shah

London, June 24.—A special to The Daily Mail from Teheran says that the responsibility for the fighting lies with parliament, which took advantage of the shah's momentary weakness. The Cossacks, the dispatch adds, suffered heavily, but the day ended in practical victory for the shah. Much depends now on his wisdom in restoring order and bringing his coup d'etat to a successful issue.

No Official News at St. Petersburg

SUFFERS FROM GALLSTONES

Vice Presidential Nominee Sherman In a Cleveland Hospital

Cleveland, June 24.—Representative James S. Sherman, Republican candidate for vice president, who was removed yesterday from the home of former Governor Herrick to Lakeside hospital, a sufferer from gallstones, is reported as holding his own. If the patient's condition continues to improve it is not likely that an operation will be necessary. The physicians state that Sherman's abstemious habits have given him much bodily strength to resist the ravages of the disease. They express confidence in the quick recovery of the patient.

The attending physicians communicated with Dr. Finney, a specialist at Baltimore, who has treated Sherman, but he was ill and unable to come to Cleveland. Later it was stated that Dr. Boskowitz of New York would hold himself in readiness to come here in the event of a serious change in the patient's condition.

Mrs. Sherman and son, Richard, arrived in Cleveland yesterday afternoon from Utica and hurried to the hospital. Mrs. Sherman was so nervous and weak as a result of her anxiety that she had to be carried in a chair to the apartments assigned to her. She did not immediately enter the sick room of her husband, but remained in her rooms until she had recovered her strength.

The meeting of the father, mother and son was under conditions entirely different from those planned for last evening at their Utica home, where elaborate arrangements had been made for the home-coming of the vice presidential nominee. Sherman expressed his profound interest in the plans made for his reception and voiced his keen disappointment at not being able to be at home.

Russian Justice Is Slow

St. Petersburg, June 24.—Nicholas Tschaikovsky was taken out of the fortress of St. Peter and St. Paul for the first time since his imprisonment seven months ago and led to the headquarters of the gendarmerie. He was put through a searching examination as to his whereabouts at the time various terroristic acts were committed. He denied any complicity in each of the cases on which he was questioned. The formal charges against Tschikovsky have not yet been drafted.

Americans Stricken With Cholera

Manila, June 24.—Cholera has broken out among the troops at Camp Gregg. Three scouts and one civilian have died from the disease and the camp has been placed under quarantine regulations. The situation with regard to the cholera outbreak on the Island of Luzon is very serious. Ninety-three cases have been reported in the last twenty-four hours, sixty of which have proved fatal.

Pathfinders Leave Honolulu

Honolulu, June 24.—The battleships Maine and Alabama, composing the special service squadron which is preceding the Atlantic fleet around the world, sailed from here for Manila. They are scheduled to arrive at Manila July 21. The two battleships will, to some extent, act as a pathfinder squadron for the Atlantic fleet, which sails from San Francisco July 7.

Deed of Desperate Woman

New York, June 24.—Fighting off the daughter who was trying to prevent her from taking a fatal draught of poison, Mrs. Amelia F. Hill, wife of a prominent official of the Empire Subway company, succeeded in secluding herself in her room with the poison bottle, drank the liquid and died shortly after. She had suffered from melancholia.

But Little Interest Manifested

Barre, Vt., June 24.—A state Prohibition mass convention was held here, but as there were only about twenty persons in attendance, it was decided not to place a state ticket in the field. The convention, however, elected a permanent state executive committee and conferred upon it the power to name a state ticket on or before July 25.

Suspension of Quebec Bank

St. Hyacinthe, Que., June 24.—The directors of the Banque de St. Hyacinthe decided this morning that the institution should suspend payment preliminary to liquidation. It is understood that the bank's embarrassment is largely due to its connection with the construction of the United Counties railways.

Costly Break In Canal

Cornwall, Ont., June 24.—Traffic on the Cornwall canal and across the St. Lawrence by way of the Ottawa and New York railway has been suspended by a break in the canal banks, followed by the collapse of the railway bridge. The damage is estimated at $500,000.

Suicide With Insect Poison

Spencer, Mass., June 24.—Mrs. Adeline Harris, aged 48, wife of a clothing salesman, committed suicide at her home here by taking the contents of a six-ounce box of insect poison. She had been in ill-health for a long time.

Captured by Moroccan Bandits

United States Officials Withdraw From Venezuela

FOREIGN POWERS' DEMANDS

Our Government Was Expected to Compel Their Fulfillment, but Could Not Do So Without Taking Chances of Precipitating War

Washington, June 24.—The state department has received official notification of the departure of Jacob Sleeper, secretary of the American legation at Caracas, Venezuela. Sleeper's departure leaves the United States without a diplomatic representative in the South American republic. The affairs of the legation will be looked after by a representative of the Brazilian legation.

For the past three years, since questions between the United States and Venezuela first arose, Minister Russell has been unable to get any satisfaction from the Venezuelan government.

While the fact that the United States has no diplomatic representative in that country may result in the representative of the Venezuelan government here being withdrawn, no advices had been received at the Venezuelan legation last night.

The present situation, in diplomatic terms, is known as a state of expectancy. The questions in dispute between this country and Venezuela have been in the hands of the solicitor of the state department, but no satisfaction has been given the American representatives by President Castro.

The plague which exists in nearly all the Venezuelan ports may have induced Sleeper to obtain a leave of absence at this time.

It is understood that the real issues between the United States and Venezuela are the outcome principally of the American claims against that country growing out of the cancellation by the government of that country of various concessions to American corporations and individuals.

It is known that the United States government, in view of the part it has taken in protecting Venezuela against the demands of European powers, has led to representations by those powers to this government to the effect that, having assumed certain responsibilities toward other civilized nations in thus intervening, it is now the duty of this government to compel Venezuela to observe international amenities, not only in the matter of safeguarding them from infection by the plague, but in recognizing just claims of foreign countries.

The inability of the United States to meet the obligations without resorting to certain compulsory measures which might involve war is believed to be the true explanation of the course of the state department in terminating diplomatic relations with Venezuela.

The immediate effect of this action is to leave Venezuela how accountable direct to the various European powers, which feel that they have a just grievance against that country which must be redressed.

Wedding Plans Upset

London, June 24.—At all the registry offices Prince De Sagan visited yesterday he was told that the only means recognized by the law to avoid a fortnight's residence here before marriage is the special license, which can be issued only by the archbishop of Canterbury. The archbishop is opposed to the remarrying of divorced persons and there is no reason to suppose he will change his attitude in favor of the prince and Mme. Gould. The couple were hopeful that the wedding could take place the end of this week.

Japan Will Not Obstruct China

Tokio, June 24.—Following prolonged negotiations both at Tokio and Pekin on the general subject of the commercial development of Manchuria, the Japanese government instructed its charge d'affaires at Pekin to notify China that Japan would throw no obstacle in the way of the development of Chinese territory in Manchuria. On the contrary, Japan declares her willingness to assist in this work.

Murder Conspirators Sentenced

New York, June 24.—Two members of the alleged band of Hunchakists, charged with being in conspiracy to murder Suran Suranian, a wealthy Armenian, pleaded guilty to assault in the second degree and were given indeterminate sentences of from two to five years each in Sing Sing prison. The prisoners, Yechia Coozujian and Kissag Jalallian, have been inmates of the Tombs for more than a year.

The Ward-Reid Nuptials

London, June 24.—With King Edward and Queen Alexandra smiling approval from their private gallery, Jean Reid, daughter of Whitelaw Reid, the American ambassador to England, was married in the Chapel Royal of St. James palace to John H. Ward, brother of the Earl of Dudley and equerry in waiting to the king.

Procession of 250 Bishops

London, June 24.—The Pan-Anglican congress closed last night. A thanksgiving service at St. Paul's cathedral was held today, at which 250 bishops from all parts of the world walked in solemn procession and laid the offerings of their dioceses on the high altar.

TAFT DAY AT NEW HAVEN

War Secretary the Recipient of Affectionate Greetings

New Haven, June 24.—"Big Bill," as Secretary Taft is affectionately termed by all old Yale men, was the centre of all the enthusiasm surrounding the Yale commencement festivities. Throngs of graduates, students and citizens of New Haven followed his every movement. From the moment he appeared yesterday morning in an automobile at Woodbridge hall, where he attended a meeting of the Yale corporation, until last night, when he left the Edwards House—the headquarters of his class of '78—for the New Haven Country club to attend his class dinner, thousands of people constantly were about him.

They manifested their affectionate regard for him in every conceivable way. Classes of graduates serenaded him with bands, hundreds of friends extended personal greetings to him on the street and at the Yale-Harvard game, and as the secretary marched with his class to and from Yale field the streets were banked with people anxious to pay their respects to the war secretary.

They shouted his name, they greeted him with Yale pennants bearing likenesses of him, and scores of mothers held up their young children that they might see so distinguished a son of "Old Eli."

Settling Down to Business

Boston, June 24.—Welcomed by the executive heads of the state, the city and the State Federation of Women's Clubs, the 3000 or more delegates who have gathered in Boston from all over the country to attend the ninth biennial convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs filled Symphony hall to overflowing last night and formally opened the convention which is to be in session until July 1. Professor Zueblin of Chicago university was the principal speaker at last night's meeting, delivering an address upon "Democracy and Culture."

Old Acquaintances Renewed

Boston, June 24.—Harvard men from the classes of more than fifty years ago, and from classes all along down the last half century to the present date, dined and made merry last night in the leading clubs of the city. Twenty class banquets were held, the most notable of which was the class of '83, at which, celebrating its 25th anniversary, the class voted to make a gift of $106,000 to Harvard university, the same being announced at commencement today.

Killed by Falling Lumber

Fitchburg, Mass., June 24.—Ernest Couch, aged 12, was instantly killed and Earl Sewell, a companion, was injured seriously, if not fatally, by a load of boards tipping from a wagon and falling upon them. John Alexander was injured slightly. The two boys and Alexander were standing on a bridge watching workmen. A wagon loaded with boards was passing and a wheel rolled off the wagon, causing the load to tip over.

Forger Goes to State Prison

Salem, Mass., June 24.—John Andrews pleaded guilty in court here to forgery and uttering forged notes on fifteen counts, and was sentenced to not less than five nor more than seven years in the state prison. Andrews was formerly in business in Beverly under the name of the North Shore Electrical company. After the forgeries he left town, but was later arrested in Seattle and brought back.

Legality of Bonds Questioned

Portland, Me., June 24.—Boston attorneys for the underwriters for $140,000 of bonds recently issued by the city of Portland to complete a school building have informed the mayor that the bonds are not legal, as the Maine statutes do not permit the city to issue such bonds. The attorneys claim that the bonds cannot be issued until the Maine legislature sanctions the transaction.

"Fighting" In Boston Harbor

Boston, June 24.—War was officially declared by the 3000 regulars and militiamen encamped at the forts in Boston harbor at sunset last night and from now on for the next ten days all will be subject to orders for immediate action to repel or engage in attacks by land or water. Searchlights and signals flashed brilliantly across and around the harbor through the late hours.

Mining Property Attached

Boston, June 24.—Attorneys for five creditors representing $400,000 have filed a petition in bankruptcy at Portland, Me., against the Bingham Consolidated Mining and Smelting company, a Maine corporation, with offices in Boston and copper mines in Utah. The proceedings were instituted as the result of a New York bank attaching property of the corporation.

New Scout Cruiser Is Speedy

Rockland, Me., June 24.—A new record for vessels of her class was established by the new scout cruiser Salem, when she made a run over the measured mile course off this port at the rate of 26.885 knots an hour, in the course of her screw standardization tests. ### Roosevelt as a Farmer

Oyster Bay, N. Y., June 24.—The sizable crop of hay that covers the hillside in front of President Roosevelt's home has ripened and this morning the chief executive took a hand in the work and recreation of raking, pitching and finally mowing it away in the barn. Yesterday he labored in the field and just before dinner laid low a sturdy tree. Dressed in a serviceable and comfortable outfit that included crash knickerbockers, and with sleeves rolled up, the president swung an axe with the strength and accuracy of an experienced wodsman.

Seizure of $60,000 Worth of Whisky

Detroit, June 24.—United States Marshal Taylor seized 5405 cases of a well known brand of Canadian whisky, valued at $60,000, in a warehouse here. This is a renewal of the efforts of the agricultural department to exclude from the American markets all Canadian whiskies, on the ground that they are not labelled in accordance with the new pure food and drugs law.

New Steamship Port

Brussels, June 24.—As a result of quiet negotiations which have been carried on it has been decided that all German trans-Atlantic steamers from Bremen and Hamburg shall call at Zeebrugge, the new port of Bruges, which is connected with that city by canal, in order to take passengers who ordinarily embark at Cherbourg.

Hit by Anti-Betting Law

New York, June 24.—The Brighton Beach Racing association has decided to cancel all of its stake events for this year. The purses for these events amount to nearly $200,000. This action was made necessary, it is said, by the great decline in the daily attendance at the race track since the anti-betting laws went into effect.

Three Men Perish In Vessel's Hold

New York, June 24.—Steamer H. M. Whitney was raised from the rocks in Hell Gate, where she had gone aground, and is lying at a dock in East river. Three employes of a wrecking company entered the vessel's hold to remove the cargo when they were overcome by gases from the decaying cargo and smothered to death.

Hot Weather at Chicago

Chicago, June 24.—Eleven deaths due to heat prostrations or allied causes were recorded in Chicago yesterday. The thermometer climbed above the 90 mark, but a shift in the wind brought relief.

The Observations In the Daily Walk

Dog days will begin July 25.

The Motor Boat contest grows in interest.

Have you noticed that the morning are shorter?

Have you read the half column "ad" about the Fresh Air Camp?

Illustrated base ball will be a feature of the Saturday eight-page Daily Ledger.

Illustrated Fourth of July articles will appear in the Saturday eight-page Daily Ledger.

The Makaria and Quincy teams will line up again on the diamond on the Fourth of July.

Councilman Teasdale and family of West Quincy have moved to their summer residence at Houghs Neck.

Mr. Buzzell will furnish music and entertainment for the picnickers at Germantown on Saturday, in the grove.

Help your candidate in the Motor Boat contest by placing a trial "order" for the Daily Ledger for two months.

When Theodore Roosevelt retires from the presidency he will become the only ex-President of the United States.

The Merrymount base ball team has been reorganized, and will play the opening game with the Makaria boys on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. John M. Wilson are on a visit to Mrs. Wilson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Pratt of Coddington street.

In justice to Peter Gaccia, in court this week for assault, it should be stated that there was no evidence of a knife being drawn or used.

Rev. A. R. Atwood has returned from a short trip to Cape Cod. We are told he spent two days on the sound and enjoyed a fine catch of fish.

The Makaria Fraternity will have its annual trolley ride on Saturday evening, leaving Quincy for Nantasket at 6.30, and leaving the beach to return at 10.30.

The last meeting until fall of the Hospital Aid association will be tomorrow afternoon as usual in the chapel of First church. A large attendance is desired.

Miss Molly Gilbert Brown of Wollaston, daughter of the late Sylvester Brown, was graduated on Tuesday from Radcliffe College with the degree cum laude.

Twenty-seven knots for the Salem! This means business for the plant which built her, and Quincy will appreciate and profit by this new record, established by the Salem.

Mrs. Everett C. Bumpus of Presidents hill is to entertain the delegates to the Biennial from California and the Canal Zone at her home on Saturday afternoon, from four until six o'clock.

The boys in City Square headed by Charlie Hearn have accumulated a large amount of old boxes and barrels for their big bonfire to be touched off at midnight "the night before the Fourth."

The new style electric light with which the Electric Light Co. is furnishing its customers, gives a very fine light and is very economical for the consumer, taking less current and giving better light than the ordinary lamps in use.

Miss Mabel S. Adams of this city, was graduated from Radcliffe college on Tuesday, receiving the degree cum laude with distinction in economies. Miss Adams is a graduate of the Quincy High school and has been a member of the School Committee.

Your regular news agent or newsboy will get the benefit if you place a "trial order" for the Daily Ledger, which will be delivered in any part of Quincy on the day of publication. One hundred votes with every trial order.

At the Bay State rifle range Wakefield, on June 13, Lieut G. A. Wardwell of Wollaston made the score of 59 out of 60 points at the 800 yard range, and 44 out of 50 points at the 1000 yard range. Lieut. Wardwell received the expert medal from the State last season, and has requalified in the same class this season.

HANDICAP SUGGESTED

Bill Field Finds it Easy To Keep Lead In the Contest

"Bill" Field wants to know if some of the other candidates would like a handicap in the Motor Boat contest. They are now so far behind that he fears they may be lost.

Capt. Foster says, however, that he is not showing his full strength; that he has commenced to accumulate a reserve, and he will yet show the Wollaston boy how to run a motor boat.

"Doctor" Middleton and Capt. Drew also make gains today, and say they are in it to win.

There are rumors of a "dark horse" that has been picked to win, and a scheme that worked well in a Boston newspaper contest is proposed to get votes. Coupon parties are also being planned.

Several candidates down the line also make gains, and it will be well for the leaders to watch them.

Blanks for placing trial orders for the Daily Ledger may be obtained at the office of publication, and will be mailed upon request. Each trial order gives a credit of 100 votes to your favorite candidate.

The standing of the candidates will be printed each day, all votes received previous to 9 A. M. being counted that day.

It is not necessary that candidates shall be members of a yacht club or any other club. Neither is the contest limited to men. Women as well as men may enter.

The prizes offered are valuable ones, there being others besides the motor boat which is offered as a first prize.

The standing today at 9 A. M. was:

Good Progress On Coddington

Work on the new Coddington school building is progressing very favorably, and the indications are that it will be completed within the time specified in the contract. The Faxon avenue and east end walls are all up, and the Coddington street front and west end walls should be completed early next week. On the east end the roof trusses are being put in, and the roof should be covered at an early date.

In the basement, W. A. Bradford who has the contract for the heating and plumbing, has a gang of men at work, and many of the heating stacks and sewer connections pipes are in place.

The building is an imposing looking structure with its Quincy granite trimmings, and when completed will be one of the best if not the best school buildings in the city.

Slight Fire on Whitwell Street

The alarm from Box 24 at 12.08 this noon was for a fire in a mattress in one of the sleeping rooms of John A. Sutherland's house, at 162 Whitwell street. The room was one occupied by children, and the women folks in the house can give no cause for the fire. Children and matches, however, are thought to have been the cause.

Mrs. Sutherland says the first she knew of the fire was when she saw smoke and flames at the head of the stairs. A shout was raised, and the alarm sounded. The bed clothing was thrown into the bath tub and the mattress out of the window. The loss by smoke and fire should not exceed $15.

Closing Social Of the Makaria

The Makaria Fraternity closed the season on Tuesday evening, when they entertained their young lady friends and a few invited guests at Bethany chapel, about 75 in all.

Games were first in order with D. King as the moving spirit and T. King one of the big jolly boys. A brief entertainment followed, the talent being introduced by Harry Brooks, the chairman of the committee. Mr. Helworth Ulrich gave a very pleasing piano solo, and Mrs. Lawrence H. Pratt following with a charming solo. Lee Brooks entertained with a well executed violin solo, and Miss Hazel Jennings delighted all with a reading.

All then adjourned to the basement where the tables were spread for ice cream, strawberries and cake.

Mr. Brooks then called upon several for remarks and the following responded: Theophilus King, Gilbert Miller, the class president; Charles W. Ganzel, base ball friend; Mrs. C. W. Guy, Delcevare King, Rev. Dr. Hardy, and Charles Howard.

TROLLEY TRIPS.

The new trolley trip folders issued by the passenger department of the Boston & Northern and Old Colony Street Railway Co.'s are out and are very attractive as well as containing a wonderfully large amount of information of value to those who in ever increasing numbers are finding the trolleys serve them not only for business but for pleasure.

This year the two folders formerly issued by the two companies are combined in one. Routes are given which show very plainly the distances, fares and running time on various trips, just where to take cars to start and where to change cars. On the part devoted to the Boston & Northern Company 162 points are given, not only on this company's lines but on connecting lines as well, while there are 117 points on the Old Colony system carrying out the same idea.

Upon the inside of these folders appears a four-color map showing all trolley lines east of Worcester in Massachusetts, southern New Hampshire and northern Rhode Island, one of the most complete and accurate trolley maps published.

The folder also contains three pages of interesting points to be reached

Copies of these new folders, or any other information of help to trolley riders will be sent entirely free upon application at the office of the Passenger Department at 309 Washington street, Boston, Mass.

"Trial order" blanks for the Daily Ledger will be sent on application at the Ledger office. The paper will be delivered in any part of Quincy, and the subscriber may cast 100 votes for any candidate in the Motor Boat popularity contest.

Trustees Records As to Librarian

Editors of the Ledger:

In the annual City Report of 1893 under the head of Thomas Crane Public library two paragraphs read as follows:

"It so happens, however, that, with the close of the present year, for the first time in the history of the institution, a majority of the Trustees will be changed, only two of the present board continuing in the next. * * * Under these circumstances, and with a view to having a definite record of the policy which has been pursued of late, in the management of the Library's affairs, it seems proper for the board to make a somewhat detailed statement for future information.

"The history of the Library from its commencement to the close of the year 1888, when the provisions of the City Charter superseded in several important respects those of the original act of incorporation, was set forth in the eighteenth report of the Trustees (1889.) The names of the Trustees up to that time, as also those of the Librarians, and their dates of service, were given, and a record of the various locations and removals of the Library."

The report from which the above is copied was signed by: Charles F. Adams, Harrison A. Keith, Emery L. Crane, William H. Price, Fred A. Claflin and J. H. Gilbert.

Referring to the eighteenth report the following paragraph is found:

"Miss Abbie I. Hails was the first librarian, and served for nearly two years, until, in 1873, she resigned on account of ill health. Miss Hails was succeeded by Miss Cora I. Young, who served until 1875; she was succeeded by Miss Mary I. Brooks, who served as librarian for one year. Miss Brooks WAS SUCCEEDED in 1876 by Miss A. L. Bumpus, who had been connected with the Library from it beginning. Miss A. G. White, the present ASSISTANT LIBRARIAN, has been connected with the library since 1877."

The above is in a lengthy report which is signed thus: "By order of the Trustees, Charles F. Adams, Chairman."

It would seem from the above that from 1876 up to the time of her resignation AS LIBRARIAN, Miss Amelia L. Bumpus was the actual librarian, acknowledged as such by the Trustees and the townspeople generally. Miss Alice G. White became assistant librarian in 1877, and remained as such until the resignation of Miss Bumpus.

This being the case the inscription on the portrait of Miss Bumpus, recently placed in the Library, is wrong where it reads "Assistant Librarian," and should be rectified at once, not only to do justice to a faithful servant of the public for many years, but for accuracy, and the credit of the present Board of Trustees.

Justice.

Houghs Neck By the Seaside

There came very near being an automobile accident at Houghs Neck on Tuesday. A car numbered 11,999, in which were two ladies besides the driver, attempted to climb Great hill on Sea avenue. The driver in trying to manipulate his machine accidently reversed the engine. As the machine begun to back down the hill the driver evidently lost his head. Fortunately the car backed into the fence surrounding the cottage of Geo. W. Hayden which saved it from going over the embankment.

Bridgewater Normal.

The commencement exercises of the Bridgewater Normal school were held Tuesday. The graduates numbered 110, and those receiving diplomas represented many parts of the state, 15 coming from Quincy. The address was given by Rev. George Hodges, D. D., of Harvard. Owing to the showers, part of the ivy exercises were held in the assembly hall. Miss Teresa Keating of Quincy gave the class history. The frequent applause and bursts of laughter proved it to be a history of facts which afforded much merriment to all. The graduates in their white caps and gowns presented a very pretty sight in their march around the campus. Many guests from Quincy were present, a number of them being former teachers of the graduates who attended the Willard and Hancock schools.

"Trial order" blanks for the Daily Ledger will be sent on application at the Ledger office. The paper will be delivered in any part of Quincy, and the subscriber may cast 100 votes for any candidate in the Motor Boat popularity contest.

City's Investment To Graduate High School Pupils Says Mr. Luce

The weather was not favorable for a large attendance at the High school graduation on Wednesday evening, as a thunder shower raged from 7 to 9 o'clock, but such is the interest in these graduations that the hall was filled. Among those present were Mayor Shea, members of the School Committee, teachers from other schools, parents and friends.

Conspicuous over the platform in large gothic letters of gilt on a navy blue background the class color, was the class motto,—"Non sibi, sed omnibus"—Not for himself, but for all." Equally conspicuous on the platform was a beautiful floral design, a large "Q" in white rose buds bearing the letters "H" and "S" on either side, and at the base "'08," enlivened with a little smilax. It was the gift of Nerses, the class photographer, and stood about three feet high. There were other flowers on the platform.

The graduating class of 102 members entered during the first number of the program, and marched to the platform, the young ladies to the left and the young men to the right. The wide stage planned for just such exercises was large enough to seat all, and it was a pretty scene. All the young ladies were gowned in white, and several carried bouquets.

The program was as follows:

March of Graduates
Music by High School Orchestra
Music—Lovely Appear, from the Redemption, Charles Gounod
Seniors, High School Chorus, Orchestra
Salutatory, The History of Books, Grace Cook Parker
Simon's Speech to the Trojans, A Metrical Translation from the Æneid, Jessie Copeland Pratt
The Early History of the Panama Canal, Philip Simes Barnes
Declamation, "Thamre," Elizabeth Stuart Phelps Blanche Morrison
Valedictory, Legends of the White Mountains, Marion Farwell
Music—Blow, Soft Winds, Vocal Waltz, Charles Vincent
High School Chorus and Orchestra
Address, The Debt of the Scholar, Robert Luce
Member of Massachusetts State Legislature
Music—Holy Art Thou, Largo from Xerxes, Handel
High School Chorus and Orchestra
Presentation of Diplomas, Dr. Nathaniel S. Hunting
Chairman of the School Committee
Music—We, Full-born Sons of Wodan, from Arminius, Max Bruch
High School Chorus and Orchestra

The musical numbers, both instrumental and vocal were of a high order, and reflected credit on Mr. E. Landis Snyder, the director of music. The orchestra was composed entirely of High school pupils.

Miss Parker's essay on books reminded one that the world has not always had books, and that the development had been rapid since the introduction of paper and movable type.

The declamation of Miss Pratt was well memorized, and recalled ancient history.

Mr. Barnes' paper on the Panama canal told much of the early attempts to construct a canal which were not familiar, and predicted that the United States would push the work to completion.

An ovation was given Miss Morrison, who recited with dramatic effect the story of Thamre by Elizabeth Stuart Phelps. She was the recipient of a beautiful bouquet.

Miss Farwell's valedictory was entertaining and well delivered.

Representative Luce gave a scholarly address that was right to the point. First he told a story, and then referred to an essay that day at Fitchburg on "Praise," and how it acts as a stimulus to good work. Possibly he said, the graduates have encountered ,at home the cynical smile and sarcasm, that they thought they knew more than their parents. (Laughter) You should know more than your parents did at the same age. If not, you have failed. We expect more of you.

Study today is more attractive, and education is not, neglected, as is shown by the increase of pupils at our High schools. Today is not the end of education. Graduates should make good use of the Public Library, and cultivate a love for reading, which brings health and happiness. Get into the habit of serious reading.

The city and State have done much for your education. All people have contributed in taxes to the schools whether they have children or not. Why? For the safety of the Republic. Wisdom and knowledge, as well as virtue are necessary for the progress of the nation. Each graduate represents an investment of $700, and you should recognize the obligation you owe to the city, State, and parents and be loyal citizens. Thus will you repay one hundred fold, and become patriots. It could not be better put than in your motto—"Non sibi, sed omnibus"—not for himself, but for all.

It was an address of twenty minutes and well received.

Dr. Hunting in presenting the diplomas spoke briefly. He did not want the graduates to think they know everything. You have been taught how to study and where to find information, and should continue to study. Your reward will be a diploma from the world.

Dr. Hunting was assisted by two young ladies of the undergraduates in giving out the diplomas. There was applause as each name was called.

This evening the Class of '08 will give a reception at Quincy Music hall.

Councilmen Attend Monthly Supper

The heavy shower Wednesday evening and the High school graduation doubtless prevented many of the members of the City Council attending the monthly supper of the Houghs Neck Associates. Several, however, were present, including Councilmen Curtis, Bean, Ferguson, Gilson, Cantfill, Whiton, Moir, Oakes and President Hobbs.

The supper was served at LaBreque's Great Hill house, and owing to the warm night the tables were laid on the broad piazzas. The menu included a regular shore dinner which was nicely cooked and served.

Henry W. French, the president of the association, occupied a seat at the head of the table, and after the dinner spoke briefly welcoming the guests of the evening.

He told briefly of what the association had accomplished during the short time it had been in existence. The street lights the association felt very grateful for, and he believed that they would be better than twenty-five policemen. He also spoke of the changed conditions at the beach this year. A year ago it was hardly safe for a lady to walk the street on a Saturday night, while this year the crowd upon the streets was a most orderly one.

He spoke of some of the needs of this section, the principal of which was a school building which they hoped to have another year.

A. F. Baird took occasion to thank the members of the Council for what they had done for the beach this year. He appreciated what had been handed out to Houghs Neck, and assured the gentlemen if they needed his support next fall they could have it.

President Hobbs was glad of the opportunity to meet the members of the association. What they have accomplished only shows what a body of men banded together for a purpose, and working along proper lines, could accomplish. The City Council was ready to meet the association half way at all times, and ready to give the section every dollar possible, taking all things into consideration.

Councilman Gilson said that he was not antagonistic to giving the section lights, but this was the only time where lights had been placed on private ways. It has always been ruled by City Councils and City Solicitors in the past, that lights could not be placed on unaccepted streets. He congratulated the Association on what it had accomplished.

Councilman Whiton spoke briefly of the financial problems involved in the city, and while the Council would gladly do many things, it was prevented by the amount of money that could be appropriated for current expenses, and the amount that could be raised by loans. All these matters were regulated by the legislature and the Council was powerless.

Councilman Bean believed that Houghs Neck should have anything reasonable, and that thecity could afford. The city had plans for a school building at Houghs Neck, and this would be reported in due time. Before much could be done, however, it would be necessary to select a site for the building. It had been his pleasure to visit this section of the city several times the present year, in his official capacity, and he complimented the Associates on the strenuous fight they were making to improve the beach.

This concluded the speech making and was followed by a social hour.

One for Yale One for Harvard

All eyes are on New London, for it is today that the annual boat races between the crews of Harvard and Yale take place. The great race of the day in the 'varsity eight, but this is not scheduled to start until 5.30 this afternoon.

The first race of the day was for university fours, and was scheduled to start at 10.30, to be immediately followed by the freshmen race.

During the first half of the 4-oared race, the two crews kept well together. During the last half, however, the Yale crew took a spurt, and crossed the finish line with a lead of three-fourths boat length.

As soon as this race was over the freshmen race was started and was won by the Harvard crew.

The weather conditions are reported as fine and a large crowd in attendance for the 'varsity race.

West Quincy To Celebrate

West Quincy, not to be outdone by Atlantic, is planning a Fourth of July celebration of its own. Just what form the plans will take will not be definitely decided until it is known how much money can be raised. Wednesday a collector started out to solicit funds, and in a few hours secured over $40. It is possible there may be a parade in the morning, sports in the afternoon and fireworks in the evening. Mayor Shea will probably keep open house all day.

Grover Cleveland.

Notable Career of a Forceful American Who Made His Own Way.

Twice Elected President, He Became In His Last Years "The Most Distinguished Private Citizen In the World"—Always Dignified, but Not Wholly Devoid of Humor—With an Iron Courage and Remarkable Self Confidence He Seemed Always Prepared.

By ROBERTUS LOVE.

"THE most distinguished private citizen in the world," said a celebrated Republican ex-senator, introducing Grover Cleveland at the dedication ceremonies of the St. Louis world's fair in 1903.

Nobody disputed the characterization. Mr. Cleveland had spent two full terms in the White House, divided by an interim of private citizenship, and he had survived his retirement for years. He was not like an ordinary ex-president, who retires from one term or from two terms served consecutively. This man had suffered defeat after victory and had won victory after defeat. That record is unique in our history. It added to that high distinction which inheres in any man who has held the greatest elective office in the gift of the world's nations. It made him indisputably the most distinguished private citizen in the world.

But the ex-senator mentioned had still further justification. Ever since the ex-president retired to the classic shades of Princeton his distinction has widened as a man, as a personage, one might say as a "character" in the best sense of that term when it needs quotation marks to qualify its meaning.

Affectionately Known as Grover.

Early in life Mr. Cleveland discarded his first name, Stephen. Therefore he could not be called Steve by the people of the United States. But as the one great national character of his day he became respectfully and affectionately known as Grover. Everybody was interested in knowing what Grover was doing at his Princeton home. When Grover went fishing, everybody wanted to know how many he caught and if they were cats, suckers or flounders. When Grover went duck hunting, everybody waited eagerly to learn how many he bagged.

Even the simple story of the self preservation frog was highly diverting to the great public. This frog Mr. Cleveland was using for bait. He had not had a bite for an hour. Finally he happened to glance down at his feet, and there on a rock sat little Mr. Frog, with the hook in his skin, enjoying life in the open air.

Counting, at any rate, from the time when he first became president, Mr. Cleveland never evinced any of the personal magnetism qualities which are calculated to make people think of him by his first name, much less to "Teddyize" it. Mr. Cleveland was always a dignified person. More than that, he was essentially austere and ponderous. Of course he may have been quite otherwise when he went fishing. The statement refers to his public appearances. He gave the impression of being a mountainous mass of mind, moving slowly, but surely, toward its ultimate goal, and when he reached the goal he stayed there and went into camp. He did not get there by jumps or jerks, by impulsive catching at conclusions, but by the laborious method of feeling his way and treading carefully, though perhaps not softly. President Cleveland was a big thinking machine in constant operation, but so well oiled that he made no unnecessary noise. He took his work so seriously and found it so exacting that no time was left him for the lighter side of things, even if he had had the inclination. Yet he was not always devoid of humor.

At a White House reception somehow a seedy looking tramp got in line. He was immediately behind one Dr. Lucky, who was introduced to the president. Nobody was acquainted with the tramp. Both he and Mr. Cleveland seemed embarrassed for the moment, but the president rose to the occasion. Releasing the hand of Dr. Lucky, he grasped that of the tramp and said cordially:

"And you, I suppose, are Dr. Unlucky."

Messages to Congress Penned by Himself.

It is said that all the presidents together up to Mr. Cleveland's time did not leave so many state papers in their own handwriting as did this hard worker. Mr. Cleveland insisted upon attending personally to many affairs which other presidents turned over to their secretaries. His mind worked best through his arm and his finger tips. His messages to congress he wrote with his own hand, as, in fact, all his important state papers. Thus nobody could charge him with being a dictator.

President Cleveland's severe conception of dignity was indicated by his quarrel with Colonel Henry Watterson, the famous Kentucky editor. Once the president was too busy to go to the theater when young Mrs. Cleveland expressed a desire to hear Clara Morris. Colonel Watterson happened to be at the White House. The president requested him to escort Mrs. Cleveland, which the gallant Kentuckian was happy to do. Between the acts Mrs. Cleveland suddenly announced that she desired very much to have a chat with the noted actress. The colonel arranged for her to visit Miss Morris in the latter's dressing room. Delighted with her experience, Mrs. Cleveland enthusiastically told her husband about it as soon as the colonel took her home.

The president turned to Colonel Watterson and somewhat angrily reproached him for permitting the first lady of the land to visit an actress in her dressing room instead of having the actress call at the box. He had trusted to the colonel's age and discretion, he said, to protect Mrs. Cleveland from yielding to a "schoolgirl fancy" so undignified.

Grover Cleveland was the first Democratic mayor of Buffalo and the first Democratic governor of New York since the civil war. Then he became the first and only Democrat elected to the presidency since James Buchanan, who defeated John C. Fremont, the first Republican candidate, in 1856. These facts enhance his distinction.

Helped Fanny Crosby With Her Hymns.

From his boyhood Mr. Cleveland manifested those traits of iron courage which may be termed self confidence, so characteristic of his official career. Young Grover's first job away from home was a clerkship in a school for the blind. Fanny Crosby, the noted hymn writer, herself blind, was a teacher there. Young Cleveland used to assist her by taking down her poems in handwriting. The principal of the school upbraided Miss Crosby for utilizing Grover in that way. Grover heard of it.

"Look here," he said to the blind singer, "you have a perfect right to use my services in this way. Your hymns do much good for this school. You tell the principal so next time he objects."

Miss Crosby boldly stood up for her rights after that, and the principal meekly submitted, while the young amanuensis continued the penmanship practice which enabled him later along in life to write presidential messages legibly.

Mr. Cleveland made his own way in the world. His father, a Presbyterian minister, died when Grover was sixteen. The boy after his brief experience in the school for the blind started for Cleveland, O. It is said that the name of that city was its chief attraction for him. But he visited an uncle in Buffalo on his way west and was induced to remain in that city. Grover's mother when he left home gave him a little Bible. Daniel Lamont, who was private secretary to Governor Cleveland and later a member of President Cleveland's cabinet, told a highly interesting story of this Bible.

"I first saw it," said Mr. Lamont, "on a table in Cleveland's law office in Buffalo. When Mr. Cleveland became governor the little Bible was generally to be seen on the bureau in his bedroom in Albany. Just before his inauguration as president I found the book in his rooms at the Arlington hotel, Washington, and I carried it to Chief Justice Waite, requesting him to use it when he swore the new chief magistrate into office."

About 40,000 witnesses saw Grover Cleveland press his mother's gift to his lips on that memorable occasion.

Later the little Bible lay on Mr. Cleveland's writing table in his library at Princeton. On the outside cover is inscribed in gilt letters the name "S. G. Cleveland," and on the fly leaf in his mother's handwriting are the words, "My son, Stephen Grover Cleveland, from his loving mother."

Display of Self Confidence.

The late Senator Ingalls, himself a brilliant orator, once confessed that he was stricken dumb with wonderment by Mr. Cleveland's display of self confidence at his first inauguration. With 40,000 people in hearing and 70,000,000 waiting to read the words he was about to utter, this man, altogether new to Washington and to the national arena, stood forth to deliver his inaugural address offhand. He held in the palm of his left hand a scrap of visiting card on which he had noted the merest catchwords of his address. The sight of this scrap of card caused Senator Ingalls to say:

"Suppose his memory had failed him. Such things happen to speakers skilled by a lifetime of experience, and why not to Cleveland, a novice in the art? Yet he stood there, with all the confidence of a prophet of old, and without manuscript spoke for an hour to 70,000,000 people!"

This courage, this self confidence, characterized his entire career as president. He seemed always prepared. He had loaded his gun beforehand, and when he got ready to fire he fired. During his first term he vetoed 413 bills. This unprecedented exercise of the veto power astounded congress and caused the people to sit up and take notice. No adverse criticism swerved him. Among the bills vetoed were 297 private pensions. Cleveland, who helped to support his mother during the war on a meager salary as assistant prosecutor in Buffalo, had hired a substitute when he was drafted into the army. This was brought up against him by indignant Grand Army men, but he believed that the pension bills he was vetoing were improper under the laws, and he ignored the insinuations.

Mr. Cleveland devoted his entire congressional message in 1887 to the tariff. He characterized the then existing tariff laws as "vicious, inequitable and illogical." His bold stand for a reduction of duties contributed largely to his defeat for re-election the next year, though he received a majority of the popular vote.

It was in his second term that Mr. Cleveland's policy or principle of standing pat with his own convictions split his party wide open and made him millions of political enemies. He was unalterably in favor of the gold standard. In the summer of 1893 he called a special session of congress to repeal the Sherman act requiring the government to make large purchases of silver bullion. Succeeding chapters in the monetary struggle are of such recent history that it is unnecessary to mention them.

Perhaps the one act of President Cleveland which aroused the deepest indignation in some quarters and evoked the highest commendation from other quarters was the sending of federal troops to Chicago during the great railroad strike of 1894 "to prevent obstruction of United States mails" against the protest of Governor Altgeld of Illinois, who held that his state forces were adequate to cope with the situation.

Made Him a National Hero.

His vigorous assertion of the Monroe doctrine in the Venezuelan boundary case, even to the extent of inviting war with Great Britain, swept away partisan prejudices for the time and made President Cleveland a national hero.

"A public office is a public trust," in seven words, is Mr. Cleveland's noblest literary creation.

Time softens even political asperities. It is yet too early for unbiased history to be written around the Cleveland administrations, but one may venture the prediction that, when the scroll of history is made up, on the list of the greater American presidents will be the name of Grover Cleveland. "the most distinguished private citizen in the world" for many years toward the end of the nineteenth and at the beginning of the twentieth century.

To the Honorable the Justices of the Superior Court to be holden at Dedham within and for the County of Norfolk:

Respectfully libels and represents Caterina Bizzozero of Quincy in said County, that she was lawfully married to Natale Bizzozero formerly of Quincy, Massachusetts, now of parts unknown, at Quincy on the third day of July A. D. 1899 and thereafterwards your libellant and the said Natale Bizzozero lived together as husband and wife in this Commonwealth, to wit, at said Quincy, at East Lyme, Connecticut, and afterwards at said Quincy and there have been born to them the following children, Iride aged 16, Antenore aged 14, Norma aged 12 and Elvira aged 10, of whom the said Natale is the father; that your libellant has always been faithful to her marriage vows and obligations but the said Natale Bizzozero being wholly regardless of the same at said Quincy on THURSDAY the nineteenth day of March A. D. 1908, and on the twenty-first day of March A. D. 1908, and on numerous other occasions before said dates has been guilty of gross and confirmed habits of intoxication caused by the voluntary and excessive use of intoxicating liquor.

Wherefore your libellant prays that a divorce from the bonds of matrimony may be decreed between your libellant and the said Natale Bizzozero, and that the libellant may have the care and custody of the said minor children, Iride, Antenore, Norma and Elvira.

And your libellant further says that she is without adequate means or funds for maintaining this libel, or of support for herself and their four children now in her custody and that said Natale has failed and refused to pay for maintaining said libel or to furnish the necessaries of life or to give any assistance in the support of your libellant and his minor children, although well able to do so.

Wherefore your libellant prays that the said Natale Bizzozero may be ordered to pay into the court for the use of your libellant during the pendency of the libel, an amount which may enable her to maintain the libel although exceeding the taxable costs and may be required to pay to your libellant allmony during the pendency of the libel and such sums as your Honors may consider expedient and necessary for the benefit and support of your libellant and the said four children.

And your libellant further prays that the real and personal estate of the said libellee may be attached to the value of $10,000.00 in order to secure a suitable support and maintenance to your libellant and to such children as may be given to her care and custody.

Dated the 19th day of May 1908.
CATERINA BIZZOZERO.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts.
NORFOLK ss. SUPERIOR COURT.

DEATH UNEXPECTED

Grover Cleveland's Demise Came as a Great Shock

AILMENTS OF LONG STANDING

Former President Unconscious For Some Hours Before He Passed Away--None of His Children at His Bedside at the Time

Princeton, N. J., June 25.—Grover Cleveland, twice President of the United States, died at his home, "Westland," in this college town, where he had lived since his retirement as the nation's chief executive, almost twelve years ago.

When the end came, which was sudden, there were in the death chamber Mrs. Cleveland, Dr. Bryant of New York, Mr. Cleveland's family physician and personal friend, Dr. Lockwood, also of New York, and Dr. Carnochan of Princeton.

An official statement given out and signed by the three physicians gave heart trouble, superinduced by stomach and kidney ailments of long standing, as the cause of death.

While Mr. Cleveland had been in poor health for the last two years and had lost 100 pounds in weight, his death came unexpectedly. Some three weeks ago he was brought home from Lakewood, where his condition for a time had been such that the hotel at which he was staying was kept open after its regular season because he was too ill to be moved. But when Cleveland came back to Princeton he showed signs of improvement and actually gained five pounds in weight.

Although confined to his room continuously after his return, it was not until Tuesday that Cleveland's condition aroused uneasiness on the part of his wife. Undoubtedly affected by the heat, he showed signs of failure and Mrs. Cleveland called the doctors. During the evening Cleveland seemed to rally, but he became worse during the night and Mrs. Cleveland was called to the bedside of her husband.

The distinguished patient sank into unconsciousness, from which he recovered at times only again to suffer a relapse. This continued throughout the night and early morning. The last time he became unconscious was about two hours before he died. Death was peaceful. Just before he passed away Cleveland sought to say something, but his words were inaudible.

The news of Cleveland's death came as a sudden shock to the people of Princeton, as it did to the people of the rest of the world. Everyone here knew he was sick and was interested in him, but none seemed to think the end was so near. As the news spread about the university flags were placed at half staff and everybody was disposed to stop and talk and express regrets.

Many of the intimate friends of the family and many others not so close called at the Cleveland home. The visitors, newspaper men, photographers and others became so numerous that the police authorities placed a policeman on guard at the Cleveland home, and no one but intimate friends and those in charge of the funeral arrangements were permitted to approach the house.

It was not until late in the day that messages of condolence began to come in from all parts of the world to Mrs. Cleveland. One of the first was from President Roosevelt. The president will attend the funeral, which will be held Friday afternoon. In deference to Mrs. Cleveland's wishes it will be as private as possible.

Mr. Cleveland's body will be buried in Princeton cemetery in the family plot, where lie the ashes of Ruth, the eldest of the Cleveland children, whose death was a sad blow to her father.

So unexpectedly did Cleveland's death occur that not one of his four children were at home. They are at the Cleveland summer home at Tamworth, N. H., under the care of Mrs. Perrine. Mrs. Cleveland's mother. Word was sent to them of their father's death. The children are Esther, aged 14; Marion, aged 12; Richard, aged 10, and Francis Grover, aged 5.

Ever since Cleveland's arrival here he has been a conspicuous figure in Princeton. Although his only official connection with Princeton university were his lectureship and his membership in the board of trustees, he was regarded as a strong friend of the institution. A story is told that he practically induced Andrew Carnegie to present Carnegie lake to Princeton. He was well liked among students and faculty.

The telegrams of condolence came in by the hundreds from all parts of the United States and other countries during the day and they continued to pour into the telegraph offices here far into the night. Besides President Roosevelt's telegram messages of condolence came from government officials, governors, legislators, prominent educators and citizens in various walks of life.

Mr. Cleveland's selection of Princeton as a place of residence after leaving the White House was due to the visit the ex-President and Mrs. Cleveland made to Princeton in October, 1896, on the occasion of the sesqui-centennial of Princeton university.

The Clevelands were so graciously received and were so impressed with the beauty of the town and its surroundings that they at once decided to make Princeton their home. Until Cleveland's health began to fail, two years ago, he continued to be a very busy man. His diversions in Princeton were daily carriage rides and an occasional fishing or gunning trip.

The hour for the funeral on Friday has been fixed at 5 p. m. None of the other funeral arrangements has been definitely decided upon. Only two of the Cleveland children, who are at Tamworth, N. H.,—Esther and Richard—will attend the funeral. They are expected today. Marion and Frances will remain at Tamworth with Mrs. Perrine.

Government Orders

Washington, June 25.—Appropriate honors will be paid to the memory of ex-President Cleveland by all branches of the government. Immediately upon the receipt of the president's informal announcement of Mr. Cleveland's death, steps were taken to carry out the provisions of the executive program. All officers of the diplomatic and consular service will be directed to fly the American flag over their respective offices at half staff for a period of thirty days. All army posts and stations, and all commanders-in-chief of fleets in the navy, captains of detached ships and navy yards and naval stations have been ordered to fly the national colors at half staff for thirty days. In the army and navy more formal orders today will direct what shall be done on the day of the funeral, prescribing the number of guns to be fired, etc.

Many forceful tributes were paid to the memory of the late president by those who had been more or less associated with him, and by those who had succeeded to the cabinet councils of his regime.

Roosevelt Tenders Sympathy

Oyster Bay, N. Y., June 25.—News of the death of Grover Cleveland was communicated to President Roosevelt at his summer home here and caused radical changes in the president's plans for the immediate future. Mr. Roosevelt was deeply shocked at the tidings and immediately telegraphed to Mrs. Cleveland, tendering his sympathy and that of Mrs. Roosevelt. President and Mrs. Roosevelt will attend the funeral services at Princeton.

Mr. Roosevelt made it known immediately on receipt of the news of Cleveland's death that he would abandon his proposed trip to New London, Conn., to witness the Harvard-Yale boat races. He also at once prepared and later caused to be issued a proclamation to the people of the country eulogizing the dead statesman, ordering all government flags half-masted for a period of thirty days, and giving instructions that military and naval honors be accorded the late president on the day of the funeral.

Loss to American People

New Haven, June 25.—News of the death of Grover Cleveland threw into a shadow of genuine sorrow the commencement festivities at Yale. Secretary Taft expressed his deep regret at Cleveland's death and said:

"President Cleveland was one of the very great men of the country. His death is a distinct loss to the American people."

Later in the day, at the commencement dinner, Taft said: "I join in an expression of deep sorrow at the death of Grover Cleveland. He was a great man and a great president. He had the highest civic ideals, he had a rugged honesty, he had a high courage that make him now happy in his death, as he leaves this life revered, respected and loved by all his countrymen."

England's Estimate

London, June 25.—The London morning papers print extended memoirs and portraits of Mr. Cleveland. Some editorials also are published on the death of the former President of the United States and the majority of these make note of the strange coincidence of his death on the day that the United States diplomatic representative withdrew from Venezuela.

All the newspapers pay warm tributes to Cleveland's independence of parties, his integrity and high purpose, and their references to the "unfortunate Venezuelan incident" are made without bitterness.

The Daily Mail says: "Cleveland will stand out in history as one who achieved his popularity by invariably placing the interests of the nation above those of classes however influential."

The Morning Post, in a highly laudatory editorial, says: "Cleveland was one of the great men of his time. He had Bismarck's strength, Bismarck's breadth of view and more than Bismarck's honesty. As president he did not lift a finger for the Democratic party, but merely served the United States. He was the strongest man that lived in the White House since the death of Washington."

Praised In Germany

Berlin, June 25.—Almost all of the Berlin newspapers confine themselves to publishing a record of Mr. Cleveland's career. Several of them pay high tribute to him in their editorial columns.

The Neuesten Nachrichsten says: "Cleveland gained renown among partisans and adversaries as a stainless, high-principled patriot."

The Tageblatt says: "Mr. Cleveland was the personification of the modest, quiet, fearless, honorable American type which latterly has been pushed into the background." The paper adds: "Although it sounds strange, Cleveland, against his own will, was morally the founder of the present American imperialism."

The National Zeitung says: "Cleveland belonged to those American types which immediately win esteem and sympathy that constantly grow with closer acquaintance."

Manager Griffith Resigns

Philadelphia, June 25.—Clark Griffith, manager of the New York Baseball club of the American league, has tendered his resignation to Frank Farrell, owner of the team, to take effect at once. Griffith said that he was disheartened and felt that he should get out and give Farrell a chance to try another manager.

Disaster Off Spanish Coast

Paris, June 25.—A special dispatch received here from Corunna, Spain, says that the Spanish steamer Larache went on the rocks in a fog near Muros. The Larache sank rapidly and a panic followed. There were ninety-seven passengers and a crew of fifty-four aboard. These took to the boats, but up to the filing of this dispatch only forty-seven had landed. Defective communications make it impossible to obtain complete details.

London, June 25.—Dispatches received here from Corunna indicate that the sinking of the steamer Larache may prove a very serious disaster. A special dispatch to a news agency here says it is reported that the crew and fifty-four of the passengers are safe.

Sailors Assaulted Officers

Halifax, June 25.—A mutiny occurred aboard the British steamer Restigroucho, under charter to the Canadian government, when five of the crew attacked Captain Bouchard and Emile Bouchard, the first officer. The men demanded their wages and release from the ship, which is going on buoy service. Patrick Feoin, it is alleged, slashed the captain across the face with a knife, and when the first officer came to the captain's assistance one of the mutineers struck him with an iron scraper and broke his collarbone. With a revolver, the captain covered the mutineers and the disturbers were later placed under arrest by the police.

Heat Tempered by Storm

New York, June 25.—Four deaths and nearly a score of prostrations were caused by the excessive heat which made yesterday the hottest twenty-four hours of the season. Relief came last night in a brisk shower, accompanied by a windstorm.

The Observations In the Daily Walk

Only one-eight of an inch of rain fell on Wednesday. There was lots of fuss over it.

A Quincy pastor and a Quincy physician were married yesterday, and the returns are not all in.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Roberts of West Pawlet, Vermont, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Walters.

Miss Blodwin W. Walters attended the Wheaton seminary at Norton during commencement week.

John R. Walters is home again after three weeks' business trip through New York and Pennsylvania.

The gypsy and brown tail moth gang start in tomorrow spraying the trees that are badly infested.

G. W. Gragg, secretary of the Fresh Air Camp for Quincy and Weymouth, is receiving letters and inquiries concerning the camp.

The Makaria vs. Merrymount game for Saturday at the park, will be called at 3 P. M., as the Makaria boys are going on their annual trolley ride at 6.30.

The Universalist Sunday school, has accepted the invitation from the Point church and its members will enjoy a union picnic, Saturday, June 27, at the Sailors' Snug Harbor.

Two interesting letters bearing the date of Glasgow, Scotland, have been received from John Evans, the Copeland street merchant, and one will appear in the Daily Ledger tomorrow.

Your regular news agent or newsboy will get the benefit if you place a "trial order" for the Daily Ledger, which will be delivered in any part of Quincy on the day of publication. One hundred votes with every trial order.

A large boat with a capacity of sixty, is to leave Baker Basin at 9 o'clock Saturday A. M. for the picnic at Germantown; fare 5 cents each way. Free transportation has been provided from the power house, foot of Wharf street, for the picnic.

"Trial order" blanks for the Daily Ledger will be sent on application at the Ledger office. The paper will be delivered in any part of Quincy, and the subscriber may cast 100 votes for any candidate in the Motor Boat popularity contest.

Death of Pastor's Wife.

Mrs. Alice Alvord, wife of Rev. Henry C. Alvord, pastor of the Old South Congregational church, South Weymouth, and well known in Quincy, died Wednesday after an illness of several months duration.

Mrs. Alvord was born in Charlemont, Mass., and was graduated from the Westfield normal school and was afterward principal of the Williamstown High school. She married Rev. Mr. Alvord Oct. 6, 1880. She leaves besides a husband, two sons and a daughter.

"Trial order" blanks for the Daily Ledger will be sent on application at the Ledger office. The paper will be delivered in any part of Quincy, and the subscriber may cast 100 votes for any candidate in the Motor Boat popularity contest.

JANITOR PRAY

Enters Motor Boat Contest And Leaders Should Watch Him

Watch out for Frank Pray, the new candidate in the Motor Boat contest. He enters today a tie for tenth place. He is the popular janitor at the clubhouse of the Quincy Yacht Club, and it is said he will have hearty support from Houghs Neck people.

The biggest gain, however, was made today by "Doctor" Middleton, whose friends sent two "trial orders" for the Daily Ledger, and also a large bunch of coupons.

Several others down the line also make gains, and there are a half dozen new candidates representing different parts of the city.

Several candidates down the line also make gains, and it will be well for the leaders to watch them.

Blanks for placing trial orders for the Daily Ledger may be obtained at the office of publication, and will be mailed upon request. Each trial order gives a credit of 100 votes to your favorite candidate.

The standing of the candidates will be printed each day, all votes received previous to 9 A. M. being counted that day.

It is not necessary that candidates shall be members of a yacht club or any other club. Neither is the contest limited to men. Women as well as men may enter.

The prizes offered are valuable ones, there being others besides the motor boat which is offered as a first prize.

The standing today at 9 A. M. was:

Quincy Pastor Salem Bride

The people of the Swedish Congregational church on Garfield street will have a hearty welcome for their pastor, Rev. Gerhard W. Palmgren, when he returns with his bride. He was married at Salem on Wednesday to Miss Esther C. Bloomquist, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Bloomquist, by the Rev. J. A. Johnson of the Swedish Congregational church of Lynn.

The groom's attendants were the Rev. N. M. Nelson of Brockton, the Rev. C. E. Swanson of North Easton, the Rev. C. A. Ohlson of Stanbury, Ct., and J. W. Johnson of Lynn.

The bridesmaids were Miss Clara Bloomquist, sister of the bride, Miss Elsie Anderson of Roxbury, Miss Grace Franson and Miss Grace Trafton of Lynn.

Almost a Fire.

The prompt action of Officer Doran probably prevented a bad fire in the store of Sanborn & Damon Wednesday night. Just before closing up, one of the clerks went into the front store with a lighted candle which he sat on the end of the counter. When he locked up for the night he forgot all about the candle, leaving it burning. When Officer Doran came on duty at 9 o'clock he saw a light in the store, and looking in saw the burning candle. At that time he thought some one was at work in the store. Later, he noticed that the candle had burned down low and had set fire to a paper box. Then he smashed in a window and entered, extinguishing the blaze that had started.

Freight Handled Expeditiously

The traveling crane at the new freight yard at South Quincy went into service this morning, and worked to perfection. Eight loads of granite for shipment arrived at the freight yard Wednesday afternoon and were drawn up in a line along side of a row of flat freight cars. These teams were left in the yard all night.

This morning work loading the cars from the stone teams was commenced and all of the granite on the teams was loaded onto the cars before 9 o'clock. This considering it was the first day the crane was in practical use is remarkably well. It now looks as though the trouble granite men have had getting their teams unloaded had been solved and that granite would be handled expeditiously.

Walking Delegate Is Assaulted

Thomas Rogan, walking delegate for the Granite Cutters' Union, was the victim of quite a serious assault Wednesday afternoon. It appears that Rogan entered a stone yard and engaged a man, who it is said did not belong to the union, in conversation. The argument grew quite warm and then it is alleged that the workman struck Rogan a savage blow on the head with a bush hammer, making a bad wound. Rogan had his head dressed by a physician and is about today. It is probable that the affair will be brought into court.

Newsy Budget From Shipyard

On account of the fogy weather the four-hour endurance run of the scout cruiser Salem to have been held Wednesday was postponed until today.

The Octopus, the largest of the submarine boats built by the Fore River Shipbuilding Company, was accepted by the government this week through Lieut. Com. Mark L. Bristol, and assigned to the first submarine flotilla now at Newport, R. I.

Houghs Neck By the Seaside

One of the most daring rescues was made Wednesday afternoon by day officer Whalen at Houghs Neck. A pair of horses owned by John A. Sutherland were frightened by a passing automobile on Sea street near the "Willows." Before Sutherland could get a hold on the horses, they had broken the traces and started on the run for the Neck. Officer Whalen was near the fire station when the horses passed him, and quickly mounting his wheel, Whalen pedalled for all he was worth after the runaway pair. There were many narrow escapes for children that were playing in the streets. When the horses were near the Casino Whalen caught up to them and made a dive for the harness, but missed. Directly in the path of the pair of horses, about twenty yards away was a little girl who had fallen in the street while attempting to get away. Whalen saw the child's danger and regardless of his own life ran in front of the horses, picked up the little girl, and jumped aside just in the nick of time. The horses ran into a telegraph pole and were stopped.

Herbert Boutin broke the record Wednesday evening at Brown's bowling alleys by bowling 315 in three consecutive strings, candle pins, getting 101, 104, and 110 respectively.

TODAY'S COURT.

Aldanah Hamlin was fined $5 for peddling without a license at Milton.

QUINCY CRUISER

Averages Two Knots Better Than Required By Contract

Twenty-six knots was the record of the scout cruiser Salem, built at Quincy, on her official four hour endurance run on Thursday, which is two knots above the contract speed, and a triumph for the Fore River Shipbuilding Company.

The Globe report says the Salem left anchorage inside Monhegan at 10.30 Thursday morning, began her test at 11 and completed it at 3 o'clock off Race point cape Cod. The trial board has not yet met to plot the result, but the figures show an average speed of 25.956 knots during the four hours and 26.01 knots for the second and third hours of the trip.

The average revolution in the four hours was 378.39. The contract speed was 24 knots for which the standardization trials showed 335.2 revolutions necessary. The test of the Salem is considered a success, as the vessel made the same speed on the four-hour run as the average of the five-mile run on the measured mile at Rockland.

For two quarter hours during the run the cruiser made 26.2 knots an hour. There was but little vibration, and all the officers, both of the navy and of the Fore River shipbuilding company, who were aboard, were jubilant over her performances and willing to wager the Salem is a faster ship than the Chester.

The delay in starting the run of the Salem was caused by fog on the coast of Maine, as she was anchored all Wednesday and Wednesday night off Fort Clyde, a few miles below Rockland, and didn't get up her anchor there until 10 yesterday morning.

The Salem was met in Nantasket roads by two lighters, which had 250 tons of coal in bags to put aboard, and by a navy yard waterboat with 200 tons of fresh water. The coal and water was put aboard during the night and early this morning eight tons of provisions will be taken on and the Salem will get under way and go to sea about 9 o'clock.

For 24 hours the Salem will steam at 12 knots an hour and then for 24 hours she will make 22 1-2 knots, for the purpose of testing her coal consumption.

The Salem probably will return to the Fore River yard Sunday night or Monday morning, to have the finishing touches put on her preliminary to being turned over to the government and put in commission.

When the Salem got to an anchorage at night Rear Admiral Bowles caught up with a telegram sent to him Wednesday night by Admiral George Dewey. It was as follows: "Hearty congratulations on performance of the Salem as reported in today's papers."

Clerk Arraigned For Larceny

Frank Jacobs, who has been a clerk at the store of E. C. Snowden on Brook street, Wollaston, was arraigned in court this morning for the larceny of money from Mr. Snowden.

According to the police, Jacobs was sent to the Mt. Wollaston bank June 18 with checks and money to the amount of nearly $200 for deposit. Instead of depositing the money he "lit out" for parts unknown. Thursday he came back and called upon Mr. Snowden, telling him he had but $6 left.

The police were notified and the wagon sent down with Officer George A. McKay. Jacobs was placed under arrest. The police found he had a loaded revolver in his pocket. In court he was fined $25 for carrying a loaded revolver, and held for the grand jury on the larceny charge.

Reception of Class of 1908

Probably the most enjoyable dancing party of the season was the reception Thursday evening of the Class of 1908, graduated this week from the Quincy High school. With few exceptions all the participants were about the same age, including High school pupils and those who have graduated in recent years with their young friends. It was a very pretty party, and enthusiasm was unbounded.

From 8 until 8.30 there was a reception, when the class officers were assisted in receiving by teachers at the school, and wives of teachers. The party was located at the right of the platform which was cosily arranged with screens, chairs, rugs, etc. In the party were Miss Marion L. Howe, the class president; Harold Gore, the vice president; Blanche Morrison, the secretary; Stanley C. Sherman, the treasurer; Miss L. Frances Tucker and Miss Grace A. Howe of the faculty and Mrs. M. T. Holbrook and Mrs. C. H. Stone, wives of the teachers.

The ushers were John Nolan, Charles Hearn, John Gourlie, Glover Howe, Corliss Berry, Joseph Hogan, Harold Marsh, Clarence Tobin, Lawrence Pope and others.

The grand march was led by Miss Howe, the president, and her brother William E. Howe, assisted by Miss Blanche Morrison and Ambler Welch. Over 150 couples participated and crowded the hall to its utmost. Poole's orchestra furnished the music for the dancing and was very popular with the dancers.

The decorations were the same as at the graduation exercises, the large floral "Q" being conspicuous on the platform, and the motto above.

Those in charge of the floor were L. Brewster Walker, Harold Gore, Glover E. Howe, John E. Gourlie and William J. Nolan.

This evening the Class of 1908 will hold a class party in the gymnasium at the High school building.

Resignation of Rev. W. E. Gardner

Rev. William E. Gardner has handed his resignation as rector of Christ church to the vestry to take effect Aug. 1, having accepted a call to Cambridge. Mr. Gardner will spend the month of August in camping and will take his new charge Sept. 1. The Cambridge church is one of the leading churches in the diocese, and Mr. Gardner was endorsed by Bishop Lawrence for the rectorship. It was a problem which call to accept, as Mr. Gardner was offered the secretaryship of an education work which promised well. His removal from Quincy will be a great loss to the city at large.

—Minot St. Clair Francis, the Negro convict made a desperate attempt on Thursday to escape from the United States officers who were taking him to the federal prison in Georgia. He was unsuccessful however.

MUSICAL WEDDING

An Elaborate Program at Brooks--Fowler Church Ceremony

A brilliant wedding took place in St. Chrysostom's Episcopal church, Wollaston, on Thursday evening, at 8 o'clock, when Miss Grace Raymond Fowler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Douglas Fowler of Phillips street and Ernest Robbins Brooks, D. M. D., Tufts '04 of West Somerville, were married by the Rev. Glenn Tilley Morse of the Church of the Advent. The church was profusely decorated with palms, daisies and greenery, and the church was filled with guests.

Madame Beale Morey at the organ, with Mrs. Alice Williams, violin and Mr. F. L. Beale, 'cello, played the bridal march from Lohengrin as the bridal party passed up the aisle.

The bride who was given away by her father, looked charming in an exquisite full trained gown of white crepe de chine, trimmed with duchess lace applique on net. Her tulle veil was fastened with a half wreath of lilies of the valley, and she carried a shower bouquet of the same flower. A pearl pendant the gift of the groom was her only ornament.

Miss Edna Hamlyn Fowler, the bride's sister was maid of honor, in pink silk muslin trimmed with applique. She carried pink sweet peas and wore a rope of pearls, a gift of the bride.

The bridesmaids, the Misses Christine, and Jessie Fowler, also sisters of the bride, were in blue silk muslin trimmed with valenciennes lace and they carried bouquets of blue sweet peas.

The ribbon bearers were Miss Zoe Fowler, the bride's youngest sister and Miss Lida Prentiss.

The best man was Mr. Harry V. Dunsmore of Boston, and the ushers were Messrs. Charles Howard Brooks and Dr. William G. Brooks of Wollaston, brothers of the groom, Messrs. Tracy Derby and Albert Wade of Chelsea, Messrs. Linde Fowler, Carl Fowler and Raymond Fowler, brothers of the bride, and Mr. Fenton Fowler, a cousin.

The best man and ushers received gold lovers' knot scarf pins from the groom. The bride gave her sister Christine a jeweled pendant and chain and Jessie an amethyst and pearl ring.

Before the betrothal ceremony "The Voice that breathed O'er Eden" was sung by members of the bride's family grouped at the altar. They rendered "Oh Perfect Love" after the betrothal and following the ceremony, the royal marriage hymn, "Father of Life," which was sung in chapel Royal St. James, upon the occasion of the wedding of the Prince of Wales, was sung by Master Victor Fowler as soloist, and the family.

Father of Life confessing
Thy majesty and power
We seek thy gracious blessing
To greet the bridal hour
The troth in Eden plighted
The wedded here renew
May they in Thee united
Till death be pure and true.

Jesu, Redeemer hear us,
Still be the wedding guest
Thy gentle presence near us
Makes common things more blest
E'en care shall be a learning of blessedness divine
If thou wilt still be turning
The water into wine.

The church thy bride hath given,
Her blessing on the vow,
Oh ratify from heaven,
Her benison below,
Bless Father, Son and Spirit
The union here begun,
That in the life eternal
It may be ever one, Amen,

During the ceremony the Swan song from Lohengrin was rendered and the recessional was Mendelssohn's wedding march.

The reception was held in the parish rooms, immediately after the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Fowler, and Mrs. Mary Brooks the groom's mother, assisted in receiving. The wedding party stood in front of a bank of palms and the decorations were pink roses.

Refreshments of sherbet, ice cream, frozen pudding with fancy cakes and punch were served, in charge of Miss Alice Woodward of Dorchester, assisted by Miss Gertrude Hineline of Wollaston, Miss Edith Goodrich of Jamaica Plain, Miss Florence Ward of Malden, Mrs. Fenton Fowler of Amesbury, and the Misses Florence, Gertrude and Hazel Pike of Auburndale.

There were many handsome and costly presents of china, cut glass, silver, ornaments and pictures.

The happy couple have gone to St. John, Kingston and Sussex, New Brunswick, to visit relatives of the bride. They will be at home after October first, at 2 Curtis street, West Somerville.

Charles H. Burgess Ex-Councilman Dead

Ex-Councilman Charles H. Burgess passed away at his home on Whitney road Thursday evening, after an illness of some months' duration. Mr. Burgess has not been in good health for a long time and last fall took a trip to Bermuda for his health. He returned home somewhat benefited, but by no means well. Since that time he has been confined to his home for the greater part of the time.

Mr. Burgess was born in Weymouth Sept. 1, 1865. He received his early education in the public schools of his native town, completing his education at Comers' Commercial college. he then entered the employ of C. F. Hovey of Boston, with whom he remained 23 years. In 1893 he gave up his position with that firm, and in September that year opened a real estate office in Quincy. He was for a time associated in the real estate business with ex-Mayor John O. Hall, but later continued alone. He had a large amount of real estate under his care, and was actively engaged in the pursuit of that business up to the time he was taken ill.

He became a resident of Quincy in 1891, marrying a daughter of the late Capt. Joseph N. Glover who survives him.

He was elected to the City Council of 1905 from Ward One, serving one year. He was assigned to the standing committees of Sewers and Public Buildings.

When the Citizens' Association was organized he became its first secretary, holding the position as long as his health would permit. He was also a member of the Quincy Yacht club and Granite City club.

HARVARD'S HOT PACE

It Proves Much Too Terrific For the Yale Varsity Eight

STROKE TAKEN FROM SHELL

Collapse of the Elis' Leader Left Crew Hopelessly Beaten--Victorious Crimsons Rowed Last Mile and a Half of the Race Alone

New London, Conn., June 26.—Harvard! Rah! Rah! Rah! Rah! Harvard! With a deafening din of steam whistles and horns and the frenzied shouts of collegians, the Harvard 'varsity eight shot their boat over the finish line last night, winning from the crippled and distanced Yale crew that classic of American collegiate aquatics, the Harvard-Yale 'varsity boat race.

But instead of a race Harvard finished the last mile and a half alone, while far behind Yale limped along with but seven men at the oars, with Griswold, the stroke—the man who had been relied upon to set the winning pace—bent forward, limp and collapsed with the strain of the opening two miles.

Up to this unexpected climax it had been a stirring struggle with a fitting setting of a magnificent marine spectacle such as has seldom been equalled along a regatta course for brilliancy and imposing magnitude.

The great steel drawbridge spanning the Thames marked the start of the race, with the finish at Red Top, four miles upstream. Just above the bridge were massed the main flotilla of pleasure craft, with myriads of steam yachts, auxiliaries, sloops and schooners, the very pick of the Atlantic pleasure fleet. Further up the course, for fully four miles, stretched long lines of steam and sailing craft of every conceivable description.

Through the maze of craft the racers threaded their way, with a clear course, 200 feet wide, marked every half mile with red and blue standards—blue for Yale and red for Harvard. Every eye was rivetted on the swaying forms in the boats, their bodies moving rythmically, their bronzed backs bare to the waists, with the great muscles standing out as they bent to the terrific strain of 26, then 30 and then 34 strokes to the minute. Above the shouts from the onlookers could be heard the shrill voices of the coxswains, megaphones to mouth, stimulating their men and marking time with "one, two, three, four."

Yale had splashed at the start and the Harvard crew had been quick to take this advantage, pushing their boat slightly ahead. They hung nip and tuck, Harvard stamina against Yale pluck, through the roaring avenues of nerve-racked, screeching thousands.

Half a mile from the start both crews were almost side by side, with Harvard only a few feet to the fore; one mile, Harvard still ahead with Yale holding on doggedly; two miles, Yale spurting and lessening the gap; two and a half miles, Harvard still in the lead, with open water between the boats and Yale fighting like grim death.

Now came the decisive moment, with the final stretch almost in sight and the breathless throngs straining to see if Harvard would keep up the clip or would weaken at the close. Steadily on they came, when suddenly a commotion was observed in the Yale boat, as Griswold, the stroke, hung forward over his oar and ceased to row.

For nearly a minute the Yale stroke sat motionless, leaning forward as if lifeless. Then he was seen to straighten up and bend to his oar again, and a great shout went up from the Yale cohorts, as their crew was seen to pick up the stroke and rally for another effort. But they were now six boat lengths behind, hopelessly beaten.

Another twenty strokes and Griswold was seen to collapse again, and then the whole crew, disheartened at the fall of their leader, quit their work and sat dejected at their oars. Yale was out; it was no longer a race, and Harvard swung home alone, still keeping up their racing clip and crossing the finish line with a regular "swish-swash" to the very end.

As Harvard sped across the line, "boom, boom" and "toot, toot" went up in a deafening chorus from the myriad craft, while from bank to bank rolled a chorus of Harvard yells and from every truck and mainmast broke out the triumphant crimson and a bewildering maze of kaleidoscopic color.

Griswold had been helped from the Yale boat and, lagging far behind the Harvard men, the seven remaining oarsmen of the Yale crew at last made their appearance at the finish—a half mile behind Harvard, receiving a generous ovation for their pluck under such disheartening conditions.

Now came the welcome to the victors and the wild scene of tumultuous demonstration as the men of Harvard celebrated their triumph. It was twilight as the great din moved shoreward, the fleet sparkling with electric lights, to the streets of this old shipping town. Soon the college men began to move to their home fields, the yachts and throngs of visitors scattered, and the Harvard-Yale boat race of 1908 was a memory.

Earlier in the day honors were divided, the Yale four defeating the Harvard four by two lengths and the Harvard freshmen eight defeating the Yale freshmen by three lengths.

FIRED BULLETS AT BALLOON

Charge Against Two Men Under Arrest at Brattleboro

Brattleboro, Vt., June 26.—Charged with assaulting Charles J. Glidden, the automobile and balloon enthusiast, with a rifle with intent to kill, while Glidden was traveling over Brattleboro in a balloon with Leo Stevens last Friday, William Murphy, aged 30, and Charles Rigaman, aged 33 years, of this city, were placed under arrest last night.

The charge was made on complaint of Attorney General Fitts, who personally gave his attention to the complaint made to him by Glidden and Stevens. A reward of $100 was offered by Stevens for the arrest and conviction of the guilty parties.

According to Glidden, two bullets were fired at the balloon, apparently from a white barn hundreds of feet below. The time of the shots and the exact location of the balloon were noted by the aeronauts. One bullet grazed the balloon, leaving a scar. The second bullet passed completely through the balloon, and it became necessary for the balloonists to descend. Owing to the small diameter of the hole the gas in the balloon did not escape rapidly enough to endanger the lives of the occupants by the descent.

Had the bullets struck the basket or the balloon been ripped by the bullets fatal results might have followed. This is the second time in the east that a balloon has been fired at, and the Aero clubs have besought the officials to push the investigation and prosecution of such cases.

WORMS

Unsuspected worms are the cause of numerous little things that go wrong with children. When a child is sick you rarely think that its sickness is caused by worms, yet worms, either directly or indirectly, are the cause of three quarters of all the ills of childhood. Children, and often-times adults feel out of sorts, are irritable, feel listless and unrefreshed in the morning; suffer with indigestion, have a variable appetite, foul tongue, offensive breath; hard and full belly, with occasional gripings and pains about the navel; eyes heavy, and dull; itching of the nose; short, dry cough; grinding of the teeth; slow fever; and often in children, convulsions—in the majority of cases the cause of all the trouble is worms though you may not suspect their presence.

DR. TRUE'S ELIXIR

a pure vegetable compound, has been the standard household remedy since 1857; it never fails to expel not only worms but all waste matter, leaving the blood rich and pure, the stomach sweet, the bowels regular and the whole system strong and healthy.

The mother who gives her children Dr. True's Elixir regularly is wise, because it not only increases the appetite, acts as a preventative of coughs, cold, fever and worms but gives rugged, robust health.

Sold by all Druggists. Price 35c, 50c and $1.00.

PLAIN AND SIMPLE FUNERAL

Mrs. Cleveland's Wishes That Nothing of Military Nature Should Have Part In Husband's Obsequies Are Respected--Death Mask Taken

Princeton, N. J., June 26.—The funeral of Grover Cleveland tonight will be marked by extreme simplicity. Although twice elected President of the United States, no pomp or splendor will have a place in the ceremonies. There will be no bands to play mournful dirges on the way to the old Princeton cemetery, no military escort, no eulogy by the officiating clergymen.

The half-mile of thoroughfare through which the cortege will pass from "Westland," the Cleveland home on Bayard lane, to the cemetery will be policed by mounted troops and soldiers, but they will be there for police duty and as a measure of precaution in protecting the living president, rather than as an element of display in paying tribute to a departed chief executive.

It has been Mrs. Cleveland's wish to avoid anything of a military nature at the funeral, and it was only when the necessity of guarding President Roosevelt, who is to be in attendance, was borne upon her by those in charge of the funeral arrangements, that she consented to the presence of troops in a police capacity.

Four clergymen will officiate at the house and at the grave. They will read the burial service from the Presbyterian book of common worship, but will offer no eulogy. This simple, but impressive, service will be conducted by Rev. Dr. Van Dyke of Princeton; Rev. Dr. Richards, pastor of the Brick Presbyterian church of New York; Rev. S. W. Beach, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Princeton, where the Cleveland family attended, and Rev. M. V. Bartlett, former pastor of the same church. There will be no honorary pall bearers.

The services at the house will be brief, after which the cortege will be formed and proceed to the cemetery. Only those invited to the funeral and a few newspaper men will be permitted to enter the cemetery, which will be guarded by mounted troops and members of the National Guard of New Jersey.

The simple Presbyterian service will be said at the grave, the casket lowered into the ground and one of the country's most distinguished citizens will have become but a memory.

President Roosevelt, Governor Fort of New Jersey, Governor Hughes of New York, Governor Smith of Georgia, members of President Cleveland's cabinet and other notable citizens are expected to attend. After the ceremonies the president will leave Princeton at once in his private car Signet.

Although admittance to the Cleveland home and to the cemetery is to be limited principally to personal friends of the family, thousands of people are in Princeton today, attracted by the presence of President Roosevelt and other distinguished personages and to witness the Cleveland procession. Princeton's police force consists of only a few men and the precaution of safeguarding President Roosevelt, of maintaining order and keeping the thoroughfares cleared became a serious problem with the city authorities.

Governor Fort tendered to Mrs. Cleveland the state troops for a military funeral, but the tender was declined. Mrs. Cleveland's expressed wishes being that nothing of a military nature should have a part in her husband's obsequies. Mayor Robinson, however, pointed out to those in charge of the funeral arrangements that the desire for the curious thousands to witness the burial of Mr. Cleveland at close range might cause a scene of confusion at least at the grave.

When the situation was presented to Mrs. Cleveland and the necessity of guarding President Roosevelt against possible harm was pointed out to her she finally consented to the presence of troops to assist in policing the city. As soon as the funeral is over and President Roosevelt leaves, the troops and special police will be withdrawn.

Mrs. Cleveland spent the day quietly. She arose early and shortly after 6 o'clock in the morning went to the cemetery, where she gave final directions for locating the grave. Mr. Cleveland will be buried near the grave of his eldest daughter, Ruth.

The ex-president's body was embalmed and was placed in a casket and taken to the library in the first floor today, where the ceremonies will be conducted. A silver plate bears the inscription: "Grover Cleveland, March 18, 1837—June 24, 1908."

A death mask, taken Wednesday at Mrs. Cleveland's request by Edwin Wilson, a sculptor connected with Princeton university, when completed yesterday showed that Mr. Cleveland had become greatly emaciated during his illness.

The President's Proclamation

Washington, June 26.—To every naval station and to every government vessel in commission throughout the world, to all military posts and stations, to all United States diplomatic and consular offices in every quarter, have gone forth instructions for observance of the president's proclamation announcing Mr. Cleveland's death.

There was an innovation at the state department inaugurated to meet modern conditions. This was the telegraphic notification, instead of by mail, to our representatives in foreign countries to display flags at half mast for thirty days. This instruction was telegraphed with a view to uniformity in the time of observance.

The orders telegraphed by the war and naval departments direct the half-masting of the colors, the wearing of the badge of mourning until July 25 and the firing of salutes every half hour from sunrise to sunset today, the day of the funeral, at all posts, stations, and on board ship. The salute at military posts will include thirteen guns at dawn and forty-five guns at sunset. The colors in the arms also will be placed in mourning.

In Grateful Remembrance

Rio Janeiro, June 26.—The municipal council, the chamber of deputies and the senate have suspended their sessions as a mark of respect for the memory of ex-President Cleveland, whose services to this country are gratefully remembered. Flags on the government buildings are at half mast and a cablegram has been sent to Washington instructing the Brazilian ambassador and the other members of the embassy to attend the funeral.

Duel to the Death

Goldfield, Nev., June 26.—Mayo Taylor, a mine superintendent, and E. W. Priest, an ex-constable, are both dead as a result of a street duel with pistols. There had been bad feeling between them, Taylor, it is said, having charged Priest with trying to break up his home. The two men met on the street and immediately began shooting at each other. Both men fell, but they continued the battle, while writhing in agony on the ground, until their revolvers were emptied.

Suffragettes' New Move

London, June 26.—Convinced that their recent tactics have failed to persuade Premier Asquith to accelerate the legislative machine in their favor, the suffragettes project another novel demonstration next Tuesday. While a deputation will seek an interview with Asquith, it is the intention to surround the house of commons with a cordon of suffragettes which will, the suffragettes say, number at least 100,000.

June Bug's Performance

Hammondsport, N. Y., June 26.—The most successful flight yet made on the testing grounds of the Aerial Experiment association here was made by G. H. Curtiss in his June Bug aerodrome No. 3. Under his guidance June Bug flew 1140 yards, more than three-fifths of a mile, in just sixty seconds. All that stopped the flight was the limited area of the practice ground.

Ball Cartridges For Maneuvers

Niagara-on-the-Lake, Ont., June 26.—As a matter of form, just before the Fifth brigade left to take up their position in the military training camp maneuvers being held here, the ammunition of the men was inspected. There was astonishment when some ball cartridges were found in some bandoliers. The cartridges must have been obtained at the ranges.

Serious Outbreak of Rabies

Albany, June 26.—Commissioner Pearson of the state agricultural department reports that thirty towns in this state are under quarantine for rabies or hydrophobia. "Officials of the department," said Pearson, "have never known of such a serious outbreak of rabies as at present. Similar conditions exist in other parts of the country."

May Check Jewish Persecution

London, June 26.—Today's Jewish Chronicle says that it understands that during the recent meeting between King Edward and Emperor Nicholas at Reval it was intimated that Premier Stolypin was preparing an important measure for the amelioration of the condition of the Jews in Russia.

Shut Off by Bingham

New York, June 26.—Police Commissioner Bingham has refused leave of absence to M. J. Sheridan, Matt McGrath and John Flanagan, the three policemen who have been selected members of the American team that is to compete in the Olympic games in London next month.

Bankers Take Own Lives

Munich, June 26.—Theodore and Max Klopfer, proprietors of the banking firm of Klopfer Bros., both took their lives yesterday because of the financial difficulties of the firm. These originated in losses sustained through the failure of the Leipsic bank.

Stories Declared Absurd

Washington, June 26.—Joaquim Nabuco, ambassador of Brazil, when interrogated concerning statements that have been published in this country that Brazil is building ships for the Japanese navy, declared that the story was too absurd to deserve denial.

Lost Money and Health

New York, June 26.—James R. Bennett, 64 years old, a retired coffee broker, committed suicide at his home in Brooklyn by shooting in the head with a revolver. Bennett suffered severe losses during the recent financial crisis and was in failing health.

The Weather Forecast

Almanac, Saturday, June 27.
Sun rises—4:09; sets—7:25.
Moon rises—3:17 a. m.
High water—10:30 a. m.; 10:45 p. m.

GLASCOW LETTER

John Evans Writes of His Trip and The Tourists

Glascow, Scotland, June 14, 1908.

Dear Editor:—I promised many of your readers, a few letters from this beautiful land of the Scots. I am here, and please tell the Scotchmen of Quincy, that they need not be ashamed of their native land. Since the first time we viewed it from the ship early Sunday morning, it has been a continuous panorama of the most beautiful scenery that nature can produce. The island of Kintire, Islay, Jura, Arran, the beautiful summer resorts of Rothsay, Inellan, Gourock, Rosenath point, Port Glascow, Bowling, and the glorious hills, mountain peaks, locks and green and wooded valleys cannot be described. They must be seen. They were never prettier than in June, especially this year, for it has been raining continually, so the grass even on the mountain sides is green and grand, and we could never have a better day to view this wonderful moving picture that God himself has painted.

After several days of cold and rainy weather, Saturday afternoon late, we saw the rainbow throwing its most beautiful mantle over our good ship. I then remembered that rainbow at night was the sailor's delight. So sure enough on Sunday, all day, from three A. M. when we first got a glimpse of the rugged coast of Ireland, was as fine as fine could be. Another thing was in our favor, we had all day to view this immense picture, while often the ships pass it at night. Everything seems to favor us.

As I am going to take another trip along the Clyde ,and to the exhibition at Edinburgh and several ofher places in Scotland, Ireland, England and Wales, I will leave this, grand picture now, with the promise that soon I will lift the curtain again, and show the old castles and mansions, the homes and resting places of Wallace, Scott, Burns, yes of Douglas, Mary Queen of Scots and others, but now just come with me on board of the Steamer Numidian, and I will show you the most congenial, happy good-hearted and I think the most intelligent lot of men and women you ever met.

I see that you at once have fallen in love with them, I knew you could not help it. Here is Rev. Mr. Myricks of West Roxbury with his family on his way to the International Congregational Convention at Edinburg, as a delegate, a finer man I never met. So all say on board. Here comes a tall man in full vigor of life, and if he did not have on his clerical collar you would take him for a sport, for he is at all times trying his utmost to make things pleasant to everyone, helping the ladies, playing the shuffle board throwing the rope, quoits, etc. He is a gentleman through and through. His name is Rev. A. V. Brine, Christ church, Episcopal, Portsmouth, N. H. I shall always have a warm place in my heart for him.

Here is another man coming, I want you to get acquainted with. Let me introduce you to Rev. Mr. Bruce and his better half from St. Barbara, Cal., Methodist. He beat at the shuffle board. He is the poet, for he read many verses at the concert Friday night in which he described our whole career since on board. I will give it to you some of these days. I could go on introducing you to 250 more that it would be an honor for any one to shake hands with. I have the addresses of most of them, and I have promised them the Ledger with the account of the voyage.

I will tell you and them more about our trip over the herring pond, also take you along the Clyde in a steamer and show the immense shipbuilding yards. Will also take you to the old quaint city of Edinburgh; will show you the coal mines that J. P. Morgan bought when here a while ago; then you can go with me by rail and boat to Belfast in Ireland, and several other places of interest. Hope you will not get tired. I will try to make the next trips shorter and more interesting so that all of you can stand it.

John Evans.

DELICIOUS BANANA CREAM.

This recipe is highly recommended by one of our correspondents; try it for desert tomorrow.

Serve with whipped cream, or any good pudding sauce. JELL-O is sold by all Grocers at 10c. per package.

MISS MATTHEWS

Moves Up Today Into Fourth Place in the Ledger Contest

Miss Matthews of Houghs Neck makes the largest gain today in the Motor Boat contest, and proposes to give the leaders a hustle for the first prize. Miss Matthews is now in fourth place, having passed Capt. Drew of Wollaston. All the other gains were among those with less than 100 votes.

Tomorrow the Daily Ledger will announce the other prizes to be given in the contest, which in themselves will be worthy of an effort to obtain. It is hoped also to put the motor boat on exhibition at an early date.

Blanks for placing trial orders for the Daily Ledger may be obtained at the office of publication, and will be mailed upon request. Each trial order gives a credit of 100 votes to your favorite candidate.

The standing of the candidates will be printed each day, all votes received previous to 9 A. M. being counted that day.

It is not necessary that candidates shall be members of a yacht club or any other club. Neither is the contest limited to men. Women as well as men may enter.

The prizes offered are valuable ones, there being others besides the motor boat which is offered as a first prize.

The standing today at 9 A. M. was:

Death Of A Veteran Editor

H. H. McQuillen, the publisher of the Dedham Transcript, one of the oldest Norfolk county journalists, died on Wednesday, in his 72d year.

He was a native of Crumlin, Ireland, the son of William McQuillen, and was born Nov. 25, 1836. He received his education in the schools of Belfast, Ireland, and when 14 years of age came to America and until he was 20 made his home in St. John, N. B. Then he came to Cambridge, this state, and entered the printing business. In 1864 he came to Dedham, where he has since resided. In 1872 he established and for a time was the editor and publisher of the West Roxbury News.

He made a success of his newspaper, and his sons have succeeded as wholesale paper merchants in Boston.

The publisher of the Quincy Patriot, established in 1837, has known Bro. McQuillen many years, and appreciated his efforts to give the shire town and Norfolk county a well printed, clean and newsy paper. At the meetings of the Massachusetts Press Association, on Newspaper outings, and at other times the company of Mr. Quillen was enjoyed, and sympathy is extended to the family.

Garden Party for Charity.

The Cambridge councils of the Knights of Columbus will be in charge of the afternoon games for children, consisting of sack-race, potato race, pie-eating match, three-legged race and shoe string race. Suitable prizes will be awarded. Entries for these races to be made with any of the Cambridge councils, or at the East Cambridge table on the day of the garden party.

Houghs Neck By the Seaside

The summer season is now on at Houghs Neck. The streets have lost their deserted appearance, there being quite a crowd every evening, and the various places of amusements are being patronized very well. The moving picture theatres are packed nearly every evening. Brown's bowling alleys is the scene of many hard fought bowling contests. A bowling league is being organized by the men of the Neck. The first match will be bowled some night next week.

The property holders and business men of Houghs Neck will be pleased to know that a boat will be run every day from City Point, South Boston, to Houghs Neck. The running schedule has not been arranged as yet, but it is understood that there will be two trips in the morning and two in the evening to accommodate the working people. The boat will land in City Point, being only a fifteen minute ride on the electrics to nearly every part of Boston. It is understood that a party of Boston capitalists are behind the new company. The new company have leased landing privileges from the Boston and Houghs Neck Steamboat company. The boat will probably start to run Sunday.

William Galvin of Bell street is now the manager of Brown's bowling alleys.

Dancing at Pandora Hall every afternoon. 6t

Miss Matthews made a gain of one hundred votes today, she is making a great fight and is liable to spring a surprise on the leaders before the week is ended. Houghs Neck has two hustling candidates in Miss Matthews and Frank Pray. The beach is equally divided in the support of the two candidates.

The Sea street Dream has a vaudeville act on with their regular proformance.

Mr. and Mrs. William Cavanagh of Dorchester and family have taken possession of the cottage on River road for the summer. The Misses Cavanagh will do a lot of entertaining this summer.

The Houghs Neck Associates are planning to make their dancing party next Monday night at Brown's summer ball room one long to be remembered by the summer residents of Houghs Neck. The committee in charge are doing some fine hustling this week, getting everything in good shape for the affair. The people of Houghs Neck have a chance to show their appreciation of the good work done by the Associates by attending with their friends, remember every nicbel taken in at the door will be a nickel added to the fastly growing building fund.

A party of Cambridge girls, who have been holding an outing at Houghs Neck this week, will wind up the week with a series of sports Saturday afternoon, the main feature of which will be a game of ball with the Houghs Neck girls.

The Social Realm

Two little blue jean overalls,
Two straw hats, 'mazing wide,
Two rakes, two hoes, two shovels,
Two gardens side by side.
Two little strangers, coy at first,
At last quite friendly wise.
A little conversation,
And a pretty big surprise.
"What's your name, little boy?" they ask
Each of the other shy.
"Me? Why I'm just a little girl!"
"You are? Why, so am I!"

LAID IN THE GRAVE

Short and Simple Burial Service For Grover Cleveland

NO EULOGY, SERMON OR SONG

Four Clergymen Participated In Ceremonies at Princeton, Which Are Attended by President Roosevelt and Other Eminent Men

Princeton, N. J., June 27.—Grover Cleveland's body lies buried in the Cleveland plot in Princeton cemetery.

At 6 o'clock last evening a distinguished company silently watched as the body was lowered into the grave. Then the simple burial service of the Presbyterian church was read, and before the last of the carriages in the cortege had driven up to the path leading to the burial place the benediction had been pronounced and the members of the family, President Roosevelt and others who had gathered about the grave, were leaving the cemetery. Many of the personal friends of the dead statesman lingered about the spot which was to mark his last resting place and each in turn was permitted to cast a shovelful of earth into the grave.

Agreeable to the wishes of Mrs. Cleveland, the services both at the house and at the cemetery were of the simpliest character. An invocation, scriptural reading, a brief prayer and the reading of a William Wordsworth poem, "Character of the Happy Warrior," constituted the services at the house, while the reading of the burial service at the grave was brief and impressive.

Although the funeral was of a strictly private nature, those in attendance numbered many distinguished citizens, including President Roosevelt, Governors Fort of New Jersey, Hughes of New York and Smith of Georgia, former members of President Cleveland's cabinet; officials of the Equitable Life Assurance society, members of the Princeton university faculty, friends and neighbors.

Mr. Cleveland was buried with all the simplicity and privacy that he himself might have wished. There was nothing that savored of the official, and a military element was injected solely as a measure of precaution in protecting President Roosevelt.

The president arrived at 4:38 p. m., and was met at the station by Governor Fort. The president, Fort and Secretary Loeb were driven at once to Westland. Upon his arrival at the house the president offered his sympathy to Mrs. Cleveland, and expressed keen regret at Mr. Cleveland's death. The president then returned to the reception room, where the body had been removed in the afternoon.

A few minutes later the four clergymen who officiated came down the stairs to the hall leading to the reception room, followed by Mrs. Cleveland and the children, Esther and Richard. As they appeared upon the landing, accompanied by Dr. Joseph D. Bryant, the whole company rose and remained standing throughout the services. Mrs. Cleveland was gowned in black and wore a becoming hat with a short, drooping veil. Esther was also in black, while Richard wore a white suit and black tie.

The services began with an invocation by Rev. S. W. Beach, which was followed by scriptural reading by Rev. M. V. Bartlett, who read from the 14th chapter of the Book of John and a number of passages from the 4th and 22nd chapters of Thessalonians.

Dr. Henry Van Dyke then said that, "according to the request of one whose slightest wishes at this moment we all respect, there will be no address or sermon, but there was a poem written more than a hundred years ago by William Wordsworth which is expressive of his character. He then read the poem, "Character of the Happy Warrior." This was followed by readings from the Presbyterian Book of Common Worship, the services at the house concluding with prayer.

The services were concluded at 5:30 and five minutes later the casket had been carried to the hearse and the procession started on its way to the cemetery. Along the streets from the house to the cemetery military guardsmen, mounted and on foot, policed the way. As President Roosevelt passed through the gate leading from the Westland grounds the militiamen presented arms and the president doffed his hat in recognition.

The pall-bearers, six on either side of the hearse, marched with the procession. Business had suspended during the afternoon and curtains were drawn in many of the houses. The silent crowd stood with bared heads as the procession passed along to the cemetery, which was reached a few minutes before 6 o'clock.

The members of the family alighted from their carriages and, with the four clergymen in the lead, walked down the graveled path leading to the open grave and the rose-strewn grave of Ruth. Mrs. Cleveland stood with her children and Dr. Bryant as the coffin was lowered into the grave. Rev. W. R. Richards had started to read the committal service even before President Roosevelt and others had reached the scene. The president stood just back of Mrs. Cleveland as the impressive final words were spoken. The services lasted less than five minutes.

OYSTER BAY CONFERENCE

Wright Will Today Be Initiated Into His New Duties

New York, June 27.—Secretary Taft has passed from pleasure to politics. During the commencement week at Yale he has had a pretty strenuous time. He really is greatly fatigued. The change, therefore, from purely personal to purely political affairs, is in the nature of a recreation.

This morning Secretary Taft, accompanied by Luke Wright and General Edwards, took an early train for Oyster Bay to confer with President Roosevelt. The purpose of the conference is to discuss questions now pending before the war department. It will be in the nature of an initiation of Wright into his new duties as secretary of war.

Polities surely will be discussed, particularly the selection of a chairman of the Republican national committee. Tremendous pressure is being brought upon Taft in behalf of at least two men mentioned in connection with the office. It can be said that, despite the declination of Frank H. Hitchcock to allow his name to be considered in connection with the chairmanship on account of ill-health, Hitchcock yet is an important factor in the chairmanship equation. Taft is in receipt of hundreds of letters and telegrams urging Hitchcock's selection.

Arthur I. Vorys is being strongly urged, particularly by Ohioans. Yet others who are not inclined to favor either Hitchcock or Vorys are advocating the selection of some man very prominent in national affairs. Among the names mentioned are those of Senator Crane, Secretary Cortelyou and Postmaster General Meyer.

Secretary Taft hopes to conclude his conference with President Roosevelt today in time to enable him to return to Washington tonight.

Denver Delegates at Picnic

Colo, Ia., June 27.—The party of Democratic leaders of Illinois, bound for the Denver convention in an automobile train, were held up and banquetted at a picnic at the farm of Mrs. James Dailey, near here. Mrs. Dailey, a jolly Irish woman, 80 years old, suddenly appeared in front of the leading automobile, waving a huge American flag. She rounded the entire party up on the lawn and feted them on Iowa pies, cake and lemonade for thirty minutes.

More Business In Steel Works

Pittsburg, June 27.—Ten departments of the Homestead Steel works of the United States Steel corporation are in operation today, the first Saturday they have been operated during the past three months. This will add an extra day's pay to the 2000 men employed in these departments. It is generally expected there will be almost a general resumption in the mills next week, when more than 2000 additional men will be put to work.

For Improvement of Roads

Washington, June 27.—The clerks in the division of rural free delivery are sending out notices to local highway officials, warning them that rural delivery will not be continued on roads that are not kept in good condition. Reports thus far received show greater activity than heretofore in the reconstruction and repair of highways in various localities.

Sarah Koten Sent to Hospital

New York, June 27.—Sarah Koten, the Russian nurse, who shot and killed Dr. Auspitz and is under indictment for murder in the first degree, was removed from the Tombs to the city hospital on Blackwell's island. The Tombs physician said that her condition was such that she must have peaceful surroundings and pure air.

Loss of Over $1,000,000 by Fire

Duluth, June 27.—Fire destroyed elevator "D" of the Consolidated Elevator company and No. 1 dock and sheds of the Northern Pacific Railroad company at Rice's Point, causing a loss of more than $1,000,000. The fire started from an explosion in the elevator and burned for over two hours.

Prince Goes Up In Balloon

Augsburg, Bavaria, June 27.—Prince George of Bavaria made an ascension in a spherical balloon. He remained in the air fifteen hours and landed near Immenstadt, a distance of about sixty-five miles as the crow flies from Augsburg. Prince George is the first royal aeronaut to make an ascension.

Sherman In Normal Condition

Cleveland, June 27.—James S. Sherman's condition is normal and the Republican vice presidential candidate is resting comfortably. The attending physician states that Sherman's condition is such that there is now no reason why he should not leave the hospital by next Wednesday.

Engine Went Down Embankment

Cleveland, June 27.—One trainman was killed, one probably fatally hurt and six passengers injured when a train left the rails near Garretsville. The engine jumped the track and rolled down an embankment of twenty-five feet, crushing the engineer and fireman.

Mulai Wants Big Army

Fez, June 27.—Mulai Hafid, the usurping sultan of Morocco, has summoned the caids to his palace here and peremptorily instructed them to raise an army of 18,000 men from the neighboring tribes.

The Fourth on a Warship

How the Olympia Celebrated Independence Day In the Far East

A SAILOR writing in St. Nicholas gives a vivid description of a Fourth of July celebration on board the cruiser Olympia in eastern waters eleven years ago. Less than a year after this celebration the Olympia figured in the famous battle of Manila Bay as the flagship of Admiral Dewey:

The day we celebrate falling upon Sunday, we "made good" the following Monday, says the sailor, and probably never before had a ship's deck undergone such changes. A flume made from sheet iron started up in the skids and, dipping and bending, widened into a big basin on the spar deck, grew narrower again, extending out over the ship's side. It was lined with stones and moss and set about with countless pots of Japanese ferns, flowers and shrubs. When the pumps set to work a hidden hose supplied the water. It ran and jumped and sparkled, overflowing the lake, on which sailed a six foot yacht (a perfect model of the Defender), then, trickling into a feathery bamboo forest that completely shut off the ship's rail, fell in a graceful natural waterfall into the bay.

Since 1776 it has been customary for all English men-of-war in foreign ports to go out cruising on the Fourth of July. Our sixty guns proved a panacea for the old grievances. They not only dressed their ships in America's honor, but the crew of the H. M. S. Undaunted attended our afternoon entertainment. As they came aboard they were each presented with one of these folders:

And gallantly they pinned to their neckerchiefs the little silk flag that lay between its leaves.

Inside was the following programme of sports:

The programme went off without a hitch, and everybody enjoyed it immensely, including our British guests. The Japanese fencing contest was a particular hit.

At quarters Captain Read appeared, accompanied by a stranger. After colors he turned to the stranger and remarked:

"Captain Gridley, I turn over to you not only the finest ship that ever rode the seas, but the finest crew that ever manned one."

There were tears in his eyes and in his voice.

Eleven months after this, on the 1st of May, 1898, Commodore Dewey gave to our new commander the memorable command, "You may fire when ready, Gridley." The Spanish war is now ten years past, Captain Gridley is dead, and the Olympia is out of commission. Many of the old crew of the Olympia have left the service, but all those who are still alive will remember this year with mingled joy and sorrow that Fourth of July eleven years ago in the seas of sunny Japan.

Wyoming Valley Massacre.

The first Fourth of July that helped to make history after the adoption of the Declaration was that of 1778. On that day Tory John Butler, with a party of loyalists and Indians, raided the beautiful Wyoming valley, in Pennsylvania, while most of the men were absent on duty with the army. The women and children, along with the aged and infirm, had taken refuge in a wooden fort, but under promise of protection they surrendered and were butchered, as were also a large number who had remained at their homes in the valley.

Many Men Mentioned as Running Mate For Bryan

KERN IS TAGGART'S CHOICE

New York and Other Eastern States Have Favorites For Second Place, While the South and West Are Working Up Booms

Denver, June 26.—Chairman Taggart of the national Democratic committee has come to town, bringing along a vice presidential boom which he put forth with much enthusiasm.

"Bryan will be nominated on the first ballot without a doubt and his running mate will be John W. Kern of Indiana."

This was the greeting Taggart gave to newspaper men. A little later, when he had visited the convention hall, he said: "The arrangements for the convention are fine. I cannot see how they could be improved upon. Everything seems to be in tip top shape."

A conference between Taggart and other members of the national committee was held last night, when it was decided that consideration of contests would begin July 6, the day before the convention opens. Taggart explained that but little time would be required to decide contests, as they were small in number and would be disposed of quickly.

Norman Mack of Buffalo, who has arrived, is booming Lieutenant Governor Chanler of New York for the vice presidential nomination. "Conceding the nomination for first place to Mr. Bryan," he said, "I think the nomination for the vice presidency should go to New York state. Chanler has demonstrated his popularity there and I am very sure his name would add strength to the ticket." He said the selection of Chanler would not be displeasing to Bryan.

So many strong men are being rated either as active candidates or as possibilities that it looks as if the convention would have trouble making a choice. New York furnishes several of them. Charles A. Towne has long cherished an ambition to be vice president, though he declined the nomination for this office in 1900, which was tendered him by the Populists. Another New Yorker who is credited with an ambition for the place is Representative Harrison. Harrison is likely to be a good deal more of a factor than many suppose. Chanler, for a time, was boomed actively for the nomination for president. He is expected to have considerable support for second place.

But there are other eastern men in plenty who are being discussed and who are outside of the state of New York. Ex-Governor Douglas of Massachusetts is looked on with favor in many quarters. Recently, a movement has been started for Frank S. Katzenbach, Jr., of Trenton. Katzenbach was the candidate of the Democrats last year for governor of New Jersey. He made a strong run, and has twice been mayor of Trenton. President Wilson of Princeton university has recently been discussed a good deal for second place on the ticket. Bryan is reputed to look on Wilson with favor, regarding him as a man who would add strength to the Democratic ticket in the east.

It is given out that Judge George Gray of Delaware would not willingly take second place, but this pronouncement, like nearly all others regarding the office of vice president, is not being taken very seriously by the politicians. Gray's name may be considered for the second place on the ticket, and in case it is, will probably meet the approval of Bryan. Ex-Governor Warfield of Maryland is looked on as a candidate. He is conservative and has large business interests.

John Mitchell of Illinois, ex-leader of the mine workers, would have had strong support for the nomination for vice president, but he has put himself out of the field in positive fashion.

Several southern men are discussed for second place. Senator Culberson of Texas is one, Senator Daniel of Virginia is another. Ex-Governor Folk of Missouri is a possibility as running mate with Bryan. Mayor Tom Johnson of Cleveland will have considerable support, though he does not appear to be seeking the honor. W. A. Conrad, the Montana millionaire, is actively in quest of the nomination and has headquarters in different states. Still further west, there is Governor Chamberlain of Oregon. He does not want the vice presidency, but his success in Oregon has turned many eyes toward him.

Must Hustle For Wampum

Washington, June 26.—The Democratic congressional committee is facing a hard proposition in the matter of money to carry on the campaign, and Representative Lloyd, its chairman, went to New York today for the purpose of breaking into some of the barrels of Democrats in whose loyalty to the party he has confidence. The committee begun its work two months ahead of scheduled time this year, and its work is so far advanced that it must now have funds or call a halt in the sending out of its literature.

A Vast Diamond Field

Berlin, June 26.—A dispatch from Windjoek, Damara Land, German Southwest Africa, says that a diamond field, the extent of which is nearly ten square miles, has been discovered at Luderitz Bay.

Won't Be Permitted to Starve

Chicago, June 27.—Mrs. Mary Hunter of Zion City, a member of the cult the teachings of which resulted in the death from starvation of Mrs. Louisa Thompson, is to be fed in spite of her determination to take no food for sixty days, if the command of Judge Jones is carried out. With the aid of two nurses, a physician made preparations to compel the woman to take nourishment after she had been placed under arrest and taken to the Waukegan hospital. Mrs. Hunter has already fasted for sixteen days.

Fireworks Caused Three Deaths

Philadelphia, June 27.—The coroner's jury which investigated the explosion in the hold of the Hamburg-American line steamship Arcadia, by which three stevedores were killed, returned a verdict that the explosion was caused by "knoll corks," a German fireworks novelty, and censured both the shipper and the steamship company. The theory that the explosion was caused by a bomb placed in the hold in Hamburg by dissatisfied dock laborers is thus dispelled.

Nothing New Anticipated

Washington, June 27.—The state department is marking time in the Venezuelan question. Events that have occurred have produced a situation that promises little change for some time, and this government is merely "awaiting the course of events." Senor Goiticoa, the Venezuelan charge at Washington, today took up his residence in the suburbs, where he will continue to be in close touch with the state department if necessary.

Heavy Fall Business Expected

New York, June 27.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says that midsummer quiet is augmented this year by the general contraction that has occurred in all departments of trade and industry, but splendid progress of the crops strengthens confidence in the future, and preparation for a large volume of fall business is gradually increasing the percentage of active machinery.

Receivers Ordered to Pay Up

Pittsburg, June 27.—Judge Young of the United States district court has directed the receivers of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company to pay $500,000 interest due on bonds and notes of the above company on July 1. Young also directed that on Aug. 1 the receivers pay $180,000 interest on a $6,000,000 loan of that company.

Shah Proclaims Amnesty

Teheran, June 27.—The shah will issue a decree Sunday dissolving parliament and ordering new elections for the assembly and senate, which he will open in state three months hence. A general amnesty has been proclaimed, and there is no longer any danger for the refugees in the legations.

NEWS IN BRIEF

In a collision between a freight train and a string of empty coal cars at Waterbury, Conn., one brakeman was killed and two seriously injured.

Former Governor Hill of Maine, who was taken ill at the national Republican convention at Chicago and forced to give up his seat, is reported as much improved.

Work on the new battleship Florida, to be constructed at the Brooklyn navy yard, probably will be begun the latter part of July.

Jack Langdon's Celebration.

A Story of Russia, Grand Dukes, Bombs and Fireworks.

By GERALD BRENAN.

"I don't care if he is a grand duke, he has spoiled my Fourth of July!"

And Jack Langdon shook his small brown fist after the retreating carriage of his excellency the governor of O.

Jack Langdon's father was one of the growing number of Americans who have taken up business in Russia. He owned the iron works of V. and was respected both by foreigners and natives throughout the province governed by the Grand Duke Alexis Alexandrovitch. Relying on this respect and the favor with which the authorities regarded him, Mr. Langdon had ventured to waylay the grand duke on one of his morning drives for the purpose of asking certain privileges. The reply of the governor was polite, but none the less decided. He said: "You ask, my dear M. Langdon, that your son be permitted to celebrate your national holiday, the Fourth of July, by the letting off of certain explosives. I regret to have to inform you that such methods of jubilation, while common in America, could not be allowed in Russia. Firecrackers and bombs are too closely related."

"But, surely," protested Mr. Langdon, "a tiny demonstration in honor of the birth of a friendly nation"—

The grand duke raised his hand deprecatingly.

"I cannot help it," he said, "but such is the law. Your son will have to forego his cannon crackers, I fear, this Fourth of July."

And then, signaling to his outriders, the governor drove on, leaving Mr. Langdon rather annoyed and little Jack very angry indeed.

"I think it's a shame," soliloquized Jack, stalking moodily away, "and if ever I get to be president of the United States I'll remember this to Russia."

Despite his father's remonstrances Jack refused to be consoled. It was his first Fourth away from home, and he yearned with a mighty yearning for the "bang-bang" of the patriotically exploded cracker. And the more he thought it over the more he hated the Russian government in general and the province of V. in particular.

Brooding over his rebuff, Jack sauntered along the roadway until he encountered the familiar telecque driven by Uncle Petronchka, a neighboring peasant, with whom he had picked up some sort of acquaintance. To Jack's surprise, Uncle Petronchka did not seem so friendly as usual. In fact, the old farmer acknowledged the boy's salute only by a gruff inclination of his head and shook his mare's rein to urge her to a faster pace.

"Hello!" exclaimed Jack. "What can be the matter with Uncle Petronchka? This is not fair day at V., so he cannot have taken too much vodka. I have done nothing to offend him, and I can't understand why he should act like this. Hello, Uncle Petronchka! What has happened to make you so grumpy?"

But Petronchka, answering only by a grunt, whipped up his shaggy mare, and the telecque disappeared round a corner.

Jack's curiosity was aroused, and for the nonce he forgot all about the governor's refusal to his petition. At this point the road took a sort of long loop so as to touch at a certain neighboring village, so that it was possible for Jack by cutting sharply across country to come out ahead of Petronchka's lumbering farm wagon two versts farther on. Across country went Jack, skimming the borders of the forest and encountering no living being until he once more leaped into the hard, white roadway on the opposite side of the loop.

EACH CARRIED UPON HIS BACK A HEAVY PACK.

"This is a great joke on Uncle Petronchka!" he cried. "How the old fellow will cross himself and wonder to see me here before him!"

Then it occurred to Jack to give the telecque driver a surprise, and, stepping into a little wood of pine and birch, he crouched down in the grass to await Petronchka's coming.

But the first wayfarers to pass along the quiet road came from the opposite direction—that in which Moscow lay. Peering out of his hiding place, Jack Langdon saw that these travelers were three in number, that they journeyed afoot and that each carried upon his back a heavy pack.

"This is the grove, Auton," said one of them as they came near the place where Jack lay. "I remember the trees. Let us set down our packs and wait for the peasant."

"Let them down lightly," cautioned another as he deposited his burden with extraordinary care on the soft, grassy bank. "Anything like a jar might send us all to the blessed land above"—

"Where there are no czars and no governor generals," added the third, with a little laugh. Then all three set down their packs and sat cautiously beside them.

"The peasant is late," said the last speaker after a pause. "I hope, Michael Dimitrovitch, that you have not scared him away."

"On the contrary," said the man addressed, "I think I have scared him hither. I told him frankly that unless he came the band would cut his throat as he slept."

"You did not let him suspect what the packs contain, I hope?" asked the one called Auton.

"Certainly not. He thinks we are simply smuggling rare Swiss clocks into V. The packs loaded into his telecque, he will return to the farmhouse. Tomorrow he has a license to haul a load of vegetables from the market garden of this Yankee mill owner, Langdon, into this city. He will carry the packs under his vegetables and deposit them unsuspected in the care of our good friend Feodor Michaelovitch, the tavern keeper. Once in Feodor's hands the rest is easy."

Michael Dimitrovitch slapped his knee joyously.

"Aha!" he said. "It is easy indeed—down the cellar stairs of Feodor's inn and thence through the mine to the palace vaults. Ho, ho! It will be a sad day for the grand duke, the Fourth of July. Those three little boxes of dynamite will blow the record chamber into atoms. All the incriminating documents will be destroyed—those documents which the grand duke has spent so many years gathering together. Perhaps even his excellency himself and a few of his officers may— But let us hope for the best!"

The other two nihilists laughed in chorus as their companion boasted of the coming destruction of the grand duke's record room, wherein so many manuscripts dangerous to the existence of their brotherhood were stored. As for Jack Langdon, young as he was, he could not help but understand the nature of the plot which had unraveled itself before him, and he shuddered involuntarily as he glanced at the three heavy packs, which he now knew to contain dynamite. All his bitter resentment against the grand duke was now forgotten, and, burrowing deeper into the deep grass, he waited developments, while pondering with all his might over some means of preventing the threatened outrage.

Presently along the road came the rumble of Uncle Petronchka's telecque. Jack saw the three conspirators lift up their packs and go to meet the old peasant. The perilous boxes were loaded into the wagon, he saw money change hands, and then Uncle Petronchka drove off toward his farm, while the three men passed the little wood once more, walking at a quick pace toward the north. Hardly were they out of sight than Jack sprang to his feet and set off along the road in the wake of Uncle Petronchka.

PETRONCHKA WAS HORRIFIED TO PERCEIVE THEREIN THE GRAND DUKE.

Late that night a score of police surrounded the farmhouse of the old farmer, dragged him out of bed and captured the packs of dynamite. Dragged by torchlight to the steps of a carriage near by, Petronchka was horrified to perceive therein the Grand Duke Alexis Alexandrovitch seated beside his little acquaintance, Jack Langdon. When he learned that what he thought were packages of smuggled clocks really contained deadly explosives, Petronchka broke down utterly and told the whole story, giving descriptions of the three conspirators, which afterward led to their capture, and completely verifying the account conveyed to the grand duke by little Jack Langdon.

Jack had saddled his own pony and ridden at full gallop into V., where he found the governor at a brilliant banquet. The news of a nihilistic conspiracy, however, secured him an audience, with the result that Petronchka's house was surrounded, the dynamite captured and the state records saved.

"And now, my little hero," said the governor when all was over, "what rewards can I confer upon you for your great service to Russia?"

Jack thought a moment and then answered, "First, I should like poor old Petronchka to get off, and, second, I want leave to explode firecrackers on the Fourth of July."

With an amused smile, the grand duke wrote the following order and handed it to the petitioner:

For the reason that Ivan Ivanovitch Langdon has placed the empire under an obligation it is hereby ordained—

First.—That the prisoner, Petronchka, be remanded indefinitely in the custody of the said Ivan Ivanovitch.

Second.—That the said Ivan Ivanovitch be permitted on the 4th day of July next ensuing to explode firecrackers and squibs in such quantities as he thinks fit in honor of his native country; and,

Third.—That the municipality of V. be ordered to supply the said Ivan Ivanovitch with one ton of the very best firecrackers, which its merchants can import across the frontier at the expense of the government.

Given under my hand and seal.

Governor.

The members of the Massachusetts Press Association and ladies, numbering nearly 100, leave today for Nantucket, where they intend to spend three days at this delightful summer resort. They will stop at Sea Cliff inn, one of the finest on the island, commanding a grand view of the ocean. This quaint old island will be theirs for three days, and George C. He is the recipient of much praise and congratulation from his many friends. Only recently he was signally honored by the President by designation as one of a small number of candidates for examination for entry into the embassy and consular service. He has also been tendered the principalship of a High school in a town in a neighboring state. Mr. Moir is, however, considering a position as supervisor of education in the Philippine Islands, it having been recently tendered to him by the government. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Moir, and a brother of Councilman Moir.

Trustees Records As to Libraian

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

In an article signed, "Citizen," contained in the Quincy Daily Ledger, issue of June 22, 1908, an Oliver Cromwell under the heading of, "One false note at public library," asks why the inscription "Assistant Librarian" is on the portrait of Miss Amelia L. Bumpus, which now hangs in the Quincy Public Library. In a second article published the day after the first appeared, among other things, it was said that many people had thought Miss Bumpus was officially the librarian. In a third article "Justice," a record is submitted, and on the strength of same the writer states the inscription in question is wrong and should for accuracy and for the credit of the present Board of Trustees be changed.

Among the 10,000 readers of the Quincy Daily Ledger there is no doubt a marked diversity of opinion as to whether or not Miss Bumpus was as a matter of fact librarian.

It has been claimed that upon the resignation of Miss Mary I. Brooks as librarian, Miss Bumpus succeeded her as librarian, but such was not the case. The position of librarian for good and sufficient reasons was abolished by the library trustees upon the resignation of Miss Brooks, and from that time until the present librarian was appointed, there was no such position in the Quincy Public Library as librarian, none having been appointed during that time at any meeting of the board of trustees.

The statement of facts herein contained is supported by the following extracts from the sixth annual report of the Trustees of the Public Library of the Town of Quincy. The report which is for the year 1876 says in part:

"The librarian, Miss Mary I. Brooks resigned her position, for reasons connected with her health, on the 1st of September last. During the year of her connection with the Library, she had accomplished a great deal toward its reorganization, and had succeeded in placing it on a footing which can be easily and economically maintained. Her resignation was a subject of much regret to the Trustees.

"For reasons connected with the finances of the institution, which will hereinafter be referred to, no successor to Miss Brooks, in the position of librarian, has been appointed. Miss Bumpus, the assistant librarian, has attended to the duties, so far as they are connected with the routine of the library, while the other and more complicated work connected with the catalogue, etc., has been allowed to run into arrears. For reasons which will be presently stated, the Trustees do not propose to appoint a new librarian at present."

The report then goes on and explains that for many reasons economy must be practised, and further says: "When, therefore, the librarian resigned, the position was not filled."

It can be seen quite clearly, that from the time that Miss Mary I. Brooks resigned, the position as librarian, up to the resignation of Miss Amelia L. Bumpus as assistant librarian, there was no such position as librarian in the Quincy Public Library, and therefore Miss Amelia L. Bumpus, nor any one else, could have a position which did not exist. consequently the inscription, "Assistant Librarian," is a correct one and should be allowed to stand.

Fair Play.

Honesty of Thought.

There is no more necessary attribute than honesty of thought. Nothing is more vital in our own thought; nothing is more needed in the world's thought today. To be able to face facts honestly, without fear or prejudice, and to be able to accept the logical deduction that comes from a consideration of the full facts is to be on the highroad to truth. How many there are who dodge some of the facts when considering others. How many there are who accept only a part of the logical conclusion. It is small wonder that the religious views of so many today are chaotic, when so many evidently lack this quality of honesty of thought.

Newsy Budget From Shipyard

The scout cruiser Salem left Nantasket Roads at 11 A. M. yesterday for her 24-hour run at 22-knot speed, and on her return today took on more coal for a four-hour run at 24 knot speed.

"I hope," says Rear Admiral Richard Wainwright, at the Seattle reception recently, "we have impressed the Pacific coast with the necessity for the establishment of the 'two ocean standard' two adequate fleets, one in the Atlantic and one in the Pacific, which prepared for war can compel peace; too wise for conquest, too strong for fear.

"With 16 battleships always ready ample time would be afforded for much needed battle drills. Target practice would be carried on as at present. With each fleet there should be a division of armored cruisers and one of scouts. With each squadron there should be a division of destroyers, a repair ship, an ammunition ship and a hospital ship. With each division a fleet collier and supply ships, according to circumstances.

Relative to the depression in shipbuilding, the Scotsman says: The tonage launched during May from Scottish shipyards reflects eloquently the condition of the trade. The Clyde total is 25 vessels of only 11,072 tons as compared with 30 vessels of 42,670 tons last month and 40 vessels of 62,246 in May, 1907. For the five months the Clyde total is 121 vessels of 114,826 as compared with 138 vessels of 242,392 tons in the corresponding period of last year—a decrease of 17 vessels of 127,566 tons.

Not for a number of years, says the Transcript, has the Charlestown Navy Yard been so short of work and had so few employees upon its payrolls as at the present time. One year ago there were about seven hundred more men enrolled than there are today. Announcement was made yesterday that the Boston yard has been designated by the Navy Department as the home yard for the Birmingham and Salem. This means that ordinarily those ships will come here for all their work. The third scout cruiser, Chester, is to make Brooklyn Navy Yard her repair station. The large orders for the North Dakota, which is building at Fore River, will help tremendously at the boat shop and the carpenter's shop. In all, the job on the North Dakota should amount to about $50,000. It is one of the largest of the kind ever received here. There are some of the fittings for which job orders cannot be issued just now, however, as they are being held up at Washington. Usually the yard has a chance to do considerable drydocking, but present indications are that the work in this line will be as quiet as in most others for the next few months.

Lafayette Statue.

The bronze statue of Lafayette, the gift of American school children to France, was placed on its pedestal in the Place du Louvre at Paris yesterday. All present united in pronouncing the statue a splendid artistic success. The ceremony will probably take place July 4. Lafayette was once a visitor to Quincy.

Hoar Memorial.

The memorial to the late Senator George Frisbee Hoar was dedicated at Worcester on Friday in the presence of 3,000 people. Gov. Guild, Lieut. Gov. Draper, Justice W. H. Moody, Senator Crane and Dr. Edward Everett Hale were among the guests.

Absolutely Pure

Not only for rich or fine food or for special times or service. Royal is equally valuable in the preparation of plain, substantial, every-day foods, for all occasions. It makes the food more tasty, nutritious and wholesome.

BETTER THAN SPANKING.

Spanking does not cure children of bed-wetting. There is a constitutional cause for this trouble. Mrs. M. Summers, Box W, Notre Dame, Ind., will send free to any mother her successful home treatment, with full instructions. Send no money, but write her today if your children trouble you in this way. Don't blame the child, the chances are it can't help it. This treatment also cures adults and aged people troubled with urine difficulties by day or night.

The Directors of the YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an Endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

The Secretary, TIMOTHY REED, Adams St Quincy or the Treasurer, RICHARD D. CHASE Savings Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

—There will be a partial eclipse of the sun on Sunday morning between 10 A. M. and 1 P. M. This is going to be only a partial eclipse, but it will be well worth watching at that. It is really a race between the sun and the moon. If our citizens could waft themselves off into space and get a good seat on some substantial grandstand, they would see a great and awe-inspiring spectacle. On to the two immense bodies, a thousand miles a minute, the moon a little behind but gaining steadily all the while. The background is black sky, studded with countless stars. Millions of years this journey has gone on and still they do not stop. They dare not; if they stopped but for a moment the mighty attraction of the sun would start them instantly on a course ending in fiery death.—Boston. Journal.

A REIGN OF TERROR

Shah of Persia Continues His Work of Violence

BOMBARDMENT OF TEHERAN

Populace Helped Troops Ransack Houses After They Had Been Stormed--Lives of Foreigners Not Altogether Safe--Air Is Pestilential

Berlin, June 25.—The Local Anzeiger's special dispatch from Teheran, dated Wednesday midnight, says:

"The bombardment here today lasted for an hour and a half. As was the case yesterday, bombs were thrown and the Cossack artillery brought up two guns and fired upon buildings at close range. The house of Zahir-Ed-Dewleh is in ruins, the interior being entirely demolished. Looters who entered the house, after the bombardment, smashed everything they could lay their hands on. Hundreds of windows in the European quarter were splintered, owing to the concussion resulting from the firing.

"The Persian soldiers were participants in the plundering and the storming of houses, the object of which in many cases was simply to give an excuse for looting. The soldiers were permitted to load their booty on the gun carriages and thus transport it to their camp.

Everywhere throughout the city today mobs were fighting over the plunder and the Cossacks had the hardest task to drive them out of the streets. Eventually the Cossacks succeeded in this, and toward evening, when quiet had been partially restored, the shah ordered the bazaars to reopen; otherwise they would be bombarded.

The heat here is terrific and the air pestilential. Many dead horses are still lying in front of the parliament building and probably the corpses of men are under the ruins.

A state of siege has been proclaimed. The situation is serious, for, although the people hitherto have respected Europeans, it is feared that lives of foreigners will not be safe for long. Doubtless further bombardments will occur soon. Many refugees have fled to the British legation, and the shah is indignant that the right of asylum has been accorded them there.

The bazaars were reopened and for a time everything was quiet. The Cossacks, however, soon began bombarding some of the grandees' residences, in which it was supposed opposition leaders had taken refuge. As usual, looting followed the bombardment, the populace helping the troops to ransack the houses.

A reign of terror prevails here, and it is not known how far the shah is prepared to go in the way of violence. He is now taking steps to prevent an increase of the occasional terroristic attacks on the Cossack patrols.

Sherman Much Improved

Cleveland, June 25.—James S. Sherman, Republican vice presidential candidate, who was taken ill here last Sunday with a passage of gallstones, is resting more comfortably. His physicians are of the opinion that the necessity for an immediate operation has been passed. However, they advised Sherman to have the trouble removed as soon as he shall get in his normal health. It is not expected that Sherman will be able to leave the hospital before next Sunday. He attended to his correspondence yesterday and sent a telegram of condolence to Mrs. Grover Cleveland.

Postponement of Conference

New Haven, June 25.—On account of the continued illness of Representative Sherman Mr. Taft has decided to postpone for one week the meeting of the sub-committee of the national committee which was appointed to meet him in conference to select a national chairman. The adjourned meeting will not be held until July 8 in Washington. "Mr. Sherman," said Taft, "is anxious to be present at the conference, and it seems likely now that he will not be physically able to be in Washington next Wednesday. It is desirable, therefore, that the conference be postponed."

Diplomatic Relations Severed

Washington, June 25.—Senor Velose-Goiticoa, the Venezuelan charge d'affaires in Washington, has not the remotest idea of demanding his passports as the outcome of the withdrawal of Jacob Sleeper, the American secretary and charge at Caracas. Sleeper is coming home by direction of the state department, and it is admitted in official circles that the act means a cessation of diplomatic relations with Venezuela.

Brave Woman Perished With Husband

New York, June 25.—Overcome by the heat as he was sitting on the edge of the barge Edgewood in the East river, Captain Aubert of the barge toppled over into the water. His wife plunged into the river in a brave attempt to rescue him, but both were drowned before aid could reach them.

Steamer Cut In Half

Valencia, June 25.—A Greek steamer, the Philinis, has been in collision with the British steamer Kylerea off Elviza, Balearic Isles. The Kylerea was cut in half and sank almost immediately. The crew was rescued.

UPRISING OF BANDITS

Take Full Possession of a Northern Mexican Town

OPENED DOORS OF PRISON

Looted In Every Direction While Whole Population Was Terrified—Report of Battle In Which Over Forty Men Were Killed

City of Mexico, June 27.—According to telegraphic advices received by Vice President Corral, one of the boldest bandit raids ever attempted in the history of Mexico was successfully carried out when the town of Viesca, in the northern part of Mexico, was assaulted and looted.

The bandits, numbering fifty, all well armed and mounted, swooped down upon the town without warning. A feeble resistance was made by the police of the place, but after three of them were killed and three mortally wounded, the marauders practically had things their own way.

They first proceeded to the jail, releasing all of the inmates, some of whom joined the robbers. The bandits next headed for the bank of Nueva Leon. They soon overpowered the employes there and robbed the bank of all the money they could get at. The sum is not stated in the official dispatches.

From there the robbers went to the government stamp office, looting it, and doing great damage to the postoffice. They then turned their attention to the express office, robbing it.

By this time the whole of the town's population was terrified. The bandits cut the telegraph wires and tore up some of the railroad track. However, before communication was interrupted, word was sent to the state capital of the assault. Governor Miguel Cardenas immediately reported the raid to the secretary of the interior here and dispatched local troops to the scene.

After imprisoning the municipal officers and further terrifying the inhabitants of the town, the bandits got word that troops were on the way to the scene. The bandits left and at Matamoros De La Guna they encountered the first detachment of troops. A lively fight ensued. The soldiers succeeded in capturing one of the bandits, but the remainder made their escape and are now in the wilds of the state of Durango, having crossed the border between Coahula and that state shortly after the battle.

In giving access to the official correspondence containing the above facts to The Associated Press correspondent, and in commenting on the happenings, Vice President Corral said:

"For over a score of years the republic of Mexico has been absolutely free from bandit raids or uprisings similar to the disgraceful affair which occurred at Viesca. For that reason we will mete out stern measures to these criminals in order that they and the world at large may know that the days of the bandit in this country have passed.

"From private information which I have received I am satisfied that most of the men concerned in the raid have spent terms in jail before. The men were trying to rescue some companions, former railroad employes, who had been imprisoned, and for that reason they first attacked the jail.

The president called a special session of the cabinet at which, it is said, conditions in the state of Coahula were dissen they first attacked the jail."

Texas Hears of Revolution

El Paso, Tex., June 27.—A special dispatch received here says a band of Mexican revolutionists attacked the town of Los Vacas, Mex., and some of the revolutionists are believed to have crossed into Texas. The Texas sheriff wired the governor, asking if he could arrest any fugitives coming into the state. The governor referred the matter to the attorney general, who held that the state officers could take no action, as the matter of political fugitives coming into the United States from foreign countries was a question for federal authorities to deal with.

The latest information says that about 25,000 shots were exchanged. The officers' quarters were burned and between forty and fifty killed on both sides. The troops' commandant was badly wounded. Another outbreak is expected, as the revolutionists have well armed cavalry.

All telegraph and telephone wires have been cut.

Little Ones Perish In Fire

THOMAS AIDS PIRATES.

Former Quaker Has Taken New Lease of Life Since Joining Team.

Roy Thomas has taken a new lease of life since joining the Pittsburg Nationals. Roy is now batting and fielding at a fast clip. If he can keep it up he is assured of a permanent berth in the outfield.

Thomas is called a veteran, and some even refer to him as a "has-been" because he played with the Phillies for eleven years, but it must be remembered that he never played with any other club, as he joined the Philadelphia Nationals at the close of his college career.

The change should make a big difference in Thomas' playing. The

ROY THOMAS, CENTER FIELDER OF THE PITTSBURG NATIONALS.

Philadelphia fans perhaps saw him so much that they sometimes failed to appreciate his great playing, and perhaps Thomas allowed himself to get into a rut. Going with the Pirates is like starting over again, and he will no doubt hustle to prove that he is worth the big salary Pittsburg had to assume to get him.

CINCINNATI'S FAST TEAM.

Manager Ganzel's Reds Making a Strong Fight For Pennant.

For the first time in many seasons the Cincinnati National league team is making a serious bid for the National league pennant. Under the management of John Ganzel, the former Yankee first baseman, the Reds jumped to the front last month—or as near the front as the Cubs would allow them to go—and have been up there or in the immediate vicinity ever since.

Some critics say that Ganzel is merely reaping the reward of the hard labor of Edward Hanlon in 1906-7 and that his team is going at a false speed. Be that as it may, the Reds are winning right along from the good teams. Their batting is the best of any team in the league.

The Reds' infield is a fine combination. Lobert is playing fine ball at third base, and Hulswitt, the old Quaker shortstop, is a good fielding shortstop, though not a heavy batter. Every one knows what a fine little ball player Miller Huggins is, and Ganzel always was a clever fielder on first base.

LEADERS OFF DAY

All the Gains Among Those With Less Than One Hundred Votes

None of the leaders in the Motor Boat voting contest make gains today but coupons were received for several of the candidates with less than 100 votes which shows that they are "in it" and have courage.

There are many rumors of new candidates entering the field next week, and they will place several trial orders which will obtain a good start.

Today the Daily Ledger offers additional prizes which will be a new incentive to work.

Blanks for placing trial orders for the Daily Ledger may be obtained at the office of publication, and will be mailed upon request. Each trial order gives a credit of 100 votes to your favorite candidate.

The standing of the candidates will be printed each day, all votes received previous to 9 A. M. being counted that day.

It is not necessary that candidates shall be members of a yacht club or any other club. Neither is the contest limited to men. Women as well as men may enter.

The prizes offered are valuable ones, there being others besides the motor boat which is offered as a first prize.

The standing today at 9 A. M. was:

Sherman Anti-Trust Law Is Criticised by Littlefield

BUSINESS MEN NOT WORRIED

"Predatory Rich" and Wealthy Malefactors Have No Fear of Facing a Prison Cell--Capital Exists That It May Provide For Excess of Labor

Chicago, June 27.—Congressman Littlefield of Maine, addressing lawyers and jurists at the closing session here of the annual meeting of the Illinois Bar association, made caustic criticism of the application of the Sherman anti-trust law. He declared that the law itself is indefinite, branded proposed amendments to the act as an attempt to infuse life into something lifeless, and closed with a veiled attack upon President Roosevelt.

After questioning the efficiency of the anti-trust law on the ground that it leaves too much to the discretion of juries as to the "reasonableness or unreasonableness of actions" which might restrain trade, he endeavored to show that no similar laws with indefinite provisos ever had or ever could be enforced. He said:

"Senator Lodge, in the Republican national convention, said that President Roosevelt had enforced the laws as he found them on the statute books. The Republican platform congratulates itself in enforcement of all the laws. In the light of cases I have cited to you, it would seem that proclamation and not performance constitutes enforcement of the law.

"The distinguished publicists think business men are very much disturbed for fear they are facing a prison cell for doing business under modern methods. I do not think that this apprehension has any reasonable foundation."

The speaker pointed out that but seven convictions had been secured under the Sherman law since Sept. 14, 1901, and continued: "It may be that the predatory rich are lurking in every corner and that malefactors of great wealth abound. If this be true and they have been going about 'seeking whom they may devour,' the extent to which the wicked have thus far gone unwhipped of justice borders upon the grotesque.

"The whole subject to which conspiracies in restraint of trade relate is an equation. On the one hand you have labor and on the other capital. You hear more of capital in association with restraint of trade than you do of labor, and then, again, little is said about a conspiracy tending to create a monopoly. After all, it is not a bad thing that capital exists that it may provide for the excess of labor."

Referring to the proposed amendment to the anti-trust law, Littlefield said:

"When it becomes necessary to give force to a law by that process, the act does not commend itself to my good judgment. The amendment is said to have the object of requiring all corporations or individuals who seek to get the benefit of its provisions to register themselves with the bureau of corporations, that they may have conferred upon them benefits and provisions that do not now exist under the law.

"I may say here that I am at all times opposed to placing in the hands of any advancement bureau the power to supervise and regulate the business of 87,000,000 of people. But the most serious legal objection is the fact that it would invalidate the penal character of the act. If this was invalidated there would not be enough of the act left for any extended discussion."

New York, June 27.—The members of the Olympic team sailed for England today on the steamship Philadelphia. The men were given a rousing send-off at the pier. Commissioner Bingham has granted sixty days' leave of absence to New York's three policemen who sailed with the American team.

Proposed Monument to Cleveland

Newark, N. J., June 27.—A movement has been started in Essex county, where Grover Cleveland was born, to raise a fund for a national monument to his memory. Within the next few days it is expected that a committee to take charge of the fund in New Jersey will be appointed.

Two Girls and a Youth Drowned

Mankato, Minn., June 27.—Miss Eva Ehler, aged 16; Miss Maud Worlds, aged 19, and Max Sues, aged 20, were drowned while bathing in the river here. Miss Ehler sank and Miss Worlds went to her rescue. She, too, went down, and Sues then dived for them. He did not come up.

The Observations In the Daily Walk

The next meeting of the City Council will be held Monday, July 6.

Stanley Churchill of Billings street is visiting his grandparents in Worcester.

The Atlantic Athlectic Association should enter a candidate in the Motor Boat contest.

The daily trips of the Floating Hospital will begin next Wednesday, July 1, to continue until Sept. 15.

It is currently reported that Chapins news stand in City Square may change proprieters the first of July.

The through street car service on the Nantasket line of the electric street cars went into effect this morning.

A race for boats of the cape cat class is being held this afternoon under the auspices of the Quincy Yacht club.

Miss Edna Smith of Whitwell street, a teacher of physical culture in California, arrived home last night for the summer.

The City Council Committee on Licences meet next Monday evening, and the Comittee on Public Buildings Tuesevening.

Dr. William Gallagher of Thayer Academy has returned from a Boston hospital and is convalescing from a serious operation.

Old boxes, barrels, etc., are being accumulated in all parts of the city for the bonfires that are to be lighted the "Night before the Fourth."

Administrations were granted on the estates of Ella A. Wood and Katherine M. Burke of Quincy at the Dedham session of the probate court this week.

Memorial service, under the aupices of Abigal Adams Circle No. 529 C. of F. of A., will be held in Clan McGregor hall, on Tuesday evening June 30 at 7.30.

Mr. DeWolfe of Newbury avenue has purchased the house owned by Mrs. Henry Kolseth on Walker street and is preparing for occupancy within the month.

There was a lawn party at the corner of Clive and Walker streets Friday afternoon. Part of the proceeds will be devoted to the Ward Six celebration on July 4th.

The conductors on the electrics for Nantasket are supplied with through tickets which will be sold on application for fifteen cents, a reduction of five cents from the regular fare.

The bonfire collectors were out at eleven o'clock Thursday night in Atlantic and were disturbing the peace with undue mirth and racket. It would have been a rare chance for police authority to have been exerted.

The Greenleaf private school closed on Wednesday with their usual program. Members of the older grades presented "The Marriage of Prince Flutterby," under the able direction of Mrs. A. Isabelle Davis.

But one voter in Quincy took advantage of the caucus law to change his political complexion. That one renounced the Democratic party and became enrolled under the Independence league banner. He did not change in time for the state caucuses, but is in time for the Municipal caucuses in November.

FLOODS HURT CROPS

The Prospects In Kansas Are Materially Changed

DAMAGE TO WHEAT BY RUST

Corn Badly Washed and Anticipated Big Yield of Potatoes Will Not Be Realized--Even Alfalfa Hurt by Excessive Moisture.

Topeka, June 25.—Floods have materially hurt crop prospects in Kansas. Within the last three weeks incessant rains and overflowing streams have done a great part toward devastation. It is impossible this early to figure the extent of the damage done to any accurate degree.

Perhaps first to be mentioned in the list of injuries to farm crops is that of wheat. Corn is not only washed out of the fields, but the continued wet weather ever above the line of approach by the rivers and creeks has kept the farmers from cultivating the plant for so long that weeds and grass have choked it. Oats have been hurt by rust and extreme moisture, and the Irish and sweet potato crops have been hard hit.

The damage to the wheat crop is by rust, and by keeping the farmers out of the fields at harvest time. Unless the rains cease soon the loss will be even greater, as at this time it is practically impossible to get harvesting machinery into the fields for cutting the grain. Something of the same will apply to the oats. Of this grain it is said 50 percent will be about the general state yield.

The great potato-growing stretches along the Kaw river have been greatly injured by the high water. The principal flood visited the Kaw valley and its watershed. Up to the time the high water swept down no better outlook for potato crops could have been possible. But the fields have been inundated, and where not reached by the streams direct, the tubers have suffered from the excessive precipitation and are beginning to rot.

Approximate estimates place the injury of the Irish potato crop at from 50 to 65 percent. For sweet potatoes no estimate has been made.

In all the cases of damage the season is so far advanced that there is little opportunity to recover what is lost by replanting. An exception exists in the case of corn. Many fields are being ploughed under and they will be planted either to early-maturing northern varieties of maize or quick-growing forage crops, such as Kaffir corn and the like.

Alfalfa has come to be a principal standby of the Kansas farmer, but this time the first crop of that has been badly hurt by moisture. Alfalfa is especially susceptible to moisture after being cut. Being a plant of rapid growth its first crop should be cut and taken off the ground the latter part of May or early in June, ordinarily. But the rains came this year, and in many cases there was no opportunity to mow the alfalfa. In other cases where it was cut and placed in cocks, those cocks were swept away by the flood waters.

Despite the discouraging outlook, in many counties there will be a large crop of wheat as a beginner. From some of these counties have gone out calls for harvest help. Business interests of the cities, towns and even villages are showing public spirit by aiding the farmers in any way possible.

Washington Hears of Siege

Washington, June 25.—It was learned at the Persian legation here that the city of Teheran has been placed in a state of siege by royal edict, but has detailed troops to safeguard the inhabitants against any further attacks by the political clubs.

Steamer Bumped Into Rock

New York, June 25.—Losing her course in a thick fog, steamer Chippewa, Charleston for Boston, ran on a submerged rock on the Long Island coast, just west of Montauk point. The Chippewa is a freighter and carried no passengers The sea rushed into the hole in the steamer's hull, extinguishing the fires and rendering the Chippewa helpless. She has a cargo of naval stores and lumber and is in no immediate danger, as the sea is smooth.

Dutch Claim Against Venezuela

The Hague, June 25.—Holland has made a claim against Venezuela for redress for the seizure of Dutch ships and mails.

A recent dispatch from Willemstad stated that two Dutch sloops were detained by a Venezuelan coast guard vessel on the high seas off La Vela de Coro, a seaport of Venezuela.

Fleet For North Scotland

London, June 25.—The Daily Express announces that the admiralty has decided next year to organize new divisions of the fleet to be stationed off north Scotland, with a view to guarding the northern entrance, thus botting up the North sea.

The Weather Forecast

Almanac, Friday, June 26.
Sun rises—4:09; sets—7:25.
Moon rises—2:38 a. m.

AMUSEMENTS.

Keith's Theatre.

No matter how warm it may be out of doors these summer days it is always comfortable in Keith's for the ventilating and cooling plan keeps the temperature at a point that makes life seem worth living. One of the biggest personal successes scored in New York the past season was made by Ralph C. Herz in "The Soul Kiss." At the close of the run of that production Mr. Herz went into vaudeville and again hit the popularity mark in the inner circle. He does what may be called a character monologue and is certain to please Keith-goers mightily.

Boston Theatre.

For the week of June 29th, Manager Morison of the Boston theatre, announces an attraction of unusual interest. It is the first production in Boston of a play that has been one of the greatest New York successes in recent years—or more properly a farce by Frank Wyatt. This farce ran for a year and a half in New York at the Madison Square theatre. The piece is English in its manufacture, the story, a most ingenuious one, telling the adventures of a young husband who has been detained away from home all night by being caught in a broken Ferris wheel, and who on being compelled to "fib" to his wife, got into a tangle of lies which involved every one in a certain part of London.

Paragon Park.

Lincoln Beachey, the man who carried off the first prize in the International Contest for Dirigibles at St. Louis, last October, is now one of the free attractions at All New Paragon "The Park De Luxe" at Nantasket Beach. Beachey has brought with him to Paragon Park, two Strobel dirigible airships, one of the identical machines in which he rode to victory at St. Louis. Weather permitting he will give exhibition flights every afternoon at 5.30 and once during his limit-engagement at the Park he will fly 29 miles over the waters of Boston harbor to the city of Boston and return to Nantasket, making the longest trip over water ever attempted in an airship. Oscar Lowande's Old-Style One Ring circus is delighting everyone with a first class show. Alligator Joe's 600 alligators and crocodiles are most interesting and all of the other big shows are thoroughly first class. Of course the Palm Garden is the big attraction and the new chef, Hermann Hottinger, has won the admiration of all who have tried the cuisine. The Palm Garden is without doubt the very finest beach restaurant on the New England coast.

CRUISERS TO RACE
Salem, Chester And Birmingham To Have Struggle For Supremacy

No warship built at the Fore River shipyard has so successfully met all requirements as the scout cruiser Salem. She will have one more test today or tomorrow and will then return to Quincy.

The severest test of all, however, will be the race with the Chester and Birmingham, which will probably take place early in July, soon after the government accepts the Salem.

The Boston Journal says, What promises to be the greatest race in the history of the United State navy will take place off the New England coast within two weeks, when the three newest and fastest cruisers in the navy, the sister ships Salem, Chester and Birmingham, will be pitted against each other in a titanic struggle for supremacy.

Although it was stated at the Navy Yard yesterday that the race was to be held in order to determine the comparative efficiency between reciprocating and turbine engines, it is expected to be one of the most novel and sensational races ever witnessed between speedy war vessels. At the yard it was stated that the exact date of the race had not been set by the navy department, but that it would occur, in all probability, next week.

The scout cruiser Biringham arrived yesterday from Guantanamo. The Salem is at present off Provincetown, where she is to have her government acceptance tests. The Chester it at Portsmouth. The race will also determine the relative merits of the Parsons and Curtis types of turgine engines. A board of naval officers will be appointed to conduct the trials of the cruisers.

Almost identical in size and design and built for great speed, the three ocean greyhounds are the finest of their type in the world. The Chester was built by the Bath Shipbuilding company, while the other two were constructed at Quincy in the yards of the Fore River Shipbuilding company. The three ships differ in their motive power. It is to test the merits of these differing types of engines, under the same weather and tide conditions, that they will be raced.

On the recommendation of the engineer-in-chief of the navy the two different types of turbines and the reciprocating engines were installed in order that the availability of the turbine engines for navy use might be demonstrated.

In accordance with this recommendation, the Salem was equipped with Curtis turbines, which have two screws, while the Chester and Parsons turbines, which have four screws. The Birmingham has two sets of four-cylinder triple-expansion engines and two screws. The Chester and Birmingham have already been provisionally accepted by the navy and are now in commission.

The efficiency tests will be made under conditions as nearly equal for the ships as can be obtained. The program includes a series of runs, during which all three cruisers will have equal weather and sea conditions. Picked coal of the same quality will be furnished all three vessels. The amount of coal used in each ship will be about the same, so that it will be possible to determine which style of engine will allow the greatest steaming radius.

For some time there has been much difference of opinion as to the comparative merits of the turbine and reciprocating engines. To send the different ships over the same course at different times would leave a chance for the old cry of difference in tide or weather conditions, so it has been decided to send the trio over the same course together.

Although the plans for the big race are being kept very quiet, it is known that it is intended to bring the three fliers down to a starting line together and send them over the prescribed route with orders to use every ounce of power to get to the finish first.

The contract speed of the three ships is twenty-four knots. The Chester holds the world's record for ships of her type of engines, having made an average of 26.52 knots in her trials. While the scene of the race has not been definitely chosen, it probably will be the measured course off Rockland, Me.

Thirtieth Wedding Anniversary

The thirtieth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Albert W. Fay of Newport avenue was celebrated in a merry way at their farm in Sherborn on Saturday. It was an all-day affair. A bountiful dinner was served at noon, and a delicious supper before the return of their guests to Wollaston.

A large crayon portrait of Mr. Fay was given them and the ladies gave Mrs. Fay a large exquisite centerpiece of Russian hand work.

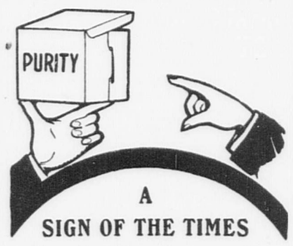

The uncrating of a box which contained a real live green and red hen and a small bantam rooster of many hues reated much amusement, and the lengthy pedigree read by Mr. Cole will always be appreciated by such a fancier of fowl as Mr. Fay.

The testing out of the gunning stand in the afternoon was as follows: Mr. Morgan was high gunner, Mr. Cole second, Mr. Boyce third, Mr. A. W. Fay fourth.

The guests were Mr. and Mrs. Enoch S. Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. John Morgan, Mr. and Mrs. George L. Cole, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Boyce, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Whitehead, Mr. and Mrs. Waldo B. Fay, Mrs. Mary Zoller, Miss Carrie Moore and George Perkins.

FETE AT WOLLASTON
Lawn Party Of Unitarian Sunday School Interested Many

The lawn party at Wollaston on Saturday afternoon and evening proved to be, as advertised, the event of the year. Indeed, the "oldest inhabitant" failed to remember an occasion so enjoyable and successful. The affair planned by the Sunday school of the Wollaston Unitarian Society developed into a fete participated in by practically all the people, young and old, of the community. Winthrop avenue between Warren and South Central avenues was the scene of the party and on both sides of the avenue the hospitable residents kept open house. Messrs. Frank A. Page, E. J. Cummings, Frank E. White, Arthur Russell, H. F. McLean, William E. Rowe, and A. B. Hillman vied with each other in contributing to the enjoyment of the occasion.

The program of the day commenced with sports and games, which furnished many close contests and laughable incidents, resulting as follows:

50 yard girls race,—Margaret Johnson first; Priscilla Robinson second.

50 yard boys' race,—Robert Hamlin first; Gilbert Hamlin second.

Potato race for boys,—Horton Page first; Lincoln Crosscup second.

Potato race for girls,—Katherine Follett first; Priscilla Robinson second.

Sack race for boys,—Gilbert Hamlin first; Horton Page second.

Sack race of girls,—Margaret Johnson first; Theodosia Park second.

Shoe lacing race for boys,—Robert Hamlin first; Gilbert Hamlin second.

Shoe lacing race for girls,—Margaret Johnson first; Anna Weston second.

Married men's wheelbarrow race,—Mr. Harding first, Dr. Adams second.

Tug of war, married men vs. single —Single men winners.

Single men's wheelbarrow race,—Mr. Harry Hooper first; Mr. Philip Bunker second.

Fat man's race,—Mr. Carr first; Mr. Staret second. Mr. Thompson also ran.

100 yard race,—Lucien Thayer first; Harry Campbell second; Philip Bunker third.

Sydney F. Copeland challenged the married men to a standing jump contest, and won with Mr. Leslie L. Cleveland a close second.

At the close of the athletic contests thirty-two dainty dressed little girls danced and sang prettily round the May pole, under the direction of Miss Fanny L. Johnson, Miss Evelyn Cummings and Miss Persis Thompson.

From six to eight supper was served on the grounds about the Cummings residence, a plentiful menu being provided. Ice cream and cake were served on the lawn in front of Mr. and Mrs. White's residence, and the girls at the lemonade, punch and candy tables on the Russell and MacLean lawns were kept busy dispensing their refreshing beverages and toothsome delicacies.

Promptly at eight o'clock myriads of electric lights added their brillancy to the softer light of hundreds of Japanese lanterns that had been lighted earlier in the evening, and an electric search light, with constantly changing colors swept across the grounds. A very pretty picture indeed was presented as the ladies and girls in their pretty summer costumes strolled with their escorts about the lawns.

The Cafe' Chantant was the feature of the evening. Miss Winifred White sang two charming solos acompanied by Mrs. Page, Wallace Bennett swung Indian clubs, and the Italian orchestra rendered popular and classical selections.

Dancing was enjoyed by many at the Page residence during the evening.

Personally conducted automobile parties were given short rides by Dr. Adams, Mr. Hillman and Mr. Bainbridge. The whole affair reflects credit upon the several committees in charge as a high standard of excellence was maintained from beginning to end. There was not a dull moment, apparently for any one at the party.

Houghs Neck By the Seaside

Hundreds went in bathing at Houghs Neck on Sunday to escape the terrific heat. Quincy bay was filled with crafts of all description. The broad verandas of the Quincy Yacht club was crowded all day with members and their guests. The boat from Houghs Neck to Nantasket Point was crowded from early morn to late at night. The moving picture houses that were opened made small fortunes.

Joseph Mulford was the guest of the Kelleys on Bay View avenue.

Tonight is the night for the grand dancing party of the Houghs Neck Asscciates. Preparations have been made to handle a large crowd. Nearly every member of the associates have signified their intentions to be present with their friends. Harry Brown has given the use of his hall also the orchestra free gratis and the full receipts will be turned into the building fund. The committee in charge expect to realize a good sum. The usual evening prices will prevail. It is up to everyone interested in the welfare and advancement of Houghs Neck to be present. With a home of their own and a place to meet regularly the associates will be able to do considerable more work. A. F. Baird, chairman of the ways and means committee, will be pleased to hear any good suggestion to raise money for this fund. Remember every nickel counts.

Dancing at Pandora Hall every afternoon. 6t

It is noticeable the increase in motor boats over sailing boats. The Daily Ledger is offering a fine motor boat for the first prize in the popularity contest. It's never too late to start. Begin today.

Many Houghs Neck people bought land at the auction sale at Adams shore on Saturday.

Mrs. Dean and daughter Lillian of Roslindale were the guests of Mrs. Mary J. Brown on Sunday.

The Galvins of Bell street entertained a few friends from Dorchester Sunday afternoon.

Miss Frances Avery is singing at the Sea Street Dream this week. Miss Avery has an unusually sweet voice and has made a decided hit with the people of the Neck.

The services were very largely attended many of his neighbors and business associates being present in addition to representatives of the city government and members of the organizations with which he was affiliated.

The services were of a simple nature, in conformity with a wish of the family, and were conducted by Rev. Ellery C. Butler of the First church.

There were many beautiful floral pieces which surrounded the casket containing the remains. The burial was at Mt. Wollaston cemetery.

Damon—Sproule.

Only the families and immediate friends attended on Saturday the wedding of Miss Lillian Pearl Sproule of Hyde Park and Mr. Ralph Porter Damon, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elias Sproule of River street of Hyde Park. Mr. and Mrs. Damon left that evening by the outside route for New York. Their future home will be at 97 Mill street, Quincy.

The advance guard of the state delegations are here or on their way and there will be an ever-increasing activity until the curtain has been rung down on the final scene of the Democratic national convention.

The Bryan men are highly pleased with the ease with which Theodore Bell of California was named temporary chairman. There were reports before Bell had been selected that a fight was to be made on him by Chairman Taggart of the national committee and Roger Sullivan, the national committeeman from Illinois, but the promised struggle did not materialize. This fact was taken by the Bryan men to mean that all opposition to the wishes of their leader will be of only comparatively slight influence throughout the convention. They are now counting confidently on the selection of Henry D. Clayton of Alabama for permanent chairman.

No particular opposition has been made to Clayton. Other names have been mentioned, but none from the south save that of Senator Bailey of Texas, and it seems to be practically certain that he will not be able to attend the convention because of ill-health. It is known that Mr. Bryan desires a permanent chairman from the south, and the Bryan men believe that with Senator Bailey eliminated no other man than Clayton will be considered.

Very little talk has so far been heard concerning the platform, but it is generally believed among the recognized leaders now here that the fight over the "injunction" plank in the Republican resolutions committee may find a parallel when the Democratic platform-builders are fairly at work. It is generally understood that in the event of the Bryan people securing control of the resolutions committee the declaration of principles will follow closely the planks of the "Lincoln platform."

The vice presidential situation, from the present outlook, offers the greatest encouragement to that class of delegates which is looking always for excitement at a political convention. Unless the nominee for the first place on the ticket should demand of his friends the selection of a running mate on whom he may have set his heart, the indications would seem to point to numerous ballots in the completion of a ticket. Democratic leaders now here are looking forward to a scramble over the vice presidency, particularly if a nomination for the presidency is made on the first ballot.

A well-fought contest to the finish over any question which interests the delegates, it is asserted, engenders good feeling and harmony. The disposition of the party leaders, therefore, is to invite, rather than discourage, prominent Democrats to enter the race for second place on the national ticket.

The present prospects are that there will be no dearth of candidates for the vice presidential nomination. Some of the names now heard are those of men who have said they do not desire or would not take second place. They will have warm friends in the convention, nevertheless, who are likely to make friends for them if Bryan should be named and fail to voice his preference for a running mate.

Among these are Governor Johnson of Minnesota and Judge Gray of Delaware, both of whom will figure in the ballot for the presidential nomination. That both of these men would prefer not to be thought of in connection with the vice presidency and, in fact, might go so far as to positively decline in advance to qualify if nominated, apparently has failed to eliminate them from the list of possibilities.

The names of five New York men are looming up conspicuously in the preconvention gossip over the vice presidential situation. These are M. J. O'Brien, former chief justice of the New York supreme court; Herman L. Metz, city comptroller of Brooklyn; C. A. Towne, former representative; Lewis S. Chanler, lieutenant governor, and Representative Harrison.

The two latter are young men and have been successful in politics. Mr. Towne, formerly of Minnesota, has made a reputation as a strong campaigner. O'Brien is an intimate friend of Alton B. Parker, who made the race for the presidency on the Democratic ticket four years ago. It is being argued in favor of O'Brien that he could bring eastern Democrats into the Bryan camp.

The same claim is being made in behalf of former Governor Douglas of Massachusetts as for Judge O'Brien. Douglas is a manufacturer who enjoys the confidence of business men in the east. Another eastern candidate is Archibald McNeill of Bridgeport, Conn., who comes also from the ranks of business men.

Another entry was made in the list of vice presidential candidates yesterday, headquarters having been opened for Jerry Sullivan of Iowa, who was twice Democratic candidate for governor of his state.

Chairman Taggart has announced to his colleagues that if an Indiana man is placed on the ticket his state will go Democratic in November. He is pushing the candidacy of John W. Kern. Another man from Indiana mentioned in connection with the place is Benjamin F. Shively. Before a majority of delegates arrive in Denver it may be expected that many other candidates will be suggested.

Douglas Does Not Want Office

Monument Beach, Mass., June 29.—Former Governor Douglas, when seen at his summer home here and shown a copy of the dispatch which mentioned him as one of the possible candidates for the Democratic nomination for the vice presidency, said:

"I am not a candidate for the Democratic nomination for vice president. As I said when I returned from the south on April 4, I am not a candidate for any public office. Nothing has occurred to make me change my mind. I am out of politics altogether now."

Many Callers at Bryan Farm

Lincoln, Neb., June 29.—The Bryan country home yesterday drew the largest crowd since the pilgrimage to Lincoln began. One of Bryan's visitors, who was with him a considerable time, was Willis J. Abbott of the Democratic national committee press bureau. Abbott, after his visit to Fairview, said he believed the vice presidential race was an entirely open one.

Patterson Ahead of Carmack

Memphis, June 29.—Returns from the Democratic primary election in this state indicate the certain nomination of Governor Patterson for governor over Edward C. Carmack. Former Senator Carmack favored state-wide prohibition and Patterson was for local option.

Sold Liquor to Girls

Pittsburg, June 29.—Strong efforts are being made to have revoked the liquor licenses of five cafes in the down-town section, several of them among the largest and most prominent in the city. The movement is the outgrowth of a recent crusade in which women temperance workers, under escort of plain clothes policemen, visited the cafes in search of young girls being served drinks. Upon the evidence of these crusaders the proprietors of the five places were arrested and are under bond for trial.

Relieved of Surplus Flesh

Mount Clemens, Mich., June 29.—Colonel W. F. Tucker, assistant paymaster in the United States army, department of the lakes, underwent a serious surgical operation here yesterday. Tucker, who is a very heavy man, was relieved of about eighty pounds of weight by the operation, which the doctors say was to "equalize the portal circulation through the liver." His condition is reported as favorable.

Treasury Department's Big Deficit

Washington, June 29.—The forthcoming statement of the treasury receipts and expenditures for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1908, will show a marked falling off in the receipts as compared with the year 1907 and a large increase in the expenditures. The excess of expenditures over receipts for the year will approximate $60,000,000, which has been exceeded only twice since the Civil war.

Wreckage Blocks Railroad Traffic

Binghamton, N. Y., June 29.—A car about the middle of a freight train was derailed at 5:30 o'clock Sunday morning in a deep cut about two miles east of Sidney, and the track has been blocked since. The road is single-tracked and it has been difficult for wreckers to get at the wreck to clear it away. Brakeman Adams was caught in the wreckage and probably fatally injured.

Bomb Explosion Created Panic

Barcelona, June 29.—A policeman who was injured in a bomb explosion in one of the lavatories of a public square died of his wounds. Nine persons have been arrested for alleged participation in the outrage, which occurred while a procession was passing and created a panic among the great crowds which lined the streets.

Assembling For Long Voyage

San Francisco, June 29.—Twelve of the sixteen battleships of the Atlantic fleet, which is to start on July 7 on the voyage from San Francisco to Hampton Roads, are now in San Francisco harbor. The other four are expected to arrive from northern waters during this week.

Five Coaches Turned Over

Tottenham, Ont., June 29.—An express train was ditched two miles east of here at midnight. Five coaches were thrown down an embankment, turning completely over. Two women were fatally injured. About fifteen other passengers received broken arms or legs.

Root In Muldoon's Hands

New York, June 29.—Secretary of State Elihu Root is at William Muldoon's health institution at White Plains again. He went there on Saturday because he and his physician decided a short course of Muldoon's curriculum each year would be a good thing.

WANTS A JURY TRIAL

How Thaw Would Have Question of Sanity Settled

HE GIVES OUT A STATEMENT

Says Testimony of Doctor at Matteawan Was Contrary to What Had Been Expected--"Proof" That His Condition Is Normal In Every Way

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 29.—Harry K. Thaw left Poughkeepsie this morning in the custody of Under-Sheriff John Townsend, who will produce him in the supreme court at White Plains in obedience to a writ of habeas corpus issued Friday. Thaw was accompanied by his new attorney, Charles Morschauser, who will ask Judge Mills to grant a jury trial and to order him detained in any other place other than the Matteawan asylum until the question of his sanity has been adjudicated by a jury.

As the question of Thaw's right to a jury trial was not raised in the first habeas corpus proceedings before Justice Morschauser, who decided that Thaw was insane and ordered him recommitted to Matteawan, it leaves a new issue to be presented to Judge Mills and one on which Thaw and his counsel hope to be successful, although they anticipate vigorous opposition from District Attorney Jerome. Thaw gave out the following statement:

"Before the last writ was served we knew from our alienists that my sanity was perfect and therefore made no adequate preparation for the hearing before Judge Morschauser. The doctor at Matteawan told my lawyers and me and told Dr. Pilgrim the middle of April, after I had been there ten weeks, that he and Dr. Lamb had watched me carefully, and that they were positive that I had not the slightest symptom of paranoia. After what he had stated to all these gentlemen we were not prepared for the way he testified.

"There was a general feeling that the present question was connected with my trials, whereas it is simply whether I am not in my right mind. All the doctors who have seen and examined me have no doubt of my sanity whatever, except Dr. Baker.

"My counsel wish to present the case carefully and they have no doubt whatever as to the result. They do not wish me to return to Matteawan, nor do I. After the confinement to which I have been subjected the association with criminal lunatics might ruin my health.

"The fact that I am very well mentally and physically, after two long trials and nineteen months in the Tombs and three months at Matteawan, in itself practically proves that my condition is normal in every way."

Suicide In a Big Crowd

Philadelphia, June 29.—A well-dressed man about 30 years old, supposed to be Joseph Weintrob of Jersey City, elbowed his way to and fro among two thousand or more persons who were listening to the Sunday evening band concert in Fairmont Park and finally, pausing before the band stand, tossed his cap over the crowd to attract attention. He drew a handkerchief from his pocket, waved it above his head and, putting a vial to his lips, swallowed carbolic acid. He died within a short time.

Revolutionists Sentenced

Cettinje, June 29.—The trial of thirty-six prisoners, charged with revolutionary activity in connection with the discovery of bombs here and which involved Crown Prince George of Servia in a conspiracy against Montenegro, resulted in six of the accused being condemned to death, three to life imprisonment, and twenty-seven, including five former cabinet ministers, to terms of imprisonment ranging from six to twenty years.

Sees Danger In "Yankee Colony"

Valparaiso, June 29.—Augusto Durand, leader in the recent unsuccessful revolution against Peru, has arrived here. He says that the last elections in that country were falsified and that the government is introducing into Peru a germ of the greatest danger by converting that country into a Yankee colony.

Depleting Usurper's Forces

Morocco City, June 29.—The El Mtougui tribesmen, following up their advantage of June 21, when they attacked and routed a column of Mulai Hafid's forces, killing 100 of them and wounding 150, has again defeated the followers of the usurping sultan, killing three of his chiefs.

Woman Burned Herself Alive

Norfolk, June 29.—Camelia Sansone, wife of Mireno Sansone, an Italian, committed suicide here by pouring gasolene over herself and igniting with a match her saturated clothing. The woman rushed from her home and was burned to death before the flames could be extinguished.

Clergyman Ground to Death

New York, June 29.—Rev. Brother Casimir, well known as an educator in the Order of St. Francis, was ground to death under a trolley car in Brooklyn. While trying to catch his hat, which had blown from his head, Casimir fell into the street and rolled under the car.

TORREON IN DANGER

Rich City May Furnish Great Pickings For Rebels

AMERICANS READY TO FLEE

Mexican Government Is Hurrying Troops to Northern Cities--Further Indications of a Widespread Revolutionary Movement

El Paso, Tex., June 29.—Fifteen hundred troops have arrived in Torreon to protect that city from the expected attack by revolutionists, and the Americans are preparing to send their families to the states for safety.

It is reported that the revolutionists have attacked the village of Matamoras, about fifteen miles from Torreon, and have occupied that town.

Torreon owes its wealth and position chiefly to the expenditures of capitalists from the United States. There are immense American enterprises there, and if the city should be pillaged the blow will be felt in some of the leading financial certres of the United States.

Much uneasiness is felt throughout northern Mexico. Torreon is one of the richest cities in the state of Coahuila and a ripe plum for pillage. A reign of terror exists over the prospect of a momentary attack. Many families are hiding their valuables, and those who can do so are deserting the city, fearful that bloodshed may accompany the raid for booty.

Official advices relative to sending troops to Torreon say that with the forces stationed the town is "now impregnable."

In Chihuahua there is considerable alarm among the citizens, and guards numbering from twenty to twenty-five soldiers in a single patrol are continuously passing through the streets. A large number of extra police have been sworn in to do guard duty. Both jails of Chihuahua are protected by reinforced guards and troops are stationed on the roofs of public buildings.

The officers in command of the troops at Chihuahua have been quartered with their men in readiness to respond to an emergency.

Two hundred men of the Mexican infantry arrived last night in Juarez, across the river from here, and will be distributed in the vicinity of that town. These reinforcements make an aggregate of 500 soldiers stationed at Juarez. Guards are maintained around the jail and public buildings at Juarez, and the arrival of reinforcements is probably responsible for a rumor that the Juarez officials are informed of a plan to attack the city.

Governor Cardeleas of Coahuila has telegraphed the government of Durango, notifying him that a number of the men responsible for recent disturbances in his state have fled to Durango, and requesting all possible assistance in apprehending the fugitives.

Three battalions of regulars sent by the federal government to Viesca arrived last night.

Information brought here by passengers on the incoming Mexican Central train is that all bridges and approaches to Torreon on every road except the Mexican Central have been burned.

The International line out of Torreon, on which is located Matamoras, reported to be in the hands of revolutionists, has suffered heavily, and the Coahuila and Pacific railway is entirely tied up as the result of depredations committed by revolutionists.

There is a general movement of troops from Mexico to the north and reinforcements are being rushed to Jimenez, which is said to be still in the hands of the revolutionists.

Close Watch on Our Border

Washington, June 29.—The state department received a telegram from Governor Campbell of Texas, assuring the federal government that the state of Texas will do all in her power to prevent violation of the neutrality laws as a result of the reported revolution in northern Mexico. Las Vacas, which was attacked on Thursday, is directly opposite Del Rio, Tex. Accordingly, a message was sent to the governor of Texas, asking that he use every means to prevent any violation of the neutrality laws of the United States in connection with the disturbances along the Mexican-Texas border. The Mexican government had requested this government to take such precautionary measures.

Telephone Wires Cut

San Antonio, Tex., June 29.—Officers at Fort Sam Houston are kept posted on progress of the so-called revolution in northern Mexico, but have received no orders to make preparations to march to the border. The rioters, numbering about 200, cut the telephone wires and tore up the rails of the railroad between Viesca and Torreon.

Ordered Back to Washington

Mexico City, June 29.—Ambassador Creel, who had been granted a long vacation, was last night instructed to proceed to Washington at once.

Family Stricken by Fire

Milwaukee, June 29.—The family of Julius Krueger, a laborer, was practically wiped out by fire which brought death to the mother and three children. The father and a son escaped, but were so badly burned that they may not recover.

PUT COMMON IN PANIC

Dog Escaped Pursuing Crowd After Biting Man In Hand

Boston, June 29.—For a few minutes about noon yesterday pleasure seekers on the common were thrown into a panic when a large dog, snarling and growling, came dashing towards them from the direction of Beacon hill.

Shrieking with terror, mothers snatched up children and fled, while a group of boys plunged into the Frog pond to escape the dog. Alarmed by the tumult, a number of men charged on the dog with sticks and stones.

Pursued for some distance the dog finally retreated to the pumping station and then charged on and bit Joseph Rosse, a former animal trainer, on the hand. Although the beast was almost knocked senseless, it managed to wheel about and escape.

Rosse, who is 63 years old, was taken to the relief station and his wound cauterized.

When last seen the dog was dashing down Beacon towards Charles street, and the police were notified to shoot it on sight.

Energetic Worker Transferred

Boston, June 29.—Colonel William Evans has closed five years of energetic and profitable work in the cause of the Salvation Army in Boston. He will leave the city tomorrow to take up the new duties incident to his transfer to the command of the divisions of Ohio and Kentucky. The cause of the army has received a strong impetus since Evans came to Boston and the organization was never in better standing and repute in the city.

Boom Hits New Hampshire Town

Milford, N. H., June 29.—At the plant of the McLane Manufacturing company, where postoffice boxes and outfits are built, it has been found necessary to run the works until 9 o'clock every night. The same situation prevails at the tanning plant, where it has been found impossible to secure help enough in this vicinity. The Ehrman Manufacturing company has doubled its help to meet the demand for campaign buttons.

New Labor Organization

Boston, June 29.—The secession of the Boston and Maine system divisions from the International Brotherhood of Railroad Employes became a fixed fact when the Boston and Maine men's board of arbitration and adjustment met here and elected officers. A name for the new organization has not yet been selected. The secession is a result of dissatisfaction with the acts of the officials of the international brotherhood.

Big Fire In Oilcloth Factory

Winthrop, Me., June 29.—By the spontaneous combustion of naphtha, the oilcloth factory of the Wadsworth & Woodman Manufacturing company was partially destroyed by fire. The loss will amount to over $40,000. All the goods in process of manufacture were burned, together with a lot of valuable machinery.

Insane Man Hangs Himself

Worcester, Mass., June 29.—The body of Edward J. Ryan, aged 49, who ran away from the Worcester insane hospital at Bloomingdale, was found hanging by the neck from a tree in some woods near the institution. Ryan was committed in January, 1906, and worked about the kitchen in the institution.

McLean Makes New Bike Record

Boston, June 29.—In a bicycle race at Revere a record was established for a quarter century behind a two-cylinder pacing machine by Hugh McLean, who defeated James Moran in a match race, his time being 37 minutes, 6 1-5 seconds for the twenty-five miles. McLean led throughout the race.

Victim of Grass Fire

Wakefield, Mass., June 29.—Her skirts catching fire from flaming grass, Mrs. Thomas Staples of this town was burned to death at her husband's summer camp in North Reading. Staples was severely burned and otherwise injured in his efforts to rescue his wife. Mrs. Staples was 40 years old.

Strain Too Much For Griswold

Thousand Islands, N. Y., June 29.—Dwight T. Griswold, the Yale stroke, whose collapse last Thursday was followed by an easy victory for the Harvard crew, is ill on Deer island, Alexandria bay. ### Train Wreck Created Havoc Buffalo, June 29.—A fast passenger train crashed into the rear end of a freight near here and three employes were injured. No passengers were aboard the train. The locomotive ploughed through two loaded cars of freight and then turned turtle. Engineer Barker was horribly scalded and will probably die. Fireman Chamberlain jumped and got a fractured skull. The locomotive was demolished and one passenger coach was telescoped. Two carloads of lumber were spilled into the air and the flying boards stripped the telegraph wires from the poles.

Gloomy Picture of Persian Situation

London, June 29.—A dispatch to The Times from Teheran says that general uncertainty exists and that the feeling of insecurity is increasing. The people are driven to despair, and the half-famished soldiers, eager for loot, commit flagrant acts of violence and plunder. Meanwhile the royal camp is increasing in strength and is said now to number 10,000 men. The shah seems to have no program for the future administration of the country.

The State of Maine club held its annual outing at Nantasket on Saturday. The party some 65 in number left City Square at 2.40 in a special car which took them directly to Nantasket Point. There a Rhode Island clambake was partaken of, after which the party enjoyed themselves as each individual saw fit until 7 o'clock, when all visited Paragon Park. The remainder of the evening was spent there. The special car landed them back in Quincy at a season able hour.

Makaria Outing.

The Makaria Fraternity had a most enjoyable outing on Saturday evening when 65 young ladies and gentlemen took a trolley ride to Nantasket beach. There was plenty of fruit and confectionery to make the trip both ways pleasant. At Nantasket they enjoyed the beach, and also had passes to Paragon park, and took in the shows. They reached Quincy on the return before midnight.

Bethany Picnic.

The picnic of Bethany Bible school on Saturday was a grand success. Three electric cars were necessary to convey the party to Nantasket, where they mingled with a church picnic from Brockton. Passes were obtained to Paragon Park, and all enjoyed the attractions at this resort. It was about 7 P. M. when the picnickers reached Quincy.

LEADERS LYING LOW

Bill Field Wants to Give Everybody a Chance to Win

Another day without any change among the leaders, but nevertheless there is "something doing." Bill Field says he wants to give everybody a chance to win that boat, but they will have to do some hustling. Capt. Foster has established several headquarters where coupons may be left.

Gains continue to be reported among the candidates with less than 100 votes and any one of them may suddenly come to the front. A club of 30 by placing a "trial order" for each member, could have taken the lead today.

There are now four prizes offered, three cash prizes aggregating $25, in addition to the motor boat. The first four today are Messrs. Field, Foster and Middleton and Miss Matthews.

Blanks for placing trial orders for the Daily Ledger may be obtained at the office of publication, and will be mailed upon request. Each trial order gives a credit of 100 votes to your favorite candidate.

The standing of the candidates will be printed each day, all votes received previous to 9 A. M. being counted that day.

It is not necessary that candidates shall be members of a yacht club or any other club. Neither is the contest limited to men. Women as well as men may enter.

The prizes offered are valuable ones, there being others besides the motor boat which is offered as a first prize.

The standing today at 9 A. M. was:

Midnight Blaze Newcomb Place

The alarm from Box 171 at 12.03 this morning was for a brisk blaze in the house at 11 Newcomb place owned by Reuben Hersey of Hingham and occupied by George Barcus and William Anderson.

The fire started in the attic of the part occupied by Mr. Barcus. Four children sleep there and they were awakened by smoke. Their cries aroused Mrs. Barcus and the boarders who tried to extinguish the fire with buckets of water. Unsuccessful in their efforts one of the boarders rang in the alarm. The department when it arrived found that the fire was on the floor of the attic and that it had worked through into the side occupied by Anderson. Chemical streams were carried into the attic and the fire was extinguished with this stream. The fire evidently started from matches in the cracks of the floor and did a damage of $300.

While the fire was in progress someone telephoned the police that the fire had been set by a boarder that had trouble with Mrs. Barcus. Sergeant Barry sent the patrol wagon and several officers to the house, but the officers could find no evidence that the fire had been set.

The newly reorganized Merrymount base ball team made a good showing in their initial game on Saturday when they met the Makaria Fraternity team at Merrymount park. The game was won by the Merrymounts in the first inning when two singles and a pretty double by Stevens nearly to Hancock street netted two runs before anyone was out. After that Merrymounts was unable to score until the last inning, but had two men left on bases in the fourth.

In two innings only did the Makaria retire in one-two-three order, but the hits were few and far between. William Troupe who scored the only run reached first on an error. With two men on bases in the seventh Ganzel fanned. Two men were also left on bases in the eighth and one in the ninth.

Kolson and Michael both pitched a good game, as the small number of hits shows. The former struck out 6 and the latter 8.

Union Picnic At Germantown

The Sunday schools of the Washington Street Congregational and First Universalist churches had a glorious time Saturday at the union picnic which was held at Germantown. Fully 250 children were present, and they were transported across town river in rowboats and launches without an accident of any kind.

During the afternoon there was a series of sports. Silver challenge cups were offered in each event, and a special cup valued at $25 was offered for the man making the largest number of points. The events resulted as follows:

100-yard dash, won by Samuel C. Melville.

Putting 12-pound shot, won by Edwin Hayden.

Potato race, won by Edwin Hayden.

Broad jump, won by Thomas Skinner.

Relay race between men teachers and Barraca class, won by the teachers, who were Thomas B. Pollard, R. Hendry, Samuel C. Melville and J. H. Hendrie.

The challenge cup was awarded to Thomas Skinner.

Mrs. Thomas B. Pollard and the Priscillas had charge of the ice cream tent, and the Barraca class had charge of the tonic tent.

The committee in charge of the picnic were: John W. Hendrie, H. E. Bonney, Frank Melville, Samuel C. Melville, A. Hendry and Edgar F. Hayden, Jr.

Club Women Entertained.

Mrs. Everett C. Bumpus of Presidents hill entertained most delightfully at her home from four until six o'clock on Saturday afternoon, delegates from California and the Canal zone, who are attending the meetings in Boston of the Federation of Women's clubs, also officers of the Quincy Women's club and a few neighbors and friends.

Following the reception, and the serving of refreshing punch and dainty sandwiches in the dining room and library, all wended their way to the terrace in front of the house where Mrs. Boswell gave a most interesting talk on club life in Panama, telling of the good being accomplished by women. They stand for home life, for education, sanitation and all that is uplifting. Pictures were passed about showing scenes along the canal and in bordering towns.

The delegates returned to Boston soon after six, visiting and local club women mutually agreeing that the few hours together had been most pleasant. Todaythe Quincy Women's club entertains a party of delegates.

Fanchon and Arawak In First Places

A southeasterly breeze greeted the yachts of classes B and D of the Quincy Yacht club at the race held Saturday afternoon off the club house at Houghs Neck. The course was a triangular one, giving the yachts a run, a beat to windward, and reach. Class D sailed a seven mile course and Class B a three and one-half mile course.

Class D got away well bunched, and so close to the line was the Iris when the gun sounded that the skipper of the Busy Bee thought she was over and entered a protest. The judges, however, did not allow the protest. It was a pretty race between the Arawak and the Iris but try as he would Skipper Crane could not overtake the Arawak and pass her. The Arawak fininshed with a lead of 1 minute 15 second or 2 minutes 9 seconds corrected time. The Busy Bee was 4 minutes behind the Iris at the finish.

In Class B the Fanchon got away first, and continued to increase her lead throughout the race, finishing with a lead of over 10 minutes actual time and 8 minutes corrected time. Who wins second place is in doubt as the Pollywog had not been measured.

The summary:

Ancestor of Taft A Braintree Man

Previous to 1792 all of the territory of Braintree, Quincy, Holbrook and Randolph was known as Braintree. It was then (about 1678) that an ancestor of Candidate Taft lived here for a short time as will be seen by the following from the Taft genealogy:

Robert (1) Taft came from Ireland or Scotland to Braintree, Mass, 1678, with wife Sarah.

Capt. Joseph (2) Taft, born Mendon, Mass., 1680, married Elizabeth Emerson.

Peter (3) Taft, born Mendon, Mass., married Elizabeth Cheney.

Aaron (4) Taft, born Mendon, Mass., Married Rhoda Rawson.

Peter (5) Taft, born Uxbridge, Mass., married Sylvia Howard and removed to Townshend, Vt.

Alphonso (6) Taft, born Townshend, Vt., married Louisa Maria Torrey and removed to Cincinnati, O.

William Howard (7) Taft the Republican candidate for President, born in Cincinnati, Sept. 15, 1857.

Benefit Dance At Houghs Neck

The Houghs Neck Associates held their first benefit dance Monday night at Brown's summer ball room. The affair was a splendid success both socially and financially. The building fund was increased considerably. Nearly all the members were present and in many cases the members brought a lot of friends with them. The floor was in charge of Angus Brown and he was ably assisted by Albert Acorn, John R. S. Ross, A. F. Baird and W. J. Hudson. Kutz's orchestra furnished fine music.

Mrs. T. F. Callahan and her two daughters, and son Edward, of Lewiston, Maine, are the guests of the Connors of Mears avenue, Great hill, for a week.

The boat to Nantasket Point will start Wednesday to run every day, the timetable will be found in another column.

A special meeting of the Houghs Neck associates has been called for Wednesday, July 1. The business will consist of things of great importance. Immediate steps will be taken to incoporate. The meeting will be held in the Quincy Yacht club, at 8 P. M. sharp.

Dancing at Pandora Hall every afternoon. 6t

Adolph Adams, impersonator of great men, past and present, recently of Keith's circuit, will be at the Sea street Dream all this week. Mr. Adams act is considered one of the best in that line.

The Quincy Yacht club will hold a hop tonight at their club house.

The people of Houghs Neck should get fine service now from the mails. Arthur Dunham has his runabout in commission again.

Harry Brown has had three large gas arc lights installed on the front of his dance hall. They throw a very bright light.

Fred C. Spayde, Sunday editor of the Boston American, has purchased the power boat "Trilby" from Ben Comeau of the Willows.

Thirty Candidates.

A largely attended meeting of Quincy council, Knights of Columbus, was held Monday night at Braintree Town hall, which proved none too large, as there was a large number present from all the surrounding towns. The work of the evening was the third degree, and there were thirty candidates to receive it. The work was performed by William M. Cornell, the district deputy, assisted by P. J. Kelliher of Rockland. After the business meeting LaCroix served a banquet.

Wollaston Celebration.

Let the eagle scream! The Red Men of Wollaston are painting the town red with posters upon which the eagle is conspicuous. Hodenosaunee tribe will entertain the "Night Before the Fourth" at 8 o'clock opposite the Wollaston depot, with stereopticon views and other features. Everyone is invited, and a good time is assured.

Charles Hobart and G. W. Gragg were among the star batters at Point picinic last Saturday.

New Inscription Or None at All

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

It seems impossible to decide the "assistant librarian" question by the help of any printed records—for those quoted by "Justice" and "Fair Play" seem to have equal authority and are equally contradictory.

It will be noticed, however, that the record dated 1876 states that for reasons of economy the Trustees of the Public Library of Quincy voted to run the library without a librarian. Therefore as there was no librarian there could have been no one to need an assistant and thus the term "assistant librarian" as applied to Miss Bumpus, who became acting librarian was then and now entirely a misnomer.

There seems two ways to adjust this matter, one to remove the objectionable inscription from the portrait of the faithful and efficient Miss Bumpus and when the question is asked "who is this?" to answer verbally "One who served the Public Library of Quincy faithfully over thirty years."

Or as the economy begun in 1876 must by this time have resulted in the saving of a considerable amount, could not a portion of the sum be used in purchasing a more elaborate inscription than the brief and terse two words now to be seen in an inscription generous and appreciative.

F. C. B.

O'Connell Has a Rival.

A Boston paper says Senator Frank J. Linehan will oppose Congressman Joseph F. O'Connell for the Democratic nomination in the 10th district next fall. Though a few other Democrats, including Senator McGettrick of Roxbury, may enter the fight, the line-up at the present time is between O'Connell and Linehan. While that district includes the three wards in South Boston wards 16, 17, 20 and 24 and Quincy and Milton, the fight will be interesting to city politicians generally for the effect it will have upon the line-up for the control of the Democratic city committee this fall.

MIDNIGHT FIRE

Destroys Office Building at Quarry of F. Hardwick & Son

The office building at the quarry of F. Hardwick & Son on Quarry street was completely gutted by fire at 1 o'clock this morning. The fire, which was probably the work of an incendiary, had made great headway when discovered, and when the alarm from Box 441 was sounded the whole building was a roaring mass of flames.

The fire made a bright illumination, and as the building was located on high ground the illumination was seen for miles.

The fire department made a very quick run and had two streams of water on the building inside of five minutes from the sounding of the first round of the alarm.

The building had been unoccupied for some years. Nothing but the frame is left standing. Chief Williams estimates the loss at $400.

Granite Company Dividend.

In the United States circuit court on Monday, says the Herald, Receiver Ralph A. Stewart of the Milford Pink Granite Quarries Campany presented a plan, acceptable to most of the creditors, by which they will probably receive a dividend of 25 per cent. on their claims. By terms of the compromise, Orlando W. Norcross of the Norcross Bros. Company, who is a director in the Milford company, agrees to pay $85,000 for the personality, which includes outstanding contracts and receivable bills. The Columbia Trust Company of New York has bonds of the Milford company to the amount of $151,000, but will not foreclose, and is acting in harmony with the other creditors.

War Game Ended.

While the people of Quincy were peacefully sleeping last night the Ninth regiment stationed at Telescope hill, Hull, had fears that the battleships might have landed forces at Quincy and contemplated a rear attack in the great war game in Boston harbor. The attack however was by sea.

About Glasgow And Edinburgh

Edinburgh, Scotland,
June 17, 1908.

Dear Editor: I promised my dear friends in Quincy a little excursion to the old, quaint and as many travellers claim, the finest city in Great Britain, if not in the world. Before we leave Glasgow, allow me to take you on a short trolley ride, in these double-deckers just let the young folks go up stairs, and the most feeble better stay down stairs. I will pay the fare for it is only one cent, half penny. We better take the blue car for it will take us through the shopping district.

This is Aryle street. The sidewalks are always crowded. On Saturday afternoon and evenings, the motley human beings flow over the whole street, so that it is almost impossible for the cars or carriages to go through. Do you see those fellows shouting apples, three for a penny? That fellow there with that steaming boiler is the potato man, selling roasted potatoes. That sturdy blind man on the edge of the curb calls out, fine leather laces only a penny a pair.

Now we are in Buchanan street, with its fine range of stores on each side, just over the Herald buildings, are Miss Cranston's tea rooms. When you are tired of this ride we will go to one of these tea rooms, they are all over the city, and some of them are elegant. All tea, no coffee. We can get a pot of tea, boiled ham, bread and butter for 6 pence, 12 cents, or you can order anything with your tea from a roast chicken to a herring, but you must have tea.

Another of the principal streets are the Gallowgate and Trongate streets. The street railways belong to the city. I have ridden way out of the city for a penny, and still the city makes it pay good dividends.

Now we are going by Enoch church, an old looking structure, designed by Christopher Wren, it was built in 1780. This open space is the centre of the municipal life. I have studied a great deal about the government of this, the second city in the empire. It is too dry to talk about just now. This monument in the centre is Scott's monument.

There are many other buildings I would like to show you, but we must take another car, a red one, for the Caledonian Central Railroad, for our train starts at 10 A. M. It is an express and it will take one hour and five minutes to make the 48 miles to Edinburgh. Here we are, we have only five minutes and we have got to climb all those stone steps. Oh! what cars, they are more like a depot carriage than railroad cars. But jump in. We can not all go in one car, for there is only room for six in each first class carriage. Here is the conductor calling tickets before we start. After he punches it, he locks us in like a lot of sheep.

Now we are on the go. On the way we see the prettiest farms, the cutest little fields you ever saw with waving grain, and all variety of farming and garden crops. Strawberries are now in their season here, and you see how big they are. One of them is as big as half a dozen of ours, and do you see those hedges that divide the fields? They are thorns and heather and other beautiful shrubs. Look at those coal mines here and there and everywhere; also oil works. They get the oil by crushing a kind of stone. And what do you think, J. P. Morgan came over here a short time ago, and he, like the shrewd man he is, went and gobbled the best mines around here.

Here we are in Edinburgh at last. We better take our dinner before we start to do the city. Of course we can put in a good long day, because it is light enough to read the paper here at 11 P. M.

In our next, surely, after we see this city, we will take our promised trip down the famous Clyde.

John Evans.

Fresh Air Camp And Its Work

The fresh air camp at North Weymouth will be opened Wednesday afternoon, at which time there will be a flag raising and probably brief remarks by Rev. A. R. Atwood, Charles H. Johnson and others, and there may possibly be some sports.

At 2 P. M., there will be a ball game between a picked nine representing Quincy and a picked nine representing Weymouth.

The camp is situated near what was the Keene shipyard, bordering on the shore of Quincy bay. The camp comprises about 12 acres, and is a most desirable location. A good sandy beach affords an excellent opportunity for bathing and boating. There is also good fishing off the camp and a fine ball field has been laid out.

At the present time accommodations have been provided for 28 people. The idea of the camp is to give people an opportunity for rest and recreation. It is non-sectarian, and aims to help children's societies.

This year the camp will only be run during the month of July, and should it prove the success anticipated, steps will be taken to make it a permanent organization for another season.

No charge is made campers connected with local churches, although they must provide their own food. To outside campers a nominal charge is made.

The dates for July are practically all taken.

From July 6 to 12, the young people of the Unitarian, Universalist and Washington street Congregational churches will be at camp.

From July 13 to 20, twenty-five boys from the Rockland churches will be in camp.

July 20 the Boy's club of Christ church will be there.

During this time there will be days set apart for the children of various children societies of Boston, and of the Quincy Day Nursery.

The movement for the fresh air camp was started by Rev. A. R. Atwood and Charles H. Johnson. It has received the hearty support of all the local churches, and promises to be one of the best institutions of its kind in the state.

Nickel in the Slot.

The progress of labor saving devices continues. An automatic arrangement now lets persons through the turnstile at Scollay Square, Boston, as soon as they drop a nickel in the slot. Its purpose is to relieve ticket sellers in rush hours.

Near the slot are the following directions, "Press nickel to bottom of slot. Then push on gate." Inserting the coin releases a horizontal lever, a knob on the end of which is just visible at the edge of the box and which prevents the movement of the arm of the turnstile, until a nickel has been deposited, when it swings away, returning to its rigid position as soon as a person has passed through and another quadrant of the turnstile swung to place.

Holiday Regatta.

Good prizes are affered in the Fourth of July regatta of the City of Boston, which starts at 1 P. M. on the holiday.

Just Jotted Down By Ledger Men

The last day of June.

There will be numerous home attractions on the Fourth of July in Quincy.

The Daily Ledger will not be issued on Saturday, the Fourth of July.

Quincy had a grand celebration of the Fourth of July in 1876, the Centennial year.

A regular meeting of the school Committee, probably the last until August, will be held tonight.

Mrs. L. B. Page and son of Hancock street are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Westenarp at Saugus.

It was on July 1, 1861, that the present Quincy Adams depot went into commission. Almost old enough to receive a pension.

The City Council Committee on Public Buildings will meet tonight. The Finance Committee will meet before the Council meeting next Monday evening.

Miss Mildred Estes is substituting at the Mt. Wollaston bank during the vacation season. Mrs. Rhines is away on her vacation at the present time.

F. H. Crane & Sons are to move their hay sheds from the northerly side of Liberty street to the site formerly occupied by McGilvray & Jones.

The estate of the late James Flowers on Quincy street, was sold at administrator's sale on Monday by Auctioneer Johnson to his son James Flowers for $1,100.

Commissioner Bainbridge is getting ready to resurface Washington street and Hancock street on the westerly side, between City Square and the Neponset bridge.

A great transformation has taken place at the granite yard of McGilvray & Jones at South Quincy. All of the sheds have been tron down and nothing now remains but the small office building.

Get After the Moths.

The gypsy moths are becoming numerous in different parts of Quincy, and only vigorous measures will exterminate them. Ex-Councilman Stewart, the superintendent of the work fears he will not be successful without the cooperation of all the property holders of Quincy. If everyone would watch their own trees something might be accomplished. Now is the time before the situation becomes serious.

READY FOR A FIGHT

Prohibitionists Want a Plank In Democratic Platform

ANTI-INJUNCTION QUESTION

Resolution Not Likely to Provide For Trials by Jury In Cases of Contempt of Court--Chanler Vice Presidential Boom Weakens

Denver, June 30.—The fight over the anti-injunction plank in the Democratic platform is not the only struggle in which the committee on resolutions and possibly the convention itself may be involved.

It has developed that the prohibition question is to be brought to the front and that a desperate effort will be made to have a plank declaring in its favor placed in the platform. The prohibition movement will be headed by James B. Weaver of Iowa, who demanded of the recent Democratic convention in that state that it declare in favor of prohibition.

General Weaver and his followers were not successful in their efforts in their own state, but, not daunted by their failure, have made arrangements to bring the matter up before the Democratic national convention. They claim, moreover, to have strong backing from a number of delegations from the southern states which have recently passed prohibition laws, and it is declared confidently by Weaver's adherents that if the Democratic national platform does not contain a prohibition plank it will only be for the reason that the hardest kind of fighting has been unable to secure its adoption.

The anti-injunction plank continues to provoke a large amount of discussion among such party leaders as have already arrived for the convention. While opinions differ as to the exact nature of the plank which should be adopted, all are of one mind in saying that it shall be a definite and specific statement. Such members of the national committee as have discussed the matter are a unit in saying that the wording of the anti-injunction plank shall leave no possible doubt in the mind of any reader as to where the party stands on this question.

It is now generally believed, however, that the anti-injunction resolution will not provide for trials by jury in cases of contempt of court, or favor in any way measures which might be construed as interfering with the prerogatives of the federal courts.

The friends of Mr. Bryan say that such of his critics as are already expressing themselves in fear of a radical anti-injunction plank are fighting the air. The plank has not yet been written; it has not been drafted, and its form is still a matter which is under careful consideration. It is said to be the desire of Bryan to consult as many of the prominent members of the party as is possible before any decisive action in formulating this resolution is taken.

The vice presidential situation remains to all appearances just where it was yesterday, although the boom of Lieutenant Governor Chanler of New York seems to have weakened somewhat and his name is not as prominently mentioned as it was two days ago. This is largely due to the announcement made by Norman E. Mack, national committeeman from New York, that he has no authority to speak for Chanler, and that his interest in the movement was dictated by friendship and by a sincere belief that the New York official is well qualified to take second place on the ticket.

Only one new name is mentioned as a vice presidential possibility. This is Governor Chamberlain of Oregon. He is in much favor with some of the party leaders and it is said he will be personally acceptable to Bryan if the latter is nominated.

The sponsors of the vice presidential booms located outside of New York state claim to be generally encouraged by the fact that already five men have been mentioned as aspirants to the vice presidential nomination. They believe with the New York delegation divided among that number of candidates an outsider has a far better chance of securing the prize than would be the case if the delegation from the Empire state were standing solidly for a single man.

Governor Johnson's Attitude

Des Moines, June 30.—"I am not going to Denver," said Governor Johnson in an interview here. "However, I will be represented at Denver. Good political and personal friends of mine will be there to attend to my interests, if you call it interests."

"If Bryan is the choice of the convention will you seek recognition from the national party by agreeing to accept the vice presidential nomination?"

"No, No!" he said. "I am a candidate for the presidential nomination of my party. If I do not get it I am not a candidate for anything else. My friends strictly understand this point. They know conclusively that I do not seek other than the nomination for the first place."

Asking Pardon of Shah

Berlin, June 30.—A special dispatch from Tabriz says that after seven days' sanguinary fighting the Constitutional party at that place has yielded and seeks the pardon of the shah, through the intermediation of the Russian consul.

HOW TO TELL IF YOU HAVE WORMS

THE REMEDY THAT QUICKLY EXPELS THEM

The common symptoms of worms in children and adults are:—Paleness of the face with occasional flushing; indigestion accompanied by an unnatural appetite at times; foul tongue and offensive breath; itching nose; vomiting; grinding of the teeth during sleep; swelling of the upper lip; hard swelled bowels; griping or colic pains; also convulsions and many other unaccountable nervous symptoms, which, if not checked in time, lead on to something more serious.

TOOK DR. TRUE'S ELIXIR AND GOT WELL

SOMERVILLE, ME.

DR. TRUE, DEAR SIR:—

"For more than three months one of my children had been troubled with spells of vomiting and symptoms of fever nearly every week, together with canker-sores about the nose and mouth. I obtained, about two weeks ago, two bottles of your Elixir, and before the first bottle was exhausted the sores were entirely healed, and no appearance of his vomiting or fever-spells has ever returned. I really believe that the lives of thousands of children suffering from worms or canker might be saved by a timely and judicious use of your Elixir." Yours truly,

J. L. HAMMETT.

This is only one of hundreds of such testimonials. This marvelous remedy has been made and sold by Dr. J. F. True & Co. for fifty-six years, and in all that time nothing but words of praise have been bestowed upon it. This is what Mr. Wing thinks of it.

AUBURN, ME.

DR. TRUE, DEAR SIR:—

"For the past seven years I have constantly kept a supply of your Elixir in my house, and it never failed to give prompt relief. It has been a great blessing to my children, and unsolicited I give you this tribute of gratitude, hoping the merits of your unrivaled family medicine may be widely known and appreciated."

Very respectfully yours,

CHAS. E. WING.

Even though worms may not be found present Dr. True's Elixir tones up the stomach and liver. Read what Dr. J. Haley, of Brunswick, thinks of it:

"It is a safe and effectual remedy. For worms it has no equal, and is an excellent remedy for canker of the mouth and throat."

Dr. True's Elixir is sold by druggists everywhere at 35c., 50c., and $1.00 per bottle. The booklet, "Children and Their Diseases," will be sent free by simply addressing Dr. J. F. True & Co., Auburn, Me. We have a special treatment for tape-worm. Send for free book.

TOILED OVER BALLOTS

Clubwomen In All Night Session After Federation Election

Boston, June 30.—At daylight this morning forty women, behind barred doors on the second floor of Symphony hall, were still counting the votes cast for the new president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

They began their task at 8:30 last night and not one of them had left the room in all that time. Their supper, consisting of coffee and sandwiches, had been sent in from a neighboring restaurant.

The vote of the nominating committee, which was kept secret, is said to have been in favor of Mrs. May A. Ward of Massachusetts, one state failing to vote.

Eleven hundred and sixty-nine women delegates voted. The late arrival of the ballots and the reported scratching of the official ballot were reasons given for the long hours of counting.

Reform School Boys Escape

Baltimore, June 30.—Sixty boys at the Maryland school for boys revolted and escaped from the institution. Led by a boy who was armed with a crowbar, they stormed the outer gate, demolished the lock and, streaming through the portal, scattered in all directions. Two of the guards tried to scare the boys by firing their pistols in the air. The only result was a shower of bricks and stones. The police all over the city were soon on the lookout for the gray-clad fugitives and a dozen of them were recaptured.

High License In Louisiana

Baton Rouge, La., June 30.—That Louisiana shall be a high license state for the next two years at least was finally decided by the assembly when the senate passed the Shattuck-Gay liquor bill by a vote of 29 to 4. This measure has passed the house and has the governor's approval. It fixes the minimum parish license at $500, minimum state at $200, with maximum licenses running up to several thousand dollars each.

Adams Defends Betsy Ross

New York, June 30.—Secretary Adams of the American Flaghouse and Betsy Ross Memorial association denies the story that Betsy Ross was not the maker of the first American flag. Adams says that an exhaustive search of the records and traditions of Philadelphia has "never shaken the truth of the statement that the first flag was made at 239 Arch street," the home of Betsy Ross.

Czar Called an Assassin

Paris, June 30.—The Socialists provoked a violent scene in the chamber of deputies, opposing the appropriation for President Fallieres' visit to Russia. M. Vaillant accused the Russian government of having committed innumerable murders and atrocities, while another Socialist deputy called the emperor an assassin. Amid a tumultuous roar the money was finally voted.

Lipton Will Try Again

London, June 30.—Sir Thomas Lipton is prepared to challenge again for the America's cup under the following conditions. First, the new yacht shall be cutter rigged and built under the present universal rule of the New York Yacht club; second, the New York Yacht club shall designate the size of the yacht it considers most suitable for the race.

Republican National Chairmanship

Washington, June 30.—Arthur L. Vorys of Ohio has been summoned to Washington by Secretary Taft, and it is believed he is to be offered the national chairmanship. This move was taken after an important conference with a delegation representing the political organization of the Republican party in his home state of Ohio.

Revenue Collections Falling Off

New York, June 30.—A falling off from the previous year of $33,303,515 in duties collected at the port of New York during the fiscal year ending June 30 is shown by the annual report of the auditor of the collector of customs. On the other hand, domestic exports increased from $616,784,506 last year to $682,263,190 in the year just ended.

Actress Attracts Vanderbilt

London, June 30.—Alfred G. Vanderbilt is attracting much attention for his very evident interest in Miss Lena Ashwell, a brilliant emotional actress, who is playing at the Kingsway theatre in "Diana of Dobson's." The young millionaire's friends would not be surprised to hear of his engagement to Miss Ashwell.

Preparing For Steve Adams' Trial

Grand Junction, Col., June 30.—Examination of venire men summoned in the case of Steve Adams, charged with the murder of Arthur Collins, a mine superintendent, who was killed at Telluride several years ago, has begun in the district court here. It is expected that a jury can be secured by this evening.

Electrical Strike Ended

Rochester, June 30.—At a conference between striking electrical workers and employers an agreement to end the strike was made. The trouble between the strikers and the employers began in Syracuse two months ago and extended to this city. The men returned to work today.

THE SANITY OF THAW

Judge Thinks It Should Be Passed Upon by a Jury

AN APPEAL BY BARTLETT

Does Not Mention Prisoner's Wife In Naming Those Who Seek His Liberation--Hearing Proceeds In Spite of Opposition of Jerome

White Plains, N. Y., June 30.—Harry Thaw's chances for a jury trial as to his sanity appear to be bright. At the conclusion of argument before Justice Mills the justice ordered that Thaw should be detained in the Poughkeepsie jail, and adjourned the case to July 13, when new arguments and affidavits will be submitted. Thaw was taken back to Poughkeepsie.

When the case came up, Mr. Bartlett, counsel for Thaw, began an address to the court on the legal points involved in the habeas corpus over the objection of District Attorney Jerome, who announced his intention of asking for a ten days' adjournment to give him time to prepare a return to the writ, but as Bartlett is to sail for Europe this morning, the court decided that he should be heard at this time.

Mr. Bartlett attacked the constitutionality of Thaw's commitment to Matteawan and argued that there should have been an inquiry into Thaw's sanity after the verdict of the last jury and before his commitment to Matteawan.

"It isn't Harry Thaw alone who is concerned in the proceeding," said Bartlett. "It is whether any man be be deprived of his liberty without due process of law. Harry Thaw has been acquitted of the crime of murder and he stands before the law as innocent as any man who hears my voice. And I want to say that he is just as sane, in my opinion, as I am."

Mr. Bartlett grew more dramatic as he continued: "We ask for a trial by jury unless your honor shall on the points we have raised be satisfied of the justice of our position and discharge this young man from custody. In behalf of Harry Thaw, in behalf of his relatives, mother, sister, brother—all his relatives and friends—I make this appear to your honor's sense of humanity and justice." Bartlett made no mention of the prisoner's wife, Evelyn Thaw, in his appeal for Thaw's liberation.

Judge Mills asked if there were proper facilities at the hospital for guarding the prisoner and preventing his escape. The question brought all the counsel to their feet. Assistant District Attorney Conger objected to Thaw's return to the Poughkeepsie jail. Bartlett asked that Thaw be detained either in the Westchester jail, the Poughkeepsie jail or the Hudson River state hospital while the proceedings were pending. District Attorney Winslow said that in the Westchester jail Thaw would have to occupy a cell like any ordinary prisoner.

Mr. Jerome made a long argument against Thaw going anywhere but to Matteawan, which he described as the one proper place provided by the legislature for the treatment of such prisoners.

"I most earnestly object to the hippodroming of this man around the country from one county to another. Such proceedings bring justice into disrepute. Justice Dowling and Justice Morschauser have both committed Thaw to Matteawan and it is the one proper place in which he can be securely confined and receive proper medical treatment. I regard him as a dangerous paranoiac, who seeks an opportunity to escape out of the jurisdiction of this state to which he cannot be returned under requisition."

Bartlett responded warmly to Jerome, who, he said, was conducting the prosecution of Thaw beyond the verdict of the jury, beyond the limits of his duty.

"Why," said Bartlett, "I was told at Matteawan that I could have but nineteen minutes in which to talk with Thaw, and I was virtually fired on the twentieth minute. We will give a bond of $100,000 that he will not try to escape from any institution. If he was a poor man he would have been discharged long ago. Because he is reputed to have money he is regarded with suspicion. It is going back to the horrors and tortures of the dark ages in favor of cruel oppression."

Judge Mills ended the many-sided argument by announcing: "I believe it should be only a matter of time when this man ought to have a jury trial. I am not prepared to say whether it should be now or later. I will grant an adjournment to receive affidavits and arguments and will detain the prisoner in the meantime."

New arguments and affidavits will be submitted to Mills on Monday, July 13, in support of the application for a jury trial and by Jerome in opposition.

Dangerously Insane Person

New York, June 30.—Justice Dowling of the supreme court, who presided at the second trial of Harry K. Thaw, yesterday denied Thaw's application to be removed from the asylum for the criminal insane at Matteawan to some other institution, on the ground that Thaw was a dangerously insane person, not to be punished, but to be kept under restraint, that he might not injure himself or any one else.

YORK DRAWBRIDGE OPEN

Selectmen Bow to Will of the United States Government

York, Me., June 30.—The York drawbridge, which has been closed to the passage of vessels on account of the refusal of the selectmen of the town to accept the completed bridge from a town committee which had the oversight of the repairs, was opened today, the selectmen having decided to recede from their position on account of the announcement that criminal proceedings would be brought against them by the United States government. A statement issued by them says they opened the draw under protest.

Today a tug of the Piscataqua Navigation company came up the river with an empty barge to brickyards above the bridge, and this vessel was the first to pass through the now-famous draw. Three barges were in waiting for the draw to open. They were brought up one at a time by the Piscataqua Navigation company tugs in order if possible to force the selectmen to accede to the order of the navy department, issued on June 15, declaring that the river must be kept open to navigation above and below the bridge. In each of the three instances the bridge remained closed, the town authorities refusing to open it. It is said that the prosecution proposed by District Attorney Whitehouse involved a possible fine of $1000 in each case.

The Piscataqua Navigation company has announced its intention of bringing suits against the town for demurrage and the brick companies have also threatened suit.

Officers are expected from Hartford today to determine if he has any resemblance to the Capehart wanted in that city.

Mrs. Robert Harding of Botolph street has returned from Rockland, Maine, where she was a guest of her daughter, Mrs. George York.

Mr. Gourlie will represent the Quincy High school in the interscholastic golf tourney which opens at the Wollaston links on Wednesday.

The Fresh Air Camp Association is the grateful receiver of a donation of canvas and hammocks. The Association is able to use even more second-hand canvas, in the construction on the shore of a pavilion.

Preparations are in progress for a Patriotic service on Sunday evening at 7.30 at the Point church. The G. A. R., W. R. C. and kindred organizations are to be present and occupy the body of the church.

A stranger who came to Atlantic to look at property on Sunday was interested in our Quincy school building. Upon being told that it was new the stranger hastened to say: "Oh, yes, I knew it must be by the unkept look of the grounds.

There is a beautiful crimson rambler rose at the birthplace of President John Adams which is much admired by visitors to the house. Wonder what the family in olden days would have thought to see such a thrifty bush, a mass of deep crimson bloom.

Commencing tomorrow, the steamer between Houghs Neck and Nantasket Point will make daily trips. There will be seven round trips every day, making a very cheap and popular excursion.

Mrs. Elijah Hall of Newbury avenue, who has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. William Gassett of Mount Vernon, N. Y., has returned to Atlantic.

The government tug "Lieut. Bumpus" named in honor of the Quincy officer slain in the Philippines, conveyed Gov. Guild and staff to Fort Heath at Winthrop and Fort Banks on Monday to inspect the fortress.

The success of the Point picnic of last Saturday, is due largely to the ability and effort of John Hendry, chairman of the committee. He was ably assisted by H. E. Bonney, Frank Melville, Robert Hendry, Samuel Melville and E. F. Hayden, Jr.

New Contracts For Steamboats

The Fore River Shipbuilding Company is about to commence work upon eight steel single screw steamers, the contract for which was signed at the office of the United States quartermaster-general on the 6th of June. These vessels will carry no arms. They will cost about $60,000 each.

The scout cruiser Salem left the Boston navy yard at 11 o'clock this morning to complete her government tests, which is a 24-hour run. The object of this trial is to determine the amount of coal necessary to drive her a knot? Investigation at the navy yard shows that the water boat that supplied the Salem with water last week had just been painted with a liquid cement. This cement was forced into the boilers and turbines of the Salem, and of course she could not do her best. Had it not been for this she would have completed her official trials last week. Up to the present time the Salem has more than met every requirement of the government.

The shipyard should unite on one candidate in the Motor Boat contest of the Daily Yedger.

One of the turbine engines for the Japanese battleship Aki was tried out at the Fore River shipyard on Monday, and more than fulfilled the requirements of the contract. It developed a speed of 450 revolutions per minute.

The scout cruiser Birmingham, built at Quincy, reached Boston this week from an extended cruise in the Gulf of Mexico and southern waters.

The progress on the mammoth battleship the North Dabota, building at the Quincy yard attracts considerable attention, as it is unparalleled in the United States. The contract for the North Dakota was signed Aug. 6, 1907, and her keel was officially laid down at high noon Dec. 16, that being the exact hour that the great fleet weighed anchor and began the cruise to the Pacific. On the first day of the year the work upon the North Dakota was 12.07 per cent. completed, while the figures for the Delaware were 7.05. On Feb. 1, the Fore River ship stood at 17.50 and the Newport News vessel registered 9.20. The precentages for the North Dakota on the 1st of each succeeding month showed steady gains, standing March 1 at 21.40, April 1 at 35.70.

First Church Picnic.

The Sunday school of the First church is holding its annual picnic today at Houghton's pond. Four barges and a tally-ho coach were necessary to convey the party. They left City Square shortly before 10 o'clock. Supt. Johnson has arranged a series of sports for the day and a grand good time is anticipated.

"Trial order" blanks for the Daily Ledger will be sent on application at the Ledger office. The paper will be delivered in any part of Quincy, and the subscriber may cast 100 votes for any candidate in the Motor Boat popularity contest.

Trees Sprayed With Poison

The gypsy moth sprayer arrived in City Square this morning and all the trees about the First church were sprayed with a poison that is sure death to bugs of all kinds. The machine consists of a large tank with a force pump on the rear of the wagon. This pump forces the liquid poison through a hose. There is sufficient force to the pump to throw the liquid to the topmost branches of trees. It takes but a few seconds to a tree. As soon as the sprayer has done its work a red card is attached to the trees warning people to keep animals away from it, because of the poison used.
